Expert Reveals Why U.S. Missile System Lags

(Copyright 1957 By The Associated Press)

Editor's Note—The U. S. in the words of President Eisenhower is behind Russia in development of satellites and "in some missiles in special areas."

The Associated Press has obtained this exclusive signed story with Dr. Wernher Von Braun, director of the Development Operations Division at the Army's Redstone Arsenal in Huntsville, Ala.

Dr. Von Braun was asked a series of questions relating to the military aspects of the Sputnik program and the future of space in general. Here are his answers.

Q. How do you account for the USSR's apparent ability to outstrip the United States in reaching into space?

A. The main reason is that the United States had no ballistic missile program worth mentioning between 1945 and 1951. These six years, during which the Russians obviously laid the groundwork for their large rocket program, are irretrievably lost. The United States went into a serious ballistic missile program only in 1951, with the decisions to weaponize the Army's JPL Corporal rocket and to develop the Redstone. Thus our present dilemma is not due to the fact that we are not working hard enough now, but that we did not work hard enough during the first six to ten years after the war.

Q. How long before it will be possible for the United States to launch a rocket to the moon? How long before manned space travel will be feasible? How soon might we build a space platform orbiting around the earth?

A. Launch an unmanned rocket one-way to the moon: Two to three years.

Manned flight to an orbit and return: Four to five years.

Construction of a manned space station could be tackled after manned orbital flight has become a routine.

Q. Is it probable that the U. S. public is in for additional shocks insofar as Russian scientific progress is concerned?

A. Yes. It is most likely that we are in for a few more shocks. With the powerful multi-stage rockets they must have used to launch Sputnik II, the Soviets have a definite immediate capability to fire a payload of possibly over 100 pounds on a one-way trip to the moon. With just a trifle more speed the top stage of their rocket would permanently leave the earth's gravitational field and enter an orbit around the sun.

Another possible surprise they may have in store for us is a manned ascent into an orbit with ensuing return and recovery, as previously explained. It is hard to predict which of the many possibilities along these lines the Russians will come up with next. But there can be no doubt that as the first successful conquerors of outer space the Soviets can now reap a whole bunch of easy fruits.

Q. Is it now possible for the United States to launch a satellite with the military hardware now available?

A. Yes. But any further comment in this regard would have to come from the Department of Defense.

Q. What can be done by the United States to achieve superiority in the satellite and missile fields? How long do you estimate it will take?

A. Before we can achieve superiority in these fields we have to catch up with the present Russian lead. In the ballistic missile field the United States, about two years ago, embarked into an all-out crash program which will be difficult to accelerate substantially beyond its present pace. In the satellite field we need a well-planned, long-range national spaceflight program which makes maximum use of rocket hardware (propulsion systems, guidance systems and airframes) emerging from our ballistic missile programs.

This program must be backed up by a firm budget which permits its steady prosecution over a period of several years. Even with no holds barred, I think it would still be well over five years before we could catch up with the Soviets again, because they are not likely to sit by idly in the meantime.

Q. Is money a factor in the development of missiles and satellites at this time? Do you think more money is needed?

A. I believe that, by and large, our five key ballistic missile programs (Jupiter, Thor, Polaris, Atlas and Titan) could not be speeded up appreciably by increases in funds. All these programs were subjected to some cutbacks a few months ago, but if the original budget figures are reinstated it is my

BELIEF DIMMING

Russ Says Laika May Still Be Alive

MOSCOW (UP)—The dog in the Sputnik may still be alive, a Soviet scientist said Saturday night. His statement ran counter to the growing belief it was dead.

Space expert Prof. Bely said the power in the half-ton satellite used to transmit radio signals also was being used to feed the 40-pound Arctic sledge dog named Laika.

(In Washington, the U.S. Naval Laboratory reported it had stopped receiving signals. The British Broadcasting Corp. also noticed the signals had stopped early Saturday.)

The dog was believed to have been conditioned to take food and thus sustain life every time an automatic bell rang in its kennel. It was believed that there was enough food for eight days aboard the satellite which was hurled more than 1,000 miles into space six days ago. Thus there apparently was enough food to last until Monday.

★ ★ ★ ★

BELY TOLD NEWSMEN he knew nothing of reports the animal might be parachuted back to earth.

He said there might be an official announcement about the fate of the dog today. But for the second day in a row Saturday, the official sputnik communiques failed to mention Laika.

The question arose whether Soviet rocketeers had solved the ultimate problem of bring-

Hypersonic Bomber in Russ Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet science Saturday was reported pointed toward a weapon more terrible than the "ultimate" intercontinental ballistic missile—a manned, hypersonic bomber that could glide at fantastic speeds through space and bomb and spy on any place on earth.

The United States was also described as interested in such a weapon, but far behind Russia in missiles work that could lead to this and other developments.

The informants said:

1. The U. S. government has circulated word that by 1959 the Soviets can be assumed to have long-range missiles able to attack all U. S. strategic air bases.

2. The Russians successfully launched two ICBMS last August. They were in the 4,000-mile range but capable of going further. A September launching attempt of a Russian ICBM-type missile, perhaps a Sputnik earth satellite, was unsuccessful.

3. It is not known whether the Reds have solved ICBM problems of accuracy and re-entry into the earth's atmosphere.

4. A U. S. Defense Department committee has turned thumbs down on proposed use of photons (light particles) to propel space ships. After careful inquiry, it was decided photon propulsion didn't show promise of enough push.

Committees Hit

WASHINGTON (UP)—Chairman James C. Davis of the House manpower subcommittee charged Saturday the administration has hampered U. S. scientific progress by leaving decisions to "cumbersome committees."

Wet Flower Blacks Out N.L.B. Lights

A wet lily disrupted power service in a large section of North Long Beach Saturday night.

The area west of Linden Ave. and north of 47th St. was blacked out at 9:27 p.m. when pranksters heaved a dripping-wet lily onto two terminals at the Southern California Edison Co. substation at E. 57th St. and Linden Ave.

The bloom touched off a spectacular blue flash, as the power lines short-circuited.

Power was restored at 10 p.m.

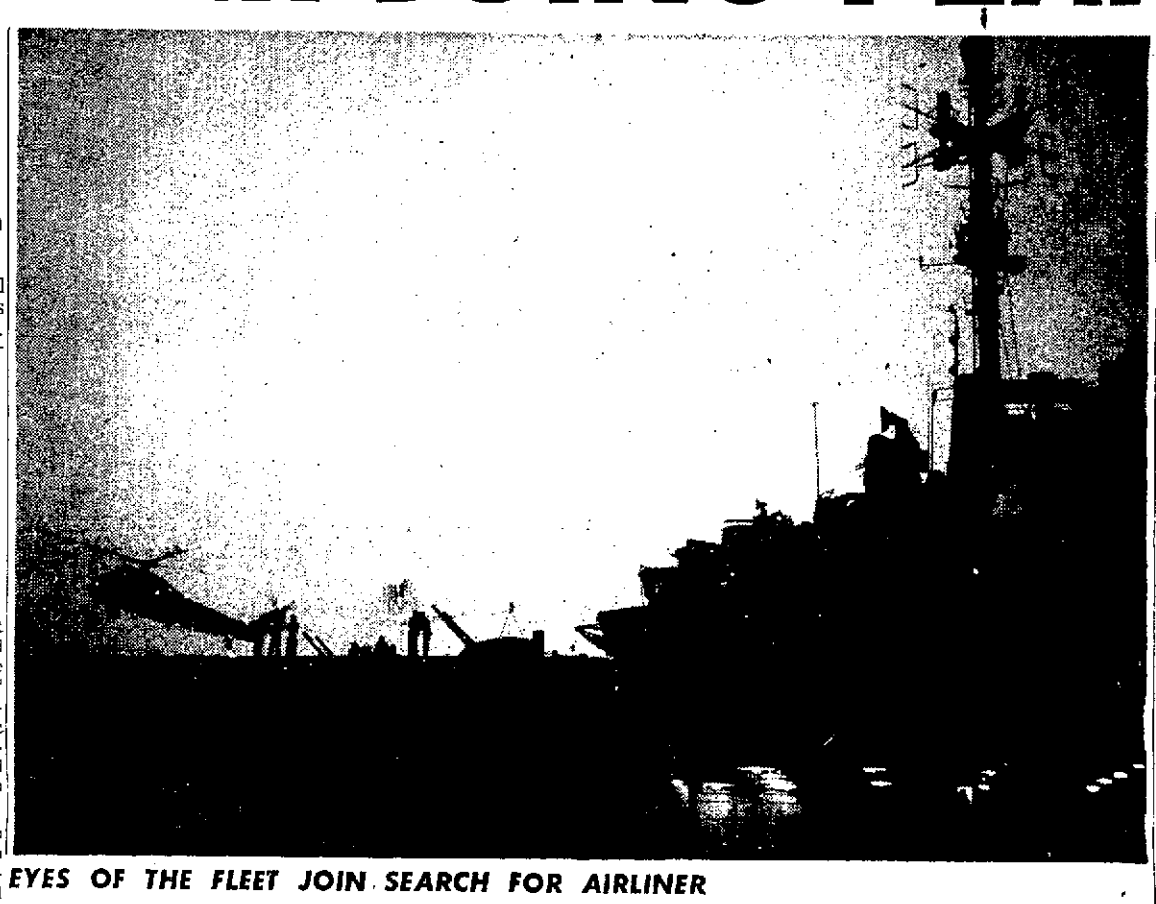

L.A.C. Says: Those Tax Bills

Property owners are aghast at the city and county tax bills they have just received. They find the bills are 10 to 20 per cent higher than a year ago. Tax rates have changed little but the assessment has been increased. The net result is an overall increase of over $100 million in taxes assessed by the county. Virtually every city has increased in proportion.

It is argued that raising assessments on older buildings is justified because in many instances they are now worth more than the original cost. That seems like a reasonable argument. But the fact is, the same process has ben applied to many newer buildings.

For example, one home built three years ago finds its assessed valuation increased by over 13 per cent. Two blocks away a house 15 years old finds

EYES OF THE FLEET JOIN SEARCH FOR AIRLINER

In a scene starkly reminiscent of wartime, the aircraft carrier USS Philippine Sea takes on the first load of helicopters to aid in the search for the missing Pan American Stratocruiser. Leaves were canceled and crewmen recalled as the carrier, docked at Pier E, made ready for sea. The copters and a squadron of propeller-driven search planes were rushed here from San Diego area.

Civil Rights Backer Leads Young Demos

RENO (AP)—Nelson Lancione of Columbus, Ohio, who campaigned for a strong civil rights platform, defeated Jack Noles of Tonkawa, Okla., for the presidency of the Young Democratic Clubs of America in a bitterly-fought election Saturday.

Lancione's victory at the organization's national convention came after the self-styled liberal caucus, a bloc of western and midwestern states mostly, endorsed the 36-year-old attorney and father of three over State Assemblyman Phillip Burton of San Francisco. Burton withdrew as a candidate and backed the Ohioan.

Sailors Dash to Pier E as Big Flattop Departs

All the drama and urgency of a wartime operation swirled around Long Beach's Pier E Saturday as the USS Philippine Sea was made ready to put to sea to join the search for the missing Pan American Stratocruiser.

Television and radio broadcasts blared orders for crewmen of the aircraft carrier to report back to duty as leaves were canceled.

Shore Patrol trucks and police cars roamed the streets, contacting sailors.

★ ★ ★ ★

DOWN ON THE PIKE, bluejackets strolling arm in arm with their girls heard the announcement over loudspeakers. They said their goodbyes and headed for Pier E.

Switchboard operators at the Naval Station started making phone calls to key personnel of the Phil Sea. The ship carries a crew of 1,600.

In San Diego, the same scene was being repeated. But there the call was for crewmen of Squadrons VS21 and HS6. VS21 is an anti-submarine outfit equipped with propeller-driven Grumann aircraft. HS6 is a helicopter squadron.

Late in the afternoon, an almost-steady caravan of cars began pulling up to the big gray flattop.

★ ★ ★ ★

"NOW HEAR THIS!" boomed the ship's public address system. "This ship is being made ready to join the search for the airliner that is missing at sea. You will be notified of further developments as they are received . . ."

Trucks began arriving with supplies for the ship, which has been on a re-training assignment since she returned Aug. 6 from several months in the Far East with the Seventh Fleet.

Promptly at dusk, the first of 28 helicopters from San Diego roared in over the flight deck. Its choppers beating, it

Death Toll Reaches 21 in Wild Weather Areas

By Associated Press

The season's worst onslaught of wintry weather knocked the mercury to zero or below in parts of the midcontinent Saturday and touched off snow squalls throughout the Great Lakes area.

Stiff northerly winds carried freezing weather southward to Texas and Tennessee.

Storm deaths from the spreading cold front and earlier tornadoes in parts of the south left at least 21 dead.

Fraser in the Colorado mountains had the lowest reading on the weather map, -4.

★ ★ ★ ★

GALE FORCE WINDS plastered snow on highways in western New York, leaving them slick and dangerous. Blustery winds drifted five inches of snow that fell in International Falls.

A near blizzard pounded Michigan piling up snow to a depth of 12 inches in the upper Peninsula. Several duck hunters were marooned overnight with temperatures in the 20s.

Twisters killed seven in Louisiana, three in Texas, two in Mississippi and one in North Carolina. Other storm deaths: Ohio, three; Illinois, two; Wisconsin, one; Indiana, one and Michigan, one.

Wind gusts from 65 to 70 mph raked large areas of the midwest and east in advance of the cold front.

No Trace Found of Lost Airliner

HONOLULU (AP)—A sea and air search spreading over 100,000 square miles of the Pacific developed Saturday night—still without a trace of the Pan American Stratocruiser which vanished Friday night with 44 aboard.

The Coast Guard reported several sightings of debris in various parts of the search area east of Hawaii but said it was unlikely the objects were from the four-engine clipper, "Romance of the Skies." However, surface vessels were checking each report.

Joining the massive search today will be the carrier Philippine Sea which left Long Beach with its far-ranging, radar-equipped antisubmarine planes and helicopters. The Navy said the carrier's aircraft would reach the search area late today.

TWO DESTROYERS, the John R. Craig and the Orleck, will head toward the area from San Diego. They were to rendezvous with the carrier.

Throughout the day more than 29 planes and 14 vessels criss-crossed a checkerboard search area. Aside from the spotting of various objects in the water—many of them unrelated debris—nothing turned up to shed any light on the big plane's abrupt and mysterious disappearance.

Carrying 36 passengers and a crew of eight, the plane radioed a routine position report at 5:04 p. m. Friday. At that time it was 1,028 miles east of Honolulu—beyond the point of no return to its San Francisco starting base. There was no hint of trouble.

VETERAN PILOT Gordon H. Brown of Los Altos, Calif., did not make the customary position report at 6 p. m.

For awhile Saturday, sightings of objects raised some hopes. There were two cylindrical objects which were regarded as possible parts of life rafts—but this was discounted later; they were described as probably the jettisoned fuel tanks of a jet plane.

Later, Air Force Lt. Roy Lee Curry, Springdale, Ark., reported seeing "six to eight orange and yellow objects" 30 miles southwest of Ocean Station November. He said they looked like some kind of survival equipment but he saw no sign of life and no oil slick.

The Coast Guard pressed ahead with its plans for a night-long search. Most surface vessels remained in the area. So did four planes carrying flares.

★ ★ ★ ★

A FULL SCALE search will be resumed at daybreak.

What might have caused the plane's abrupt radio silence and its disappearance, Pan American officials declined to speculate.

"You might hear rumors of an explosion, or sabotage or whatever, but the plain fact

Fifty-Nation Global Pact Seen Likely

LONDON (AP)—Senior diplomats reported Saturday that Britain and the United States are planning a grand global alliance of about 50 countries pledged to resist the spread of space-age Soviet Communism.

The plans are reported to provide for those 50 like-minded states to be aligned in a world-wide defense network under the umbrella of British-American nuclear power.

★ ★ ★ ★

AT LEAST FOUR regional groups — the Atlantic and Baghdad Pacts, the South East Asian and Pan-American alliances—would be included in the network.

The purpose is to launch a new stage in the political-military-economic co-operation of the non-Communist world. Scope of the plan is vast. It ranges from defining conditions for massive nuclear retaliation against an aggressor to standardization of most types of war materials.

American and British specialists are preparing the proposals for submission to the 15 heads of the Atlantic Pact governments who meet in Paris next month. This conference will be followed by high-level meetings of the five-power Baghdad Pact and the eight-power Southeast Asian Treaty Organization (SEATO).

★ ★ ★ ★

(IN WASHINGTON, State Department officials recalled that Secretary Dulles had discounted at his latest news conference the possibility of forming an overall alliance in a single organization.

(Dulles mentioned NATO, the Baghdad Pact, etc. and said, "It's quite obvious that each of these groupings, more or less regional, is concerned with what goes on in other areas.

("However, I would think it would be over-ambitious at the present time to try to put them all together").

Those Tax Bills.

its increase 16 per cent. The result is, taxes on these properties have increased $220 and $100 respectively. It is hard to find justification for increasing the assessed valuation on the newer house.

The county reports it has sent out tax bills calling for collection of $630 million compared with $530 million last year. That is an overall increase of 19 per cent in the amount of new taxes to be collected by the county in one year. It is evident the major portion of the increase comes from older structures and not from the increased population and new buildings.

These tax bills are evidence of how the real problem for taxpayers is the rising cost of county and city taxes. The federal income and excise tax rates have not been changed. It is the local and county spending that is making property bear an ever increasing load of government spending.

The people are told how county tax rates are held at the same level—or that the rate is actually decreased. Cities are told the local government operates within the tax limits set by their charter. But these factors are meaningless when the assessed valuation is raised so the rates call for higher taxes even though rates are not increased.

As the new tax bills are paid, property owners should be influenced in taking a greater interest in what the money is used for. They must accept responsibility for much of the increased cost of local governments. Many services are demanded which may not be essential. Cost of public employe pensions and fringe benefits is a big factor. Public works are being carried out which deserve much more consideration by the people who pay the bill.

We may be sure this spiraling cost of local government will not be combatted unless the people demand it. It calls for a careful scrutiny of bond issues—of erection of public buildings on lease agreements which are not voted on by the people. Above all, it calls for a willingness of groups to not insist on benefits which are not essential to their welfare.

A large portion of the county tax bill is for schools which are used only a part of the time. Until the people insist on economy and more efficient use of public money, they can expect each year will bring greater tax increases. The shock this year is only a starter the way we now operate.—L.A.C.

Higher Military, Civil Service Pay Seen Near

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower was reported Saturday to be preparing to recommend pay increases costing more than one billion dollars a year for military personnel and federal civil service employes.

A reliable source said the pay raises are not likely to become a casualty of the "budget squeeze" next year, despite pressure for multi-billion-dollar increases in missile and rocket spending.

If the administration goes through with present plans to ask Congress for the raises, Congress is likely to approve, as 1958 is an election year, the source said.

'Moon' Dog May Still Live, Russian Claims

ing the dog, alive or dead, back to earth.

(In London, BBC technicians refused to speculate on whether the lapse in signals meant batteries had gone dead or that the transmitter had been ejected from the satellite along with the dog in its hermetically-sealed container.)

* * * *

LACKING OFFICIAL guidance, newsmen in Moscow speculated that Laika died sometime Thursday night in her air-conditioned doghouse traveling five miles a second in space.

The last report on the dog came Thursday with a Soviet Tass News Agency announcement that scientists were receiving radioed data only on its "main" physical functions. This was taken to mean its health was failing.

Friday, the Tass announcement did not mention the dog.

The return of the dog to earth—a feat similar to the launching of the satellite itself in its implications—would give vital data to scientists on the effects of space travel, cosmic rays, the problem of weightlessness and other space phenomena on living things. Even dead, the body would be useful in postmortem examinations.

* * * *

SCIENTISTS in Moscow have hinted that efforts might be made to bring the dog down. But this never was officially stated.

To return an object from space requires methods of deceleration, a solution to the "thermal barrier" of the earth's atmosphere and many other factors all of which combine to make the re-entry problem extremely difficult.

(The U.S. has brought back the nose cone of a space rocket, and Western rocket experts have said the Soviets probably know the solution to the problem.)

Sputnik II itself continued on its man-appointed course in the heavens. Tass said the maximum height of the half-ton elongated satellite was 1,024.65 miles. Originally, its orbit reached a maximum of 1,056 miles on its launching last Sunday.

* * * *

IT WAS COMPLETING a revolution around the earth every 103.52 minutes.

Sputnik I, one-sixth the size of the big satellite, was making its rounds every 94.72 minutes, decreasing speed by 2.94 seconds every 24 hours.

Its fellow-travelling rocket was revolving around the world once every 95.48 minutes, dropping speed by 6.3 seconds every 24-hour period.

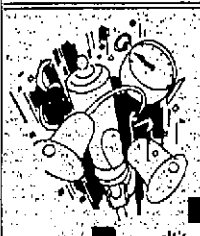

Both Sputnik I and the carrier rocket were orbiting at maximum heights of 503 and 431 miles respectively.

Massive Search on for Plane

Local Carrier Joins Hunt for Downed Craft

is: We have no idea what might have occurred," said a spokesman.

The Coast Guard commander directing the search for the giant Stratocruiser said there was a "potent possibility" the plane "suddenly and for an unknown reason went out of control."

* * * *

THE FOUR-ENGINED plane, after passing the "point of no return" halfway along the 2,400 mile flight from Honolulu, mysteriously vanished without once reporting any trouble.

The Coast Guard cutter Minnetonka was part of a search party of more than 29 planes and 14 surface vessels covering a charted checkerboard of 65,000 square miles.

The abrupt disappearance of the giant air liner was both baffling and foreboding.

* * * *

CMDR. WILLIAM E. Chapline, heading the Coast Guard phase of the search, grimly pointed out that the ditched plane should have been able to flash some distress signal during a 20-minute descent from 10,000 feet. Failing that, there should be signals from hand-cranked radio transmitters on life rafts—if any were launched.

The weather offered no obstacle to the missing plane.

Among the 36 passengers were a state department official, a chemical company executive and a French air ace of World War II. They were bound for Honolulu, Tokyo, Hong Kong and Rangoon.

HONOLULU (UP) — Navy Wave Lt. (JG) Mary Ann Collins, 29, met her mother, Mrs. John P. Collins, of Cleveland, Ohio, arriving aboard the liner Matsonia Saturday and told her there probably would be no wedding Nov. 16.

Mary Ann's fiance, Cmdr. Joseph V. Jones Jr., 33, was aboard the Pan American plane missing over the Pacific.

The pretty WAVE and her fiance's mother, Mrs. Joseph V. Jones Sr., of New York, N.Y., waited in vain Friday night at Honolulu international airport for word of the missing plane.

settled down like a plump grasshopper coming in to roost, then was moved aside to await the next arrival.

Air crewmen were flown from San Diego to a staging area at Los Alamitos Naval Air Station. Trucks carried them to the pier.

The 20 S2FS propeller-driven planes were to rendezvous with the carrier some time this morning at sea. They will take off from San Diego.

* * * *

FLOODLIGHTS played over the pier as night closed in.

Still the preparations continued. Seamen lined up to carry supplies aboard. Cranes creaked as they were jockeyed into position to haul aboard bulkier equipment.

"Now hear this!" announced the loudspeaker from time to time, as watches were mustered and assignments made.

Late arrivals pulled up alongside the ship in cars and buses.

The men of the Navy, the youngest recruits, the grizzled chiefs, the men with the gold stripes on their sleeves—said their goodbyes to wives, sweethearts, children.

* * * *

Then, in the middle of the night, the lines were cast off and the big gray carrier put to sea.

She had been in action before. On her bridge are painted the battle stripes she won in Korean waters, when her flight deck was home to the hottest fighter-bombers in the Navy.

The Phil Sea was ready then. And she was ready Saturday night as her bow sliced through the darkened waters, southwestward on a mission of mercy.

Dope Smuggler Suspect Seized by FBI Agents

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The FBI announced the arrest in Torrance Saturday night of Francis D. Liston, 27, identified by agents as an accused marijuana smuggler who failed to show up for trial last Tuesday in San Diego.

D. K. Brown, special agent in charge of the Los Angeles FBI office, said Liston, an unemployed machinist residing in Hermosa Beach, was charged with smuggling marijuana into the United States from Mexico.

Brown said Liston had been released on $5,000 bond. This was ordered forfeited and a new bond was set at $15,000.

Officer Sentenced for Thefts for Girl

BERLIN (UP)—A West Berlin policeman has been sentenced to 18 months in jail for stealing presents for his girl friend.

Heinz Granow, 38, told the court he didn't have enough money to buy gifts for his girl so he broke into shop windows during his night patrols.

Leis Lie Forgotten

HONOLULU (AP)—The flower leis are piled on the waiting-room counter, wilting and forgotten.

The fragrant garlands were to have been draped over the shoulders of arriving passengers aboard Pan American Flight Seven . . . a flight that never arrived.

Relatives and friends of the passengers have returned home to wait any news of the plane.

Another group waiting to board the plane for its flight to Tokyo left earlier, their faces pale and sober. Earlier, both groups had been chattering gaily.

They received their first word at 8:50 p. m. that the flight was missing.

Passenger supervisor, Jack Dilto, visibly moved by the announcement he was making, called the group to the counter:

"I'll tell you all we know," he said, "This aircraft, to be perfectly frank, was last heard from about 3 p. m. At that time, the aircraft had sufficient fuel to carry it up to 1 a. m.

"Everything is being done to find the aircraft—to find it and assist it. That's all we know."

Oil Leak Forces Searching Plane Back to Its Base

HONOLULU (UP) — An Air Force C-124 Globemaster searching for the lost Pan American Stratocruiser developed an oil leak Saturday night and was ordered to return to Hickam Air Force Base.

The pilot radioed that one engine had been feathered but the plane's condition was not serious.

Search and Rescue Headquarters at Pearl Harbor said another C124 was escorting the crippled plane back to Hawaii.

OH, HORROR! SHIRTSLEEVES!

No Red Carpet Ready for Japanese Envoy

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Official Philadelphia was caught with its protocol showing Saturday when the Japanese ambassador to the United States made an unscheduled call at city hall.

Ambassador Koichiro Asakai, and his secretary, Yoshio Hatano, properly attired in fitted black overcoat and homburg, were discovered in the almost empty hallway outside Mayor Richardson Dilworth's offices.

The reception committee, on this quiet Saturday morning, consisted of an engineer in shirtsleeves, a porter and a newspaperwoman, the lone representative of the press on duty at the time.

* * * *

THE ILLUSTRIOUS visitor and his secretary were invited into the somewhat less ornate press headquarters while frantic calls were sent via the switchboard for a red carpet and a receiving line.

Unfortunately, channels and red tape being what they are, and Saturday being one of those "unavailable days" in municipal circles, no official worthy of the name could be reached in a decent interval.

Finally while the imperturbable ambassador smiled and chatted amiably with his pinchhitting reception party, the highest ranking and somewhat reluctant officer in the building was pressed into service.

Sans frock coat—in fact in shirtsleeves — a nervous Edgar P. Grim, chief of the Division of Engineering and Communications of the Department of Public Property, made his appearance.

Meanwhile, the operator of the only elevator in use in all of city hall, managed to round up a porter with the key to the mayor's reception room and Mr. Grim received the ambassador with embarrassed apologies.

* * * *

HIS EXCELLENCY presented his card and appeared more at ease than anyone in his unofficial greeting party.

He explained that he wished to convey to the mayor his appreciation for the work of the city in preparing an exhibit of Japanese art at the commercial museum.

He and his wife, he said, had decided on the spur of the moment to come here from Washington to see the exhibit and that he was delighted with its presentation.

As he was being escorted to the elevator, he assured everyone he would return one day to make a formal visit.

Fightin' Words

Monday is Veterans Day, anniversary of the end of World War I—a good time to recall words of courage in America's wars. In times of crisis, a challenging sentence or two often has become a rallying cry.

So on the eve of the holiday (formerly known as Armistice Day), see how many of these now-famous words or phrases you can identify.

(Turn to Page A-8 to find out who said it, and why)

1. "Stand your ground. Don't fire unless fired upon. But if they mean to have a war, let it begin here."
2. "Surrender? I have not yet begun to fight."
3. "Don't give up the ship."
4. "We have met the enemy and they are ours."
5. "I shall never surrender or retreat."
6. "Damn the torpedoes! Full speed ahead!"
7. "Retreat hell! We just got here."
8. "Send us more Japs."

Put Schools First, Reuther Advises

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Charging that "our vision has been clouded by the big dollar sign," labor leader Walter Reuther Saturday criticized America's failure to give a higher priority to education.

Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers of America and vice president of the AFL-CIO, told an audience of local labor representatives:

"We still don't recognize, while the Russians have, that power is measured by the development of the human mind. Our federal aid to education bill failed to pass by five votes. Our half-hearted measures for education are not enough."

Success of the Russian Sputniks, he contended, has brought into sharp focus this country's failure to get its priorities straightened out.

* * * *

HE SUGGESTED that the No. 2 priority, after education, lies in the civil rights. It behooves this country, he said, to "wipe out the ugly gap between promises and realities."

Reuther took occasion to denounce "the small minority of labor's leaders who have betrayed their sacred trust.

"We need to apply soap, disinfectant and a scrub brush to the few unions who need it from the top," he said.

At a news conference earlier, the labor leader was asked whether the AFL-CIO would set up a new truckers' union in the event the Teamsters are expelled from the organization at the national convention next month.

"We are hopeful that that will not be necessary," Reuther replied. "We are hopeful that the Teamsters will take the steps necessary to comply with the edict of our ethical practices committee.

* * * *

"WHATEVER happens, it will be their (the Teamsters') decision. They well know that we will not tolerate corruption or Communists in the American labor movement."

Reuther also was asked about his views on the California political scene in which Democrats have alleged that Republican Gov. Goodwin J. Knight was pressured out of seeking re-election and sidetracked into the GOP senatorial race.

"We will accept the judgment of the California people," Reuther said.

He commented, however, that Knight was "moved out" in tactics that smacked of "smokeroom politics — and I don't believe the people will like it."

cars, witnesses said, after Sothan fell to the ground during a scuffle.

Police broadcast an all-points "wanted" bulletin on a late model expensive sedan driven by a woman and a 1956 model pickup truck carrying five men.

Police late Saturday night arrested Charles Lester McCollum, 27, of Lancaster and booked him at Orange County Jail on suspicion of murder. McCollum, a former Air Force boxing champion denied being involved in Southan's death.

* * * *

WALLY FOX, deputy coroner, said an autopsy was to be performed to determine the cause of Sothan's death.

The only visible injury to the man's head was a bruise, Fox said.

The dead man's brother, M. D. Sothan, 10111 Malinda Lane, said he knew of no reason for the assault and thought his brother did not even know his assailants.

One Killed, One Hurt on Motorcycle

TORRANCE — A 17-year-old motorcyclist was killed and his passenger injured seriously when their two-wheeler crashed into an automobile on Pacific Coast Hwy. Saturday night.

Billy W. Meeker of 2525 Dalemead St., died in Harbor General Hospital of a skull fracture about two hours after the accident. His passenger, Robert A. Parker, 20, of 24837 Winlock Dr., was in the same hospital with possible fractures of the skull and shoulder.

Police said the motorcycle, running without lights, crashed into an automobile driven by Carl David Sass, 17, of 2605 W. 163rd St., Gardena, who was attempting a left turn from Pacific Coast Hwy. into Winlock Dr.

Cat Blood Saves Mauled Leopard, Leg Amputated

CINCINNATI (UP) — Blood transfusions from domestic housecats Saturday saved the life of a 50-pound prize clouded leopard whose left front leg was badly mauled, apparently by a jaguar in an adjacent cage.

Dr. Byron Bernard, veterinarian at Cincinnati Zoo, said the leg of Sandra, a clouded leopard believed to be the only one of its kind in captivity, was torn so badly it had to be amputated. He credited the blood transfusions from the cats with saving the life of the $1,200 animal.

Expert Explains U.S. Missile Lag

No Program at All From 1945 to '51

belief that much more money could not be intelligently spent on their development.

This statement does not apply to many badly neglected fringe areas of our ballistic missile and satellite programs. First and foremost, there is a crying need for more money for basic and applied research in these areas.

In many fields we are virtually scraping the bottom of the reservoir of knowledge, and the efforts to refill that reservoir with adequate research funds have been limited.

Secondly, while adequate funds are available for the clearly defined missile weapons systems, there is never enough to "advance the art." A typical example is that we don't have a real powerful rocket engine today simply because none of our present crash missile programs need it. But in order to beat the Russians in the race for outer space we absolutely need it—and the development of such an engine requires several years.

* * * *

Q. If the Russians have mastered the ability to return a satellite to earth at will, what would be the United States' best defense?

A. Mastery of this recovery technique in itself does not constitute a threat to the United States. It should rather be considered as an important detail achievement within the framework of an obvious all-out effort by the Soviets to establish themselves as masters of the space around us. Herein lies the real threat to our security, and only the immediate enaction of a well-planned, determined U.S. space flight program can neutralize it.

Q. In view of Russian developments, in what direction should U. S. research now be directed?

A. We should pursue a well-planned and coordinated research and development program covering all aspects of human flight through outer space.

* * * *

Q. In 1953 you predicted that within a few years it would be possible to launch a space satellite carrying warm-blooded animals, as the Russians have done. To your knowledge is there an organized program in this country for physiological research in space travel?

A. The United States Air Force has a department for space medicine attached to its School of Aviation Medicine in Randolph Field, Texas. The Navy's air medical center at Pensacola, Fla., is likewise actively engaged in physiological research in space travel.

The bold experiments carried out by the Air Force's Col. Stapp (with the rocket sled) and Maj. Simons (with the high-altitude balloon) have been extensively covered by magazines and newspapers. Experimenters from Wright Field, Ohio, have test-fired Phesus monkeys in Aerobee rockets as early as 1950.

But there is little, if any, professional contact between these researchers and the present U. S. ballistic missile program.

* * * *

Q. Do you believe a consolidated program, such as the Manhattan Project, would improve our development of missiles? Would this free any scientists for work, say in the field of space travel?

A. We should not lose sight of the fact that there are some fundamental differences between the situation which led to the Manhattan Project, and the situation in the missile field today.

The Manhattan Project was initiated because the physicists had come up with a revolutionary new concept (namely the nuclear chain reaction) which could only be translated into something of military value (namely an atom bomb) by the construction of huge facilities where difficult processes hitherto only demonstrated in the laboratory (namely isotope separation) could be carried out on a vast, industrial scale.

Under these circumstances it was only logical that President Roosevelt handed the job of providing these missing facilities to his biggest and most experienced construction agency, the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers. We should also not forget that the spectacular success of the Manhattan Project was to a large extent due to the fact that in cases where there was only doubt about the possible success of a certain method two or three competitive, parallel approaches were tried without consideration of cost.

In the missile field today, we have practically all the facilities we can intelligently use. Several projects are handled by several teams, each of which is in a different geographical location. Any attempt to dislocate or combine those teams must necessarily lead to immediate interruption of the work, with resultant delays.

A strong, national management of our ballistic missile and space flight program is certainly highly desirable. Since 1951 there has been the institution of a so-called guided missile czar on the level of the Department of Defense. But while the men in this job have made great contributions to the national missile program they lacked one most essential ingredient of power: they did not control the funds with which the programs under their supervision were financed. As a result many of their plans just died on the vine. I believe that if only the position of this missile czar could be strengthened, to the effect that he could back up long-range planning with long-range budgetry, we wouldn't have to start dangerous organizational experiments which might only disrupt the existing missile teams.

Q. There are reports that the Russians have developed engines with a thrust greatly superior to anything available in this country. Would you comment on this?

A. This seems to be true. There are some very large rocket engines under development in the United States, but most unfortunately this work has been supported on a shoestring, because it is not considered part of our high-priority missile programs.

Q. There also have been reports of a Russian breakthrough in the development of propellants, allowing them to achieve greater thrust from present engines. Could you comment?

A. We have several rather powerful propellant combinations in this country also, but we prefer not to use them in our ballistic missiles because of their poor handling characteristics. In military weapons systems propellant handling problems are a major consideration. But for the firing of a satellite vehicle you can make provisions and take special precautions which would be unacceptable for a military operation. The situation can be compared with those souped-up superfuels used in hot-rod races, which would not be acceptable for general distribution through filling stations.

It is entirely possible that the Russians decided to use such a super-fuel in order to step up the otherwise lower payload-carrying capacity of their satellite rocket.

* * * *

Q. Are the Russians turning out missile and satellite scientists superior to the products—generally speaking—of American universities?

A. I do not think so. I believe that the professional quality of a young American physicist or engineer, fresh from the university, is at least as high as that of his Russian counterpart. But we do not provide sufficient opportunity for these young scientists and engineers to accrue a sufficient number of consecutive years in missile development to adequately enhance their practical experience. We turn research and development projects on and off like a faucet.

* * * *

Q. In your opinion, what is the military implication of the Russian satellite on the present U. S. defense establishment and its future development?

A. It is another indication of the ever-growing importance of space weapons. Ten or 15 years from now space superiority will have taken the place of today's air superiority.

* * * *

Q. How do you account for the apparent apathy toward missile development in this country between 1947 and 1951?

A. Right after the war, public interest turned away from weapons and toward the resumption of production of badly needed consumer goods. The United States had won the war, but few people in this country realized that that mighty wartime ally, the Soviet Union, had emerged from the war more powerful than ever before — and that her rulers were in no mood whatsoever to lose their wartime gains through hasty disarmament.

There was no ballistic missile development program in the United States between 1945 and 1951 because there was no obvious need for it, no interest for it, and no money for it.

* * * *

Q. Under IGY agreement, knowledge learned by space satellites is to be shared fully. How useful would knowledge learned by Russia's Sputniks be in developing or accelerating our satellite programs?

A. We expect to learn from the Sputniks, with and without Soviet collaboration, quite a few things with regard to the shape of the earth, transoceanic mapping and survey, mass distribution within the earth, and density of the uppermost layers of the atmosphere.

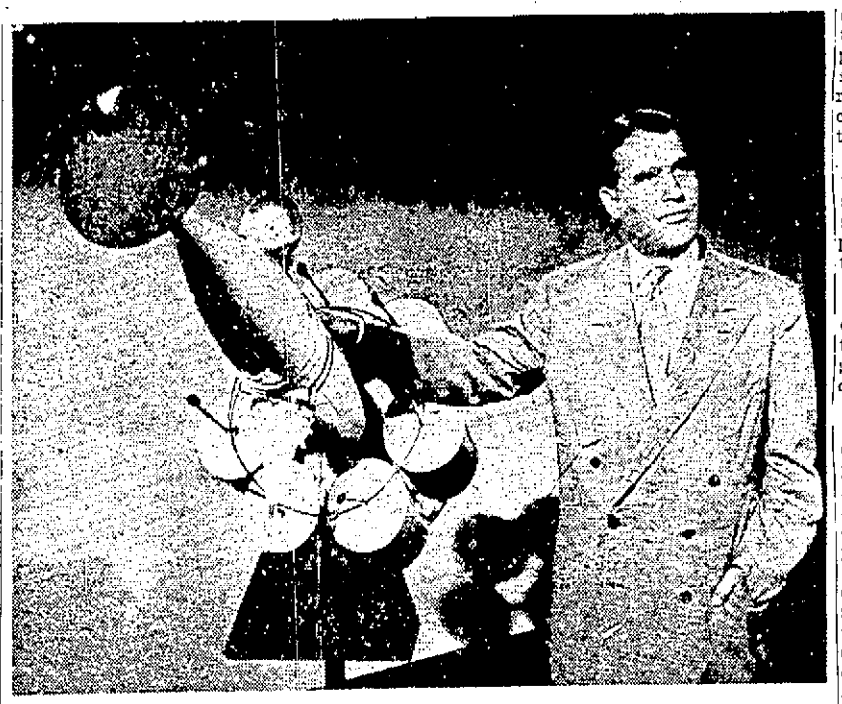

This type of information can be gleaned by tracking Sputnik's orbit and its ultimate fiery destruction by re-entry into the atmosphere.

If and when the Soviets will present the results of their telemetered readings from the satellites themselves, we are likely to learn many new things on cosmic radiation, solar X-rays, effects of extended weightlessness on animals, density of micrometeors and meteoric dust, and the like.

Q. What does Russia's success mean in terms of science education in this country, and public attitudes toward scientists and basic research?

A. I am convinced that the Sputniks will give Russia's science education program an additional most powerful boost. I can only hope that it will give the United States science education program an even greater boost, because we need such a boost badly.

And I also hope it will enhance the recognition of science and scientists in the eyes of the U. S. public. Unless we manage to make careers in the sciences more attractive to the young generation, we cannot hope to win the long-range struggle with the Soviets for scientific and technological superiority.

Rehabilitation Home for Women Goal of Long Beach Service Clubs

By BOB HOUSER

A young woman—first offender—leaves jail without a dime, no job, no job background, no references and no clothes to make herself presentable for applying for a job.

She goes on the night prowl and settles for a hamburger and a bed.

Next time she's picked up for intoxication or immoral conduct she's not likely to cry in jail as she did the first time. Jail has become a lark. She readily associates with veteran women offenders. Her new and callous gaiety is a symptom of her surrender to despair.

* * * *

MATRON LUCILLE MURDOCK, 16 years a policewoman and now senior policewoman of the Jail Division here, thinks a minimum security residence home could rehabilitate some of these young women.

Backed by the women's service club, Zonta, of which she is president, Mrs. Murdock placed the idea of a rehabilitation home for young women before the Service Club Council. The council, comprised of officers of all Long Beach service clubs, named Junior Chamber of Commerce President Gene Kirkpatrick chairman of a committee to study the Murdock plan.

When the committee meets, Mrs. Murdock will lay the facts on the line:

"We could start with an existing residence, one to accommodate 6 to 10 young women aged 17 to 25.

* * * *

"THEY WOULD be first offenders or women the court believes would respond to this type of rehabilitation. The court, of its own decision, or with probation department recommendation, could put the girl on probation in the home. If she does respond satisfactorily, she would earn suspension of her sentence. If not, she woud serve her penalty.

"Hardest part of this plan is finding a qualified housemother to supervise the girls. But, of course, it can be done.

"Now, here's how such a home would help. In the first place, the girl is not turned out on the streets, hundreds of miles from home, penniless, shabbily dressed and without friends. She goes to this home. That takes off the pressure of food and lodging at the outset. She isn't forced to take the handy, easy way out to get food and a roof over her head.

"If our service clubs support the idea, we'll be able to provide satisfactory clothes, the benefits of leads on jobs she can handle and the recommendation of the court and the housemother and law enforcement people interested in her case that she has been adjudged a good risk for employment.

* * * *

MRS. MURDOCK, as matron of women at City Jail, has no illusions about obtaining a perfect score of rehabilitating these young women.

"I'm not an idealist. Maybe we would help 50 per cent, maybe only 25 per cent. But even if we help only one in 100, it's an investment in a human life. For that reason alone, I believe this rehabilitation home is as worthy as many another civic project which we interest ourselves in.

"Yes, I have been fooled many times by young women I thought were straightening themselves out. Each time I say to myself that's the last time I'm going to waste my time on them. But I know, of course, it won't be.

"Our police officers, men and women, couldn't take this daily grind of seeing heartaches and broken lives if we had no faith in human nature.

"On the credit side, I've received letters from girls I don't even remember thanking us for our aid and guidance. They made up for years of disappointments."

* * * *

ONE OF THE SADDEST phrases Mrs. Murdock has had to utter in her years at the top of City Hall, as the barred elevator door clanked shut, is this, to a tearful young woman prisoner:

"I knew your mother."

Mrs. Murdock has encountered several of these second-generation offenders. Cases of intoxication, immoral conduct . . . mother and now the daughter.

Strictly in the formative stage now, Mrs. Murdock's plan already has significant support.

Zonta, her service club, has tentatively earmarked a good portion of its service budget for the home project if it receives widespread support of other service clubs.

Police Chief William Dovey thinks the idea is a good one.

* * * *

ONE VETERAN POLICE officer disagreed heartily with the Murdock plan:

"It'll wind up being just another nursery for alcoholics," said he. "These women don't want anything better than what they're doing. They want the easy way. Sure, you'll give them free bed and board for awhile, but they'll be back in the bars and on the make next week."

But Mrs. Murdock, who admits she's been fooled before, remembers the many evidences she's seen in her jail . . . evidences that a home had been the missing quantity in the girl's miserable end.

It's seen many times at Christmas time.

"So many of the girls have told me at the gift exchange:

"You know, this is the first time in my life I've ever had a wrapped package with my name on it.' "

Anti-Racist Dixie Vote 'Shocking'

RALEIGH, N.C. (UP)—A student legislature "shocked" Rep. Harold D. Cooley (D-NC) Saturday by voting in a mock session to repeal a North Carolina ban on interracial marriage.

After the 212 students from 21 white and Negro colleges in North Carolina had passed a series of antisegregation measures, Cooley departed from his prepared speech to tell the student assembly they had "shocked the sensibilities of our people."

Cooley then added coldly that he considered the students' actions a personal insult.

"I am certain that my position on the racial matter is well-known," he said. He added he felt a "more constructive agenda could have been prepared."

* * * *

THE STUDENTS, besides voting to overthrow in their state a racial marriage ban that southern conservatives consider a key segregation bulwark, also debated a resolution "censuring" Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas.

The resolution criticized Faubus for using National Guardsmen to thwart court-ordered integration of Central High School in Little Rock, Ark., and commending President Eisenhower for sending federal troops to enforce integration.

Cooley said their actions were ill-advised and poorly considered. He told a reporter he [illegible] believe the matters [illegible]ed seriously.

Girl, 9, Runs 6-Foot Boat to Catalina

A 9-year-old Anaheim girl sped across Catalina Channel Saturday in a 6-foot, 4-inch inboard runabout in two hours flat.

Rosemarie Murphy, 9152 Grand Ave., left Pierpoint Landing at 9 a. m. and encountered "several high swells" before reaching Avalon Harbor, her father, George H. Murphy, reported.

Rosemarie's 7½-horsepower craft was followed by a chase boat.

* * * *

THE ELDER MURPHY, who was aboard the accompanying craft, commented that "all of us were beat afterward except Rosemarie." Four men were aboard the chase boat.

Murphy said Rosemarie attempted a Catalina-to-Long Beach run about two months ago but gave it up after she was 12 miles out.

The girl ordinarily operates her little boat in Marine Stadium.

Blind Hunter Licensed

CAMP CROOK, S. D. (AP) — It's legal for Bud Hoag to hunt deer this year, although he is blind.

Hoag and his wife bought a gun almost a year ago and have been shooting at targets since then.

Mrs. Hoag made application for a deer license and downed a four-point whitetail south of town shortly after the season opened.

Then Bud applied for his big game license. Harding County Treasurer Lucy Lahti asked State's Atty. Don Bennett on legality of licenses for the blind. Bennett, in turn, checked with Asst. Atty. Gen. W. O. Knight in Pierre who said "it's okay."

Rachael explains she sights the gun for Bud and he pulls the trigger.

SPECIAL FORMULA K-54
FRONT PAGE NEWS IN LOS ANGELES PAPER

Making grants to universities for studies in nutrition, the William Clarence Kalash fund for basic science develops both information and products for the betterment of nutritional health.

One such product is special formula K-54 which was developed and clinically tested by university doctors to prove that nervous and emotionally tired people can be quickly helped when not organically or functionally ill.

We have now had over two years experience with this special formula with many hundreds of people.

With special formula K-54, both adults and children who are tired, nervous, irritable, cross, moody, sleep poorly or worry are regaining health and energy by solving the underlying basic nutritional causes.

No matter how mild or severe the symptoms, special formula K-54 should be used for its nutritional benefits. A trial will show you how quickly you can be helped.

Japanese Civic Officials on Two-Day Tour of L.B.

America may have vim, vigor and vitamins, but Japan has the "A-number-one medicine of all—sake."

This statement doesn't necessarily reflect the view of this newspaper, but is attributable to one Taneichiro Nakano, dean of Nipponese distillers and brewers.

Nakano was among a group of 39 Japanese Chamber of Commerce and civic officials who were guests of the Long Beach C. of C. Saturday night at a cocktail party in the Wilton Hotel. The group is on a two-day tour of the city, and tonight will be the guests of Herman H. Ridder, Independent, Press-Telegram publisher, at a party in the Ridder home.

* * * *

SCOTCH AND BOURBON flowed like water at Saturday night's soiree, but there wasn't a drop of sake to be had in the house.

Smiling patiently, Nakano, through his interpreter, Hirom Yagi of the Japan Travel Bureau, told how the average Japanese toper slugs down three gallons of sake a month.

"It is, as you say, good for what ails you," he explained, glancing ever so indulgently at the frosty bourbon and soda being juggled by the reporter.

"Sake picks up the digestion, and makes you live longer."

* * * *

THE REPORTER set down the bourbon and soda glass—empty, of course—and asked if maybe there wasn't a social drinking problem in Japan, what with all that rice beer going down the proverbial hatch.

Nakano demurred.

"Any medicine is bad for you if you use too much of it," he explained, through the interpreter. "Besides, the production of sake is strictly controlled by the government."

Further interrogation revealed that brewing of sake is only a third of what it was in pre-war Japan. We'd like to give you the exact figures, but they got lost somewhere in the translation.

* * * *

REASON FOR the cutback, Nakano explained, is that Japan needs most of its rice for food. His brewery in Kyoto is working only a few months of the year.

Nakano, who is president of the Kyonto Chamber of Commerce, told how his family had been at the sake-brewing business nigh on 100 years.

With a faint mixture of pride and regret, he explained that alcohol taxes are Japan's number two source of revenue, right behind income taxes. Sake, incidentally sells for $1 a gallon and the government takes a two-thirds bite for taxes.

Whiskey-making has picked up in post-war Japan, but it's still far behind sake production, said Nakano.

"Sake is the national drink," he explained.

Bottoms up.

BERLIN (UP) — The East German Communist newspaper Neues Deutschland said Saturday it wants Santa to ride a sputnik this Christmas.

It rebuked the state-run toy industry for failing to produce a toy satellite for the Christmas trade.

The paper urged the industry to start turning out sputnik Christmas tree decorations.

"They would look fine with a red star and a gold hammer shining on the silver," it said.

WANTED: BRAVE MAN WITH $1,500

Pilot to Hunt Treasure In Land of the Incas

WASHINGTON (UP)—Wanted: A person with stamina, courage and $1,500 to help finance a treasure hunt.

A veteran pilot revealed Saturday he is leaving shortly on a one-year expedition to the mysterious land of the Incas, in South America's wild Andes mountain area.

"All I need is a partner with about $1,500 and plenty of guts," Pilot George Farnham said. "I'm going into places no white man has ever seen and I hope to come back rich."

Farnham flew the Andes as a commercial airline pilot for years, and later explored the Incas region in private planes.

* * * *

"I'VE THOROUGHLY studied the territory from the air," he added. "I've charted locations of ancient buildings, walls, water flumes, towns, old mine indications and the like in land no one's ever explored. I think there are articles of Inca treasure there which might be worth $300,000 or more."

Farnham plans to use every mode of travel from a station wagon and panel truck to a Piper aircraft. His expedition will travel from the Venezuela-Colombia border through Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia and Chile.

He said he first spotted the potential treasure area while flying a commercial DC3 over the Andes.

"The crew I had with me was later killed in a crash," he added, "so I'm the only one who knows exactly where to look."

* * * *

FARNHAM, WHO once flew Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) on a political campaign trip in 1952, estimated he would explore approximately 4,000 square miles of the wild and rugged country.

"Even if there weren't any ancient treasure, I know of hundreds of jungle rivers at the base of the Andes where gold dust and nuggets practically cover the beds of streams," he said. "All it takes is guts and stamina to come out with a fortune."

Farnham said he has contracted with a motion picture company, a magazine and a television network for still and moving pictures of the expedition.

"I've put $7,000 of my own money into making my dream come true," the pilot said. "I've practically re-built my Piper with my own hands."

Molotov Cocktail Party Pepper-Upper

By WALTER T. RIDDER, R. E. LEE AND W. W. BROOM
(Independent, Press-Telegram Capital Bureau)

WASHINGTON—A number of ranking politicians here have received phony invitations to a party, supposedly hosted by Russian Ambassador and Madame Zarubin, to celebrate the 40th anniversary of "the world's most powerful slave labor empire" and the departure of deposed Defense Minister Georgi Zhukov.

The menu for the dinner: Caviar Moskorit (from fish that stinks from head), Cocktail Molotov, Bloody Zhukov Borscht, Meatballs Khrushchev, Grilled Powerhouse Steak a la Malenkov with Sauce Tartare, O-pressed Duck au Captive Nations, Sputniks, Pickled Gherkins Ballistic Missile, Righteous Dessert Creme Reverse Zhukov, Bombchydrogen, Crimean Champagne mixed with Hungarian Blood, Vintage 1956.

DESPITE DENIALS from all concerned, there's a possibility that California Sen. Bill Knowland will resign before his term expires. Here are the conditions which would make it possible for him to pull out:

1. Mayor George Christopher of San Francisco and other Republicans in the senatorial race to succeed him must withdraw their candidacies and leave Gov. Goodie Knight unopposed.

2. Both Knowland and Knight must be reasonably certain they can beat their Democratic opponents in November.

3. If condition No. 1 is not fulfilled, Knowland probably would wait until after the November election before resigning. If both he and Knight have been elected at that time, the Senator will in all probability resign to give the ex-governor a leg up on Senate seniority. Knowland's term expires in January, 1959.

* * * *

GOODIE KNIGHT went to great pains to keep out of sight when he arrived here before dawn Monday to announce he was pulling out of the governor race. He and his party registered at their hotel under assumed names.

The governor called himself "Woodfield." It was late Monday night before reporters reached him because a hotel telephone operator just on duty hadn't been tipped off the governor was incognito. The operator put through a call from a newsman who asked to speak to "the governor of California."

* * * *

COMMENT AT the National Press Club on the California political story: "Well, from here on in it's no longer Goodie, but Good Knight."

Best Seller Lags

TOKYO (AP)—"The New Class," the book by ex-Vice President Milovan Djilas of Yugoslavia, is a best seller in Japan. But the Jiji Press, which printed 30,000 copies in Japanese, said that after a fast upswing, sales seemed to level off when Sputnik I went up.

Less Soap Used by Frenchmen

PARIS (AP) — The average Frenchman uses less soap in a year than any of his European neighbors and less than one-third as much as an American, official statistics showed today.

According to the figures, a Frenchman buys a bit less than 15 ounces of soap each year while the average American—termed "the cleanest man in the world" — uses about three and a quarter pounds.

Ike Gets Medical Checkup Today

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower will enter Walter Reed Army Medical Center today for an annual, 24-hour "head to toe" medical checkup, the White House said Saturday.

The President is scheduled to enter the hospital late today and return to the White House Monday afternoon.

It will be his first complete physical checkup since Oct. 28, 1956, when the examining physicians reported that he gave "every appearance of being in excellent health." The pre-election checkup confirmed the President's physical fitnss to serve another four years in the White House. His physicians indicated confidence that this checkup will result in another favorable report.

Killer's Wish Fulfilled

DEDHAM, Mass. (UP) — A young California airplane mechanic had his wish fulfilled Saturday — he was convicted of slaying his teenage sweetheart and sentenced to death in the electric chair.

Jack Chester, 22, of Lancaster, Calif., was sentenced by Superior Judge Frank J. Donahue when the Norfolk County jury refused to recommend clemency in finding him guilty of the first degree murder of Beatrice Fishman, 19, of Brookline, last April. Chester tearfully pleaded with the jury Friday either to have him executed or confined for life so that he could harm no one else.

Roberto, Sonali Make Plans

ROME (UP) — Roberto Rossellini and Mrs. Sonali Das Gupta Saturday made plans to return to India where she will file suit for divorce so she can marry the Italian movie producer, it was reported.

Friends of Mrs. Das Gupta's father said in Calcutta that she planned to return from Paris to try to gain her freedom from her film producer husband, Hari S. Das Gupta. They said she had gone to Paris to "engineer" a legal separation between Rossellini and actress Ingrid Bergman and that this had been accomplished.

Awakes From 5-Day Trance

CHICAGO (UP) — A Rip Van Winkle housewife was aroused from hypnotic hibernation Saturday, skeptical about having slept five days in a "heavenly" trance.

Mrs. Nora Hughes, 27, expressed disbelief when she was awakened by hypnotist Edwin L. Baron from the deep sleep in which he placed her last Monday. "When are we going to start?" she asked Baron groggily.

When told she had been dozing peacefully 20 to 22 hours daily since Monday, the East Gary, Ind., mother of three children replied: "You can say it but I won't believe it."

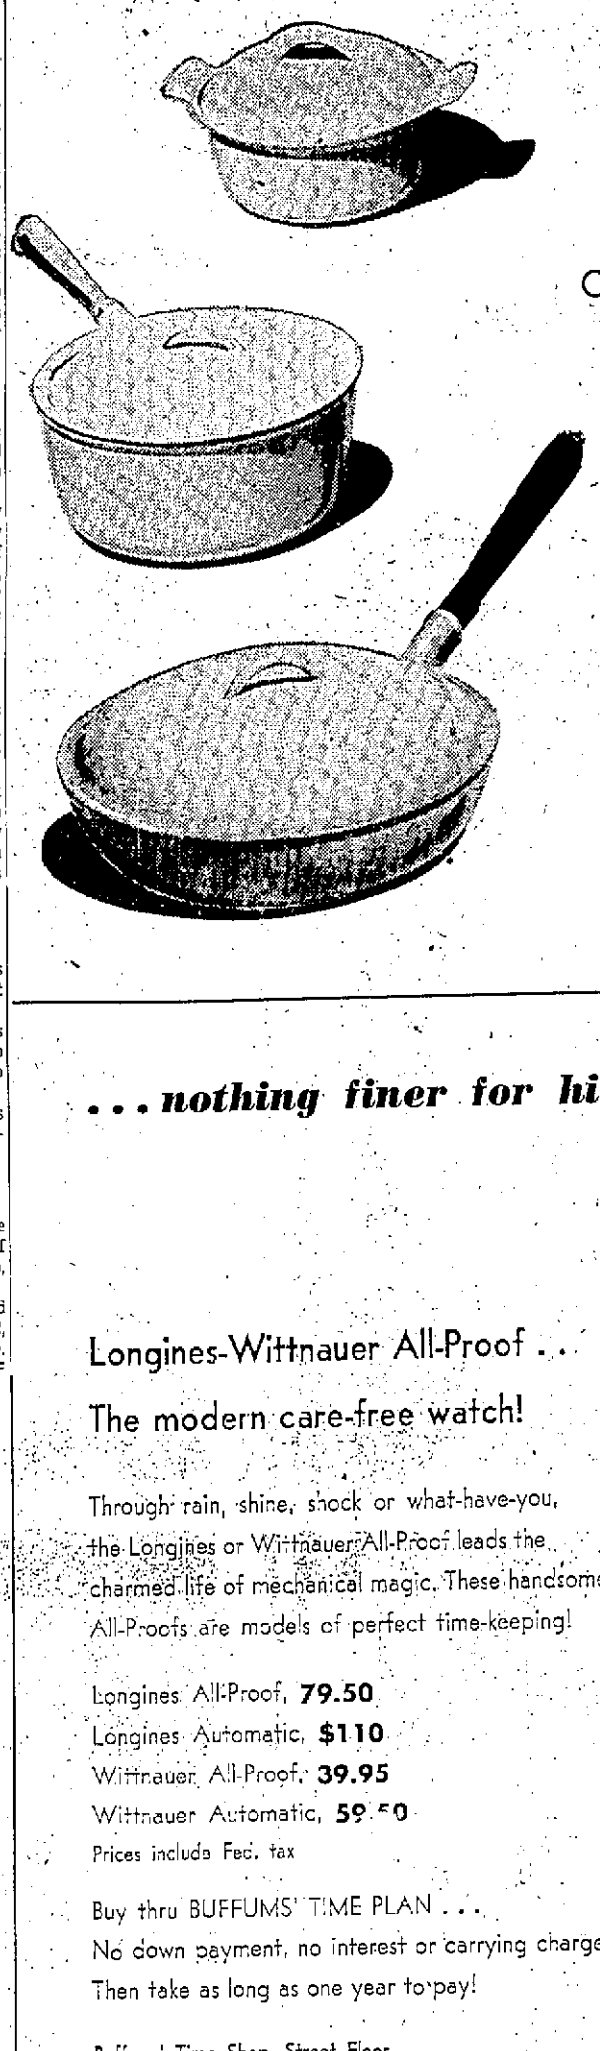

Duke's Pal Dates Heiress

LONDON (UP) — Commander Michael Parker, whose broken marriage cost him his job as secretary to the Duke of Edinburgh, has been dating one of Britain's wealthiest women, a newspaper reported Saturday.

Columnist William Hickey of the Daily Express said Parker, 36, has started escorting heiress Nancy Oakes, 32, estranged wife of German Baron Ernst von Hoyningen Huene.

No Knight Deal, Says Knowland

SANTA BARBARA (UP) — Promising an active, aggressive campaign for governor, Sen. Knowland told the Republican State Central Committee meeting Saturday that although he will support the party's candidate for the U. S. Senate, he has not conferred with Gov. Knight.

He addressed 750 delegates to the meeting at a luncheon.

"I have not participated directly or indirectly in any discussions or communications with the incumbent governor or his representatives before, during or subsequent to his decision to retire from the gubernatorial contest," said Knowland.

* * * *

"NOR HAVE I made any private commitments directly or indirectly to support any candidate for the United States Senate. I will support the Republican nominee when determined by the voters next June."

Knowland told the committeemen: "There has been much misrepresentation of my views regarding labor-management relations by those who seek to confuse rather than to inform. The right of an individual to join a labor organization is protected by state and federal law. I supported such legislation both as a member of the California Legislature and the Congress.

"Collective bargaining should not and must not degenarate into coercive bludgeoning. No group in industry or in labor should have the power to strangle the economic life of 170 million Americans."

* * * *

GOV. KNIGHT in Puerto Rico on vacation, and Mayor George Christopher of San Francisco, candidates for Knowland's senate seat, were conspicuously absent, but there was considerable informal discussion about their status. Christopher set up headquarters here and his followers said he will not pull out of the race.

Warren Atherton, Stockton lawyer, said that regardless of what Knight or anyone else does, he is out after the nomination, too, and he urged: "Let's make it a race, not an exhibition. Recent election setbacks emphasize that while harmony is important, being right is more important."

Merck & Co. Board Chief Dies, Age 63

WEST ORANGE, N. J. (UP)—George W. Merck, 63, international authority and leader in the chemical and pharmaceutical fields, died Saturday of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Merck was stricken about 4 a. m. and taken to Memorial Hospital in Orange, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

He was chairman of the board of Merck & Co., Inc., Rahway, manufacturing chemists.

The New York-born Merck attended prep schools in New Jersey and Harvard College.

In 1915 he became associated with the Merck & Co. firm and was appointed president upon the retirement of his father in 1925.

Merck married twice. His first wife, the former Miss Josephine Carey, bore him two sons. His second wife had three children.

Elvis Hits It Off With Hula Girls

HONOLULU (UPI)—Elvis Presley was the first person off the liner Matsonia when it arrived Saturday and 4,000 young fans rocked the dock with their shouts and shrieks.

The 22-year-old singer paused at the top of the gang plank, drew in his breath, slicked back his long hair, planted a few kisses on nearby hula girls, and hurried to a waiting cab.

Presley was here for two shows today in Honolulu Stadium.

He was accompanied by an entourage of high school friends and disc jockeys.

Presley was attired in a white knit sweater with a large rolled collar, a wine-colored sports coat flecked with black, and black slacks and dark loafers.

Vote Riot Stirred up by Tramp

EDINBURGH, Scotland (UP)—Tramp Jimmy Miller stayed away from his usual haunts Saturday to escape questioning on one of the most riotous elections ever held at Edinburgh University.

Students battled for nearly four hours Friday on the university campus while officials counted the votes that elected Actor James Robertson Justice rector of the college. Three students were injured and sent to a hospital.

The dispute was over the withdrawal of Miller as a candidate in the election. He was nominated three weeks ago despite his boast he hasn't worked in 35 years. But he withdrew because "people are laughing at me."

• • • •

MILLER, WHOSE main occupation is sitting on a park bench, "just thinking about things," stayed away from his bench and his lodging house Saturday while newsmen searched for him.

His supporters clashed with those of Justice and the nine other candidates, battling with tin cans, wooden boxes, fish, fireworks and rotten fruit.

Police finally had to charge with clubs to break them up.

Actor Justice easily won the election with 1,003 student votes against 688 polled by his nearest rival, Sir Alexander Gray, a member of the faculty. Author Malcom Muggeridge, a recent critic of royalty, was fifth with 246 votes.

LIKE STATUE

Stone Child in Woman for 37 Years

CHICAGO (AP)—Removal of a "stone child" from the abdomen of a Chicago woman where it had remained for 37 years has been reported by a medical team.

Dr. Edward J. Krol, chief of staff at Holy Cross Hospital where the operation was performed, said the petrified fetus "looked like a carved marble statue with all the features plainly visible."

He estimated the condition occurs in about one of every four million births but is usually detected early.

He gave this account of the case Saturday.

The petrified fetus, known medically as a lithopedion, was discovered by X-ray when a 67-year-old woman sought treatment for stomach tumor last December. Although the lithopedion and tumor were removed successfully the woman died later.

• • • •

THE BABY BEGAN forming in the uterine tube instead of the uterine cavity. It developed for 4½ months and then ruptured the tube.

The fetus passed into the abdomen and became attached to the omentum or fat pad and was nourished temporarily by the woman's blood supply. When this supply was cut off, nature began to calcify the fetus.

The woman had one son, now 45, before the stone child developed, but no children since that time.

Ired French Set to Build A-Sub Alone

CHERBOURG, France (UP)—The French Navy chief of staff said Saturday his country started building an atomic submarine alone because it got tired of waiting for its Allies to share atomic secrets.

Adm. Henry Michel Nomy chided the United States and Britain for their secrecy on atomic matters during ceremonies here launching the conventional submarine Arethuse.

The Arethuse, a small, 490-ton vessel, is the second of four sister subs designed for use as a defense against larger submarines. It carries advanced radar and sound detection gear.

A MEDAL FOR FIDO

Hail Dog for 13-Year Vigil

LUCO DI MUGELLO, Italy (AP)—Fido, a little white dog with a long memory, received a gold medal Saturday.

Inscribed on it were the words: "To Fido, Exemplary Dog."

Fido, whose name in Italian means loyalty, was honored by the citizens of this mountain hamlet in central Italy and by officials of nearby Borgo San Lorenzo.

ABOUT 1,000 persons gathered in a slight drizzle in Luco's main square—a square where Fido has waited for 13 years for his master to come home.

His master, Carlo Soriani, used to ride a bus every morning to work at a factory in Borgo. For two years Fido followed him to the bus stop in the square and then waited there until he returned in the evening.

Then war came. And one day Soriani did not return. He was killed in an Allied air attack that destroyed the Borgo factory.

BUT FIDO still met the bus each night. He soon started to sleep under it, since the bus remained in Luco's square overnight.

His vigil persists.

Everyone in Luco and Borgo knows about it. They send him food. They don't try to move him from the square.

Saturday Giuseppe Graziani, mayor of Borgo, pinned the medal around Fido's neck while Soriani's widow, Maria, knelt nearby. She wept.

Piccard Sees Trips of Thousand Years, No Aging

LOUSANNE, Switzerland (AP)—Prof. Auguste Piccard, famed stratosphere and deep sea explorer, believes space travelers of the future will go on trips lasting several thousand years and return to earth without aging.

The 73-year-old Swiss told a lecture audience here Saturday night that round trips to distant solar systems will eventually become possible in space ships driven by the force of light. He said they would travel near the speed of light, 186,324 miles a second.

"Such machines will enable man to reach a solar system, say, 1,000 light years away and return to earth," Piccard said.

The journey would take 2,000 years as measured on earth, he said, but the travelers would show and feel no trace of the passage of time.

"Only on landing would they perceive that the earth's calendar meanwhile advanced by 2,000 years," he declared. "Everything in the space ship will have been suspended and preserved in time.

"This is no longer science fiction, but strict reality, established by Einstein's theory of relativity and now probable in the laboratory."

Piccard said immense technical problems remain to be solved. He said the fuel problem is the main difficulty in future space travel even within our own solar system.

Crackdown Cools Gridiron Pools

CERRITOS SQUARE Will Replace Virginia Market With 14 Office Structures

Upsets Hit Bookies; Cards Grow Scarce

By BOB WHEARLEY

Not all the football upsets have been on the gridiron these past few weeks.

Long Beach bookies have been hurting, too, and just where it hurts the most—in the bankroll.

So many books have taken losses recently that pool cards are becoming hard to find. There are some still in circulation, but most operators figure they're not worth the risk.

The Independent, Press-Telegram checked with a number of bookmakers and bartenders who have been known to handle football cards.

They agreed that the state's recent warning to tavern men had a lot to do with decline of the pool cards. Russell A. Munro, state liquor director, had warned taverns could face suspension of their licenses if they permitted gambling or lotteries on the premises.

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Dept. office in Long Beach said it was flooded with phone calls after the warning. The callers, tavern operators, informed the department they were shutting down their football lotteries.

* * * *

Here's how they work:

A checkerboard with 100 squares is drawn up, with each square constituting one chance. The player plunks down a quarter or 50 cents, sometimes more, and writes his name in one of the squares. Later, numbers are drawn and assigned to the board. It's not until then that the player knows what teams he's betting on.

Small time as they may seem, they're still verboten under the ABC's pronouncement.

In the pool card operation, the player selects three games from a field of about 35. He plays a point spread. If he wins, his dollar bet will pay off five-to-one. If he picks more than three winners, the odds and payoffs go up—paying as much as $100 for 10 selections.

* * * *

THEREIN LIES the story of the bookies' heartbreak.

During the recent race track strikes, local bookmakers were out of jobs—and with no chance to collect unemployment insurance. On top of that, those of them who also banked football pools were caught flat-footed by several upsets.

The result: Some bookies washed their hands of pools. A couple reportedly left town without paying off.

Much of the football pool money is handled by a syndicate which has its own route men. In many cases, the route men sub-let the distribution to barkeeps, even college students, who in turn take the players' money.

But with the ABC crackdown, more and more tavern owners are reluctant to take a chance.

ALL VETERANS organizations will be heavily represented. The parade will honor the Air Force on the 50th anniversary of the Air Corps.

The sponsor is United Veterans Council, commanded by Elmer B. Allmeroth, with Fred Nessler as parade director and Perry Clift as adjutant.

Buses will be rerouted around the parade area during the event.

'Miracle Mile' of Offices Set on Virginia Mart Site

Buildings Cost Total of More Than $4 Million

By KEN CHILCOTE
(I. P-T Business Editor)

Providing the ultimate in smart design for office accommodations, a multi-million-dollar development will rise on the old Virginia Country Market site on the northeast corner of Long Beach Blvd. and San Antonio Dr.

To be known as Cerritos Square, the development will eventually include 14 buildings, all of low, open designs yet containing the floor space of a comparable 15-story office building.

Park-like atmosphere will be included in the 8-acre development with picture windows in offices overlooking enclosed patios.

Off-street parking facilities will be more than ample to meet the needs.

Cost of Cerritos Square will be well in excess of $4 million.

* * * *

EACH BUILDING will be custom-made to needs of the major tenant, explained Clark J. Bonner Jr., head of the C. J. Bonner Co., the developers. The firm helped develop Lakewood.

"Surveys have shown us that major corporations are in need of new and improved office accommodations," said Bonner. "Some are new offices being moved to the coast. Others are offices expanding or getting away from the metropolitan congestion.

"Until now there has been a somewhat jumbled development with a fine new office being located next to a home or a store. So we decided to develop a virtual miracle mile of offices and found an immediate response."

Although details of the leases cannot be announced at this time it is known that a major insurance company and some oil firms are among those who already have signed.

* * * *

WORK ALREADY is under way. The Bonner Co. has removed all traces of the old Virginia Market and tractors now are clearing away the black-top of the old parking areas. The only structure of the former tenants which will remain is the Richfield Service

I'LL READ YOU A STORY

Adults may peek over the shoulders of Long Beach Public School students during regular classroom hours Tuesday through Friday, American Education Week. Carol Ellis, 5th grade pupil at Buffum Elementary School, presents a fetching kibitzer's preview of her reading lesson. Adults may observe 9 a.m. to 3:10 p.m. in elementary schools and 8:30 a.m. to 3:10 p.m. in junior and senior high schools. Schools will be closed Monday for Veterans Day.

Swindler Gang in Area, So Check What You Buy

By PAUL WALLACE

Word that the most notorious gang of con artists in the nation is congregating in the area has reached Long Beach.

The Better Business Bureau was tipped to the coming reunion in Hollywood of the Williamson Gang by a letter from New York signed by John Williamson, who described himself as a disgruntled former member of the clan.

The Williamsons were subject to a feature story in The Independent, Press-Telegram's Sunday supplement, Parade Magazine, two years ago.

The article described them as a family-gang of swindlers active for many years in the U.S. and numbering "at least a couple of hundred, at most a couple of thousand."

* * * *

ALTHOUGH KNOWN to many police forces, the gang usually operates very close to the law and is hard to prosecute.

In cases where the Williamson's swindles have been detected in time for arrests to be made, penalties have been very light with false advertising and peddling without a license often the only charges applicable.

Although the group has operated hundreds of variations of bunco and con games, peddling "bargain" woolens, Irish lace, furs, and Oriental rugs door-to-door has been a specialty.

* * * *

ALMOST AS popular with the flim-flam artists have been phony service rackets—lightning rod installations, house painting and roof "oiling" and waterproofing.

Always, the "imported Scottish woolens" turn out to be cheap rayon, the lightning rods fakes and the house "paint" crankcase oil colored with pigments.

And the suckers, usually average middle-class people, often are so embarrased at being bilked they don't report it.

The gang is virtually one family although its members are not all named Williamson. Some of the bigger branches go under the names of McMillan, Stewart, Johnston, Keith, McGavin, McDonald and Carroll.

* * * *

GANG MEMBERS seldom marry outside the clan. Youngsters reportedly are taught the tricks of the trade from the cradle.

The Williamsons normally winter in Texas or Florida, then spread northward in the spring, moving from town to town during the warm months.

A family head is believed to direct operations. The Williamsons love flashy cars and expensive funerals. They live in big house trailers or motels when on the road.

The letter received by local Better Business Bureau manager Robert Galley warned area residents to be particularly watchful of the gang's con games. It said the gang was working the roof oil-spraying dodge here while awaiting the pending reunion.

GOOD OL' DAYS RETURN

Merchants Dust Off Derbies for Downtown Sales Festival

Planned as the biggest promotional event of the year, "Good Ol' Days" this week is expected to attract record crowds to the downtown area of Long Beach.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday the downtown section will take on an atmosphere of the old days through gay banners and decorations on the streets and in stores. Clerks, bus operators and policemen will join in the festive spirit by dressing in the fashions of the "Roaring 20's" or earlier. Many plan to wear attire from the "Gay 90's" and derby hats will predominate for the males.

Blending the old with the new will be a huge auto show on 9½ blocks of the downtown area. All 1958 models will be on display and mixed with them will be many of the old time cars as well as custom-made cars shown by various youth car clubs.

There will be street dancing and other entertainment, both daytime and night.

ALL STORES are offering spectacular sales during the three-day event.

A window display contest for the stores is set for Wednesday night. Plaques will be awarded for the best displays on the old days theme.

A new feature is the snapshot contest in which the public is invited to participate. There is no entry fee but all entries must be accompanied by an application blank which can be obtained at Walker's, Penney's, Ward-Tallant, Winstead's or Buffums's.

First prize in each category will be $50; second prizes portable radios with four third prizes of $10 gift certificates redeemable at either Walker's or the J. C. Penney downtown store.

ANOTHER FEATURE will be a contest to find the best shopper. Chester Conklin will select some shopper each day to be given $50 to spend. The one who obtains the best bargains for the $50 will receive an additional $50 prize.

Vito Romans, general manager of Downtown Long Beach Associates, sponsors of the event, said all 843 downtown retail stores are participating.

A special "Good Ol' Days" section will appear in the Press-Telegram Wednesday afternoon and the Independent, Thursday morning. Thursday afternoon and Friday morning there will be a special automobile section giving details of the new cars.

He had been a Long Beach-area resident for 27 years and was a member of Elks Lodge 888 and Lakewood Masonic Lodge 728. He was office manager for Bragg Crane Service.

Huffman was born in Trenton, N. J.

Service will be at 11 a. m. Tuesday in Loper Chapel, with interment in Sunnyside Memorial Park.

more SALES in your future!

People do read "spot ads" . . . you do! Spot ads like this can quickly build SALES in your business. This ad costs only $17.56 per Sunday on a weekly contract basis.

THE LUDICROUS PICTURE offered by an approachless bridge caught the fancy of both legislators and reporters when the Assembly judiciary committee heard about some of Long Beach's troubles at a hearing in L. A. last week.

Thereafter outside papers and the wire services carried lively items about the Herbert Davies' bridge across the Marine Stadium—onto which you can't drive a car—and ignored other interesting and important features of the Assembly hearing.

The Davies bridge, as you may know, is approachless because of legal technicalities involving the land needed for the right-of-way on both sides of the structure. And there's no prospect for clearing up all these problems in the near future. The so-called "package deal" with the Pacific Electric railway may provide land for the south approach, but the north right-of-way isn't in that arrangement.

So it will be some time yet before traffic will be rolling over this handsome structure, which would link E. Second St. with Highway 101 and western Orange County.

EMBARRASSED city officials find some little satisfaction in one angle of the situation. They say that the bridge, if built today, would probably cost $400,000 more than the $1,170,000 put into it two years ago.

That's because of rising construtcion costs—15 per cent a years—and because, at the particular time of the bidding on the bridge, a highly competitive situation existed and the successful bid was $200,000 under the estimate.

So the city is getting 15 per cent a year on its investment. When does that 15 per cent accrual stop—when the approaches are built?

If so, the longer we wait, the more money we make. Ridiculous, but it's a way of looking at it.

MEANWHILE, the approachless bridge isn't going completely without use.

Some helicopter pilots have been using it for practice landings. It serves very nicely as a simulated ship's deck.

LONG BEACH, by the way, has had a lot of bridge trouble.

The Davies bridge isn't the first approachless span here. The Belhart Bridge, a county project, stood for a year or more across the Flood Control with no access.

The county built the bridge, anticipating no trouble in acquiring the approach right-of-way. But trouble did develop with some land owners, and it wasn't settled when the bridge was finished.

There was a lot of fuss about that a shake-up in county government resulted. Poking fun at the county for building a bridge you couldn't get to was a favorite pastime around here a few years ago.

OTHER BRIDGES have made trouble here.

In recent years, the Seventh St. and Broadway bridges were torn out because they were regarded as hazards in time of flood in the L. A. River Flood Control. Both bridges were affected by subsidence before they were demolished.

The Pontoon Bridge in the Harbor District is in the center of the subsidence bowl and has had a lot of difficulty. In 1952 it had to be raised so it would operate at high tide. Now it is again inoperable at high tide and must soon be relocated on a new and higher substructure.

Even the impressive Commodore Heim bridge, connecting the mainland with Terminal Island, has its difficulties. Because of subsidence, they're going to replumb the main towers, shorten the lift span and install expansion points to relieve pressure caused by subsidence.

Those are a few examples of local bridge trouble. There are others which indicate that the business of getting traffic across waterways in these parts has been almost too big for us.

'Wings' Show Will Include Air Lovelies

An international bevy of pretty airline hostesses and a simulated sea rescue at Long Beach Municipal Airport are points of interest in the 19th annual "Wings Over the Nation" program to be sponsored here next Saturday and Sunday by the Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Staged to promote the airport and focus world attention on Long Beach as a vacationland, the event opens Saturday noon with the airport arrival of 16 to 20 hostesses. After being interviewed by press and radio there, they will attend the Mayor's Welcoming Luncheon at 1:30 p.m. in the Wilton Hotel Pageant Room.

The lovelies will tour city and harbor and then shine at the "Wings" Ball in the Wilton at 9 p.m.

* * * *

HOSTESSES will be on hand Sunday morning and afternoon in connection with the featured static exhibits and air-ground transportation show at the airport.

The March Air Force Base Band's 38 pieces will open Sunday activities with an 11 a.m. concert, to be followed at 1:30 p.m. by James E. Son's Junior Concert Band and Pom Pom girls; 2 p.m., demonstration and show by Long Beach Model T Club; 3 p.m., Air-Sea Rescue demonstration, and 3:30 p.m., Marvin Marker's Junior Concert Band.

Long Beach's one-year-old 303rd Air Reserve Rescue squad will stage the simulated sea rescue using an SA16 Albatross.

Pilot Capt. Robert Pard, co-pilot 1st Lt. Frank C. Hoyt, both of Long Beach, and engineer S. Sgt. William Stevenson, Westminster, will take off with jet assist, jettison their jet assist bottles at sea, then return to smoke flares sent up from the airport. The demonstration will be narrated by Lt. David Holliday, Santa Monica.

* * * *

OTHER ACTIVITIES for the "Wings" day will include movie travelogues in the airport administration building, passenger ride service at nominal charge by Avalon Air Transport and free bus rides around the inside perimeter of the airport.

Static exhibits there will include: Navy jet, helicopter, S2F, and a Navy display from Los Alamitos Naval Air Station; Nike guided missile, model aircraft carrier, Car Club autos, several other helicopters, B50, model naval aircraft, DC8 display, 1958 auto display, S3H jet fighter and antique auto display.

"Wings" chairman is John Overmyer; coordinator, Dr. Vern Barney, assisted by subchairmen Robert Aughton, Court Prowell Jr., Jack Reynolds, Myron Godwin, Keith Fulmer, Kelly Williams and Don Granger.

SWINGING FOR WINGS

Lee Ann McIntosh, Miss Aviation, tees off at Municipal Airport, where the improvement program includes plans for a golf links. Her immediate goal is the Wings Over the Nation fete opening here Saturday under sponsorship of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and defense units. Dr. Vern Barney of the Chamber and Lt. Dean Hollingsworth Tells Progress of 25-Year L. B. Aviation Education

Dean J. E. Hollingsworth of the Business and Technology Division, Long Beach City College, gave a talk-tour over 25 years of local aviation education Saturday night at the division's Aircraft and Engine Club banquet in the Municipal Airport's new Satellite Room.

Hollingsworth detailed the early struggle of teaching aviation classes. Beginning with less than 30 students in depressed 1932, the program encompassed 50,000 trained for the aircraft industry during World War II.

* * * *

THREE EARLY aviation instructors were special banquet guests—Randall Scott, Harvey Martin and Glenn Arbogast. Scott taught the first class in a hanger leased from Mrs. Gladys McDonnell, then speed queen of the airways.

Early hazards included the 2,500-foot dirt runway itself and erratic rabbits racing across it.

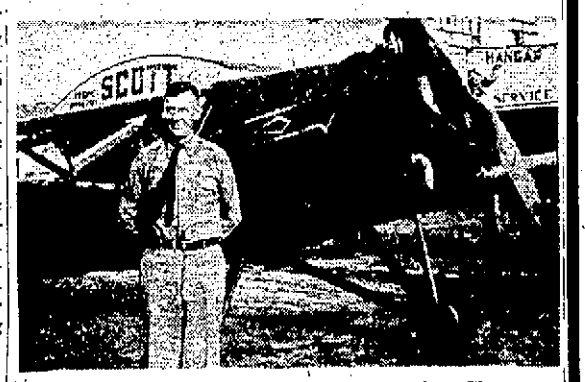

Some 200 instructors taught classes around the clock, seven days a week, halting only for Sunday staff breakfasts and church.

* * * *

DEAN HOLLINGSWORTH, who fathered the program as principal of the then Long Beach Trade Extension High School, credited aid and encouragement of the lay advisory committee as the backbone of the BTD program.

"Need for survival" touched off the national defense training in July 1940, the dean recalled. He credited Kenneth Oberholtzer, then school district superintendent, for envisioning the wide scope of training.

Of the early days staff, four are now on the City College staff: Errol Roquet, Leo Gable, John Sprinkel and Herschel Thomas. Present aircraft and engine teachers are Jay Ackerman and Arturo Figueroa.

Array of Offices to Replace Market

Station on the corner and it is to be rebuilt to blend with the rest of Cerritos Square.

For several years the old market area has been a problem, with nearby residents petitioning the city about the declining operations there damaging property values.

Started years ago by a group including Ed (Strangler) Lewis, ex-champion wrestler, the market never fared too well and from the start was beset with difficulties. It was on a county island and did not have city sewer services. Now it is in the city.

Developers of Cerritos Square have gone all out to assure beauty in the development which should enhance other properties.

To the rear of the big area there will be jacaranda trees and shrubbery bordering the parking section.

Fronts of the buildings which will face Long Beach Blvd. and San Antonio Dr., will be masonry with glass and aluminum panels and stainless steel trim.

* * * *

COMMERCIALISM WILL BE at a minimum. The farthest building to the north will be a multi-story medical-dental building and pharmacy.

While many of the structures will have their own cafeterias to provide luncheon service to employes, Bonner said it was decided to provide one large, high-type restaurant. This will be on the San Antonio Dr. side. The only other commercial structure will be the service station.

There will be some office space provided for individuals and small professional or industrial firms, Bonner explained.

Refrigerated air conditioning, fluorescent lighting, acoustical ceilings, column-free office areas, under-floor electrical and telephone outlets will be included.

Bonner said the plans call for parking space for 3½ cars for every 1,000 feet of office space. He estimated there would be at least 2,000 clerical and professional people in the offices when the project is completed.

Coldwell, Banker & Co. is leasing agent.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower Saturday ordered the import duty on spring clothespins doubled—from the present 10 cents to 20 cents a gross. The increase is effective Dec. 9 for an indefinite period.

Hard of Hearing?

Do you know that a great many people who have a hearing loss also have sinus trouble, catarrh or both? Many of these cases could have part or even all of their hearing loss restored; many who now have sinus trouble and no hearing loss may develop a hearing loss later on in life.

Many of our patients now listen to TV and radio at volume that the family enjoys.

Thanks to the new system now being used in all of the Basic Diagnostic Offices throughout California, many who have tried this proven method are overjoyed. Just like magic in many cases, improvement is shown after the first treatment.

If you have a hearing loss, no matter how slight or how bad, it may be due to sinus trouble or catarrh. Why not find out?

Don't delay, we will give you the first treatment and our complete sinus and catarrh examination for the small sum of only $3.00.

We are one of the busiest offices in Southern California, so if we cannot help you be assured that we will not take your case.

The total charge is only $3.00 for the first treatment and the examination, and if you see no improvement from the first treatment we do not want you back. This offer will be withdrawn in ten days.

Yugos Unearth Gothic Frescoes

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UP)—Yugoslav archaeologists have discovered Gothic frescoes on the tiny island of Solta, off the central Dalmatian coast.

Experts says the Frescoes are the first Gothic ones to be found in Dalmatia. Found in the Church of St. Mihovil and buried under thick layers of chalk, the discovery reportedly dates from the 14th Century. So far only the figure of St. Mihovil has been identified.

The Navy Really Means Business

THE NAVY THIS WEEK stressed anew the seriousness with which it views the Long Beach subsidence problem.

Naval officials in Washington confirmed that the Navy has requested the Justice Department to institute legal action. While full details are not known, the action basically would seek to fix legal responsibility for damages from land sinkage in the Wilmington oil field.

This is a proper and healthful action.

IT IS AN URGENT ONE. Damage from subsidence has reached the critical stage, and the Navy is face to face with the physical problem of keeping the shipyard operative. If the undeveloped portion of the Wilmington field were exploited without effective anti-subsidence measures, the dikes around the shipyard's facilities would have to be so high that the yard could not be operated efficiently. The Navy and Congress want assurance in the form of an adequate state law that this situation will not arise. Long Beach wants, and the state should want, to provide that assurance because of the tremendous value of the shipyard to the city and state in terms of both dollars and defense.

Experts have stated repeatedly that the land is sinking because of reduction of underground pressures owing to the extraction of oil. The diagnosis of an expert has no legal force, however. Court action is required. Meanwhile, the Navy, which does not produce a drop of oil here, is in the position of the innocent bystander who suffers the consequences of the acts of others.

IRONICALLY, IF THE EXPERTS are to be believed, there is a remedy that will halt the damage and still permit the extraction of oil from the field. A unitized repressuring of the field to restore original pressures would remove the cause of sinking, the experts say, and increase the efficiency of oil recovery.

As long as responsibility for damage is not fixed, the oil producers—which include the city and state—can be expected to pump the shipyard and the city lower and lower. They have done precisely that for 20 years without exerting serious effort to halt sinkage. This is morally, ethically, and legally wrong.

The Navy and Congress now want assurances that oil production is not going to sink a vital defense installation below the waves.

The suit could be of immense value in giving pause to those who want to take oil but remain heedless of the damage their action entails.

The Navy's intention to seek the suit should also add strength to the city's efforts to obtain an adequate compulsory law in the next legislative session. It adds weight to the city's contention that this is a question of utmost urgency.

While lawsuits of this kind are never pleasant, the people of Long Beach should welcome the Navy's action. It will help speed a solution to the city's most vexing and dangerous problem.

Democratic Trend Holding Up Well

WASHINGTON—Last Tuesday's elections show the Democratic trend holding up well. Republicans privately admitted they lost valuable ground without compensatory gains.

The sampling of voter opinion was too limited for sweeping generalizations, bu. two Democrats were greatly helped.

Gov. Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey moved well forward in the list of Democratic presidential hopefuls for the most practical of all reasons: he can get a lot of votes from all kinds of people and nobody is mad at him.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York made a striking comeback from his defeat for the Senate last year. He is restored to the ranks of potential candidates for governor, senator and the national ticket.

DEMOCRATS ALSO RELAXED visibly when the Meyner-Wagner returns indicated that the Eisenhower-Nixon popularity was not transferable. Wagner swept Harlem. Meyner handsomely carried the two counties containing the bulk of the New Jersey Negro population.

In both instances Republicans had tried hard to capitalize on Little Rock. They flooded the New Jersey wards with literature demanding that Negroes "repay Ike" by voting for Meyner's opponent, Malcolm S. Forbes.

Undoubtedly one reason the appeal failed is that Meyner has appointed qualified Negroes to jobs such as their race had not before held in the state. Still, the evidence is that Negroes outside the South are not being swept by any anti-Democratic emotions.

Non-southern Democrats now can feel they will not automatically be penalized by the Faubuses of the party. This means that their present edge in the congressional elections next year will not be blunted by events outside of their control. It is good news also for their candidates for governor.

THE EISENHOWER administration gambled its prestige Tuesday and lost. Yet for reasons of party morale, it could not have stood aloof; had the President refused to speak up he would be assailed for running out on his party.

The big parade of political experts and power-seekers will now begin to converge upon the New Jersey statehouse and beautiful Morven, the historic mansion furnished the state's governors.

The governor and his rather recent bride, a cousin of Adlai Stevenson, start with a clean slate. Democrats generally like them; nobody is mad at them. Meyner has managed to walk down the middle of the road and yet maintain his party status intact.

One embittered Republican, pointing out that the Meyner billboards this fall did not say Democrat, put it this way: "All that fellow has to do is to go on not making mistakes."

There is more to Meyner than that; it is not an easy feat to win twice for governor in a state normally tied to the other party and to achieve a 200,000 plurality one year after a president of the other party carried the state by 750,000. He is perhaps lucky that the Democrats are currently short of men of vast experience with towering international stature.

President's Speech: Challenge Accepted and Warning Given

WASHINGTON — Words of reassurance and action—this is what the American people expected of President Eisenhower, and they were given both in his nation-wide address Thursday night.

* * * *

A HIGH SENSE of urgency was reflected by the President, but he counseled against any idea "that we should mount our charger and try to ride off in all directions at once."

The inevitable steps, the logical steps in the orderly functioning of a great government in meeting an unprecedented crisis, have been outlined by the President. America, he declared, is behind in some things in military weapons but ahead in others. America is safe in that it has a massive power of resistance to attack, and this is a deterrent against the success of any sudden action by an enemy. The key paragraph in the President's address was this:

"It is my conviction, supported by trusted scientific and military advisers, that, although the Soviets are quite likely ahead in some missile and special areas, and are obviously ahead of us in satellite development, as of today the over-all military strength of the free world is distinctly greater than that of the Communist countries. We must see to it that whatever advantages they have are temporary only."

* * * *

THUS IS the challenge accepted and a warning given. The President's outline of the power of the United States in a military sense was dramatic. Few people realize that America has overseas bases from which intermediate-range missiles can be fired instantly and that this is more important as a measure of defense than even an intercontinental missile may be when it is perfected.

The power of our strategic-air defense was emphasized, and the Chief Executive spoke particularly of the atomic submarines and the huge naval carriers "with the most powerful nuclear weapons and bombers of great range to deliver them."

There was no doubt, when the President finished his address, that he had given the first authoritative summary of the entire military power of the United States in the world today. Guided missiles are in production. Intermediate-range missiles have been tested successfully over a range of 3,500 miles. While an intercontinental missile is required, the President pointed out, nevertheless, that because of our bases overseas, "an intermediate-range missile is for some purposes as good as an intercontinental missile."

Mr. Eisenhower didn't question whether Russia could bring back a missile from outer space but preferred to say it this way: "One difficult obstacle on the way to producing a useful long-range weapon is that of bringing back a missile from outer space without its burning up like a meteor, because of friction with the earth's atmosphere."

There's the real point of all the talk about the "Sputnik" as a military weapon. Much can be learned from these spectacular experiments, but the problem of guiding a missile from outer space to a specific target has already been solved by the United States.

The most important thing about the President's address was its positiveness, its call for an abandonment of partisanship in this matter and the stirring appeal he made for peace.

"What the world needs today," he said, "even more than a giant leap into outer space is a giant step towards peace."

* * * *

THIS IS the real challenge. For the President notes that "Soviet expansionist aims have not changed."

The American view is that salvation for the world must come in the inevitable recognition by the Soviet people that they are being deprived of food to pay for weapons of war and that removal of the ruthless rulers in Moscow is absolutely essential to the peace of all peoples.

Red Science Papers Pile Up Here Unread

WASHINGTON—It may be hard to believe, but the administration has been so complacent about Soviet scientific progress that it hasn't bothered to translate the Russian technological documents that enter this country, except for a few hit-and-miss translations.

Truckloads of scientific papers and reports, containing clues to Russia's brainwork, are piled up in the Library of Congress, unsorted and untranslated. Our technologists are convinced they could learn more Soviet secrets by reading these papers than all the reports of the costly Central Intelligence Agency.

IT WOULD COST an estimated $1.5 million to translate and catalogue 80 per cent of the most important reports—a mere fraction of the CIA budget. Yet these papers are known to contain vital information on such Soviet programs as missile and satellite research.

The administration has had the smug attitude that our scientists are so superior we must protect our technological secrets. We needn't bother to learn Russian secrets.

American scientific delegations that visit behind the Iron Curtain are given stern warnings not to disclose technical information of a security nature. Government agents also give management a careful briefing on what not to say before Communist delegations are escorted through American factories.

Yet the administration has all but ignored Russian technical information reaching this county. If this information were properly catalogued by subject matter, it would not only help our scientists in their research but would enable them to evaluate the level of Soviet scientific development.

OUR TECHNOLOGISTS have found that Russian scientists discuss their findings with amazing frankness in their technical papers. Russia publishes about 25,000 technical journals, of which less than 1,000 are considered important. Of these, 80 journals contain most of Russia's research.

Yet the Library of Congress translates only occasional passages from these key journals. Private universities also do some translating. But the mass of Russian technical intelligence is never read by American experts.

In the light of Rusia's missile-satellite achievements, this failure to study Soviet scientific documents may go down as the greatest scandal of the Eisenhower administration.

NOTE: The CIA secretly translates Russian military documents, including some containing technical data. But the CIA doesn't have the scientists to evaluate this information. In the technological age, scientific secrets are now considered more important than military secrets.

SO GLAD IT HAPPENED

The happiest of happenings . . . That ever happened, dear . . . Was meeting you and seeing you . . . So charming and sincere . . . Perhaps it merely happened, as . . . The world may well agree . . . But I would like to think that God . . . Intended it to be . . . Because I felt, my darling, when . . . I first set eyes on you . . . You were my one, my only one . . . No other one would do . . . It happened that I met you—yes . . . And life became a song . . . And yet somehow it seemed that I Had known you all along . . . But now it really matters not . . . By chance or by design . . . L. B. Fared Well in Judiciary Committee's Tideland Hearing

LONG BEACH fared well in last midweek's legislative judiciary committee hearing in Los Angeles.

Its representatives effectively presented a mass of information and had little trouble in the question periods.

There was no hint, as the hearing ended, that any new anti-Long Beach legislation was being cooked up. Assemblyman Bruce Allen, the committee chairman and once regarded as no friend of this city, praised the Long Beach witnesses and general cooperation provided the committee by the municipality.

EPLEY

Chairman Allen's attitude toward the city's witnesses was friendly throughout, as was that of other legislators present. The local people could not have asked for better treatment.

There is no way of knowing, of course, whether the hearing may prove to be preliminary to some legislative plan that could be of serious importance to the city. Presumably, the lawmakers were on the lookout for evidences of any soft spots that might need correcting in the 1956 tidelands settlement law under which city and state are now operating as semi-partners in the tidelands oil field here. There was no sign that they felt they had discovered any serious imperfections in the arrangement.

WHILE IT WAS SHOWN that there are occasional situations in which city and state officials—officials of the land commission and the Attorney General's office—are not in full agreement, the state men said that conferences had proved effective in ironing out the difficulties. Some problems may have to be taken to court, but these involve delicate questions where a firm legal adjudication is in order.

Prior to the hearing, and for benefit of the press, the public and other legislators, Assemblyman Allen had prepared an explanatory rundown on all the major items on the agenda—subsidence, bridges, Auditorium Annex, YMCA, and so on. This proved to be generally objective and highly valuable background material.

Purpose of the hearing was principally to explore the status of various legal issues concerning the tidelands here, in which, according to the Mallon decision and subsequent legislation, the state has a key interest as trustor and as beneficiary from the tidelands revenues. Many of the matters considered are already in court for adjudication. As to some others, such as the Marina land "package deal," it was not apparent that there was much or anything the legislative committee might be able to do about them. But the hearing was effective in bringing all of these complicated legal problems into focus.

ALLEN HAD PROVIDED the city with an advance list of agenda items, thus making possible preparation of extensive informative material on each. This was most helpful. It is fortunate, however, that such situations do not frequently arise, for city officials and their staffs found it necessary to spend a great deal of time on this effort in the last two weeks.

One thing is a little difficult to understand. Why wasn't this hearing conducted in Long Beach? Most of the witnesses came from here, and all of the subject matter was primarily of interest to the people here. It is likely that the people in the Belmont Park area, for example, would have welcomed the opportunity to attend and hear the discussion of the Marina "package deal" if the hearing had been held in Long Beach. It is not apparent what purpose is served by holding Long Beach hearings in Los Angeles.

BUT REGARDLESS of the location, this particular hearing proved to be generally satisfactory from the Long Beach viewpoint. Next in line is the subsidence hearing set, also for Los Angeles, by the Assembly Oil Committee for early December.

No Bitterness, Just Memories

TO THE EDITOR:

It had been raining the week before and we had prayed that on April 5, Easter Sunday, it would be a most beautiful day so that our last sights of Long Beach on that sad day would truly be lovely. And so it was that day in 1942, clear and sunny when we left with tens and tens of other Japanese Americans for Santa Anita Assembly Center. War had come and we were to be among the victims of its evils, even though our hearts and souls were American. Since that time we had departed for Jerome, Ark., Chicago, Ill., and now for the past 13 years we have been "at home" in the Buckeye State of Ohio, City of Dayton, with our five youngsters (16 months to almost 14 years of age).

* * * *

WE HAVE no bitterness, but only fond memories of Long Beach, and our many friends there. We long for a visit with them, and for the sight of the Pacific and sound of the waves dashing on the surf. However, some day we will be back, but for now we wanted our friends to know we think of them often and do hope they think of us, too.

We have always remembered and tried to live up to the words which were chiseled over the portals of the old Poly High—"Enter to learn, go forth to serve." We hope the new administration building has that same advice engraved over its doors. We're W'31 and W'36 graduates.

Sincerely,
MR. AND MRS.

Sees Political 'Soul Sacrifice'

TO THE EDITOR:

In California politics, a man has just sacrificed his soul on the altar of political expediency; his worldly rewards will be great; of dignity he has not one shred left.

He treateth people as willing tools of the deed, but come the next day of decision they shall cast a mark for their dignity, intelligence and political independence.

Calls Tipping Reprehensible

TO THE EDITOR:

In a section of your paper devoted to travel we frequently see articles giving advice on tipping—the amount, etc. Time was when some employes were not paid a fixed salary, hence were in a manner dependent upon the charity of the public for their pay. But at the present level of wages and with the opportunities for jobs available, tipping is one of the most reprehensible practices in our society.

* * * *

WHY SHOULD the public subsidize the help in hotels, restaurants and other places? Why don't the owners come right out and say that they are too small or penurious to pay their help a decent, living wage?

Instead of the practice being on the wane, as it should be, some employes in the better brackets of pay—barbers, bartenders, for example—no longer consider it an insult to be offered a tip. Again, why tip any salaried help?

Wants Year 'Round Daylight Savings

TO THE EDITOR:

A short time ago the Chamber of Commerce was considering sponsoring changes in our laws so we would have daylight savings time until the last Sunday in October.

I urge that the chamber consider this: If daylight savings is good during the summer (and it is), how much more we need it during the winter. Maine and 18 counties in Kentucky have voted to keep daylight savings the year around. We should do the same.

New High in Puccini's Tosca Seen

By RACHEL MORTON

It would seem that the San Francisco Opera performances get progressively better as the season advances. Because at the Shrine Auditorium Friday night the opera Tosca by Puccini reached an all time high.

This almost melodrama, with a woman's honor at stake, would be almost tawdry were it not for the superb music and the very fine cast of singers which we heard. Puccini has a dramatic sense that few composers know—he gets to the point at once, the curtains are quickly opened and quickly closed. His orchestral effects are dagger sharp, but when there is need of repose—as in the early morning scene of the third act—how misty are the church bells, how far away the little shepherd's song.

Under the sure and inspired direction of conductor Erich Leinsdorf the orchestra abetted the singers in a great performance.

• • • •

DOROTHY KIRSTEN improves every time I hear her. Her voice has gained in power and range. The golden texture of her high voice is something rare to hear, and there is rich vibrance in the tone. Besides being a very handsome woman, she is an actress of arresting personality with a real flair for the dramatic. Her Tosca really lived and loved and heroically died. The ovation she received was richly deserved.

In Guiseppe Taddei we had the most diabolical Scarpia it has ever been my misfortune (or good fortune) to meet. Of course, Scarpia is meant to be a villain but this Scarpia worked overtime. The result, combined with a gorgeous baritone voice, was the greatest portrayal of the part I have ever heard (And I have heard Antonio Scotti many times).

Gianni Raimondi as Cavaradossi shared honors with the others. In the third act he displayed a beautiful tenor voice and his acting had more conviction. But he has not the consuming fire of dramatic intensity that made outstanding the portrayals of his partners.

The huge audience evinced its pleasure in long and loud applause.

'Desk Set' Comedy Isn't Really Funny

"Desk Set," a comedy by William Marchant, opened this weekend at the Community Playhouse. The play when produced on Broadway featured Shirley Booth. The local production doesn't, and that makes all the difference.

"Desk Set" is not an especially interesting or funny play in its own right. It would take a Shirley Booth to cover its inadequacies. Where it ought to furnish sparkle it furnishes only talk, and when it ought to flame out it only smokes a little. Even when Emmerac, the electronic brain, flashes in six colors, it is not a very lively play.

The local players do a good job with the material they have to work with. A couple of secondary roles, one really a bit part, bring forth the best performances of the evening.

• • • •

ADELE MOCERINO is excellent as Ruthie Saylor, the junior researcher in the reference department, and Gerald Foster is fine as Kenny, the office boy. Both are good for some genuine laughs, and Miss Mocerino is the only person who truly comes alive on the stage.

Mary Lou Grubb plays Bunny Watson, the star of the show and chief of the reference department. She is a lovely girl with a fine voice and a poise born, one suspects, of some experience on the stage. But she never quite rings true; throughout the show she is acting—and it shows. Consequently Bunny Watson remains a character in a play, a nice, one, but not a person.

Bob Hanrahan conceals his acting art very well, but Richard Sumner, the efficiency expert he is portraying, isn't very interesting when played straight. A little of the ham might improve him.

• • • •

THE REST OF THE CAST is adequate or better. Jan Schwartz and Kay Salveson play two reference librarians, Bud Lembke is Bunny Watson's indecisive boy friend, and Lee Kissler is the office vamp. Mattie Russell Allen as the lady in the blue suit earns laughs without speaking a single word. Gus Mocerino, Marilyn Peterson, and Bob Blackman complete the cast.

The sets, designed by Director Larry Johns, are just right for the play, and Emmerac is a wonder to behold. All in all, the Community Players have done a creditable job in every department. Still, one wishes all that energy and talent might have been better utilized.

Performances will continue on weekends into December.

SOUCHAK BLOWS TO 77; LITTLER TWO STROKES BACK

Andreason's 134 Leads Open

By JERRY WYNN

Dale Andreason, former Long Beach pro who once was a Press-Telegram carrier boy, fired a five-under par 66 Saturday for a 36-hole total of 134 and a one-stroke lead going into today's final round of the $11,500 Long Beach Open at Lakewood.

While the first round co-leaders Mike Souchak and Gene Littler couldn't hold the pace—Souchak blowing to a 77 and Littler keeping in contention with a 70—Andreason expertly toured his old home course without a bogey and little attention from an enthusiastic gallery of 3,500.

The big blonde 40-year-old Poly High and Long Beach City College graduate, whose ambition was always to be a links hero in his home town but who left here two years ago for a lucrative club position near Pittsburgh, today stands on the threshold of capturing his first major tournament.

However, his task won't be simple for a large and talented band of challengers is also in striking distance of the $1,200 first place jackpot.

Tied for second at 135 are two "hungry" PGA freshmen, little Joe Conrad of San Antonio and lanky Bill Parker of Tulsa. Two strokes back are the poised and powerful trio of Littler, Billy Casper and Eric Monti plus promising Howie Johnson of Akron, O. At 137 come Jay Hebert and Bill Johnston, followed by Al Besselink and Porky Oliver at 138.

It was Parker, an unknown 23-year-old with only $180 earnings on the tour, who tarnished the glitter of Andreason's big day by snatching away the $500 reward for low score.

Andreason had completed his round early in the day and remained at the course to see whether the 66 would hold up. It did until Parker arrived at the 18th green in the next-to-last threesome needing a 15-foot birdie putt for a 65. To a whoop and a fling of his cap, he made the $500 tap.

The field will be pared to the low 66 pros and 11 amateurs for today's payoff round which begins at 9:05. All of the major touring pros made the cutoff figure of 146 but Souchak, Jim Ferrier and Don Whitt informed PGA Tournament Coordinator Harvey Raynor that they will not show up. No reasons were given.

Souchak, who had a 66 opening round, was Saturday's major disappointment with his hard-to-believe 77. He went three over par on the first five holes and never rallied. On the third hole, he called a penalty stroke on himself because his ball moved while he addressed an iron shot.

Another famed pro to experience misery on Lakewood's tough string of starting holes was Tommy Bolt, who double-bogied the first and fifth holes to limp around in 78 strokes.

Most of the other better-known players zeroed in close to par with 33 bettering the 71 standard.

Following Parker and Andreason on the sub-par roster was Jackson Bradley, who like Andreason was a former assistant pro at Lakewood, with a 67 and Conrad, Casper, Monti, Hebert, Besselink, Oliver and Howie Johnson among several 68s.

Andreason had nines of 32-34. Going out, he birdied the third hole on a chip and eight-foot putt; the eighth on a 9-iron that left but a two-foot putt, and the ninth on a 6-iron and six-footer. Coming in, he birdied the 13th and 15th on putts of 10 and 4 feet after wedge shots to the green.

He was in danger on the 18th when his drive veered off the fairway behind a tree, but he hit a nifty 3-wood with a big slice that carried to the front of the green and he got down in par five.

In addition to the pressure putt on the 18th, Parker's round was highlighted by a fabulous front nine of 31 which included five birdies and a sixth that was denied by a penalty stroke.

After bogeying the first hole, he birdied the next four on a 40-foot chip shot and putts of 4, 10, and 3 feet. He hit into the lake on the sixth for the penalty stroke but still saved his par by sinking a 10-foot putt, and then birdied the seventh with a wedge that missed holing out by a foot.

Pars followed until he canned another 10-foot birdie putt on the 16th. He saved par with a six-footer on the 17th and on the 18th had to hit a long third shot to set up his birdie putt after almost shanking a second wood.

Parker putted only 10 times on the front nine and 25 in all.

"I knew the money was riding on that last putt," he ad-

51,923 See Indians Rout Trojans, 35-7

SC Loss Worst to Tribe

By DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES COLISEUM—Stanford's savagely-attacking Indians ripped the Trojan defense to shreds here Saturday to register a 35-7 victory over Southern California and keep alive their Rose Bowl hopes which were revived with the news that Oregon's Webfoots had been upset by Washington.

A crowd of 51,923 fans, largest of the local college season, saw the Indians roll up the highest point total a Stanford team has ever recorded against SC in registering their most decisive win over the Trojans in the long and colorful 36-game series between the two schools. Previous Stanford high was a 34-13 triumph in 1949.

After Stanford broke the scoring ice just 13 seconds before the first period ended, SC fought back to a 7-7 tie at the outset of the second quarter. But the Indians then broke the game wide open with two more scoring strikes before the intermission for a 21-7 halftime advantage.

Two more touchdowns in the third period boosted the count to 35-7 and the Indians coasted home in the final session with the reserves in action.

* * * *

IT WAS THE worst defeat of the seeason for the hapless Trojans, who have now lost six in seven games . . . their lone victory coming a week ago against Washington.

Meanwhile, the victory gives Stanford a 5-3 season record . . . and a 3-2 standing in conference play, which puts them back in range of a possible Rose Bowl bid if things break just right for the Indians, namely (1) victories over Oregon State and California in their last two games for a final 5-2 conference standing, while (2) Oregon was losing its final two starts to SC and Oregon State for a 5-3 record.

However, if the speedy Oregon club can't beat the slow-moving Trojans who crumbled under Stanford's onslaught Saturday, it doesn't deserve to go to the Rose Bowl.

* * * *

OREGON, of course, nipped Stanford, 27-26, a week ago in their crucial battle . . . an occasion which marked the fifth time in the last 11 games the Indians have lost by the margin of points-after-touchdowns.

Against the Trojans, though, Stanford finally overcame its conversion difficulties with five perfect placements by three different men—two each by Al (Hulu) Harrington and Jack Taylor, and one by Armand DeWeese.

Brawling broke out between the two teams in the closing seconds of play and Troy's Walt Gurasich and Stanford's Don Dawson were ejected from the game even though observers agreed that neither one touched off the incident. Cooler heads quickly broke up the brief flareup.

Sports Merry-Go-Round

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

"Hey," said a little fellow, introduced to me Saturday on the Lakewood Golf Course as a gentleman from Bellingham, Wash., "why don't you write a piece in your paper about all the noise around this course? It's terrible."

"Well, it so happens," I replied, "that a man who pounds the typewriter for United Press, name of Hal Wood, beat me to the punch. He wrote this has to be the noisiest golf course of all time.

"I'm not saying I agree with him, though," I continued. "I am not a fanatic on this sport, but this doesn't necessarily seem to me the noisiest course on which I've ever set forth."

At that precise moment, an Air Force cargo plane, with every motor wide open, skimmed just inches above the trees on the course as it was coming in for a landing at Long Beach Airport.

Not three minutes later, two motorcycles racing on Carson St. set up such a roar that golfer Eric Monti, preparing to putt, straightened up and shook all over.

And not five minutes after that, someone at the Douglas Aircraft Plant right across the street decided to test every jet engine in the joint. This last jam session sounded like Omaha Beach on D-Day.

"Say," commented the Guy from Bellingham with a knowing wink, "I'd sure like to visit that course you think is noisier than this one."

Oh, well, what other course has a highway running through its center, yet still can host a major tournament? Or that one, Bellingham, old boy!

THERE WAS a rumor circulating Saturday that some big money has shown in Los Angeles betting marts on the Rams over the 49ers today. That might seem strange with the Rams' 2-4 record and San Francisco's 5-1 mark, but one bookmaker explains it thusly:

"In both betting and football circles, the Rams are regarded as the second best team in the Western Division, next to the Chicago Bears — REGARDLESS OF PRESENT STANDINGS. With so much adverse news about the Rams in the papers lately, we just figger they're going to rack San Francisco up good. They're due, you know."

With four Ram losses in the last five games, I must subscribe to that statement.

IF OREGON UNIVERSITY football followers have any stomachs left today, they're the hardiest souls in the Western U. S. The Ducks nipped Stanford, 27-26, at Palo Alto last weekend in a game decided only in the final 20 seconds. The same lads barely missed tying Washington in the final 12 seconds Saturday in another cliff-hanger. This is one team that will go into the Rose Bowl without the excuse of not being battle-tested.

Incidentally, Oregon QB Jack Crabtree must know how Rams passers Norm Van Brocklin and Bill Wade feel now. The kid from Lakewood was rushed faster Saturday than a Powers model at a fraternity dance.

THE READERS can (and do) write . . .

"I am glad to tell you that I won $20 betting on Halimi. I bet on the Frenchman after I saw a prediction in your paper touting Macias to win. I knew that put the curse on the Mexican and he was a cinch to lose. Please keep up the good work. I appreciate it." (signed) Jimmy Murray (whose letter had a Long Beach postmark, but was in an American Trailways envelope with a Lincoln, Nebr., address).

(You must have been reading a Lincoln, Nebr., paper, Jamies. I tabbed Halimi. Don't deprive me of a fleeting moment of glory.)

"Say, what goes? Your column said, 'How can the Rams be favored against 49ers?' Then, low and beholded, in the football writers' selections, who is there with 'Rams by 3'—but Hank Hollingworth. Let's make up your mind." (signed) The Ram Backers, 1347 American Ave.

(The odds may have stunned me, but not enough to let a good thing get away.)

"Congratulations. You are a real sportsman. Managed to drive 147 miles in two hours over busy highways and live. Thanks to irresponsible people like you, I hesitate to take my wife and three children on weekend trips." (signed) Arthur H. Brayfield, 5282 The Toledo.

(So do I. But if I had not driven at that speed, I would have been cited as a traffic hazard. Or haven't you visited our lovely freeways lately?)

"You wrote that one reason why the Ram's Bill Wade was thrown for repeated losses was because he lacked long range vision. From where I sit, it seems he lacked short range blocking. They say Wade will develop into a better QB when he learns to stay within the 'cup.' My thoughts are that the only benefit he would receive would be less loss of yardage." (signed) Newchy Mignone, 6063 Hershot Ave.

"I was shocked at your statement that 90 per cent of spectators who saw Gavilan-Ortega fight went to see Ortega. How wrong can you get? Ninety per cent—including me—were there to see Gavilin." (signed) Harry Eagles, 210 E. Third St.

(Harry, whenever a Mexican boy fights in Los Angeles, 90 per cent of the turnout is there to see that boy. Strange is it might seem, you and I were in the minority that night.)

"You're getting more like Bob Kelley every day. Your favorite characters lately seem to be Tommy Bolt and Pat Abern. You three deserve each other." (signed) Ralph Chrisdaj, Bellflower.

(That's a heckuva thing to say about Bolt, pal.)

SAN DIEGO—Long Beach City College completely outplayed Metropolitan Conference leader San Diego JC in the first and fourth quarters here Saturday night but was a sad sack outfit in the interval and lost the important contest, 32-20.

A crowd of 4,000, including 500 Long Beach fans, witnessed the game at Balboa Stadium.

The win was the fifth straight without loss in Metro play for the Knights. The defeat evened Long Beach's conference record at 2-2-1.

The second and third quarters were a tragedy of Long Beach errors as the Knights scored all five of their touchdowns. For their 32 points, the Border Boys put together only one sustained drive.

* * * *

THERE WERE extenuating circumstances, but the Vikings helped the Knights move to within one game of the conference title with six fumbles, four of which set up San Diego touchdowns.

However, and to their credit, the Norse did not quit even when on the short end of a 32-7 score. They pushed over two touchdowns in the final quarter and both scores came at the end of good sized drives and with several San Diego first stringers still in the game.

Both teams were troubled by the officiating, but the Vikes were hardest hit. A 53-yard, fourth quarter scoring pass from Mel Montalbo to Vic Gausepohl was nullified by a penalty as were four other long gainers, the longest of which were 20 yarders by halfbacks Henry Andrews and Mickey Flynn.

* * * *

THE OFFICIATING reached the height of the ridiculous when, after its second touchdown, Long Beach tried an onside kick which appeared to be knocked out of bounds by a Viking at the San Diego 39. However, the officials could not agree on a ruling and after a five minute conference democratically settled for another kickoff.

Here, briefly, is a resume of the scoring:

LBCC 7, San Diego 0: A 22-yard pass play from John McDonald to end Bill Tomasic and runs of 22 and 18 yards by Flynn set up the Vikings' first quarter touchdown. Ken Ruhlen sliced two yards off tackle for the score with 2:51 remaining in the period. Danny Wasnick added the conversion.

San Diego 7, LBCC 7: The Knights tied it up with 12:45 left in the first half, marching 60 yards to a touchdown. Fullback Benny Martin went over from one yard out. Richard Morris added the conversion.

San Diego 13, LBCC 7: San Diego recovered a fumble on the first play from scrimmage following the ensuing kickoff and went 30 yards in five plays. Key play was a pass good for 13 yards from quarterback Jerry Sange to end Leonard Burnett. Halfback Dave Grayson scored two plays later from one foot out.

San Diego 19, LBCC 7: An old Viking bad habit, a poor pass from center, set up the third San Diego touchdown. Tomasic fumbled the pass while standing on the Viking goal line and even though he ran it out 27 yards, the Knights were in possession. Grayson's five yard slant off the right side for the touchdown came with 2:49 left in the first half.

San Diego 26, LBCC 7: A San Diego punt slid off the finger tips of Ruhlen and was recovered by Burnett on the Long Beach 13. Halfback Allee Nowden made the touchdown in two cracks at the Viking line.

San Diego 32, LBCC 7: Another Viking fumble, this one on the Long Beach one, made the fifth San Diego touchdown an easy one. Morris ran two yards over the middle for the touchdown with 10:55 still remaining in the third quarter.

San Diego 32, LBCC 13: Led by halfbacks Flynn, Vic Gausepohl and Andrews, the Vikes marched 67 yards to score with 8:14 remaining in the fourth quarter. Little Eddie Vergara went the final four yards.

San Diego 32, LBCC 20: Long Beach marched 52 yards for the final score of the game with Gausepohl picking up 39 of that total. He raced six yards over tackle for the touchdown with 1:59 left in the game.

Hero's Role to Wallen

SPOKANE (Special) — UCLA's brilliant end, Dick Wallen, ruined Washington State as an alert defender and great pass catcher Saturday to bring the Bruins from behind for a 19-13 Pacific Coast Conference victory in 36-degree weather.

The favored Uclans came from behind with two last period touchdowns, the winner with only 40 seconds remaining.

The Bruins stopped Washington State's feared passing attack cold, intercepting five of them. Washington State, on the other hand, showed a surprisingly tough ground game which at times threatened to break the game wide open.

* * * *

WALLEN PROVIDED the spark for the Bruins. He intercepted two passes and recovered a fumbled Washington State punt. Each break was converted into a touchdown.

His first interception came early in the first period. He hauled in quarterback Bob Newman's pass on the WSC 26 and returned it to the 10. Tailback Don Long scored on the next play.

Wallen intercepted again in the fourth period on the State 34. He took a 26-yard pass from Long to the two and Long scored on the next play. Fullback Don Duncan converted to tie it at 13-13.

Moments later, Wallen recovered a fumbled punt on the Washington State 40. The Bruins ground out yardage in small chunks and fullback Ray Smith plunged from inches out to score the clincher.

* * * *

THREE PLAYS had gained only two yards and on fourth down Chuck Kendall hit the weak side for a first down—by inches—one foot from the goal line.

UCLA coach Red Sanders, who got the 100th victory of his 15-year coaching career, was a picture of depression when the Bruins, trailing 13-6, blew a chance to tie in the third period as Smith fumbled on the four.

The Cougars had rebounded with two quick touchdowns after giving up UCLA's first score. The first drive went 56 yards in 10 plays with Newman plunging for the score.

State started another drive from its own 25 which ended with quarterback Bunny Aldrich passing six yards to end Jack Fanning. The touchdown was set up by another Aldrich-Fanning aerial for 36 yards. Aldrich's conversion put WSC in front, 13-6, at the half.

* * * *

BRILLIANT IN defeat was fullback Dick Windham, a demon on defense and a consistent ground gainer on offense. Both teams were plagued by fumbles during apparent scoring drives.

Newman, the nation's total offense leader and second-ranked passer, completed only six of 15 aerials for 59 yards. Four of them were intercepted. He lost 15 yards rushing.

CROW, OSBORNE STAR

Aggies Rock SMU for Eighth in Row

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UP) — Big John Crow and smooth Roddy Osborne led Texas A&M, the nation's top-ranked team, to a 19-6 victory Saturday night over Southern Methodist before 28,000 fans in Kyle Field.

Crow and Osborne scored one touchdown each as the Cadets maintained their Southwest Conference leadership and their unbeaten streak in eight games.

The 210-pound Crow, a candidate for all-America honors, scored the Aggies' second touchdown to break a 6-6 tie and led ground-gainers with 89 yards. He intercepted a pass on the final play of the game.

The Cadets scored their final marker with only 40 seconds left when substitute fullback Gordon LeBoeuf smashed over from the two and Crow converted.

* * * *

Southern Methodist, behind the quarterbacking of sophomore Don Meredith, moved 71 yards to tie the score early in the second period. Meredith scored on a one-yard plunge.

Crow sparked A&M's game-winning drive late in the third period. The march went 65 yards, and Crow smashed over right tackle for the final two.

GAME BALL PRESENTED TO SANDERS

The win was Sander's 100th of his 15-year coaching career.

"Tommy Prothro of Oregon State told me WSC was the finest team the Beavers had met all year, and he obviously was not far wrong," Sanders said. "They have the finest group of running backs we've faced all year."

He singled out end Dick Wallen and backs Bill Mason and Phil Parslow for their outstanding work.

WSC coach Jim Sutherland conceded his star quarterback, Bob Newman, was off. "He had a bad day—a real bad day."

KO IN EIGHTH

Belma Stops Dorando

Undefeated Frankie Belma, 145, Wilmington, scored a knockout over willing Joey Dorando, 146, North Hollywood, Saturday night in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-rounder at Hollywood Legion Stadium.

Referee Tommy Hart stopped the contest because of severe cuts near both of Dorando's eyes, but said he was ruling it a knockout because of the "fearful beating Dorando was taking."

It was Belma's ninth win against one draw.

COP Topples Spartans, 21-6

SAN JOSE (UP) — Heavily-favored College of the Pacific had to fight every inch of the way Saturday night to down traditional rival San Jose State, 21-6, before a homecoming crowd of 14,500 in the 33rd renewal of their football seriess.

Pacific scored once in each of the final three periods — twice on the ground and once in the air. San Jose tallied in the fourth, mainly on the passing of quarterback Dick Vermiel who accounted for 151 yards passing.

Tarheels Whip South Carolina 28-6

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—North Carolina's alert Tarheels turned three recovered fumbles and a bad punt into touchdowns to down South Carolina 28-6 Saturday before a crowd of 22,000 and a regional television audience.

Coach Jim Tatum's Tarheels struck for two touchdowns in the second period and one each in the third and fourth to hand Gamecock coach Warren Giese his worst defeat since going to South Carolina.

Eagles Triumph

BOSTON (UP) — Fullback Dick Seagar scored twice as Temple beaten Boston College crushed Boston University a second period safety Saturday and then rolled to a 27-2 victory for its sixth straight.

Auburn Line Stops Rugged Maroons, 15-7

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Auburn's murderous line brought the third-ranked Tigers a 15-7 victory over highly rated Mississippi State Saturday after the victors overcame the shock of a 57-yard scoring pass.

A Tom Miller to Ned Brooks pass put the winners behind 7-0 at halftime.

But with Tommy Lorino doing most of the gaining, the Tigers took the second half kickoff in for the tying score, pushed State back to its end zone and got a safety, and then drove 10 in three plays for another touchdown after recovering a fumble.

Billy Aikins, Auburn fullback, made both touchdowns as 42,000 fans saw the Tigers win their seventh game of this season and their 11th in succession.

State was held to 80 yards rushing and 57 passing, leaving the Tiger defensive record for the season unchanged at 136.7 per game, lowest in the nation.

Mississippi State	0	7	0	0	7
Auburn	0	0	7	8	15

Mississippi State scoring: Touchdown—Brooks (57, pass-run from Miller). Conversion—Tribble.

Auburn scoring: Touchdowns—Aikins 2 (2, plunge; 3, plunge). Safety—Schoenbrock. Mississippi State (tackled in end zone by Whatley). Conversion—Aikins.

'BRIBE OFFER' AMUSES REF

Referee Mushy Callahan only chuckled Saturday when told that a Paris sports paper charged he was offered $20,000 to vote for Raul (Raton) Macias in Wednesday's bantamweight championship fight with French-Algerian Alphonse Halimi.

"Are they kidding? It's just too silly . . . ridiculous," Callahan said. "I'm going golfing . . . they can't be serious."

Callahan was roundly criticized for his 144-141 vote favoring Macias.

End Husker Jinx

AMES, Iowa (UP)—Iowa State punctured an 11-year jinx and defeated Nebraska, 13-0, Saturday by mounting two long scoring drives against the luckless Cornhuskers before 10,145 fans.

Francis Ready for Stanford

BERKELEY (UP) — Coach Tommy Prothro of Oregon State's Beavers said Saturday that tailback Joe Francis will be ready to play for them again next week against Stanford.

The Honolulu star listened to Saturday's 21-19 victory over California from a sick bed in a San Francisco hotel nursing a fever of 102 degrees.

"But Francis will be ready next week," Prothro said. "He's just got the two-day flu."

PENN WHIPS YALE FOR SEBO, 33-20

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Pennsylvania, with the dismissal of Coach Steve Sebo in the balance, whipped itself together Saturday to roar back from a two-touchdown deficit and overwhelm Yale, 33-20, in a thunderous Ivy League upset.

After Yale scored twice in the first eight minutes the Quakers were alert opportunists who turned an interception and three Yale fumbles into four scores.

Penn players, scoring their first win in seven games, tossed Sebo on their shoulders and carried him from the field.

Princeton Rallies to Trip Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UP) — Second-string halfback Tom Morris rallied a shocked Princeton team to a pair of fourth period touchdowns on a 10-yard pass and a 39-yard scamp to give the favored Tigers a 28-20 victory over Harvard Saturday in their 50th annual Ivy League game.

Cincinnati Hammers Hapless Hoosiers

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Barry Maroney, a 181-pound halfback with an infuriating change of pace, showed Cincinnati's Bearcats the way to a 21-0 victory over Indiana Saturday.

Cincinnati held Indiana to five first downs—two on penalties—while racking up 19.

Indiana, so riddled by flu and injuries that it had only one healthy quarterback, never got inside the Cincinnati 32.

PCC CHIEFS IN CRUCIAL CONFERENCE

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — University presidents who wield the big stick in the battered Pacific Coast Conference will meet today at a hush-hush session which conceivably could put the loop on the skids for good.

The parley was called so that other member schools can study a five-point plan adopted by Cal and UCLA last June.

This change in policy calls for a stricter athletic code than espoused by the PCC but also virtually serves notice on the conference that the Bears and Bruins will schedule whomever they please after the current football season.

Fired-Up Huskies Hand Webfoots 13-6 Defeat

PORTLAND (UP)—Washington's fired-up Huskies shook Oregon's Webfoots out of their Rose Bowl dreams with a 13-6 football upset Saturday before 30,010 fans and a regional television audience.

It was the first loss for Oregon in six Pacific Coast Conference games. But Oregon, despite the defeat, remained in first place in the PCC and can still go to Pasadena by beating Southern California or Oregon State in its final two games.

Washington, winner of only one game until Saturday, turned an intercepted pass into its first touchdown and then marched 67 yards in the final quarter for the clincher.

Oregon, trying to gain its first Rose Bowl trip in 38 years but plagued by injuries, came alive in the second half and appeared on its way to possible victory.

Trailing 7-0, the Webfoots scored two minutes into the second half on a 75-yard pass play from quarterback Jack Crabtree to end Pete Welch, who took the ball on the Washington 43 and raced over. But fullback Jimmy Jones, one of many Washington heroes, broke through to block Jack Morris' extra point try.

* * * *

THE WEBFOOTS then came back again and drove to the Washington 16 but were held. In the final minutes Oregon drove 76 yards to the Huskies 16 but an intercepted pass by Duane Lowell spoiled Oregon's last hope on the final play of the game.

The first Washington touchdown came directly as a result of spirited defensive play. End Bruce Claridge broke through to knock Charley Tourville's pass into the air and center Marv Bergman made a leaping interception on the Oregon 26. Quarterback Bobby Dunn went off right tackle from three yards out for the touchdown and then converted.

The Huskies, who had beaten only defending PCC champ Oregon State in a dismal season, went 67 yards on the ground in 13 plays for the final score in the fourth period with quarterback Al Ferguson scoring from the three.

* * * *

JIM SHANLEY, Oregon's great halfback, became the Webfoots leading rusher of all time. Shanley carried the ball 10 times for 42 yards to reach a total of 1740, passing George Bell's 1947-48-49 mark of 1,729 yards.

"Down through the years, golf's long hitters have always succeeded in capturing the fancy of the sporting public.

For instance, Jimmy Thomson, one of the first of the game's distinguished "sluggers," never will make the links hall of fame on his overall golf game . . . but fans still talk of his long hitting.

And although Sam Snead has one of the finest swings of all-time, he's "Slammin' Sammy" to the golf world. The public knows him best for his long driving.

The two top "power" golfers in the game today are currently playing in the Long Beach Open. They are George Bayer and Mike Souchak.

And speaking of these two at this time of the year makes it seem a little more fitting in that both are ex-football stars.

Bayer, the current "long ball" king of the golf world, played at the University of Washington in the late 1940's, and spent a half-season with the Washington Redskins in 1950. The 6-5, 240-pounder was a tackle.

Souchak, of course, was captain of the Duke University Blue Devils in the early 1950's, playing end and also handling the placekicking chores.

STRANGELY ENOUGH, THE TWO SLUGGERS have reached a parting of the ways in their approach to golf.

While Bayer intends to keep belting away in defense of his "long ball" title . . . Souchak has cut down his drives in almost completely renovating his game.

By shortening his drives with a controlled swing, Souchak feels he is improving his general game "which should put me up with the front runners more consistently," he points out. "I've had a few hot streaks, of course, but too many times when I've been out to knock the cover off the ball, I haven't scored well enough to be among the leaders.

"I'm quite a bit stronger physically than a majority of the other playing pros and in particular have more powerful wrists. This allows me to be a long hitter without any particular strain and I've found now that I can still be quite a bit longer than most of the others while using a controlled swing.

"There's no percentage in playing out of the 'bushes' as a result of long scattered drives. A smooth coordinated overall game is what pays off."

He still averages around 270 to 275 yards with his "controlled drives." Mike used to hammer them out to around the 360 to 370 mark on his better wallops.

WITH SOUCHAK BOWING OUT of the slugging department, Bayer has the field pretty much to himself now. Not even Snead can come close to him.

Bayer, on the other hand, intends to continue emphasizing his long driving for two purposes.

For one thing, unlike most long hitters who spray their drives all over the lot, Bayer is unusually "straight" and also uses his power to better advantage than most other long drivers. He needs the extra distance off the tee to get in close enough to the green to go for birdies because his iron game fails to measure up to the standard usually found among the top "name" pros.

Secondly, his "power golf" has made him a gallery favorite wherever he plays . . . and which has proved a most lucrative item in regard to exhibitions, etc.

Bayer is the first to admit that he would be just another "starting time" on the pro circuit if he didn't have the reputation for being the game's longest hitter.

Fans want to see him belt one like he did in 1953 at Las Vegas when he set the all-time distance record with an incredible measured drive of 420 yards. He doesn't hit 'em like that every time, of course, but he manages to wallop 'em consistently around 350 yards.

BAYER IS ONE of the few top golfers who quit the game for a long spell and then came back to meet with success on the fairways. George was away from golf for 10 years while in school.

He took up golf at the age of seven in his native Seattle and played steadily until he was 16 when football, basketball and baseball in his school captured his main interest.

After playing varsity football for Washington in 1947-48-49, he was drafted and signed by the Washington Redskins in 1950, but left the squad in mid-season.

Two car salesmen and Bob Hope figure prominently in Bayer's triumphant return to golf.

After he left the Redskins, he went to work selling cars in Los Angeles and finally played his first game of golf in 10 years early in 1951 when he and two fellow salesmen each put up $10 to settle who was the best golfer.

Despite his long absence from golf, Bayer "murdered" the two salesmen. Even then he could make a golf ball "whimper."

After that he began playing regularly again. He began thinking seriously of golf as a career in 1953 and began hitting the big amateur tournaments in the West. Finally, Hope saw him in action in a tournament at Lake Tahoe. Hope couldn't believe a golf ball could be hit as far as Bayer was hammering 'em out.

LATER ON, BAYER was leading the field in another tournament by four strokes going into the final 18 holes when he received a telephone call from Hope with an invitation to play in the Celebrity Tournament in Washington, D. C.

Bayer withdrew from the tournament which he had virtually sewed up and went to Washington where he was an immediate hit with galleryites. A few months later, in January of 1954, he turned professional.

This has been a big year for Bayer. He won his first major tournament last summer when he captured the Canadian Open and has finished second in four other open events.

On top of this, he has landed a lush new job as pro at the new Belbrook Country Club currently being built in Dallas, Texas. The official announcement will be made next week.

The future looks bright for the undisputed "king of the drivers!"

BEARS' LINE TOUGH

Longhorns, Baylor Fight to 7-7 Tie

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Baylor quarterback Doyle Traylor engineered a 78-yard fourth quarter scoring march to give the Bears a 7-7 tie with favored Texas Saturday.

Larry Hickman plunged over from the one for Baylor's score and Junior Beall kicked the PAT.

Texas quarterback Walt Fondren, who fumbled away the ball twice inside the Baylor three yard line, tossed to halfback George Blanch for a 32-yard scoring play in the third period. The conversion try was bobbled, but Fondren picked it up and scooted end for the extra point.

Baylor's tough line allowed the frustrated Steers only 28 yards but Fondren's passes kept the Longhorns in a constantly threatening position.

The Longhorns had three chances to score in the first half inside the 10 but fumbles and the Bears' alert defense kept the scoreboard clear at the half.

Beavers Squeeze by Bears

BERKELEY (AP) — Oregon State breezed away to a 21-0 halftime lead Saturday then had to fight for its life to squeeze out a 21-19 victory over the revitalized California Bears.

With California trailing 21-13 and 43 seconds to play, Joe Kapp passed to halfback Jack Hart from 22 yards out to give the Bears their third touchdown of the second half. But as had been the case in their first tally, the attempted point after touchdown was blocked.

Right guard Jim Brackins stormed through to block California's first conversion attempt in the third period and center Buzz Randall stopped the final PAT attempt.

* * * *

HERO FOR Oregon State was tailback Larry Sanchez who took over for Joe Francis after the Honolulu hotshot came down with the flu. Sanchez passed for two touchdowns, one of them a 16-yarder to end Bob De Grant and the other a 46-yard toss to wingback Earnel Durden.

Durden scored the Beavers' second touchdown early in the second period on a six-yard reverse play.

Kapp passed for two Bear touchdowns—the first coming on a 33-yarder to end Mike White early in the third period which preceded his 22-yard toss to Hart as time ran out.

In between these tosses the rugged Bear quarterback smashed over from the one yard line for touchdown early in the final period to climax a 52-yard march.

* * * *

A POSSIBLE fourth Cal touchdown was halted in the fourth quarter before the final score when fullback Nub Beamer of Oregon State intercepted a Kapp pass on the 10 right out of White's hands.

MSU Romps Over Notre Dame, 34-6

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UP)—Michigan State overcame its own mistakes and made the most of Notre Dame's Saturday to swamp the Irish, 34-6, before 75,391 chilled fans at Spartan Stadium.

The fourth-ranked Spartans outrushed Notre Dame by 221 yards as they scored five times in the final three periods after the first period was scoreless.

Michigan State stayed on the ground all the way as it marched 46 yards for the first score of the game in the second period. Fullback Bob Bercich and halfback Art Johnson, both second-stringers, ripped off most of the yardage and it took the Spartans only six plays to score with Johnson going the final 11 yards.

Quarterback Jim Ninowski mixed a pair of passes in a scoring drive which started after the second half kickoff. But again Michigan State's running attack was chiefly responsible for the touchdown.

Walt Kowalczyk carried over from one foot out to climax the 57-yard drive.

After that it was a simple task for the Spartans. They scored two more touchdowns before the period ended and recovered a fumble at the Notre Dame 19 on the last play of the period to set the stage for their final score.

Notre Dame averted a shutout in the closing minutes when quarterback Bob Williams took to the air in a 82-yard march and finally plunged a foot to score after his aerials had set up the score.

Aroused Hawkeyes Trounce Minnesota

IOWA CITY (AP)—Aroused, massive Iowa, tossing in brilliant versatility to go with its power, fired a record-breaking scoring salvo at Minnesota Saturday for a 44-20 Big Ten football victory.

Undefeated Iowa, nursing a slow burn all week over criticism that it "quit" in settling for a 21-21 tie with Michigan, burst into full flame against the Gophers with 23 points in the second quarter for a 30-7 lead.

The victory was the fourth in the conference for Iowa's defending champions. A triumph next weekend over Ohio State, present leader with a 5-0 mark, would give Iowa its second straight undisputed championship.

It was a game of sensational performance, with the longest touchdown run coming on Bill Happell's 48-yard sprint late in the third period for Iowa's final touchdown. Mike Hagler had a 59-yard dash to the Minnesota 19 in the fourth quarter but Iowa didn't score.

* * * *

HAWKEYE quarterback Randy Duncan and Jim Gibbons, the big end, teamed up for spectacular aerial stunts. Gibbons caught nine passes, tying the Iowa record, and accounted for 164 yards—a new high.

Gibbons made a sparkling catch on the eight in the second period and stepped over for the touchdown. The play covered 52 yards. He had opened the scoring in the first period by snaring a five-yard toss.

47TH STRAIGHT WIN

Oklahoma Ruins Missouri, 39-14

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UP) — The Oklahoma Sooners, using sophomore halfback Bobby Boyd as their star, won the Big Eight Conference berth in the Orange Bowl Saturday by downing Missouri, 39-14. The Sooners played brilliant but not especially powerful football.

It was Oklahoma's 47th straight win. Boyd picked up several crucial first downs, set up the first touchdown and scored the second himself.

Missouri's star also was a sophomore, quarterback Phil Snowden, who ran and passed the Tigers to their first touchdown. Snowden scored it from inside the one. Missouri got its second touchdown after an Oklahoma fumble with Hank Kuhlmann going 33 yards for the six-pointer.

* * * *

OKLAHOMA'S first touchdown was scored by Dick Carpenter on a 19-yard double reverse. Boyd scored the second from the four, climaxing a 49-yard drive. The third came after Carpenter intercepted a pass thrown by Snowden and was scored by halfback David Baker from the one.

The Sooners then marched from their 16 and Carl Dodd scored from the two. An intercepted pass set up another tally with Clendon Thomas scoring from the two. Third team halfback Prentice Gatt scored another in the waning minutes from the three.

Middies, Duke Tie 3rd Time

BALTIMORE (AP)—Navy and Duke fought to a 6-6 football tie Saturday, their third straight deadlock in three years.

Duke made a mighty effort to win in the closing minutes and came within two yards of the Navy goal, only to have a penalty halt the drive.

Duke, biding its time while Navy was wearing itself out running all over the field except the goal, made its big move with eight minutes left.

* * * *

LED BY 166-POUND halfback George Dutrow, the Blue Devils rammed from their 47 to the Navy 14. Quarterback Bob Brodhead spotted end Dave Hurm and threw to him on the Navy 2.

But Duke was caught clipping and moved back to the Navy 34 to kill the Blue Devils.

Navy bounced back to go deep into Duke territory for the eighth time and got to the 27 before elapsing time forced the Middies to have tackle Bob Reifsnyder try a field goal. It was short and wide from 33 yards away.

* * * *

NAVY SCORED after ten minutes of the first quarter when quarterback Tom Forrestal hit end Wayne McKee with a 12-yard pass. Forrestal's kick was wide.

Duke tied it in the second quarter after Don Padgett intercepted on the Navy 43. Three plays later Dutrow scored on a 14-yard run. Wray Carlton, who had hit on nine of 10 previous PATs, missed.

Vols Blast Tech, Eye Bowl Berth

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Ninth-ranked Tennessee, displaying a great defense and deadly blocking, blasted Georgia Tech, 21-6, Saturday on the running of halfbacks Bobby Gordon and Bill Anderson.

A record homecoming crowd of 45,000 saw the Volunteers win their sixth straight game and put in a strong bid for a postseason bowl game.

The victory gave Tennessee a 3-1 mark in the Southeastern Conference and kept alive Vol Hopes of retaining the league title. The loss was Tech's third of the season and gave the Yellow Jackets a 3-3-1 worksheet.

After a scoreless first period, Tennessee marched to touchdowns in each of the remaining quarters. Tech's touchdown came in the last 30 seconds after end Jack Rudolph recovered Carl Smith's fumble on the Tennessee 17.

Grosscup's Arm Gives Army Scare

WEST POINT, N. Y. (AP) — Lee Grosscup, Utah's amazing passer, befuddled the Army defense Saturday, but Bob Anderson's superb running and Army's all-around strength proved a bit too much for the Redskins and the Cadets pulled out a 39-33 victory.

Grosscup's passing figured in all five Utah touchdowns and accounted for two directly.

Anderson was the big gun in the Army offense. He scored three times for a total of 13 touchdowns this season and piled up 212 yards running to move within striking distance of the Army ground-gaining record held by Glenn Davis.

Davis gained 930 yards in 1945 and Anderson now has 818 yards with two games to go.

Rice Scores on 5th Down for 13-7 Win

HOUSTON (AP)—Rice needed five plays from the one-yard line Saturday to power over a fourth quarter touchdown that broke a 7-7 tie and gave the Owls a 13-7 win over Arkansas.

With less than three minutes to play, the Owls held for down by inches to stop a Porker threat that had carried 62 yards to the seven.

Fullback Raymond Chilton scored the winning touchdown from the half-yard line. Two offsides penalties against Arkansas had moved the ball to the one and another on fourth down gave Rice its fifth crack at the Porker line.

Halfback Ronnie Stone had climaxed an 80-yard Arkansas drive early in the final period by racing around right end from the one on fourth down to give the Porkers a 7-7 tie. Rice had jumped into its 7-0 lead by scoring late in the second period on a 17-yard pass from quarterback Frank Ryan to end Gene Miller.

Coming from behind in the last two minutes of play, Greene combined two passes of 29 and 42 yards and a final eight-yard dash to win it.

Buckeyes Roll, Near Rose Bowl

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UP) — Ohio State hit Purdue with an explosive offense and five great defensive stands to crush the Boilermakers, 20-7, Saturday and stay on top of the Big Ten Conference race.

The Ohio victory, made certain by its rugged defense, moved coach Woody Hayes' team to within one game of the Rose Bowl and its third Big Ten title in four years. Ohio now must win only one of its remaining games, with Iowa and Michigan, to clinch the title.

The Buckeyes, with halfback Don Clark and fullback Bob White ripping the Purdue defenses, rolled over three first half touchdowns. Then the Bucks dug in to stop Purdue three times within the Ohio 10 in the last period.

The victory may have proved costly for Ohio as Clark, the Buckeyes' candidate for all-American honors, suffered a pulled leg muscle early in the second period and sat out the rest of the game. But before he quit he had battered Purdue with 56 yards in six carries.

Clark was the spark of Ohio's first touchdown drive, carrying five times for 47 yards and scoring on an 18-yard sprint to put Ohio in front with scarcely five minutes gone in the first period.

Wisconsin Routs 'Cats

EVANSTON, Ill. (UP) — Wisconsin's sophomore studded Badgers scored three lightning like touchdowns early in the third quarter and rolled to a 41-12 Big Ten football victory over Northwestern Saturday.

A crowd of 32,250 braved 27 degree temperatures and saw the under-manned Wildcats grab a 6-0 lead before 19-year-old substitute quarterback Dale Hackbart took over and turned the game into a rout.

Hackbart engineered the first Badger touchdown late in the second quarter when Wisconsin moved 69 yards in 11 plays. On the third play of the second half, Hackbart faked a handoff, went off tackle for a 57-yard touchdown run and the rout was on.

Illini Surprise Michigan, 20-19

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UP)—Second-string halfback L. T. Bonner ran 59 yards for one touchdown and five yards for another Saturday to lead Illinois to a 20-19 upset over Michigan and ruin what chances the Wolverines had left of going to the Rose Bowl.

Quarterback Tom Haller's success on two of three conversion attempts was the margin of victory. Illinois' Gene Churney deflected two of Jim Van Pelt's conversion tries.

The victory before 46,007 chilled fans in Memorial Stadium was Illinois' second in five Big Ten games, and the other one was an upset too, over Minnesota.

The loss gave Michigan a 2-2-1 conference mark.

Van Pelt, sidelined most of the day by a leg injury, came into the game for Michigan in the final period and passed brilliantly in a desperation effort that netted Michigan two final-period touchdowns.

Michigan was hampered by the fact that its ace ground gainer, Jim Pace, was injured early in the game and taken from the field on a stretcher.

Van Pelt completed three passes, the final one to end Chuck Teuscher on the four-yard line to set up the second Wolverine touchdown.

90,000 May Watch Rams, 49ers Tangle

By GEORGE LEDERER

Sid Gillman brings a vote of confidence from the owners and a revamped Rams lineup into the Coliseum this afternoon to try and stop the San Francisco 49ers' winning streak at five straight.

Clear skies, with only the threat of Sputniks and footballs disturbing the atmosphere, may bring a near-record crowd of about 90,000 fans, curious to see what makes Sidney run when everyone knows he should pass.

Kickoff time for the Rams' final game of their current three weeks home stand is 1:35 p.m. There is no local TV, but KMPC will carry the broadcast.

Oddsmakers are defying the 49ers' Western Division leading 5-1 record as well as the Rams' 2-4 cellar status in making the Rams luke-warm two-to-three point favorites. They have taken in account, perhaps, the fact that San Francisco is winless against the Rams in the Coliseum since 1953.

The 49ers have lost only two of 12 starts this year, counting six exhibition games. They were clobbered, 55-28, by the Rams in their pre-season meeting, then dropped the NFL opener to the Chicago Cardinals, 28-20.

* * * *

FOUR OF San Francisco's five league victories came on last-minute passes, three from Y. A. Tittle to R. C. Owens, at present the No. 1 claimant to rookie of the year honors.

It was Owens, a former Little All-America end from College of Idaho, who beat the Rams, 23-20, at Kezar Stadium to launch the 49ers' current streak.

Although covered both times, Owens outjumped Rams defenders in the end zone to take 46 and 11-yard winning tosses from Tittle.

This same combination beat the Bears, 21-17, when Owens caught a seven-yard toss on his knees in the end zone after earlier grabbing a 30-yard TD pass. Last week, with 11 seconds remaining, a Tittle-to-Owens pass of 41 yards gave the 49ers a 35-31 decision over the Lions.

Gillman regards Owens as "an absolute marvel. From what we've seen of him, I'd say step ladders would be the only certain defense against him."

Although Owens stands only 6-3, it is said he can jump as high as Bill Russell, the 6-10 basketballing Celtic. Of his 13 receptions this reason, seven have come on high lobs from Tittle. He has caught five touchdown passes, three on lobs.

Tittle, the balding veteran of 10 pro campaigns, is having his greatest year with such receivers as Owens, Clyde Conner, Hugh McElhenny and Wilson as targets. Against the Lions' stingy secondary, Tittle completed 21 out of 28 passes for 226 yards and two touchdowns last week.

* * * *

AS FOR THE RAMS, Gillman hopes a new backfield combination may be the answer to an offense that was non-existent against the Bears last week. Sid is stringing with Norm Van Brocklin at quarterback, but will start Jon Arnett in place of Tommy Wilson at left half, Tank Younger for Joe Marconi at fullback and rookie Lamar Lundy for Bob Boyd at slot back.

Boyd moves to right end and Elroy Hirsch to the left flank. Hirsch will be spelled by Arnett on occasion, but Boyd may have to go it alone because Leon Clarke, the club's No. 1 receiver, has not fully recovered from a hip injury. Clarke and tackle Bob St. Clair of the 49ers are the only casualties.

Probable starters.

SWITCH TO MEDAL?

PGA Convention Begins Monday

The national convention of the Professional Golfers' Association gets under way here Monday and on the eve of the first full-scale session there were reports that the annual PGA tournament, currently decided on match play, will be switched to a 72-hole medal play event.

A spokesman for the PGA said the change would be necessary from a financial standpoint.

"We draw about $40,000 gates on the final day of the National Open," said the PGA man, "but last year we drew only $5,000 for the two-man finals of the PGA tournament. I understand the tournament lost something like $10,000."

* * * *

THE WEEK-LONG meeting, which will be attended by about 80 delegates, plus as many other professional golfers, is expected to run into some knotty problems, including these:

1.—What to do in the way of disciplinary action for members who "pop off" out of turn, or who in any other way hurt the organization.

2.—Consideration of a new way of selecting the Ryder Cup team.

The latter item has been hot copy ever since the U.S. team was whipped in England last month. Sam Snead and Jimmy Demaret blamed the U.S. loss on the fact that the best men were not on the team.

* * * *

"WE HAVE HAD a lot of ideas for a change in the selection method," said Al Houghton of Washington, D.C., chairman of the selection committee. "Some one proposed that we use the current system of selection, except that we keep two places open to add strong men who did not make the official list. However, I doubt that such a proposal would win approval of the members in a vote."

The convention is expected to elect Harold Sargent, Atlanta, as its new president.

A report also will show that PGA members in 1958 will play for $1,400,000 in official and unofficial prize money.

Kansas Edges State in Final Minute

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UP) — Third string quarterback Duane Morris hit Homer Floyd with a 40-yard touchdown pass in the final 18 seconds Saturday to give Kansas a 13-7 victory over Kansas State.

Morris, a 175-pound sophomore, earlier had flipped a two-handed basketball pass to fullback Don Feller for a 73-yard touchdown which tied the score in the third period.

Kansas	0	0	7	6—13
K-State	0	7	0	0—7

Kansas scoring: Touchdowns, Feller (73, pass from Morris), Floyd (40, pass from Morris). Conversions: Traylor.

Kansas State scoring: Touchdowns, Tiro (3, run). Conversions: Zaunik.

Oklahoma State Routs Wyoming, 39-6

STILLWATER (UP) — Oklahoma State, fielding two well-balanced teams under twin-sophomore quarterbacks, ran up its highest score of a successful season Saturday to hand Wyoming a 39-6 defeat, its worst in 11 years.

Quarterback David Cross's alternate team accounted for four scores to show it had a ground gain slightly superior to the pass-prone first unit, under quarterback Dick Soergel.

Oklahoma State	0	19	6	14—39
Wyoming	0	0	0	6—6

Oklahoma State scoring: Touchdowns, Banfield (17, pass from Wiggins); Soergel (2, plunge); Wiggins (40, run); Rundle 2 (7, run, and 14, run); Wagoner (3, run). Conversions, Jaech 3.

Wyoming scoring: Touchdowns, Domzalski (43, pass from Wilkinson).

Dartmouth Edges Columbia

NEW YORK (UP)—Unbeaten but once-tied Dartmouth favored by 19 points, squeezed out a first-period touchdown on a six-yard "drive" after a fumble recovery Saturday and made it stand up for an unimpressive 7-0 victory over fired-up Columbia.

Quarterback Dave Bradley, who sneaked over for the touchdown from the one after six minutes of play, had one 55-yard touchdown pass play called back because of a penalty and early in the fourth period Dartmouth had a first down on Columbia's five but could not score.

Caliente Bids Record $150,000 for 'Dream Race'

A record $150,000 winner-take-all match race among Gallant Man, Round Table and Bold Ruler was proposed late Saturday by Caliente race track director John Alessio. Distance would be a mile and a quarter at a date agreed on by the horses' owners.

Alessio said his earlier proposal of a $100,000 match race between Round Table and Gallant Man was withdrawn because they were beaten at Garden State in the mud Saturday.

"If Gallant Man and Round Table had finished one-two in the Trenton Handicap, we still would have stood by our original offer of the $100,000 match race," Alessio said. "However, Bold Ruler's victory has complicated the picture. Official notification of the new offer is being sent to each of the owners.

1st Pacing Heat to Diamond Hal

(Compiled from UP and AP)

Bold Ruler, the speed horse everyone said couldn't run for distance, laid a strong claim to the three-year-old thoroughbred championship Saturday with a front running victory in the $82,350 Trenton Handicap. He soundly whipped his chief rivals for the title, Gallant Man and Round Table.

And at Hollywood Park, Diamond Hal won the first leg of the $75,000 American Racing Classic.

The Wheatley Stable's horse, owned by Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps and trained by the venerable Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, took the lead at the start of the mile and a quarter three horse race and never was headed. Under a tremendous ride by the veteran Eddie Arcaro, Bold Ruler raced to an eight-length lead at the three quarter pole.

It was here that the crowd of 39,077, who jammed Garden State Park on a brisk, cold afternoon, expected to see the big son of Nashrullah fade. They watched the two other great champions, Travis Kerr's Round Table and Ralph Lowe's Gallant Man, begin to make their move.

* * * *

BUT BOLD RULER, winner of the Preakness Stakes and 10 of 15 races this year, was not a quitter Saturday, distance or no distance. His lead was cut to 3½ lengths by Gallant Man with a quarter of a mile to go. Arcaro, who never laid a whip on his mount, called on him to meet the challenge and he did, holding his ground as Gallant Man, ridden by Willie Shoemaker, flashed through the stretch in strong pursuit.

Bold Ruler, carrying 122 pounds to 124 for his rivals ate up ground as he hugged the rail and sped across the finish line in the race of the year, a 2¼ length victor. Gallant Man was second, eight lengths ahead of the fading California champion. Round Table, who had his winning streak of 11 straight snapped.

Bold Ruler returned $5.20 and $2.40. Gallant Man paid $2.60 to place. There was no show wagering.

* * * *

LITTLE JOE O'Brien drove Diamond Hal to a stirring victory in annexing the first heat of the pacing classic at Hollywood Park. O'Brien brought the six-year-old Hal Dale stallion through the stretch to wear down a couple of longshots at the wire.

Diamond Hal was kept tucked in for three-quarters of a mile while four or five others battled fiercely for the lead despite a suicidal early pace. Once he found racing room after moving off the rail in the drive it was all over as he picked up Ozark Chief in the final strides to win by a half-length in 1:59 4/5. Frisco Creed was third as favored Dottie's Pick and strongly regarded Adios Harry faded.

Diamond Hal paid $5.90, $4.30 and $3.50, Ozark Chief $41.10 and $19.60 and Frisco Creed $13.70.

Battle Dance won the San Francisco Mile at Golden Gate in 1:55 1/5, nodding North End and Hi Pardner. He paid $4, $3.20 and $2.30 as the heavy favorite.

mitted after the round, "and I had to make it."

The young Oklahoman then recounted a disastrous experience in the recent $40,000 Dallas Open to point up his determination.

"I shot 67 and 66 the first two rounds to tie for third place with Middlecoff. So they paired me with Snead, who had a 60 the day before, and I got trampled on by 11,000 Snead followers. I ended with an 85 that day and finished out of the money."

BRADLEY'S 67 featured a back nine of 32. He had five birdies, all on putts of less than six feet. Of the 68s, Conrad came through with a 10-foot birdie putt on the 18th; Monti had seven straight one-putt greens from the second through eighth holes, and Oliver birdied four of the last five holes.

Littler played the front nine in two under par with birdies on the tough second and easy seventh holes—the former on a four-foot putt after a great 3-iron shot sliced around a tree, the latter on a 12-footer. But his putter turned fickle on the back nine and he missed several birdie tries and a three-footer to bogey the 13th.

BOB TOSKI, who played with Littler before a huge gallery, made four birds on the back nine to finish with a 72. George Bayer, who had a 72 with a ball out-of-bounds on the 10th hole, hit a 5-iron second shot two feet from the pin on the 18th hole but missed the eagle putt.

Pacing the amateurs with a 73 Saturday for 144 was young Bob Boughner of Downey. He holds a one-stroke edge over Jim Ferrie and Buck Bailey, who had 72s, and Pinky Stevenson, who tanked a gallery-pleasing 25-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole for a 74.

Both Ferrie and Stevenson suffered unusual misfortunes—the Virginia Country Club veteran three-putting four straight greens; the Recreation Park youth watching his tee shot on the 10th hit a stake and ricochet out of bounds to lead to a triple bogey.

But their trouble couldn't compare to that of host pro Jim Ireland who had to sink a 10-foot putt for a NINE on the par-five third. Ireland hit into a trap on his second, blasted over the green into an unplayable position in weeds from where he took five swipes to get on the green!

WINS $30,747; WHO IS IT?

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico (UP)—Although a majority of longshots came in, one unidentified selector correctly picked six winners in the 5-10 handicapping contest to win $30,747.20 at Caliente Saturday. At a late hour the winner hadn't appeared to claim the jackpot.

The fortunate picker, who marked the selections in red ink, won on a $2 ticket. Nine ticket holders that correctly listed four winners received a payoff of $1,138.60 apiece.

Big Triumph; Taylor Pleased, 'Won't Quit'

By DON HARDIN

"I don't believe in running up a score on anybody," said coach Chuck Taylor after his Stanford Indians had completed a 35-7 massacre of SC Saturday afternoon in the Coliseum.

This was the largest score any Stanford team has ever run up against an SC squad, but the likeable Indian coach played his second and third teams most of the second half in backing up his statement. "I don't like high scoring games, but sometimes it's inevitable," added Taylor.

It was a satisfying victory for Stanford, which still has a slim chance of making the Rose Bowl trip, but no sooner than Taylor had settled down in the dressing room he was queried about the rumors emanating that he was tired of football and would resign at the end of the season.

"I want to say this once and for all," said Taylor, "and that'll be the end of it. I categorically deny everything that's been said or written about it and I have no intention whatsoever of resigning. Now, let's talk about football."

* * * *

TAYLOR PRAISED Stanford "as my best running team, and this is the greatest bunch of kids I've ever had, especially in desire and intenseness to win. Don (Clark, coach of SC) just doesn't have the material but his boys are real scrappers and so is Don."

Stanford's Jackie Douglas passed only 13 times against the Trojans, completing eight for 79 yards and one touchdown. Taylor, in comparing him to other Stanford quarterbacks, under the Taylor regime, rated Gary Kerkorian the best all-round, Bobby Garrett and John Brodie the best passers and Douglas, although "not the best passer, is a fine passer with great leadership qualities and good running ability."

When asked why he always has a good quarterback passer, Taylor replied: "Our system of play attracts good passing quarterbacks."

* * * *

STANFORD, WHICH has had miserable luck on extra point tries since Taylor became head coach, converted after each touchdown Saturday, but the coach, who has always been outspoken against the extra point, emphasized once more that he would like to see it abolished.

Taylor said the team practiced no more during the week than it normally does on placekicking. When told that California lost to Oregon State, 21-19, he laughed and said: "Elliott (Pete, coach of the Bears) will get the h— kicked out of him for not making the PATs."

Clark, apparently unruffled over his team's sixth loss in seven games, credited Stanford with "the best balanced, most experienced squad in the conference. They have a great and versatile offense and do everything well. They surely exploited our weaknesses with the optional rollout by Douglas, and the trap play up the middle."

Stanford used the rollout almost exclusively in the first half to run up a 21-7 lead, then used traps up the middle for big yardage in the second half after the SC defense had been spread. Chuck Shea, the Indians' fullback, and Jim Byrer, replacing injured halfback Al Harrington, were responsible for most of the big gainers.

* * * *

CLARK SAID his team was unable to cope with it because Stanford's attack was just too versatile, and the young Trojan mentor was again bemoaning the fact that he can't get a complete, healthy unit together for any one game.

"If we could get all our kids well at once we could give anybody in the PCC a good game," he said. "We have to have everybody in top physical and mental condition every week and we didn't today. It wasn't one of our best efforts. Monte Clark and Mike Henry were doubtful all week. Frank Fiorentino didn't play at all and we took a chance trying to use Rex Johnston."

Johnston, SC's top scoring threat, has been injured off and one all season and has a bad knee. He was used only briefly in the game but Clark had high praise for little Frank Buford who carried the ball 12 times for 40 yards from Johnston's regular halfback spot.

* * * *

"BUT," SAID CLARK, "when you lose Johnston you lose a helluva lot of offense."

When told that his team could possibly aid Stanford in getting the Rose Bowl nod by beating Oregon next week, Clark replied:

"I don't care who goes to the Rose Bowl as long as we can't. I'd just as soon beat one team as another. However, we should be in better shape next week for the Oregon game and, who knows."

The fight near the end of the game which resulted in two players being ejected — Walt Gurasich of SC and Don Dawson of Stanford—was treated as just one of those things by coaches and players alike, a heat-of-the-battle incident that involved several players, not just the two singled out.

No serious injuries were reported from either team. Harrington was carried off the field on a stretcher but suffered only a bump on the head. The Indians' Bob Van Galder came off with a broken nose, but other injuries were treated as rather minor.

touchdown which came at 14:47 of the first stanza when Rick McMillen barreled six yards around right end after taking a pitchout. Two deadly jump passes by Jackie Douglas accounted for 17 and 8 yards in key situations, and Douglas finally set up McMillen's scoring romp with a beautiful 10-yard spurt to the six on which three Trojans had clear shots at him . . . but missed.

The Trojans snapped right back after the kickoff with a 76-yard advance in 12 plays capped by Willie Wood's 20-yard scoring pass to end Don Voyne at 5:09 of the second quarter. Don Buford kicked the conversion.

Moments later the roof caved in on the Trojans when Wood passed from his own 17-yard line . . . and Taylor picked it off on the 37 and returned 27 yards to set the stage for Stanford's go-ahead TD. Fullback Chuck Shea picked up the 10 yards in two tries, making four at left guard, and then cutting inside right end to score from the six. Shea dropped the ball on the scoring play, but picked it up without losing a step and scored easily.

* * * *

STANFORD MOVED 71 yards in 13 plays to its third touchdown the very next time it got the ball.

Douglas mixed his plays beautifully on this march as he kept the SC defense off balance with sweeps by Shea to the left and McMillen to the right plus two jump passes down the middle that put the ball in position for halfback Roy Stephen to score from the one-yard line just 19 seconds before the half ended.

SC adjusted its defense during the intermission to meet the threat of Stanford's sweeps around end, but the Indians met this switch by blasting 57 yards through the middle of the Trojan line in six plays after the second-half kickoff for their fourth touchdown.

Shea started it off by charging 2½ yards up the middle; Douglas added five; Jim Bryer shot through the center for 16 more yards and Bryer came right back to hit the same hole for 15 more yards and the score at 2:12.

* * * *

TROJAN HALFBACK Bill Howard's fumble in the closing second of the third quarter was recovered by Douglas on the SC 29 to set up the Indian's final tally.

McMillen took a pitchout and boomed 17 yards around right end to the 12 . . . and Douglas then fired a jump pass to end Chris Burford for the score just three seconds before the period ended.

Twice the Trojans reached the Stanford 19 in the final period against the Indian reserves, being held for downs the first time and having a final last-ditch advance wiped out at that point by the final gun.

Cal Frosh Trip Touted SC, 13-9

BERKELEY (AP)—The California freshman Saturday upset a highly-touted SC frosh team, 13-9.

The Trobabes took an early 2-0 lead when Andy Segale of the Cubs centered the ball out of the end zone on a punt attempt.

Cal came back with a second quarter touchdown and conversion to hold a 7-2 halftime lead. John Blaylock went four yards after Cal recovered a fumble. Jim Ferguson converted.

The Cubs went into a 13-2 lead midway in the third quarter when right half Ernie Reese scampered 19 yards on a double reverse.

A desperate Trobabe passing barrage in the last period netted them their only touchdown. The payoff play was a three-yard Al Prokup to Luther Hayes pass. Carl Skvarna converted.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

By DON HASTINGS
(Fishin' for Don Culpepper)

The 1957 pheasant season opens next Saturday and prospects are good or better than last year in most areas. The season ends Dec. 1.

The Department of Fish and Game reports 20,050 pheasants will be stocked in Southern California and the Owens Valley prior to and during the 16-day season.

Total 1957 pheasant stocking allotments for this region are as follows:

Etiwanda cooperative public hunting area at Etiwanda, in San Bernardino County, 7,900 birds. Releases will be made each day from Nov. 16 through 25, since this co-op area will be operated for only the first 10 days of the season.

Lakeside cooperative public hunting area at Morena Lake, in San Diego County, 3,100 birds. Same release schedule as at Etiwanda.

Imperial Valley, 3,650 birds to be planted on agricultural lands throughout the valley, from Niland south to Calexico and from Westmorcland east to Holtville.

Coachella Valley, 2,350 birds to be planted on farm lands from Indio to Mecca.

Bard Valley, along the Colorado River north of Winterhaven, 500 birds to be planted on farm lands open to public hunting.

Palo Verde Valley, southwest of Blythe, 500 birds to be released both north and south of Palo Verde.

Owens Valley, 2,050 birds to be planted on habitat areas in the vicinity of Lone Pine, Manzanar, Ft. Independence, Big Pine, Bishop and Round Valley.

* * * *

QUAIL and chukar partridge hunting also get under way Saturday in Southern California and the Inyo-Mono area, with a bumper crop of quail in most Southland brushlands and the chukar population definitely up in most desert canyons, the DF&G reports. The season ends Dec. 31.

Among the best bets for quail in Southern California will be the northwestern section of Los Angeles County and the Coachella and Imperial Valleys.

OCEAN FISHING bounces from fair to excellent. Skippers have had a problem locating working fish the last two days. Yellowtail fishing was good Friday and Saturday on the Horseshoe Kelp and at Point Vincente. Barracuda fishing was fair in the Huntington Flats. All three areas were slow Saturday, except for bonito, but boats trying the Dana Point area did well on yellows and barries. Saturday's catch on boats from Pierpoint and Pacific landings and Seal Beach Pier totaled 311 yellowtail, 469 barracuda and 489 bonito.

LIONS' ANNIVERSARY EVENT

Car, Cycle Dragsters Meet

At least 250 of the hottest car and cycle drag racers in the Southwest will battle today in one of the biggest meets of the year on the 223rd St. and Alameda Ave. black-top.

It's the second anniversary drag of Lions Associated and, per custom of many strips, every acceleration record hung up today in 34 classes will go on the books.

In the hot-shot dragster class, the field reached 14 cars Saturday with entry of Jim Nelson's Chev-powered speedster from Oceanside and "re-entry" of the national top eliminator team of Mudersbach and Dillon.

The Arizonians have completely rebuilt their Olds-powered dragster which it had been thought was totaled-out in flips Sunday at Phoenix.

To expedite handling of 7,500 anticipated spectators, meet director Mickey Thompson said dual entry gates will be open from 9 a. m. throughout the day-long meet. In event of rain, Thompson said, there will be a one-week postponement.

As added inspiration in a host of awards to winners, the day's top eliminator will get the largest trophy ever awarded in drag competition —a six-foot six-inch creation of matched hardwoods and metal, which weighs nearly 200 pounds.

Several Ski Lifts Open This Weekend

A light, spotty snow cover in the local mountains has brought limited skiing, the season's first, to several resort areas. Some uphill facilities will operate this weekend.

Tows or lifts will run at Holiday Hill, Lynn Lift, Snow Summit, Snow Valley and Table Mountain. Snow depths range from 0 to 9 inches with skiing poor.

Three other Yanks, however lost third round matches.

Mervyn Rose ousted Herb Flam 7-5, 6-3, 6-2; Neale Fraser whipped Ron Holmberg 6-4, 6-1, 10-8, and Warren Woodcock eliminated Mike Green 6-4, 7-6, 6-8, 7-5, 6-0.

Barry MacKay, the other Yank who reached the third round, was losing to Australia's Roy Emerson when darkness halted play, 13-11, 6-8, 7-5.

Top Tennis Stars Play in LB Saturday

Four of the world's top amateur tennis stars will play exhibition matches next Saturday, starting at 1:30 p.m., at Recreation Park.

The matches, arranged by the Long Beach Recreation Department, will pit Alex Olmedo, of Peru, against Noel Brown, of Los Angeles, and Beverly Baker Fleitz, of Long Beach, against Darlene Hard, of Montebello.

All four have played in recent years at the famed Wimbledon championships in England.

Exhibitions also will be played by Jerry Cromwell and Billie Jean Moffitt, Long Beach youngsters who won championships at last summer's Pacific Southwest tournament in Los Angeles.

Cromwell will play Tim Carr of Los Angeles and Miss Moffitt will play Pam Davis of Anaheim.

MOTOR SPORTS

Top Drivers in Riverside Race

By PAUL WALLACE

So next weekend it comes up Riverside. There, on the new International Motor Raceway, the Sports Car Club of America will run its 1957 national capper.

At this writing, the entry roster still is incomplete—and probably will be until post time. Nevertheless, the list of drivers competing is even more imposing that the list of those not competing.

And that's not as silly as it may sound with Ken Miles, Chuck Daigh, Pete Woods, Jean Kunstle, Lance Reventlow and Ricardo Rodriguez blacklisted and Phil Hill having no ride (to date).

On the plus side of the ledger, Carroll Shelby, Walt Hansgen, Masten Gregory, John von Neumann, Richie Ginther, Paul O'Shea, Bob Drake, Pete Lovely, Jack McAfee, and Max Balchowsky will run (barring accidents at Pebble Beach this weekend).

* * * *

ADDITION OF HILL, fresh from one of his biggest international wins (paired with Peter Collins in a factory Ferrari last weekend in Carracas, Venzuela), would really complete the dazzling lineup.

The course, too, has been improved since the recent opener there with the devastating Turn 6 reworked to eliminate the hazards that took such a toll. Paved parking lots, close spectator access to the pits and start-finish line and some landscaping should cut down dust and improve the onlooking.

* * * *

TOP CONTENDERS include Shelby in the John Edgar 4.5 litre Maserati. Gregory will pilot the 4.7 litre (bored out 4.5) factory Maserati he flipped last weekend at Carracas. It was only superficially damaged and is being brought to Riverside by Temple Buell.

Hansgen will drive one of Briggs Cunningham's 3.8 litre D-Jaguars. Charlie Wallace of the Washington, D.C. Lavender Hill Mob also may show in a Cunningham Jag.

Von Neumann will choose between two 2.5 litre Ferrari Testa Rossas, one just off the boat last week, the other (his "old" one) equipped with a 3 litre Monza engine.

Ginther will pilot Edgar's 4.9 Ferrari, O'Shea a Mercedes-Benz 300SL roadster, McAfee a Porsche RS Spyder and a Ferrari.

With other hot stuff promised, the two-day meet on the beautiful road course should be the big one of the year. The track is located near March Field at Hwys. 60 and 395. Action starts at noon each day.

* * * *

THIS TROPHY business has gotten out of hand. Take, for example, the 200-pound, 6½ foot tall monster for top eliminator at today's Birthday Drag Meet at the Lions Associated Drag Strip here.

And that's not as silly as it may sound with Ken Miles, Chuck Daigh, Pete Woods, Jean Kunstle, Lance Reventlow and Ricardo Rodriguez blacklisted and Phil Hill having no ride (to date).

But the car clubbers and drag buffs like them imposing and the big chunk of tin should draw a formidable entry.

Action will run all day at the 223rd and Alameda Sts. speedway with the place open to contestants and spectators. Among entries is expected to be the Muddersbach-Dillon dragster from Phoenix.

OTHER COMING events:

Pacific Coast Championship Steeplechase Motorcycle Race at Riverside Fairgrounds at noon today — postponed from last Sunday when it was rained out.

Amateur motorcycle scrambles races at Nail Flats behind the San Pedro Drive-in Theater on Gaffey St. all day today.

The Southern California MC sportsmen's scrambles today at Crater Bowl on Malibu Canyon Road.

A rally by the Douglas Sports Car Club to the Riverside races, starting at 8 a.m. next Sunday from the Santa Monica Douglas parking lot, Ocean Park and Bundy. Open to all.

THE WILMINGTON Vulcans Car Club took the first place participation trophy—a 3½-foot tall affair—last weekend on the Wilmington Essenes Reliability Run.

David McDaniel, Wilmington Lords, won first place for individuals followed closely by William Brandes of the Mercedes-Benz Club of America.

Other individual winners were Gilbert Valles, Continentals, third, John Kripel, Continentals, fourth, and J. C. Bennet, Vulcans, fifth.

The Road Kings copped the sportsmanship cup, the Continentals the combined time laurels and the Furies, second place for participation.

The 320 people (175 cars) who made the run wound up at a dance in Wilmington. We hear the joint really rocked and the whole deal was a full custom, pin-striped, eight-barrelled bash.

PCC SWIM

Deadline Set Tonight

Entry deadline for the first annual Invitational Restricted Swim Meet for boys and girls at the Pacific Coast Club next Saturday is at midnight tonight.

Participation in the meet, sanctioned by the SPAAAU, is limited to contestants who have never won or finished second in an AAU-sponsored meet.

Age groups are 7-8 years, 9-10, 11-12, and 13-14. Jim Riley of the PCC is in charge of entries.

Rossmoor Homes Appeal to Long Beach Families

More than 63 per cent of the home buyers at Rossmoor are from the Greater Long Beach area, reports Bill Cheney, of Walker & Lee, sales agents for the new 1200-acre community near Long Beach State College.

Cheney attributed the popularity of Rossmoor among Long Beach families to the convenient location of the new community.

"Of course, the choice of 7 floor plans and 30 exterior designs available at Rossmoor has also been a significant factor," Cheney said.

Modern, traditional two-story and California ranch house stylings are now available.

Proving particularly popular, Cheney noted, is the ranch house, which has from 1,440 to 1,658 square feet of living area.

* * * *

PRICED FROM $18,600, with newly authorized FHA down payments from $2,000, the ranch house includes a living room and den panelled in mahogany and white birch, with a choice of drop, cathedral or beamed ceilings. Kitchens have built-in dishwashers, ovens and ranges, a choice of wall refrigerators and built-in automatic washers and dryers.

The two-story Williamsburg home features 18x18 living rooms with wood-burning fireplaces and mahogany panelled walls; separate 12x13 dining rooms with traditional 18th century chandeliers; and all-electric built-in kitchens with a choice of drop, cathedral or beamed ceilings. PRICED AT $26,500, the Williamsburg provides 2,390 square feet of living area, including 4 bedrooms, family room, and 2 full baths and a 2-car garage. Exteriors features Palos Verde stone, cedar shingle, and cedar shake shingle roofs.

IN LINCOLN PARK MUTUAL

Abundant wallpaper, built-in gas range and oven, hood, natural cabinets, sliding glass doors, fireplaces are all part of the features offered at Lincoln Park Mutual Homes in West Anaheim.

Low Interest Asked on Holstein Homes

One of Southern California's outstanding financing plans is being offered at Lincoln Park Mutual homes in West Anaheim where both veteran or non-veteran can purchase for only $795 down and enjoy 5 per cent financing for 30 years, the builders, George M. Holstein and Sons, stress.

The plan is ideal for veterans who have already used their "GI benefits" and are anxious to 'step-up' in space and luxury, a spokesman for the builder said. The overall monthly payments are approximately $100 per month, the builder said, and pointed out the new financing eliminates balloon payments, due-dates, and other "extras."

THE LINCOLN PARK homes offer 3 and 4 bedroom plans with large dining areas, service porches, attached or detached garages, fireplaces, natural cabinets, built in range and oven, hardwood floors, sliding glass doors, forced air heat, and a score more luxuries, the Holstein organization declared. Prices start from $15,495.

Four Lincoln Park furnished model homes are located on Euclid at Crone in West Anaheim and can be reached via the Santa Ana Freeway to Anaheim. Turn right at the Lincoln (Carson) signal to Euclid and left on Euclid to the homes. From Long Beach the homes can be reached via Lincoln (Carson) to Euclid.

Luxury Trailer Park Nearly Filled Before It Is Finished

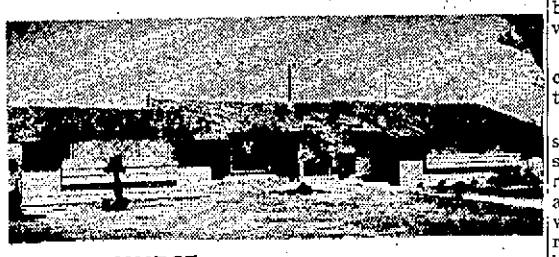

With 90 per cent of the space occupied, a planned open house for Long Beach Trailer Estates today will be more of a formal affair for the residents.

Located at 6541 Atlantic Blvd., just off Artesia St., the 7½-acre project is considered the showplace of trailer homesites in the Southland.

Developed by four Long Beach men, Robert and Eugene Kirkpatrick, Milt Arthur and Ely Somerville, there is a luxury setting for the 103 lots. There is a large central clubhouse and a heated swimming pool for the residents. Extensive landscaping was done throughout the area. Natural gas, power lines, TV lines, sewer and water all are piped to the individual lots via underground conduits.

Planned for quiet surroundings, the park does not permit children or pets. There is 5 miles of piping in the park, 1⅛ miles of redwood fencing, 1⅞ square miles of asphalt paving and 14,000 square feet of concrete paving, 100 miles of wiring and 40,000 square feet of patios. Mr. and Mrs. Gus Gillette manage the park.

Although it had been planned to conduct a public open house, so many of the lots already are occupied that today's affair will be limited. Mayor Ramond Kealer, city councilmen, members of the planning commission and Supervisor Burton Chace have been invited. Residents of the park also have invited guests.

IN BELLEHURST

Its long, low casual lines bespeak the comfort of this traditional California home, the Andover, in the new private country club community of Bellehurst. One of 15 distinctively styled home designs by James R. Wilde, AIA architect, the Andover is one of eight models furnished by W and J Sloane.

Los Coyotes Country Club Holds Dedication Parties

Dedication entertainments attended by social and business figures mark the opening of the million-dollar Los Coyotes Country Club at Buena Park, where two weeks of parties started Nov. 2. This will be high lighted on Nov. 13 with the largest gathering of all, according to W. D. Windisch, official of the organization, when the clubhouse and its adjoining $3 million golf course will be placed in service.

The country club development covers 257 acres of hilly land in a 900-acre residential community established in Orange County. The project has been set up to combine sports with suburban living.

THE 27,000-SQUARE-FOOT clubhouse is the center of the two weeks' festivities.

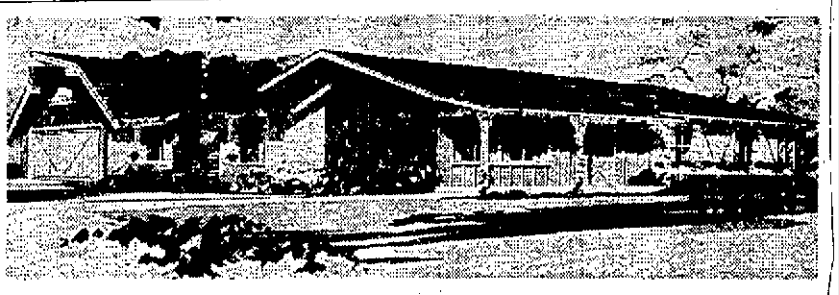

On an adjoining site, construction has begun on two swim pools, badminton and tennis courts and a unique teenage center. In the latter there will be a TV and a hi-fi room, recreation center and a snack bar. Additional family facilities will include a 24-hour nursery run by a registered nurse to free parents for club activities.

Women's golf instruction will be given by Betty Hicks. Selection of an equally noted male pro will be made soon.

All of the events will be climaxed on the night of the 13th, with an elaborate fete at which C. J. Jones of Long Beach, developer of Los Coyotes and its surrounding $40,000,000 residential community, will be host to more than 400 guests.

A SHERWOOD RANCHO HOME

New spacious homes in the styles of many countries such as this California Ranch Style, may be found at Sherwood Ranchos No. 4 in Costa Mesa. These homes, with a minimum of 1,500 square feet of floor space, may be reached by taking the Santa Ana Freeway to Harbor Blvd., go south to Costa Mesa. At Wilson Ave.—indicated by a Sherwood signboard, turn left to furnished models.

New Sherwood Ranchos Ideal for Large Family

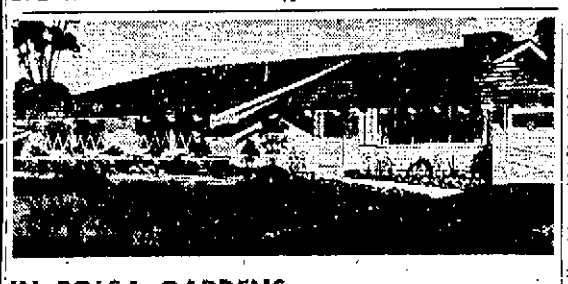

Only 45 custom-designed homes are in the new Sherwood Ranchos No. 4 development and each has a minimum of 1,500 square feet of actual living area, ideal for large families, according to the builder, George D. Buccola.

These spacious homes are designed in the styles of many countries and eras and are available with down payments as low as $495. The Sherwood Homes range in price from $15,200 to $16,500 and may be purchased either on the new, low FHA or conventional terms. Interest is at 6 per cent over 20 years, the builder said.

A WIDE RANGE of exterior designs, 16 in all, cover such style variations as rambling ranch, farmhouse complete to simulated hayloft; New Orleans contemporary with iron grillwork and even a New England home with roof-top "Captains Walk."

All Sherwood Rancho homes have a minimum of 3 bedrooms, family room, and 2 large bathrooms. There are wide hearth fireplaces and fully built-in kitchens. The oversize 2-car garages provide space for a family hobby-work shop.

To reach the homes, take the Santa Ana Freeway to Harbor Blvd., south to Costa Mesa. At Wilson Ave., indicated by a Sherwood signboard, take Newport Blvd. to Harbor, turn left to Wilson, then right to models.

IN BOLSA GARDENS

With a down payment of only $295 plus $90 costs, homes such as this are being offered in Bolsa Gardens with carpeting, drapes and curtains provided to reduce move-in costs to the buyers.

Extra Costs Slashed for Buyers in Bolsa Gardens

Today the home buyer wants a complete package without a lot of expensive extras when moving into a new home, states Gilbert J. Hayes, sales agent for Bolsa Gardens.

Move-in costs are cut to a minimum by providing wall-to-wall carpeting, traverse drapes and curtains with cornice boxes throughout these color coordinated pleasant homes.

Everything has been considered to keep costs where people of average income can live in a lovely new home without the strain of high payments after a high move-in cost, he added.

* * * *

DOWN PAYMENTS are $295 plus $90 costs and total payments including principal, interest, taxes insurance are only $89.50 per month.

Exterior elevations are available in 9 different styles and 3 different floor plans provide features of design to suit the most discriminating taste.

Hayes reports that early sales of this unusual home development package have been moving fast and an early sell-out of this first unit is expected.

The excellent location for schools, shopping, freeways, beaches and play areas is an additional attraction.

To visit these complete homes drive east on Carson to U. S. 39, south to Bolsa, east to Cannery, north to Bolsa Gardens.

May Get GI Loan on Homes

Veterans may still be able to purchase Cinderella Homes on the quickly disappearing 4½ per cent GI loan, it was announced by an executive of the Cinderella by the Sea tract near Costa Mesa. They must purchase the homes within the next few weeks.

A special arrangement now makes it possible for non-veteran buyers to move in for $225.

The tract's proximity to many beach resorts has accounted for its popularity. Fishing, boating and swimming enthusiasts have found living in Cinderella by the Sea a means of enjoying these activities the year around.

FEATURES include heavy shake shingles, long overhangs, massive fireplaces, with the homes situated on large lots. Buyers have a choice of 17 exteriors and several floor plans. Full prices begin at $16,450. "The value of these Cinderella Homes, if they were to be built at today's prices, would be $25,000," it was stated by a tract spokesman.

Down payment for vets begins at $375 plus costs and impounds with monthly payments starting at $84.81 per month, including principal and interest. Loans may be repaid in up to 30 years.

Homes Near Beach Appealing; Marina Shores Sales Soaring

Attraction of luxuriously-planned, estate-class homes, built in a seaside, resort-like vacation area in Seal Beach, has drawn more than 20,000 visitors to Marina Shores, since recent grand opening of the fashionable new community.

Officials of Butler-Harbour Construction Co., citing millions of dollars in sale of both homes and view-lots for custom building, credited much of the buying enthusiasm to the desirability of living the year around in a vacation-like setting.

Record crowds and visitors were confirmed by Walker & Lee, sales agents, who said the five model residences, designed by two leading architectural firms, will continue open daily and Sunday at 600 S. Shore Dr., Seal Beach.

One display residence features a large swimming pool and two patio areas linked to the home by big sliding glass doors.

* * * *

BUYERS HAVE A CHOICE of 3 or four bedrooms and 2 luxury baths, while all homes have spacious family rooms. They are priced from $21,150 to $22,500 and both FHA and conventional financing are available.

"Thus far," a spokesman said, "visitors have shown as much interest in the fully developed lots ready for custom home building as in the model homes themselves. These sites, averaging 60 feet wide, with sewers, paved streets, curbs, sidewalks, ornamental street lights and utilities in and paid for, are priced in the $5,500 to $8,375 category."

Also attracting considerable interest, it was stated, are such features as hardwood oak floors, fireplaces with raised hearths and hoods in some models, mosaic tile tub enclosures and tile in the stall showers, electric ceiling heaters in some baths and heat lamps in others, and built-in gas ranges with thermal eye burners and gas ovens.

NEW LINCOLNS ON DISPLAY

Intriguingly new in every respect, the 1958 Lincoln Premiere introduces classic, sculptured lines, a long, low hood topped by a horizontal grille and canted dual headlamps. The 1958 Lincoln line is now on display at Harbor Lincoln-Mercury, 1633 American Ave.

'58 Model Lincolns Shown by Dealers

By ART STEPHAN
Independent, Press-Telegram Auto Editor

Six models of the 1958 Lincoln Premiere and Lincoln Capri, inspired by the styling of the Continental, are now on display at Lincoln dealerships across the nation.

In each line there is a four-door sedan, a four-door hardtop and a two-door hardtop coupe.

Designers and stylists enhanced the low, and long graceful lines of each Lincoln by complementing each model with the Continental roof line, canted dual headlamps, an extended long, low hood and a wide, sweeping rear deck lid.

Set between the canted dual headlamps is a horizontally-louvered grille with a massive flared bumper across the front. A Lincoln script on the left side of the grille gives the car distinctive identification.

* * * *

FROM THE SIDE, the Lincoln suggests the classic simplicity of the Continental profile. Along the side is a single strip of chrome which extends from the rear bumper to the middle of the front door. On Premiere models, the end of this molding is highlighted by an 8-pointed star.

The styling theme at the rear matches the front with an oval-shaped horizontally-louvered grille treatment. On either side are integrated tail lights and backup lights set into the grille. The bumper matches the chrome treatment on the lower portion of the rear deck lid which outlines and protects the oval-shaped grille.

The long, lithe silhouette of the Lincoln extends 229 inches in overall length while the over all height is 56.5 inches. Wheelbase has been increased to 131 inches, an increase of five inches over the 1957 models.

* * * *

THE 1958 LINCOLNS are built in a plant specifically designed for integrated body and frame construction.

This new method has allowed the designers to lower the height of the car, strengthen its torsional rigidity which resists body twisting effects on rough roads and provides built-in quality.

The floor pan, side panels, roof panels, quarter panels are all welded into one single unit.

Besides the styling inspiration of the Continental, the Lincoln power train will provide the same kind of performance as the Continental.

BEL AIR ROOM — Jim, Crooker, major domo at Beach City Chevrolet, has come up with a clever idea that should appeal to the fair sex in the area.

Jim, who very efficiently runs one of the top agencies in the west, decided that gals who are waiting for their Chevrolets to be serviced, should do it in glamorous surroundings.

So taking one of the storerooms at the Coast Hwy. agency, Crooker has done it over in pastel colors, soft-tone drapes and wall of cork. Aptly he's named it the Bel Air Room, it has that touch of Chevrolet class. It's right adjacent to the service department and you ladies can sit there, relax watch televeision and enjoy a cigaret while you're waiting for the Chevvy to be brought around.

* * * *

FUNNY? — Brewster Gray, whom you might call "Mr. MG of Long Beach," having been an MG dealer here so many years, is a little bit chagrined about the publicity and advertising we carried last week on the opening of his big new plant at 3515 Atlantic Ave.

First of all, his ad read "open from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m." when of course everyone knows you can't do business being open only one hour a day.

Then, we spelled the name of his general manager as Clarence Colbert instead of Covert, and, if that wasn't enough, Max Briney, service manager, found his name was spelled Brieney.

Well, Brewster, there are days like that. Let's blame it on Sputnik.

Mink Stole Offered for Name of Homes

Model homes are completed, furnished and on display this week announced Gilbert J. Hayes, sales agent for Hintz Construction Co.'s newest development in West Anaheim. The striking styling of X-Homes has caused much activity and pre-selling while construction was starting and attracted many visitors, he added.

X-Homes is a temporary name for the development, he pointed out since the real name is to be selected from suggestions submitted by visitors.

A mink stole will be given to the person who names the development and a mink scarf for the best name for each of the three model homes, he added.

"THE ATTRACTIVENESS of X-Homes makes them look as luxurious as mink but they are actually only $295 down plus $90 costs to move in," said Hayes.

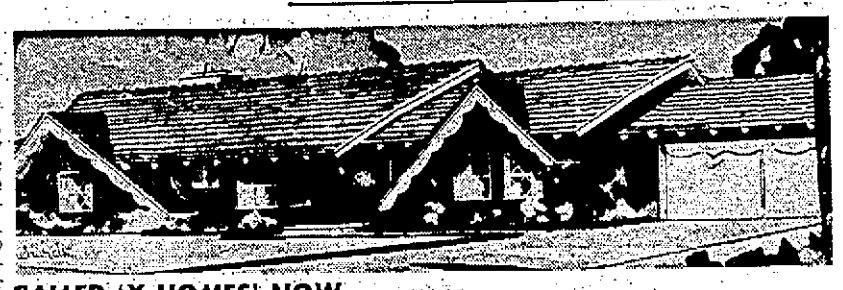

"Three and 4 bedrooms or 3 bedrooms and study, all with 2 baths and over 1300 sq. ft. of living area for as low as $13,495 is surprisingly reasonable, report homeseekers who know values.

"The large pool and patio-sized lots, fireplaces, decorative stone and brick work in planters and fireplaces, natural ash cabinets, concrete drives and walks, louvered windows and many more expensive features all add up to the luxury best expressed as "Mink Stole Quality."

HAYES INVITES anyone to inspect X-Homes and submit a name for the development and model homes at the pre-showing.

Fourteen different exterior stylings are available in variation with three convenient central hall plans. Located in an area of $20,000 and up properties these choice family styled homes are a better than average investment.

To see the homes and enter the name contest, drive out 7th St. in Long Beach (which becomes Garden Grove Blvd.) to Hwy. 39, north to Katella and east to the furnished models. X-Homes are on Katella just west of Disneyland in West Anaheim convenient to freeways, shopping and beaches.

CALLED 'X HOMES' NOW

Visitors to the Hintz Co. development in West Anaheim can participate in a contest to name the new homes, the winner receiving a mink stole. This is one of the models now being shown with the unit merely called "X Homes" until named.

If You Are Looking For A Home Under $30,000

This is an invitation to those of you who have searched in vain for that quality home in the exclusive residential districts of the Greater Long Beach area.

If you're fed up with being offered ancient and decrepit homes which will require thousands of dollars in modernization and repair for exorbitant prices simply because the lots they are situated on are worth more than the houses themselves, then search no further. We have the answer to your dilemma.

We have under construction the only quality homes in a quality neighborhood in the entire Long Beach area which represent real value. These are the homes you've waited and hoped for.

Nowhere else can there be found the smartness of design—abundance of built-ins and the all-out luxury that is found here.

Never before have homes of this quality and class been offered in the Greater Long Beach area, reflecting such truly outstanding value.

With such outstanding value, we are necessarily limited in number, so don't delay—and become a next-year buyer who pays thousands more for the same home.

NOW AND NOW ONLY is it still possible for you to choose the decor that reflects your own personality and taste by selecting from the professionally prepared decorator's layout, planned exclusively for these homes.

We're Having a Ball!

There's something in the air, there's something in the wind. With all the talk this week centered on outer space, a person's first thoughts might conceivably dwell on satellites and mystery lights.

But baby moons and green flashings are far from the minds of Dames Club members. For them, the something-in-the-air is excitement; the something-in-the-wind is a grand ball.

Their world Saturday night will be one of gold and white as they enter Lakewood Country Club on the arms of their escorts. To harmonize with the glittering decorations few Dames Club members have chosen gold and white gowns for the festive occasion. Among these are Mrs. Milton Cantor, ball chairman, and Mrs. Thomas Wall, Dames president.

* * * *

WHILE FRIVOLITY bubbles on the surface, a note of solemnity underlies the party, for all proceeds will be given to the Sister Kenny Foundation.

Members and guests will dance from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. to the music of Jimmy Whetmore's orchestra.

Capably assisting Mrs. Cantor in handling pre-ball details are Mmes. Harry Stafford, Leonard Brock, James Collins, John Henderson, Duane Warner and Barbara Eckert.

Customarily before large parites, clubs divide into convivial small groups for cocktails in their homes, and Dames Club is no exception.

Mr. and Mrs. William Barry and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hazzard will co-host a gathering in the Hazzard home, 1830 Vuelta Grande Ave., consisting of Messrs. and Mmes. Bob Croxson, John Buckley, Norm Hastings, Bob Benson, Al Beach, Douglas Benwell, Robert Greenberg, Stan Allen, Claude Buckmann, Herb Cook, William Palmer, Wendell Goudy, Dan Tanahill, Sam Hardin, Frank Marshall, Robert Holland and Mrs. Donald Whitmyre.

Mrs. Glenn Giffen will wear a black peau de soie gown when she and her husband welcome Messrs. and Mmes. Robert Sturgeon, Jerry Gunther, William Moore Jr., Lee Krell, Norman Scott, Sid Pizer, Preston Johnson, Roy Parker, John Webb and Robert Sausa to their home at 3250 Chestnut Ave.

* * * *

A BUFFET SUPPER is being planned by Mr. and Mrs. Patrick E. Dixon, 3102 San Anseline Ave. Their guests will include Messrs. and Mmes. Robert McDonnell, Dean Jones, Glenn Anderson, John B. Dixon, Gene Dreckman, Robert Carter, Joseph Spinelli and Lee Meenshuber.

Cocktail guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hall, 3025 Marwick Ave., will be Messrs. and Mmes. George Brenner, Dan E. Budnick, David Miller, Carroll Simon, Robert Pugh, Richard Russell, Stuart Wall, Fred McKibben, Milton Churchill and Sidney Ellis.

On the guest list of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Williams for cocktails are Messrs. and Mmes. Bob Lemon, James Pino, Fred Wolcott, Harry Stevens, Walter Strawinski, James Nagle, Gilmer Millie, Stanley Weiss, P. I. Wilsey Jr., Harold Horrocks, Chris Conway, William Gillis, Miss Helen Pickett and John Dood.

Mrs. Williams will be attired in a green and silver brocade sheath with flowing chiffon back panel when she and her husband greet their guests in their home, 1121 Claiborne Dr.

Sigma Kappa Alumnae Plan Nov. 22 Toy Fete

When Sigma Kappa Alumnae of Long Beach meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Alex F. J. Hanser, 2621 E. 1st St., they will complete plans for a toy party to be given Nov. 22 in the Lorne Middough home.

In other business, Mrs. John Dillard will report on arrangements for Sigma Kappa Founders Day to be celebrated Nov. 17. The 83rd anniversary of the organization will be marked by a dinner at 2 p.m. in La Ronde Rue restaurant. Mrs. R. J. Kettenburg of San Gabriel and Mrs. John Dillard of Long Beach are in charge of reservations and will be assisted by presidents of local alumnae groups from Glendale, West Los Angeles, Van Nuys, Whittier, Arcadia and Long Beach.

Mrs. Everett L. Nicklaus, president of Southern California Council, will preside. Members of Gamma Theta Chapter, Long Beach State College, and of Alpha Omicron Chapter, UCLA, will assist.

National officers attending will include Mrs. William Greig, national Panhellenic chairman, and Mrs. Edward Douglas Jr., national rush chairman. Honored guests will be members who have belonged to the sorority for 45 years or more.

HERALDING the coming gala holiday season, gold and white have been chosen as color motif for the Dames Club ball. Immersed in a discussion as they fashion glamorous decorations are, from left, Mrs. Thomas F. Wall, Mrs. Leonard Brock and Mrs. James F. Collins.—(Staff photos.)

PUTS YOU in a festive mood just looking at all the glittering decorations, doesn't it? As decorative as the golden spheres and medallions are these Dames Club members, from left, Mrs. Duane Warner, Mrs. Harry Stafford and Mrs. Milton Cantor, chairman of the club's ball Saturday night in Lakewood Country club. Many cocktail parties will precede affair.

Let's Go Traveling---Say to the Enchanting Hill Towns of Italy

By ILKA CHASE

Orvieto, Assisi, San Gimignano, Perugia, Siena* . . . the names of the Italian hill towns sing and it is hard to say which casts the greatest magic. There is another town, however, about which there is no doubt—Ravenna. The last link with civilization before the Dark Ages set in in Europe is Dogpatch. Today that is. Things were different in the fifth and sixth century and the great mosaics that make the town worth a visit date from that time. The Byzantine architecture and the mosaics-scenes from the Christian legend-majestic, ablaze with color, are well worth while, but there's no use staying overnight as we did.

We did it because it broke the long trip from Florence to Venice, but we recall the beds and food of the Jolly Hotel without affection and the place itself is drab.

THE OTHER TOWNS, however, stand in Fair, Sunny: Spring Fashion Prediction

By MARY LOU ZEHMS
Independent, Press-Telegram
Women's Editor

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5—There are great artists and technicians creating new products for us to live better, longer and happier. The great artists in the women's apparel industry in California are not the least of these—for if a woman is well dressed she is certainly happier. Four great artists in the field of design, Edith Small, Howard Greer, Irene and Rex, were hosts one afternoon this week to the fashion editors attending the seventh annual national Press Week by California Fashion Creators.

First we were taken from our field of operations, the Beverly Hilton Hotel, by bus (there are 73 of us here) to the Beverly Hills Hotel for a delightful champagne luncheon with Edith Small as our hostess. While a string trio played in the background, Miss Small did the commentary as 50 of her new spring suits, costumes and dresses were modeled on a long ramp set in the middle of the luncheon room.

* * * *

EDITH SMALL'S creations certainly have a new look—this next season you will find the 40 inch straight silk coat to be worn over tight sheaths (the only fullness is in back from the shoulders to the waist); the broader shoulder is back; short in front; waistlines are low-placed.

And, all her ensembles are very, very short, at least 17" from the floor. She remarked, "I'm afraid the chemise look is going to take over completely"—so in the line are a few dresses reminiscent of the 1920's—and although they were applauded, several of the editors looked questionably when asked if they would include one such dress in their spring wardrobe.

* * * *

BACK TO the bus and we were on our way to Rex's hat salon—to see the ensemble completed. His great artistry is unsurpassed and everything he creates is with a loving touch.

This year his new look in hats is fabric. If you can get a half a yard of material from the dress designer after you purchase the suit or dress of your choice, Rex will make up the hat.

Of course he is at his best in the flowered hats—appliqued roses on straw hat brims, silk poppies on a small dinner hat—a single red rose on a green satin turban and another graced with pearl lilies of the valley.

We saw more of his hats when we spent an hour in Irene's Salon for he created all the fabric hats to match her suits.

Howard Greer invited all the fashion editors to his salon for a preview of his new line for spring.

As we view each new collection by a California designer, we are given a fact sheet explaining what that individual creator is trying to achieve in clothes for women.

Greer has done such a magnificent job of his fact sheet that I am quoting from it:

"If you're expecting the sack look in our spring and summer collection, you're in for a disappointment.

* * * *

"OVER THE past several decades designers have searched frantically for new hooks upon which to hang their seasonable foibles. Japan, India, Egypt and the South Seas have been exploited. The Spanish bolero, the Eskimo's parka and the bronze circlets of the giraffe-necked women of Africa have had their day.

Periods and personalities of history have alternately shared the spotlight. Even the alphabet was looted from A to Z to describe otherwise undescribable fashions.

"Women have been asked . . . ASKED? TOLD! . . . at intervals to resemble open umbrellas, shooting arrows and winged sausages.

"The time has come, we think, to eschew periods and personalities, Broadway hits and reigning sovereigns, dead courtesans and science fiction fantasy as sources of inspiration. The time has come, we think, to return quite simply and unaffectedly to a

SLEEKLY TAILORED, gold and black silk check suit with contrasting black faille trim on jacket and skirt is Edith Small's way o welcoming spring (that's right—spring!) during Fashion Press Week in Los Angeles. She predicts shorter skirts.

EMPEROR'S LADY, a formal gown for a grand occasion, is designed by Howard Greer of gold embroidered white velvet flowers on white silk organza. Bodice is draped to one side; narrow sheath is covered by two floating panels that form side trains. Worn with white gloves, satin shoes.

The Wild Waves Say

AN OVERTURE to Thanksgiving entitled Golden Harvest Ball by Suchfunsky will be played at Virginia Country Club Nov. 23 to open the winter season on a high note. Conducting the party concert are Edna and Bill Abrams and assisting with a really masterful arrangement are co-chairmen Pat and John Connolly. Among others who are adding their own ideas to the score are Marge and Al Davis, Eleanor and Roy Brown, Marge and Loren Conley, Nancy and Bill Brooks, Dr. Robert and Catherine Blake and Ann and Andrew Gaydash.

"High note"

Understand that the committee doesn't think it will be necessary to gild the lily for this formal dinner dance—just everything else, including pumpkins, cornstalks and maybe themselves in the process.

SPEAKING OF Virginia, those men who claim that the way women play golf is spooky missed the chance of a lifetime to say "Ah-ha! told you so" if they weren't present last week to watch the gal golfers annual costume Halloween tournament. Thelma Cone copped first prize for her Vampira get-up. She wore a black wig that looked like it might have belonged to the first Neanderthal woman with snakes crawling through and out of it. For beauty marks she glued some big, black spiders to her cheeks and as if that wasn't enough she even "wore" a wriggling turtle.

Julia Cheney marched away with second prize for her Groucho Marx rig complete with wriggling eyebrows, tent-size nightshirt, cigar and owl-eyed glasses. Kay Roggeveen came as "one of the girls" in a burlap sack, black velvet hat and a mask only a werewolf could love. Even Pearl McInnes got into the act and panicked the crowd by donning a Frankenstein mask to serve the pre-luncheon witches brew.

There is some talk, we understand, of drumming Tressa Slausson and Libby Spawr out of the corps. No wonder. Those two came dressed as the most glamorous Indian maidens seen in this country since Sitting Bull got up and walked away.

DO YOU know why children of Sandlark members are so angelic these days? Their mothers have 'em confused, that's why. All the kids have been hearing about is decorating Christmas trees! Now, as any child under 7 can tell you, when that kinda talk is rampant St. Nick's got his notebook out keeping track. What the angels with smudged faces don't realize is that their mothers are way ahead of Santa Claus as they complete arrangements for Sandlark's bigger every year Christmas Fantasy—an open to the public show of unusual and beautiful holiday decorations and trees entered in competition by business firms, artists and just plain townspeople like you and me. It's to take place in the Red Velvet Room of the Lafayette Hotel on Dec. 5.

"Early angels"

Beth Hannaman had a doughnuts and coffee party at her home Wednesday night for the committee and it was decided they would continue to accept entries for a few more days. Particularly in the women's club competition, a new category this year, being chairmanned by Phylis DeLance. Doris Marsh is in charge of all other entries and Gloria Grandle is general fantasy major domo.

KNIGHTS OF the kilocycles or angels of the antenna would be a much more appropriate name for those amateur short wave radio men than "ham operators" as far as Lydia Jones is concerned and here's why. Her son, Vincent Jones and his bride the former Laurine Ellis of Berkeley, who have been honeymoon traveling in their own private plane through South America, "telephoned" the other night from Trinidad via a "ham" operator there and a connecting station in Beverly Hills. No time limit on that conversation! Lydia learned the newlyweds would be in Long Beach in a couple of weeks with plans to stay here until at least the first of the year.

HERE'S A mathematical problem you won't even have to take your shoes off to solve. Add a roomful of good friends to one pleasant evening. Multiply by good hosts Kay and "Scrub" Elliott. The answer is last night when the Elliotts entertained at a little dinner party for close friends. Kay whipped up an ample potful of beef stroganoff and while it simmered "Scrub" kept saying, "May I fix you another one?", and usually he could. Afraid to get on the scales this morning due to calorie excesses. Last night are Barrie and Margaret Stimson, Elva and Dick Lawson, Vivian and Short West, Kay and Buford Smith, Kay and John Roggeveen, Cleone and Sol Deeble, Pat Cameron and Ed Davies.

THE DOCTOR said, "You can go home, if you like" to Sue Wright at the hospital last Sunday and he didn't have to say it twice or even very loud the first time. Recuperating is much more pleasant out there on Lemon Ave., according to the patient. Besides, husband Fred is easier to bluff than some stern-eyed nurse when it comes to disobeying medical orders.

WHEN LUNCHNIK time orbited into view on the clock last Monday the gravitational pull of the Marina's new Captain's Inn captured a goodly crowd of local satellites and among those attracted were Phil Graham, Jack Caraco, Gene Page, Doris Reed, Peg Finley, Floyd Reagon, Lloyd Smith and Milo Elick.

ALTHOUGH Bill Graham was in his favorite Colorado town called Boulder last week, it felt more like it was Minnesota's St. Cloud. That's where he was perched as the University of Colorado honored him for outstanding alumnus contributions. Baba, with a firm grip on his coat sleeve to keep him from floating away, escorted him back to town first of the week.

OF COURSE it was fun to keep bumping into Long Beach people unexpectedly in the lobby of the Waldorf Astoria in New York for Norma and Bill Harris, who returned Monday night from their travels, but on the other hand it made their days in Gotham seem unreal. Sort of like they were actually in the Lafayette lobby and just pretending. At one time or another here are the people they met—Les Still Jr., Laura and Wally Jacobson, Joe Bishop, "Frenchy" Amar, Bob Metzger and Cleo and Ted Bowman.

Gyro Club Presents Big Horror Show

Now PLAYING

"Yiiiiipes!"

If Naomi and Chuck Chandler's house was equipped with a theater marquee they could have lit up the place last night with a sign reading, "Now Playing. A Gyro Club Production, the Year's Biggest Horror Show." Actually, it was a costume party left over from Halloween and yiiiipes! what characters!

As if the decorations, including glowing skeletons, a make believe corpse and howling black cats weren't weird enough people like Ann and Berry Merritt came as that gruesome twosome, Vampira and Dracula. Pat and Jim Collins arrived driving an old, black hearse—dressed as an undertaker and an angel!

Others who received the sinister invitations, printed on bleached bones and sent in jet black boxes, were Frances and Alan Bonzer and Marilyn and Larry Bonzer, Isabel and George Cadwallader, Bea and Gib Millie, Dorothy and Jim Nagle, Mary and Jack Failkins, Gertrude and Hugh Gibbs, Mona and Paul Henderson, Pauline and Ed Simons, Smitty and Harry Stevens, Dorothy and Walt Strawinski, Geneva and Stan Weiss, Elaine and Don Will, Mary Edna and Floyd Williams, Dorothy and Woody Wilsey, Millie and Frank Vessels, Ann and Julius Molina, Mary Stanton, John Dodd and Dr. Frank Bowan.

Russia Topic for Lakewood Republicans

Dr. Wendell Miller, well known in this area as a lecturer on European travel and international problems, will be guest speaker at Lakewood Federation of Republican Women on Friday in St. Thomas Episcopal Church. Luncheon will be served at noon.

Dr. Miller, who is listed in the current supplement of "Who's Who in America," is a former chaplain at the University of Southern California. He has just returned from a second tour behind the Iron Curtain, and is one of the few Americans to be admitted to Hungary. His recent itinerary also included visits to Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia. With his topic, "A Look at the New Look in Russia," Dr. Miller uses his own films to portray a dramatic and enlightening picture of life in Russia today.

With the president, Mrs. Joseph N. Striegel, presiding, election and installation of club's new officers for 1958 will be the most important business. Mrs. Russell Brougher, chairman of Los Angeles County central committee, 18th District, will be special guest and will install officers.

HOLIDAYS IN MIND

A hint of the holidays in the air swings Carmelite Nuns Auxiliary into action, enmeshing them in lavish plans for a benefit presentation of "Festive Fashions" for the holidays at 1 p. m. Nov. 14 at La Ronde Rue. Among those planning the exciting day are (left to right) Mmes. Louis Andriole, Woodrow Belcher, James F. Laing and Donald E. Rice. Tickets are available to the public. Others serving on the committe are Mmes. James J. Mulvey, Horace Gitterman, Wayne P. Hanson, Frank Schiavone, Wayne Lucas, Michael Hallisey and Elmer Riopelle.—(Staff photo.)

Plaza Women's Club Plans Gala Homecoming Affair

Plaza Women's Club members are rummaging through closets for skirts, "sloppy joe" sweaters and saddle shoes in anticipation of their homecoming dance Nov. 15 at Mounted Police Clubhouse. A cocktail hour is slated at 8 p. m., followed by dancing from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m.

Co-chairmen, Mmes. Cecil Fleetwood and Owen Concannon, have announced that decorations will carry out the back-to-school theme with college banners and pompons. Mmes. Joseph Gray, Robert Van Buskirk and Luther Roseland are assisting with decorations and posters.

Ticket chairman, Mrs. Robert Whelan, is being assisted by Mmes. Howard Dudley, Earl Miller, Earl Popkes, George Smith, Ray Pennington, Richard Lawnsbury, Gordon Suiter, John Smochko and Hugo Jorda. Mrs. Eldred Olson is in charge of awards.

Gaviota Chapter

"Diplomatic Interviews and Pictures of Foreign Lands" will be the topic of Mrs. Helen T. Moore when she shows pictures to members and guests of Gaviota Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, on Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. R. M. Brougher, 1050 E. Ocean Blvd.

Miss Myrtle Graves, motion picture chairman, will give her report, and tea hostess Mrs. H. L. Harris will be assisted by a committee of 14.

Woman's Music Club to Hear College Choir

Long Beach City College Choir, under the direction of Royal Stanton, will entertain Wednesday when Woman's Music Club meets at 1:30 p.m. in Ebell Auditorium.

Vernon Overmeyer, concert pianist, will share honors on the program introduced by Rachel Morton, program chairman. Mrs. William H. Crutcher, president, will conduct the business session and introduce group chairmen.

• • • •

Noon luncheon will be served by the Lotte Lehmann Group with Mrs. Orlo Rolo as chairman.

"Christmas Music in the Church" is subject of the Church Music Section meeting slated at 11 a.m. that morning in Room One of Ebell Clubhouse. Mrs. Ellis Slack is president.

Mrs. Wilbur R. Kimball, program chairman, will present Phillip L. Ellithorpe, director of music at Wilson High School, who will speak on church Christmas music, "illustrating" his talk with the voices of a 16-member Wilson High School choir.

Social Day Planned by Ebell Club

Because of the holiday Monday, Ebell Club will have a social meeting and dessert luncheon in the clubhouse patio and lounge in lieu of the regular weekly program in the auditorium.

Following the 12:30 luncheon members will join at bridge, canasta and other games. Mrs. Orville T. Evans and Miss Laura Moore are in charge of the gala Veterans Day party plans. Assisting will be Mrs. Arthur F. Bonzer, Ebell president, and Mmes. Louise Fisher, James A. Worsham, Harold O. Gray, Walter M. Killingsworth, Kent Hanbery, Robert Peek, Charles M. Knoblock, Ann Littlefield, N. M. Houghton, Merton B. Smith, S. W. Watson and Russell M. Brougher.

Another note of social interest for club members concerns a series of four card parties to benefit the building and improvement fund planned by Mrs. Bonzer, the board of directors and ways and means chairmen. The first has already taken place under direction of Mrs. Louise M. Fisher and Homer D. Redford, co-chairmen.

GAR Circle

Abraham Lincoln Circle No. 44, Ladies of the GAR, will meet Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. in Veterans Memorial Bldg.

The speaker was active in business and civic affairs in San Marino before being called to Washington in 1953 to serve as assistant secretary of defense for supply and logistics. He remained on that job until he became special assistant to President Eisenhower in 1956, serving as liaison between White House and governmental departments and agencies. He will be introduced by Mrs. Gus A. Walker.

A coffee hour is scheduled at noon under the direction of Mrs. W. E. Lanzer, hospitality chairman, and her committee.

"THERE ARE no gimmicks. There is nothing sensational or bizarre. There are no terrifying changes. The skirt is neither long enough to make you look dowdy nor brief enough to show the knobs of your knees. There is a neckline for every personality and a sleeve-length for every age. There is still sex in our clothes for we favor the woman who attracts to the woman who repels."

BEAUTIFUL, blonde and stately Irene was our last hostess for the day. To wear an Irene suit or dress I'm sure is the ultimate achievement of every well dressed woman. Top fashion model, Maruja, expressed it so well when she said, "Irene creates for love." And it is undeniable—the lines, the details, the applique, the treatment of lace—all bespeak the love of her great art. And, there is a timeless quality to her designs. Nothing is faddy or for the moment. Her clothes can be worn from year to year with equal pride.

To wind up this inspiring day, we were dinner guests at the Mocombo and there was another of the great artists—song stylist Ella Fitzgerald—as great in her art as the designers are that we just visited.

Although the week is now over, we will be bringing our readers more news of California fashions for spring in the following weeks.

Italy Intrigues Travel Scribe

glory, enduring monuments to the past. To me one of the highlights of our entire trip was the frescos by Giotto in the church of St. Francis of Assisi. Naive and endearing, they are superb in color and design. But like much of the great art of Italy they are hard to see. We were there on a cloudy afternoon and it was hard to discern them in the gloom.

When one thinks of the centuries they have been there and the wealth of the Catholic Church it seems curious they have never been properly lighted. Were I Mr. Rockefeller, that would be one of my projects and oddly enough, in the long run, I think it would give just as much pleasure, if of a slightly different kind, to just as many people as trying to keep the Dodgers in New York.

The church of St. Francis is the most famous monument in Assisi, but quite as lovely in its way is the small and exquisite Temple of Minerva in the upper square. It is the color of dark honey and was built long before the birth of Christ.

THE MEDIEVAL FORTRESS town of Perugia still stands, but the old walls are largely obscured by modernity and it is very noisy. Unfortunately, it is the spiritual aspect that causes the trouble. Religion in Italy is loud, early and discordant. The church bells start before 6 o'clock and they clang without harmony, reverberating through the narrow streets of the towns and one, this one I am afraid, is moved not so much to contemplation of matters spiritual as to irritation at having been awakened at dawn after a day of intensive sight-seeing.

Among the sights worth seeing in Perugia are two rooms: The Merchant's Guild and the Stock Exchange of the 14th Century. The panels and benches, almost like pews, are superbly carved and there is a charming small chapel adjoining, its altar gay with painted bouquets.

My thoughts also dwell lovingly on San Gimignano where the patient oxen walk the furrows and where the strange square, quiet towers rise into the sky, the skyscrapers of the Middle Ages.

But I suppose of the lot Siena is the pearl. Siena with its shell-like Piazza Del Campo, the shape of a lion's paw, and with its magnificent Gothic Town Hall and Campanile.

WE LUNCHED at La Speranza, a restaurant facing the Hall across the Piazza in sunshine and shadow and it was all the good doctor could do to down his pasta, so involved was he with picture taking. Three kinds of cameras.

Then, too, there is the Cathedral, the Duomo as Italian churches are called, which must stand as one of the most magnificent examples of religious architecture in the world. For the church of Siena one rings out all the adjectives—superb, imposing, magnificent, colorful, yet it is still somehow intimate. More personally appealing than St. Peter's while richer in treasure, marble and mosaics than Orvieto. It was built in the 14th Century and has, heaven be praised, been spared through the ages to gladden the hearts and eyes of thousands of travelers who have gazed upon it as well as the lucky Sienese who live beside it.

Twice a year, on July 2nd and August 16th, the town relives its splendid past when the young men of Siena's 17 wards don the costumes of the 15th Century and march in a great procession with banners and join in a wild horse race. The festivity is called the Palio which means banner and it is something I want to see. Would the doctor get pictures on that great day! Wow!

WINE LUNCHEON

Tips on selection of wines to complement various dishes were given by a representative of a leading winery at the November meeting of Officers Wives Club at Allen Center. Members invited their "boy friends" as special guests. Chatting before the luncheon are Rear Adm. Robert L. Campbell, base commander, and Mrs. B. H. Bieri Jr., club president.—(Staff photo.)

A reception, marking the opening of four new exhibitions, will be given from 2 to 5 p.m. in the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. The new exhibitions — 100 Rembrandt etchings, 26 works by young American painters, 19th century American landscape drawings and a one-man exhibition of paintings by J. Patrick MacLean—may be seen in the Museum until Nov. 28.

THE COLLECTION of Rembrandt etchings in the Museum of Art is lent by the Achenbach Foundation for Graphic Arts and first was shown in the California Palace of the Legion of Honor in San Francisco during the summer of 1956. It is one of the most comprehensive exhibitions of the great Dutch master's etchings recently offered on the West Coast. Included are Rembrandt's portrait of the preacher Cornelis Sylvius, 1634; "Raising of Lazarus," 1642, and "Three Crosses," 1653.

The exhibition of "Young American Painters," circulated by the Museum of Modern Art, New York, is one of a series of shows intended to acquaint the public with the works of artists not yet widely known.

"Nineteenth Century American Landscape Drawings" lent by the Corcoran Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C., shows the work of famous landscape painters, including Whistler, Blakelock, John S. Sargent, William S. Mount, Worthington Whittredge and Thomas Moran.

The MacLean exhibition includes oil paintings and collage works covering a variety of subjects including landscape and figure studies, completed by the artist in the past three years.

JEAN CLAD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Brown, 25 Belmont Ave., will exhibit her paintings in the Camino Gallery in New York City Nov. 15 through Dec. 5. This will be Mrs. Clad's first one-man show in New York. She previously has exhibited in one-man shows in San Francisco and Trieste, Italy.

After graduating from Woodrow Wilson High School and U. C., Berkeley, she studied painting with Andre Lhote in Paris. She then spent three years traveling and painting in Europe. She was the only foreigner invited to exhibit in the all-Italian Premio di Bolzano art show.

After her return to the U. S. she lived for a time in California and then settled in New York City. Together with her husband, novelist Noel Clad, she plans soon to visit and exhibit her work in Long Beach.

MARY MAE O'BRIEN, 727 B Linden Ave., has two paintings, "Fishermen's Delight" and "Ramona" in the current San Pedro Art Assn. exhibition. And her "Love Thy Neighbor" recently was shown in the Long Beach Museum of Art.

Making Use of Time Is Her Specialty

As an example of what one woman can do—!

Twenty-eight oil paintings by Elaine Malco were awarded as prizes at the recent fall festival at Our Lady of Refuge Church. The paintings had taken most of Mrs. Malco's spare time for the past seven months.

Mrs. Malco, 5441 El Cedral, Park Estates, president of the Long Beach Branch of the National League of American Pen Women, has won first place in state and second place in national Pen Women art competition.

FOR SEVERAL years she was judge at the Date Festival at Indio, last year she judged the Laguna Beach Art Festival and this year she judged the San Pedro Art Assn. show. She teaches art in Our Lady of Refuge school.

She is the wife of Leo Malco, vice president of Walker's. They have a son, David, 15, and daughters Elaine Anne, 12, and Anna, 9.

In addition to her art work, Mrs. Malco is an enthusiastic gardener, and a good cook!

Albums for Small Fry

Young America's listening nowadays is receiving the same serious treatment in record making as is given to discs for adults.

Whether it's a recording of Brahms' Lullaby for a new album for sleepy heads or the songs of Walt Disney to the accompaniment of a 30-piece orchestra, each phase of the recording, from selection of the subject to the choice of the artist and the actual production of the record, receives the attention of an expert in his particular field.

Mothers are discovering what records can do not only in keeping the youngsters amused but in developing in them an ear for good music.

The traditional children's classics—Pinocchio, Cinderella, Aladdin and Sleeping Beauty—are now obtainable on lp records.

All of the albums have four-color illustrations to make them attractive to the eye as well as the ear.

Sputnik, Muttnik—Let's Visit Paris!

An outstanding group of color travel films will be screened at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Los Altos Branch Library, 5614 Britton Dr., by Miss Nina Boyle, film librarian at the Main Library.

"Paris on the Seine," a beautiful camera study of the "Queen of Cities," and "In Paris Parks," a personal view of children in Paris will be shown first. Following a brief intermission "Madeline," Ludwig Bemelman's delightful story of a lovable little girl and "Lascaux — Cradle of Man's Art" will complete the program.

The public is invited. There is no admission charge.

Major & Minor Notes

By RACHEL MORTON

The Ford Foundation has recently allotted $760,000 for five projects; three in music, one in drama and one in art. Considering the Foundation's multi-million grants to education and its own vast resources, the Arts come out at the lean end of the horn!

Why are the Arts so neglected in this country? Why are artists in America looked upon as poor relations, entitled to little better than handouts? (And I don't mean Ford handouts!)

Of course I know the answer. Success in American terms is synonymous with MONEY. Artists seem mostly to be paupers.

In Europe it is not so. Art with the Europeans is the highest achievement of man, and an artist, whether an actor, a musician or a painter is the idol of the people.

* * * *

JUST NOTE the contrast. In this rich country of ours musicians who have spent their lives perfecting their art to a point where they are eligible to an "improved contract" with a major symphony orchestra can be assured of only 32 weeks of employment and a $5,000 salary.

In some cities, so-called major symphony orchestras have seasons of only 20 weeks and pay salaries of $100 a week. Imagine trying to live and support a family on that kind of money! Naturally the musician must hustle around for some other work to augment his meager pittance. Is this fair? Is this democratic? Is this human? Especially considering what plasterers and painters and carpenters are getting today.

* * * *

HOW DO the Europeans sponsor Art? The governments of France, Italy and Germany have subsidized conservatories in every major city where talented youth may have four years of superior training in all branches of the Arts, absolutely free. But the pupil, if successful, is obliged to pay back to the government what his training has cost.

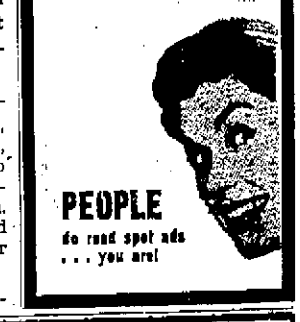

And what of the graduate? Is he left to flounder around alone after he leaves school? Not at all. Subsidized opera houses, symphony orchestras and art galleries with continuous exhibits, all are waiting to absorb the new talent. The people in Europe enjoy the Arts, not only as entertainment, but as education.

* * * *

WHEN I WAS in Germany after World War I there were 154 opera houses giving performances in the German cities every night, while the movies were sparsely attended. After World War II, Vienna rebuilt her opera house, though there was scarcely enough to eat. On Lake Como, in Italy, one summer I used to hear boatloads of people sailing by, singing lustily all the loved opera airs. In France one sees groups of eager faces scanning the week's opera schedule pasted on the cylindrical disks on every corner. Yes, the European loves music, loves beauty, loves culture. And the last thing that concerns a European artist is getting rich. (That is, until they strike America.)

As long as there is recurrent life there will be artists, sensitive people who want, more than anything else, to give expression to the God-sparked talent within them. Where shall these talented ones find opportunity in our country?

Perhaps the Ford Foundation will consider the European way of sponsoring and subsidizing Art. Let the Foundation set up art and music centers in all our great cities with opportunities for study and opportunities for expression and, most of all, opportunities for earning commensurate with the rare gift that is an artist's.

Days of Forty-Niners

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS

by PLACER MINER

The pace of student activities at Long Beach State College this next week slows down a bit in comparison to the action-packed days just ended. With the hustle and bustle of Homecoming out of the way, we would venture a guess that some Staters might even be able to squeeze in a few hours for study.

No books for Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority and Phi Kappa Tau Fraternity tonight, however. The two are having an exchange from 8 p. m. to midnight in the Soroptimist House. The theme is Ivy League, and refreshments, singing, and dancing are on tap.

TUESDAY NIGHT sees CSTA (California Student Teachers' Association) in their second meeting of the year in the Soroptimist House at 8 p. m. to hear a panel discussion, "Children Speak."

Pupils from the fourth and sixth grades, junior high, and senior high will talk about school, teachers, likes, and dislikes. Gordon Klein, program chairman, will moderate, and refreshments will be served.

The committee, taking note of the successful last meeting when attendance was so good that there were not enough chairs, urged, "Y'all come—more chairs have been obtained."

FOOTBALL GAME FRIDAY with Cal Poly marks the end of the 1957 season, and to take note of the event Associated Men Students are sponsoring an after-the-game-dance in the cafeteria.

Young ladies on campus will be admitted free, but males will have to fork up 25 cents in order to avail themselves of the chance to dance with the girls of their choice.

Refreshments will be served at the dance, the first of several activities planned by AMS during the current school year.

SATURDAY SEEMS a busy day, with three major happenings scheduled.

First, the CSTA is active again, this time trekking to Mt. Saint Mary's College in Los Angeles for a professional problems conference. The day-long session will be devoted mainly to panel discussions centering around teaching ethics, NEA, provisional credentials, and other subjects dear to a teacher's heart.

Another group which hits the road Saturday is Delta Zeta Sorority; they are headed for nearby UCLA where they will initiate the Delta Sigma Epsilons into the DZ organization.

Incidentally, were Ol' Placer Miner's eyes deceiving him, or did he see a Delta Zeta Homecoming Queen poster with "Homecoming" spelled with two "e's"?

Back to your fifth grade spellers, girls, or you'll never keep the scholarship trophy your sorority won last year!

Saturday is also the time for the monthly get-together of Omega Alpha Delta, Professional Women's Service Group. They have scheduled a potluck luncheon in the Soroptimist House. Recipes from A to Z are expected in response to chairman Andre Meyer's invitation to members to bring their "best dish" and the recipe so others may copy it.

Nellie Pyeatt, Ruthe Duvalle, Mabel Leyba and Genevieve Jenkins will be on hand to decorate the festive board in real Thanksgiving style.

Can't close without taking note of a truly fine production, "Medea," which opens a three-night run at the LBSC Little Theater on Thursday night. And we suppose we should also mention Veterans Day—a school holiday Monday which we surmise is the most popular listing on the entire week's calendar.

AMONG CAREER WOMEN

Some Facts About Work and Widows

By ANNE GILCHRIST

Widows, a new book plus some recent survey figures add up to an interesting and timely topic for discussion in this column concerning working women.

A nationally conducted survey recently disclosed that of the country's more than eight million widows almost half of them are employed at full-time or part-time jobs. In reference to the new book, "How to Be a Successful Widow," author R. Louis Zalk points out that a surprisingly large number of widows seek work to overcome the destructive consequences of loneliness and inactivity. He strongly recommends employment as a very real source of satisfaction and as a well-paved highway leading to new friends and interests; an invaluable aid to readjustment.

IT WOULD seem that age is no serious obstacle to employment for more than a quarter of the working widows are in the 65-69 years of age group. Even more interesting is the fact that some half million women in the over-70 group are working regularly.

The severe emotional experience of widowhood and the after effects of fear, depression and loss of self-confidence are overwhelming. For many women their troubles seem to be compounded by the pressing need for financial security. And getting a job often is a job in itself for women who have had little if any career experience. But once achieved it is a rich source of satisfaction to widows.

Zalk says that helping the widow evaluate her capabilities in terms of employment is the first step. He lists seven general employment categories to be studied.

1. DOMESTIC service—There is always a market for such help. The average widow's housekeeping experience has left her fully trained for such a job.

2. Light industry—The natural dexterity of women can be used to good advantage in many lines of manufacturing.

3. Agriculture—Farm wives frequently are able to turn their knowledge of produce, dairy products and the like into profitable small business ventures.

4. Office work—This is a highly competitive field and offers opportunity only to the widow with basic business skills who is alert and energetic.

5. Sales—Retail selling is well suited to the feminine temperament and offers satisfaction to the neat and personable widow who has been active in social, club and church circles and thus is accustomed to dealing with a variety of people.

6. "At Home" employment—This is an increasingly popular means of making an income while taking care of household duties and responsibilities. Inventiveness and a particular ability can combine to make it a well-paid career.

7. Professional work—Of all categories this is perhaps the most difficult for an older woman to enter as a career. Extensive training and rigorous hours are the obstacles.

For the widow who doesn't need the extra income of employment or whose health makes regular work impossible, there are many, many "jobs" open for the asking to give her life incentive and meaning. These jobs are open to all in work for Red Cross, Civil Defense, Community Volunteer services and in dozens of club and church groups whose main object is help others.

Insurance Women

The do's and don't's of "dressing up" a home were explained to Insurance Women of Long Beach at their dinner meeting Thursday conducted in the Boulevard Room of the Lafayette Hotel by guest speaker Elizabeth Norberg Hodgkin, interior decorator associated with Anne Phillips. She was introduced by Roberta Gordon, program chairman.

Pauline Kincaid, president, welcomed several guests, prospective members especially bidden to this meeting. Plans were completed for the club's annual bosses night in December and it was announced that a family has been adopted to receive special attention at the holidays.

DINING OUT IN PASO ROBLES
. . . And so's his old man!

Something for the Boys

Back From Bay City With Horrible Tale

By TED KREC

I have just returned from a week in San Francisco, and I'd like to say for the record that our men-about-town would do well to take a leaf from the book of the boys in the fog capital.

Dining out in the Bay City is a genuine pleasure fashion-wise. I didn't see a sport shirt in a restaurant all week, and when a diner would get up to leave, he'd reach up on a peg and take down—you guessed it—a hat!

I noticed, too, in my meanderings around Shakyville that the European influence is making itself felt in men's wear. I saw countless displays of imported styles in the store windows and on the streets.

Of course, the business suit still is holding its own up there and the Ivy or natural look predominates.

* * * *

MY WIFE and I drove up to San Francisco, and thereby hangs a dandy tale.

We left on Sunday by way of the Hollywood Freeway and out Ventura Blvd. to Hwy. 101. On the way, I was making a silent survey of styles in men's clothes. (My wife will argue about that term 'silent." Guess I did get a bit vociferous at times.)

Through Long Beach, Los Angeles and the Ventura Blvd. area, the men were about evenly divided—careless dressers and neat, correct dressers. I did see quite a few sports-shirted and coatless men coming out of restaurants.

In Ventura we stopped for a cup of coffee and went into a beautiful little place. There wasn't a coat or tie in the room! All the men were wearing open-neck sport shirts despite the fact that it was Sunday afternoon and they were taking their well-dressed wives out to dinner!

But the show-stopper came in Paso Robles. There we stopped at the very fashionable Paso Robles Inn for a bite to eat. While sitting at the curved counter, I happened to glance at the lad next to me, and I must confess the sight gave me quite a start. He looked very sheepish. By this I do not mean he looked meek and timid—he looked like a sheep, and a sheep badly in need of shearing, at that!

He was about 14 or 15 and was clad in a ratty T-shirt, baggy slacks, clod-hopper shoes and big, wide suspenders. But it was his hair that fascinated me most. In the back and on the sides it was as long as a girl's hair, and he had it arranged fetchingly—right over his face. I'm afraid I stared in bewilderment, wondering how he was going to get his food through the hirsute tangle. In fact, I didn't rest easy about it until I saw his fork disappear into this portable coco mat and saw him swallow. Then, at least, I knew he wasn't going to die of malnutrition.

* * * *

"WHAT KIND of a family must he have," I whispered hoarsely to my wife, "to let him appear in public looking like a dirty ball of yarn?"

"See for yourself," she said. I craned my neck around and looked past the lad—never fearing embarrassment about staring, for he couldn't possibly see me through that mop. His parents were seated right next to him.

The kindest thing I can say about his mother was that I honestly don't remember what she looked like; but his father was dressed in a ratty T-shirt, baggy slacks, clod-hopper shoes and big, wide suspenders. And he couldn't see me, either, because his hair was as long as a girl's hair on the sides and in the back and he, too, had it arranged fetchingly—right over his face!

And then as the sun sank slowly in the west, I pointed the prow of my valiant Volvo northward and took my leave of Paso Robles—vowing never to return again!

Nobody Wins Arguments Between Men and Women

By RUTH MILLETT

It's a mistake for a woman ever to argue with a man. There are a lot of sound reasons behind that conclusion, as all truly feminine women eventually will agree.

A woman never is less feminine than when she is attempting to prove a man wrong. What woman would rather be right than be feminine?

The man's ego can't be overlooked. When a woman tells a man he is wrong and can prove it, she is putting him in a position where he has to defend his stand even if he is convinced she is right. How can he happily admit that a woman has bested him in an argument?

If a woman does occasionally win a man's grudging, "OK, maybe you're right," she drives a wedge between their mutual admiration for each other. For a while at least, he thinks she is bossy and opinionated, and she thinks he is a stubborn mule. This doesn't help their relationship.

THERE IS ALWAYS the chance that the man is right and wins the argument hands down. Then he isn't going to let her forget how wrong she was. The fact that she doubted his wisdom in the first place makes it necessary for him to rub in his triumph just a little.

So nobody wins when a man and woman argue. Wise women learn this young and prove the points they want to make without damaging a man's self-esteem.

It's one of the reasons men say they can't understand women.

What they really mean is they can't understand women who know how to get their own way or put across a point without resorting to an argument.

Errors Foil Spade Game

TODAY'S contract was bounced back and forth like a rubber ball.

West opened the king of diamonds and East played the three. West shifted to the king of clubs and East made the mistake of signaling an enthusiastic comeon.

West came on with the queen of clubs and South ruffed. Now if South had been satisfied to make his contract on the nose, he could have breezed in. All he had to do was to lead a diamond. Either opponent could win and play anything but

	NORTH ♠ A K 10 9 4 ♥ 8 3 2 ♦ 7 5 ♣ 6 4 2	9
WEST ♠ 8 5 5 3 ♥ 6 ♦ A K J 9 2 ♣ K Q 10		EAST ♠ 2 ♥ K 10 7 ♦ 10 4 3 ♣ A J 9 8 5 3
	SOUTH (D) ♠ Q J 7 ♥ A Q J 9 5 4 ♦ Q 8 6 ♣ 7

Both vulnerable

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Double	2 ♥	3 ♣
3 ♥	4 ♣	4 ♥	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♦ K

South would be able to get into dummy twice; once with a spade and once by ruffing his last diamond. This would have given South time to take two trump finesses and he would have picked up East's trumps.

* * * *

SOUTH WANTED an over trick. He led the jack of spades and overtook with dummy's king. The heart was led and finessed and a second spade was led toward dummy at which point the hand collapsed. East ruffed and put his partner in with a diamond whereupon another spade was led and ruffed. Down two.

Good defense would not have given South a chance to misplay the hand. East should have played his lowest club at trick two whereupon West should have shifted to a spade. Now South would have had to lose a spade ruff no matter how he played the hand.

Furthermore, good bidding would have given East and West the rubber. Five clubs makes easily if the diamond finesse is taken.

Garden Club

A representative of a spray-chemical company will discuss rose culture and show colored slides to members of Long Beach Garden Club Tuesday. The group will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Linden Hall for potluck dinner.

Members of their immediate families witnessed the double-ring wedding service performed Oct. 11 in Seattle, Wash. The couple is now residing in Long Beach.

Operation Needed? Tell Child the Truth

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Few children escape at least one experience in a hospital. And whether this be a tonsillectomy or something more serious, there must be some preparation made before the visit there.

A parent who wants to retain her child's trust never will announce the child's coming hospital episode as if he were going to a picnic. The hospital is a place for helping people to get well and to care for them while they are ill—but it is not pleasurable recreation.

If the child is from 2 to 3, he should not be told about his going until just a few days before it will happen. If he is older there is no harm in telling him sooner — if you know it. This explanation should be completely reassuring.

* * * *

WHAT BOTHERS children is separation from the parents and the strangeness of a hospital about which they may have heard in rather menacing terms, such as "He HAS to go to the hospital."

Explain all about it, how it looks and what will happen to him there. Don't forget the prick of his finger for blood tests, or the enema he may have to suffer from strange hands. Describe the nurses and how nice they will be to him. And make the doctor seem his friendly ally.

Sometimes there may be a sedative before he goes into the operating room; in which case he will be less frightened. But if he is wheeled in, describe the way the room will look and all the masked attendants. Tell him if he breathes deeply of the anesthetic, he will go to sleep promptly and will know nothing until he is ready to come out and be welcomed back in room by his parents. In some hospitals children go to sleep to a soothing record player, or breathe ether from a cuddly, toy animal. But he should be prepared for the mask.

Do not disguise the fact that if his tonsils are taken out his throat will be sore afterwards, but by late that night he probably will enjoy some refreshing ice cream. Assure him that if there is any pain he will be given drugs to dull it.

* * * *

MAKE MUCH of the fact that you will be right with him when he goes into the operating room, and right there when he comes out. Other children may be in the room with him, too, and he can visit with them and enjoy their experiences.

Let him take some of his favorite toys and books with him and borrow or rent a radio if he enjoys listening to it. When you come to see him bring a bright face and some small gift each day. This will take his mind from his own discomforts and help him to say goodby to you with greater grace because he'll be looking forward to the next day.

There are times when a doctor has to curtail or even prevent parents from visiting the child if their coming or going upsets him too much. But, ordinarily, nurses and doctors welcome the presence and the help of parents. They can do much for a child and make him feel that he is not being neglected by them.

Most important of all is the parental attitude that all is going well with him, that he soon will be home to relate his adventure to other children. There should be no long faces, no emphasis upon "How do you FEEL?" but only assurance that he is progressing as everyone wishes that he would. When the child thinks his parents are not afraid, then neither is he.

Why Grow Old?

Exercise to Make Legs Lovely for New Fashions

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Very short skirts are not flattering to many women. The chopped off silhouette itself is awkward but most important, few women have legs which are that good looking, and let's not even mention knees!

No doubt some women will wear the knee-length mode. Even more usual, skirts as a whole will shorten an inch or so. However, we all know now that the most becoming length for legs is mid-calf. Since women have become so much more independent and individual in their dress, they probably will not take their skirt lengths all the way to the knee.

Just the same the leg will be more prominent as a part of your figure ensemble this season than it has been for some time. Therefore, "Why Grow Old?" is here today to take you a step or two toward leg beauty.

2. Lie on the floor on your back or sit in a chair. Raise your left leg up in front of you. Bend the knee slightly and make circles with your lower left leg. Circle for a while in one direction and then in the other. When circling lead with your toe. After a while do the same thing with your right leg. This is beautifying to ankle and calf.

3. One of the best exercises for the ankle is circling with the foot, first in one direction and then in the other.

4. The best calf-slimming exercises take stretching into account. For instance, this one. Lie on the floor on your back. Raise your left leg up as far as you can with a stiff knee. As you raise the leg pull back with the toe, or the toe points back toward the head. Alternate left and right. Feel your way along with this one. It is painful if you do it too suddenly and strenuously.

* * * *

IF YOU WOULD like to have my leaflet, "Take Steps Toward Lovely Legs," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 13. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Worry Clinic

Columnist Justifies Journalistic Efforts

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case W-341: Matilda Y., aged 43, is a cultured woman.

"That awful Dr. Crane," she protested recently to an editor friend of mine.

"How can you possibly justify the use of his daily column in your FAMILY newspaper?" she added.

"Why, he presented the case this week of a high school girl whose escort insisted on illicit sexual liberties.

"What will the children think when they read such things in the newspaper! It is shocking!"

First, children rarely read the editorial pages of newspapers. They usually stop with the comic pages.

In late high school, they finally dip into some of the other features, including the local sport news.

But these children of such "tender years" as Matilda indicates, seldom look at this or any other editorial feature.

Second, what about the 70 million people in America who belong to no church whatever, either Jewish, Protestant or Catholic?

Their children are growing up, almost like Topsy, with little or no moral instruction. They read about rape on page one.

* * * *

SO ISN'T it the function of a great newspaper to help educate and prepare its vast readership for happier adult lives by this type of educational column?

Actually, high schools all over America are using this column and the medico-psychological booklets offered herewith, to help instruct teenagers.

So, too, are scores of colleges and universities. Moreover, 1,500 priests, rabbis and clergymen every year write to me via this column for advice on family counseling and sexual problems of their parishioners.

This daily newspaper is a great "University in Print," and its educational value is incalculable.

When the Roman Catholic Bishop of Iowa commissioned Father Kinnavey of St. Ambrose College to conduct a special clinic for priests who were to go forth and conduct Cana Conferences for the great Roman Catholic Church, Father Kinnavey asked for a whole set of these newspaper booklets on "Sex Problems in Marriage," "Impotence," etc., to use in that worthy project.

And many other denominations have done likewise. I have personally been asked to conduct marriage clinics for the Methodists, Baptists, Orthodox Jews, Church of God, Seventh-day Adventists, Presbyterians, Disciples of Christ, Lutherans and other great religious denominations.

* * * *

SO DON'T get the idea that a daily newspaper is a "yellow" journalism sheet. Instead, it is the main educational prop for most Americans!

After the age of 18, about 85 per cent of Americans quit all contact with the formal classroom forever.

Who educates these 85 per cent the remaining adult years that they live? It's the newspaper!

Who furnishes you the latest history of this planet, Earth? Who offers medico-psychological advice on all phases of family and social affairs?

Who gives you political science lessons via its editorials? Who hands you the latest financial quotations and banking news?

And who offers a variety of cultural columns on music and art, the theater, needlecraft and a dozen other vital aspects of modern life?

It's the daily newspaper! So when you hear old-fashioned views like those of Matilda, please set her straight.

We live in the midst of 20th-century progress, which is paced by newspapers.

Dear Abby

Be Firm! It's Your Home

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My neighbor lady was having some sort of depression so her doctor told her to get out amongst people so she started to come over here at 8 o'clock every morning.

She'd bring her lunch and lie on my davenport and tell me, "Go ahead and do your work, I won't bother you." My husband and kids would refuse to come to the breakfast table so I had to bring them trays in their rooms. When the kids came home from school she'd still be there. I can't get rid of her, but I tell you, Abby, I am going to beat her to the nut-house if she doesn't leave me alone. How can I get her out of my house?—GOING CRAZY.

ABBY

DEAR GOING: Self-preservation is the first law of nature. Tell her as diplomatically as possible that YOU get nervous with someone around when you do your work. Sorry, but you'll have to be firm or YOU'LL be having the depression.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: What do you do about a husband who talks about another woman in his sleep? Yet when I told him about it he said I am making it all up. We have been married a long time and have four children and it isn't like me to be upset over something like this but it really has gotten on my nerves hearing that woman's name all night. Should I talk this over with this other woman (she is my friend) and find out if she has given him any reason to be talking about her in his sleep?

—NERVOUS.

DEAR NERVOUS: Don't talk to this woman who probably is the innocent victim of your husband's nocturnal babbling. And don't nag your husband about it—it probably is something he ate.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: My wife is 38 but looks like a teenager. I am 44 but I guess I'm not what you'd call the romantic type. My neighbors tell me that all the young men who come to my house on business stick around and visit with my wife. I mean the delivery men, the insurance man and the mailman. Should I call up and ask their bosses to send older men?

—NOT ROMANTIC.

DEAR NOT: Older men is not the answer—What your wife needs is a husband with YOUNGER IDEAS.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's ex-wife left him for another man. She didn't want the kids so I am raising them. About once a month she takes the kids (two girls, age 10 and 8) for a weekend. When she brings them back they are very spoiled because she lets them sit up and watch TV as long as they want and she gives them all they want to eat. I mean candy and pop. The girls think she is wonderful and I am terrible. I am rather quiet and like peace. Should I take this up with my husband or what?

ANNOYED SECOND WIFE.

DEAR ANNOYED: This woman either doesn't know any better—or she is deliberately making it tough for you. By all means talk to your husband about it—and if necessary—talk to her.

* * * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO STELLA: Fourteen years is a long time. Live a little.

* * * *

IF YOU HAVE a problem, write to Abigail Van Buren in care of this paper. She will be glad to answer your letter. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MOLLY MAYFIELD

Psychopathic Boy Friend

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My fiance says he trusts me, but once in a while he gets the feeling that I'm meeting someone secretly or having different guys come by the house after he's gone.

He doesn't seem to realize how bad it makes me feel. He says after he talks to me about them—yells would be more like it—he gets out of a bad humor. What in the world can I do? I don't want to marry someone who feels that way about me.

For example, I was asked to baby sit once, and because he couldn't come with me, he was certain I had another date. I told him I didn't, but in a little while he called back to be reassured again.

I never have done anything to earn this distrust. Boys come to see my sister, and my fiance is sure they're just using that as an excuse to see me. TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED:

A little jealously is a lot of fun, but your beau sounds downright psychopathic. I agree that you don't want to marry someone in that state of mind and, what's more, you don't even want to stay around him too long.

Why not just speak right out and say: "Look, I never have cheated on you. But every time you talk, it gives me ideas. And, so help me, the next time you hint at something like that, I'll try and live up to your worst expectations." Or words to that effect.

The shock treatment might be just strong enough to get him off this suspicious kick—at least for an interlude.

M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

What do you think of a husband who insists on going with his wife when she does her weekend marketing? He tells her what she should buy, how much, and even picks out things we don't need. (Obviously, I'm married to the man in question.)

It makes me feel silly to go into a grocery store and go through the same fuss every week—like I wasn't quite responsible.

I'm a pretty good shopper and a pretty good gal with a budget. Why should I put up with this kind of interference? EVERYDAY READER

DEAR EVERYDAY READER:

You shouldn't. Not unless hubby is ready to have you accompany him to the garage and explain to the mechanic what you think is wrong with the car . . . or have you pick out all of his wardrobe for him . . . or have you give him explicit instructions about fixing the lawn mower.

There are some men who like to shop and some women who like to have them shop. Fine and dandy. But your gent is just kibitzing in a province that's rightly yours. And unless he's ready to grant you "equal time" at the tasks he customarily performs, 'tain't fair.

I'd just explain those conditions to him — and the whole dilemma likely will go away. At least I've known very few men who enjoyed hearing a woman explain the car trouble by saying the "do-ma-floppy doesn't quite jig the thing-a-ma-jig."

Jean Louise Treichel

'Cat in Bag' Tells Troth

Jean Louise Treichel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Treichel, of Long Beach, will become the bride of Edward Beckstrom June 21, friends learned in a surprise announcement made at a party given by Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Gripp, 4228 Greenbrier Rd.

The news was disclosed in a novel manner when friends "let the cat out of the bag" by opening a paper sack tied with ribbon and containing a white foam kitten with two wedding bells, bearing the names of the couple, tied around its neck.

The bride-elect attended Wilson High School and Long Beach City College. Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. August Beckstrom of this city, is a pre-theological student at Long Beach State College. The two young persons take an active part in Trinity Lutheran Church Young People's Organization, where they met.

TELL TROTH

Brethren High School alumni Linda Lee Welch and James Edward Williams revealed their engagement at a gathering of church friends. The bride-to-be is a student at LBSC; he attends Cal Poly at San Dimas. Their parents are Messrs. and Mmes. Robert S. Welch and Wesley O. Williams.

Long Beach Chiropractic Auxiliary will have a dinner meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the University Club, 1150 E. Ocean Blvd.

Set Special Thanksgiving Table for 'Little People'

By KAY SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

Festive simplicity is the watchword of the modern hostess planning her Thanksgiving celebration. The nostalgic picture of the elaborate feast with all the kinfolk gathered around the banquet table just doesn't jibe with modern living.

In the first place, who has a banquet table or the space to put it? With families widely scattered, the gathering together to give thanks today often includes close friends and their children.

The spirit of the occasion is as graciously expressed in a simple setting with a menu planned in consideration of the hostess-cook's time, and the determination of the weight - watchers in most households.

ONE OLD - FASHIONED custom to which I subscribe, however, is the separate table for the youngsters. Appoint one of the older children hostess for the table and she can help serve plates, check up on milk drinkers and suggest games to be played while the adults linger over coffee.

Add a festive air with a few decorations. This year on their table I'm using a Pilgrim couple made from milk cartons and paper. These can be made anytime by you or the older children. All you do is tape black paper around a milk carton to form the body; cut out arms from black paper and hands from pink paper and tape onto body. Pink paper around a cardboard tube and decorated with paint makes the face. Ruffled collars and cuffs are cut from white paper baking cups; a strip of tissue paper makes the lady's cape. The Pilgrims will be surrounded by ribbon-tied apples for favors.

* * * *

IF YOU PLAN buffet service, you don't have to forego a decorative centerpiece, but arrange it to complement your dinnerware and the table size. One effective and simple arrangement I saw recently is well suited to a small table. This was an arrangement of seasonal fruits and small gourds and vegetables in a pretty wicker basket set on a narrow tapered runner of green felt.

The pale green felt repeated the frosty green of melamine dinnerware and the centerpiece blended well with the informal service. Because felt comes in so many clear colors this idea is easily adaptable.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

'Feathers' Featherman Is Meandering Man

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

His modus operandi is in good repair. He started on it early and keeps it that way. Chef of the Week Graham F. (Feathers) Featherman (Careful Cleaners) never attended the same school two consecutive years until he landed in junior high. And then his high school career was divided between the states of Missouri, Kentucky and Montana. By this time he had completed a round-trip to his home port, Phillipsburg, Mont.

Featherman started his meandering at the age of 6, and today still brings this same friendly, personal touch to his own business. You see, he makes most of the pick-ups and deliveries whenever possible.

• • • •

HE CAME to Long Beach in 1924, after having worked for a time for his uncle in Omaha, Neb., selling hospital supplies. Quite naturally, he followed this same occupational procedure for a time. Eventually, the cleaning and dyeing business attracted him, and he started his own shop.

A Downtown Lion, he also belongs to the Executives Club, the Bixby-Cal Heights Men's Club, the Long Beach Dinner Club, and is very active in the California Heights Methodist Church. In keeping with his vocation, he not only is a member of the Harbor Dry Cleaners Assn., the National Institute of Dry Cleaners, but also serves as president of the California Dry Cleaners Assn.

Our "chef" contends he plays a dismal game of golf . . . but loves it.

He has come up today with a top-flight recipe for Barbecued Ham Slices. It's one you'll like.

BARBECUED HAM SLICES

Saute:
1 medium onion, sliced in
2 tblsp. butter

Add:
4 tblsp. brown sugar
2 tblsp. vinegar
4 tblsp. lemon juice
Salt and pepper
1 cup ketchup
3 tblsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 tsp. prepared mustard
½ cup water
½ cup chopped celery

Simmer 1 hour. Add more water if necessary.

Have slices cut from middle of ham. Brush one side of ham with sauce. Slash the fat edge. Place on broiler rack three inches from heat, sauce side up. Brown. Turn and brush other side with sauce. Continue broiling until well done. A slice ½ inch thick requires five to seven minutes. A slice one inch thick requires 20 to 30 minutes. Serve with any remaining sauce.

USC Friends Feted at Home

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Bole Jr. entertained a group of Trojan friends at their home, 2848 Montair Ave., Saturday evening following the USC-Stanford game.

Invited were Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Andrews of Los Angeles, George Flynn of North Hollywood, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Ballans of Pasadena, and Messrs. and Mmes. Frank E. Fishbaugh, Edward R. Ludloff, Wilbur B. McColm Jr., Robert H. Middough, and Floyd L. Newsom of Long Beach.

Back From Texas

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Cross of 3030 E. 2nd St., have returned home from a 30-day sojourn in Texas where Mrs. Cross attended the 1925 class reunion of Wesley College at Greenville. The Long Beach couple was extensively feted while in Texas.

Our Children

Understanding Cure for Misbehaviorists

By ANGELO PATRI

Simon was "new boy" in the school. Soon after his arrival scrawled words appeared on the walls. A sharp watch proved this to be Simon's work. The teacher talked things over with the principal and they decided that Simon should become official wall washer. Accordingly Simon was appointed. He was to have charge of walls just as Tony had charge of the playroom floor. He had a badge, a bucket, cloth, powder and a brush. At set times he patrolled the halls and should a mark appear it vanished under his prompt ministrations. The walls were spotless under his reign.

I have known supervisors of children and teachers in elementary schools to spend hours and hours in searching for the sinner who marked a wall, or who made an unholy racket in the hall. That is a sad waste of time and energy both of which could be put to far better use.

• • • •

IN SIMON'S case nothing was said to him about his being concerned in the mischief. Nobody was certain that it was he who made the marks. He was suspected because until his appearance there had been no such marks, and they looked like what he might do, so he was elected. His responsibility and activity helped make him feel needed and wanted in the school, something that had not been his lot in previous experience. He thrived under the feeling of being important, and he was.

Often a nuisance of this sort can be managed in silence. Too much questioning, too much emphasis on the untoward act only serves to lengthen its life. A prolonged investigation is enjoyed by the boys. One passes the word to the next, mentions the fact to the supervisor of this other lad's knowing something about the matter. A session with the supervisor has been known to relieve a person of a dreaded period with the geometry teacher.

• • • •

WHAT IS one to do when there is a series of thefts, of obscene writings, of catcalls in quiet halls? Watch and listen. The custodian, the trusted monitor, the alert supervisor, can keep a watch and in time discover who is behaving childishly in circumstances that require more maturity of thought.

When the culprit is found, the case against him clear, the principal can say "You have done this. Can you tell me why?" The boy rarely can tell why but the experienced supervisor, listening to him, watching him as he talks or squirms in his chair, soon can tell, and go to work to remove the cause.

Jill Gregson Says Vows in Baptist Church Rite

A bridal gown of embroidered tulle over satin in waltz length complemented the youthful beauty of Jill Gregson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Gregson, of Long Beach, when she became the bride of Philip W. Ayars in a Nov. 2 ceremony at First Baptist Church.

More than 100 friends of the bridal pair, including his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Lane, of Fort Worth, Tex., gathered to witness the double-ring rite. Dr. Frank M. Kepner officiated.

With her gown, the bride wore a tiara embroidered with seed pearls to hold her elbow-length veil, and she carried white roses with an orchid.

Striking contrast to her gown was the emerald green satin chosen for the gowns of her attendants, Mrs. Peter H. Young Jr., matron of honor, and Dell Gravette and Marilyn Sherman, bridesmaids. The matron of honor, sister of the bride, carried a bouquet of American beauty roses while the bridesmaids carried the same roses in arrangements with white carnations.

THE BRIDEGROOM asked Peter H. Young Jr. to serve him as best man, and ushering duties were performed by Ronald Gravette and Bill Jensen. Little Valerie Young, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Palm Springs and now are at home at 3852 Charlemagne Ave.

The new Mrs. Ayars was graduated from Polytechnic High School and Long Beach City College. Her husband received his schooling in Fort Worth, Tex., and recently was discharged from the Navy. Both are active in youth groups at First Baptist Church.

OUR COVER

Southland's cover girl Kay Kendall is new to Hollywood, but the experts agree that she will make a big hit in the soon-to-be-released "Les Girls, (see Page 36), an extravagant song-and-dance picture tinseled with gorgeous dolls. Last of a family of British dancers, Kay went to London at age 12 and promptly landed a job with a traveling musical show. At 17, she was playing leads. Her part in J. Arthur Rank's film "Genevieve" brought her to the attention of American producers and in 1955 MGM starred her with Robert Taylor in "Quentin Durward." She agreed to come to Hollywood to star in "Les Girls" provided she could have time off during the shooting to go to New York for a visit with her husband, Rex Harrison, with whom she is very much in love.

NEXT WEEK

Mindful of frequent talk that a monorail system might go a long way towards alleviating the Southland's traffic problem, Blaine Nels Simons (a regular contributor to this magazine) checked into Germany's "schwebebahn" or "suspended monorail" during a recent trip to Europe with his family. He came up with some interesting facts which will be presented to Southland readers next Sunday in an article "Is Monorail Practical Between Long Beach and Los Angeles?"

Among the multitude of other features is the story, told in pictures, of an exciting visit to the Hollywood home of a television-motion picture actress by a new arrival in Long Beach from Argentina. There are some timely tips on Thanksgiving cookery. A short short story by Homer M. Parsons will amuse just about everyone, particularly horseracing fans. And chief photographer Roger M. Coar contributes a cover "Four-Way Conversation" that will take readers back to their childhood in a hurry.

Toybrarian Alice Woodbury explains toy "adoption" procedure to prospective new members at a Long Beach Toy Loan Center, Truman Boyd Manor, 377 Truman Boyd.

The Case of the Stolen Thread

By Afton Booth

THE QUALITY of the mother is all that is considered in the adoption ceremony at three Long Beach institutions.

The diminutive petitioner may have a winsome smile and sparkle in her eye. She may zealously attest to the fact that she wants to adopt the child and will always give it a good home, but that isn't enough. She must also prove good character. Then, and then only, may she claim her new charge and skip off to join her contemporaries.

Many such adoptions take place in Long Beach and other Southern California cities each year through the 43 branches of the Toy Loan Program.

The "adoption for keeps" ceremony is a solemn occasion resembling legal court procedure. Real adoption papers — signed by petitioner and toybrarian, and suitable to frame for the proud new mother's boudoir — are issued.

"ADOPTION" is the reward of 20 or more "S" marks on the small borrowers' toy loan card. The "S" denotes the borrowing and returning of toys in satisfactory condition.

"Toy Loan" is patterned after the book-lending library, with each Toy Loan Center being managed by a toybrarian. There are three such centers in Long Beach:

1. Truman Boyd Manor, 377 Truman Boyd (approximately 3400 Santa Fe Ave.), open Wednesdays, 1:30 to 4:20 p. m.

2. Volunteers of America Bldg., 1700 block Alamitos Ave., open Tuesdays, 1:30 to 4:45 p. m.

3. Cabrillo Housing, 2400 River Ave.; open Fridays, 1:30 to 4:45 p. m.

There is no fine for delay in returning of, or damage to, toys. The boy or girl is simply asked how it happened. During the explanation (some quite fabulous) the toybrarian has an opportunity to judge character by some of the seven "Honor Code" rules: Promptness, cooperation, courtesy, improvement, honesty, cleanliness, and new members.

SINCE BOYS are usually more interested in things with wheels than dolls, their incentive to belong on the Honor Roll is a game or toy.

The drive for discarded or broken toys is always on. Long Beach centers alone average the loan of over 900 toys monthly.

Toy Loan was founded during "depression days," when some children were arrested for stealing spools of thread from a five-and-dime store.

Curious as to why they had stolen only spools of thread, probation officers questioned the young delinquents and found that they used the spools to make wheels for homemade toys. Further investigation revealed that these children came from what had formerly been good homes, but that their parents were listed unemployed or on relief. There just wasn't any money in the family budget for toys.

SOME OF THE CHILDREN were enrolled at the 87th St. School in Los Angeles. Mrs. Gertrude Peddy, principal, and chief probation officer Carl Holten decided something had to be done.

"We can't have children like these become problems — just for lack of toys," they declared.

In 1935 they opened up the first Toy Loan Center under sponsorship of L. A. County Coordination Councils in a gloomy downtown basement.

Today, Toy Loan headquarters occupy a whole factory building, with a suite of attrac-

Capt. Harry Pidgeon (inset), and the Islander, a yawl which he twice sailed around the world.

BOAT TALK

The Lonely Magellan

By Bob Ruskauff

UNTIL he married at the age of 74 (in 1944), Harry Pidgeon, the farm boy from Henry County, Iowa who became the world's greatest single-handed voyager, had been a man alone.

He was a friendly, simple man, with a keen sense of humor; a soft-spoken but engaging conversationalist; a man whose blue eyes in his bronzed, furrowed face could suddenly light at some quick turn of humor then, again, look somberly beyond you into far places.

TWICE, ALONE, in the sturdy 34-foot yawl, Islander, which he built before World War I on the one-time mudflats of Terminal Island, Harry Pidgeon sailed around the world.

Even as the young farm boy was inspired by reading accounts of Capt. Joshua Slocum, the first single-handed globe-circumnavigator, Pidgeon became the inspiration for others.

And, those today who may be dreaming of some future Odyssey in terms only of glamour and pleasure, would not be amiss to read Pidgeon's book, "Around the World Single-Handed." It is a most interesting account of his first world voyage, made between 1921 and 1925.

Few, probably, of those who would heed the call of the main and "escape this maddening throng," possess the timbre that it takes. Harry Pidgeon had it.

Yet, when he had first sailed around the world to the westward ("you don't sail against the trades when you needn't"), Harry had made a decision. He said:

"The sea is lonely and I'm through with it."

SEVEN YEARS LATER he began his second, five-year voyage and then, in 1951 — this time accompanied by his wife and another woman companion —the now 81-year-old mariner sailed for Hawaii and "well, maybe," a third world trip.

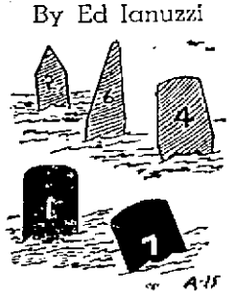

It was never completed. Troubles beset them in Honolulu and the Pidgeons returned. In April 1954, after long-failing health, the grand seafarer died in San Pedro.

But the sagh which this mild-mannered man of adventure provided, long after he had turned 50 years of age — one that will live as long as there are annals of the sea—could well, it seems, be inspiration for many and not, necessarily, seafarers.

BOAT HOOKS: Today, in sailing, it's the 14-Mile Bank race for blue water boats, off Newport. At San Diego, 1957 national championships for F-Class racing outboard runabouts wil feature a regatta sponsored by Pacific Power Boat Club and the Los Angeles Speedboat Association.

They Replace Lost Muscles With Sinews of Steel

By Bryan Hodgson

MECHANICS and engineers have joined the doctors at Rancho Los Amigos Hospital at Downey to form a unique medical team which may change the lives of paralysis victims all over the world.

Using a brand new approach to an old science called orthetics, they are developing devices and techniques to simplify and standardize the incredibly complex task of replacing lost muscle functions with sinews of metal and wire.

Already their work is creating great interest in medical schools and hospitals across the country.

The story of Warren Cox is an example. The 20-year-old Marine veteran is completely paralyzed from the neck down as the result of an automobile accident. But he plans to return to work soon.

In a small workshop in the polio unit, the team of mechanics and engineers has fashioned for him the mechanical means of leading a useful life. He can now control his wheelchair, pick up small objects and—most important of all—dial a telephone.

THANKS TO THEM, HE CAN now perform a job in the office of the construction company where he worked before the accident.

His wheelchair is electrically powered, and a control box is mounted over his lap. He operates the controls by moving a lever with his mouth. Another switch, mounted under his chin, enables him to operate a solenoid which opens and closes a metal "hand." Special articulated braces attached to his wheelchair enable him to move his arms back and forth and up and down.

In addition, orthotists have developed an attachment for telephones which allow him to dial a phone by pushing buttons.

"Almost all these devices can be standardized in production, and would require only minor modifications for other cases," said Roy Snelson, 30-year-old senior orthotist at Rancho.

"This would materially reduce the time and money now required to custom-build orthopedic devices, and enable a far larger number of paralysis victims to be helped."

THERE ARE NINE MEMBERS of the orthetic staff at Rancho, including three orthotists, three assistants, a graduate engineer and an occupational therapist. The group works closely with the hospital's surgical and medical staffs.

"Within a week after a patient is admitted to the hospital, we apply special braces to the affected members to prevent deformity," Snelson said.

"This is necessary because, without bracing, the stronger muscles tend to overpower the weaker ones, causing a distortion which would make the effects of paralysis far more difficult to remedy orthopedically.

"When the patient is ready for orthopedic treatment, we first make a complete survey of the surgical and mechanical possibilities. Many times it is possible to alter the function of remaining muscles through surgery to give the patient limited use of hands or to make the use of orthopedic devices simpler and more efficient.

"THE PATIENT IS THEN INFORMED of all the possibilities, and decides for himself what is to be done.

"Many times, a patient decides to get by with what functions he has left. Others have a distaste for mechanical braces and aids. Some can be restored to limited activity by means of occupational therapy.

"But once a decision has been made, we go to work.

"First, we have to find a suitable source of power—muscles which can be used to operate the devices. In Cox's case, all we had to work with were his neck and shoulder muscles. Other patients have the use of arm, shoulder or leg muscles.

"The engineering comes in when we have to devise equipment to transfer this power to other uses, and that is where we are trying to design standardized parts for use in many applications."

One important invention designed by the orthotists is an automatic pressure relief mechanism which can be used in any arm-brace device. These braces are usually equipped with a spring tension which opposes or assists the patient's muscles. However, to prevent the tension from exhausting already weak muscles, something was needed to relieve the pressure mechanically when the arm was at rest.

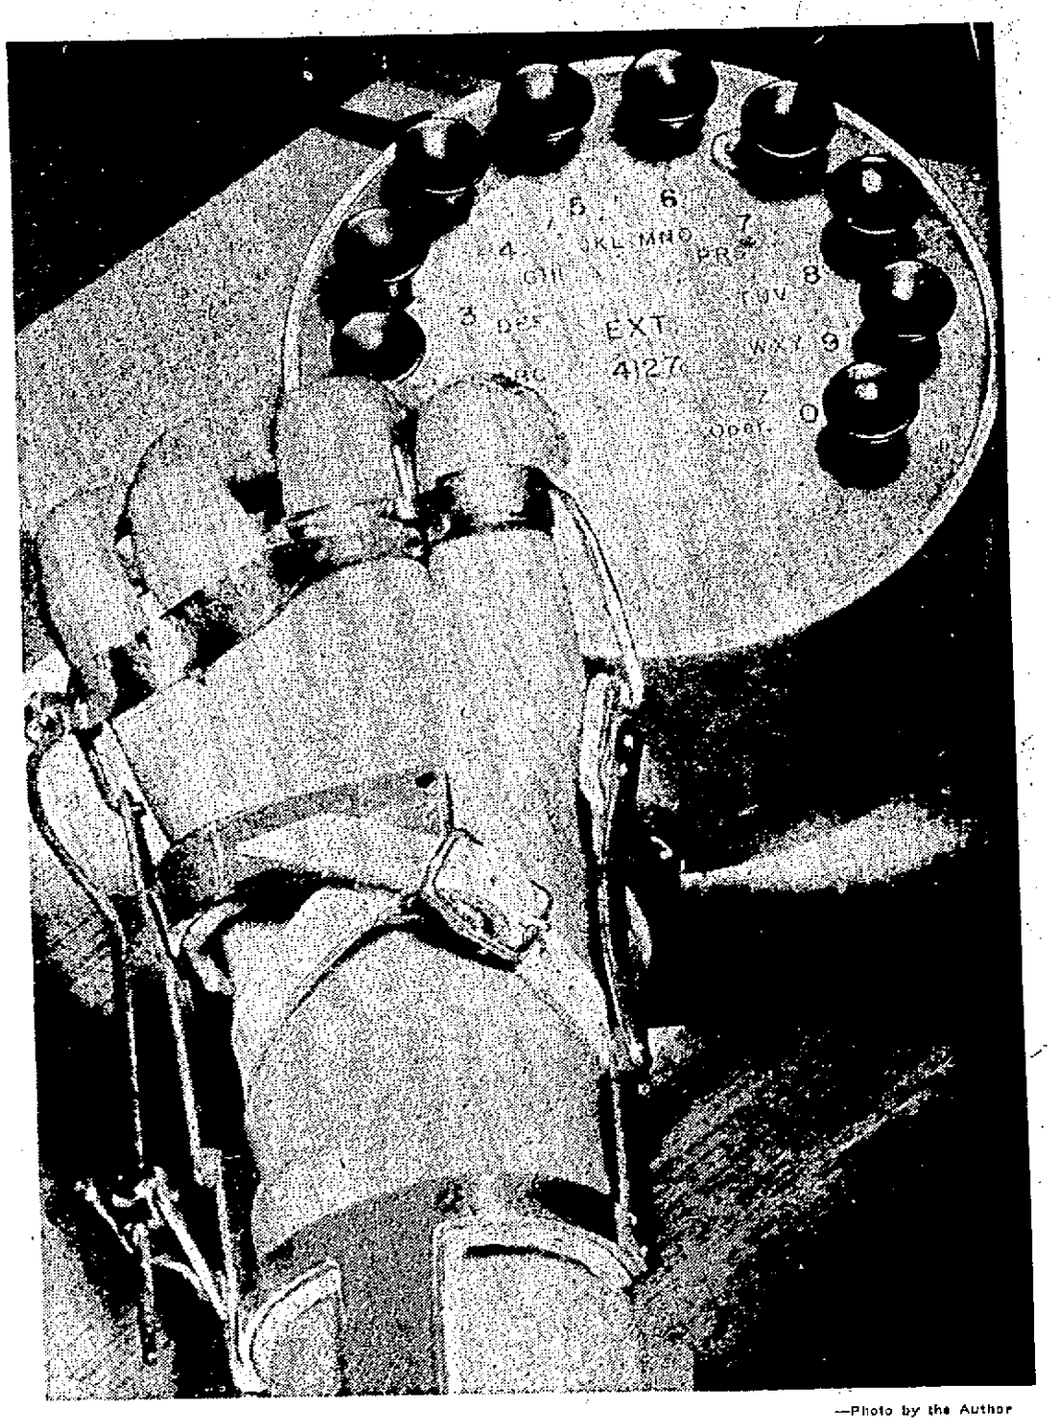

AFTER LONG HOURS of design and machine shop work, the relief mechanism was perfected. It consists of a sliding rachet bar in a small metal case. The patient can release or engage it simply by moving a shoulder or arm.

Other devices designed by the Rancho orthotists include a rachet "shoulder" joint for braces, which can also be easily engaged and released, and special braces called ball-bearing feeders which are attached to the wheelchair and support the arms as they move back and forth and up and down.

"Of course, it would be unrealistic to attempt to replace all lost muscle functions mechanically. What we try to do is design equipment which enables the patient to perform a limited number of useful functions with a minimum of machinery.

"This equipment must be light, practical and easy to operate. Sometimes it is sufficient merely to give the patient the ability to open and close his hand. That may not sound like much, but there's this to remember:

"When you've lost everything, a little is a lot."

The Christ Nobody Wanted

AT FIRST GLANCE, the scattered groups of white figures on the side of a desolate desert mountain gives the viewer an odd feeling that he is seeing a mirage. If he is inquisitive, he'll follow a winding dirt road up from the floor of Yucca Valley, California, and very suddenly he will arrive at the dubious mirage—which turns out to be, probably, one of the country's most unique places of worship—Desert Christ Park.

On a sloping, rocky mountainside, scattered among the desert's Joshua trees and yuccas, are the sculptured figures of Christ, His Disciples and other Biblical characters. Also here on this five-acre jackrabbit homestead stands a tiny chapel beautifully constructed of native stone. And all is dedicated to God and to peace, tolerance and love.

This unique place of worship was created because of a statue of Christ that nobody wanted. The 10-foot, four-ton statue was monopolizing the driveway of the modest home of sculptor Antone Martin of Inglewood. Martin, a patternmaker at a Los Angeles aircraft plant, was a man with a conscience—a conscience which had been worrying him for many years.

AS A PATTERNMAKER, Antone Martin worked hand-in-glove with engineers to create the deadly weapons used in conducting modern warfare. And yet, Martin was basically a man of peace and his remaining ambition was to somehow convince his fellow man that a more merciful way of solving problems than through bloodshed had long existed but was too little used.

"I was afraid of an atomic war," recalled the sculptor. "Politicians of all nations have failed to prevent wars. The only solution is in the hands of the people of the world's great religions. I personally am not interested in what these creeds are—I am satisfied to know that none of them teach the killing of one's fellow man.

"Many politicians deal in power attained by inciting age-old hatreds and jealousies. If the massed millions of the world demand an end to killing, aggression, hatreds that breed conflict, to oppression of those of different skin or belief, they would have the power to prevent war. There are enough of these people, and their religion teaches them precisely these things. But, somewhere along the line there has been failure. The masses have joined in condemnation and bloodshed on every occasion. Too often enemies will pray to the same God to destroy one another."

WITH THESE inspiring thoughts foremost in his mind, Martin thought constantly of his problems as he went about his work of creating weapons of war. What he wanted was to find a way to influence as many people as possible to return to the teachings of Christ.

Finally, because he was an excellent sculptor and a skilled patternmaker, Martin decided to present Christ's teachings in reinforced concrete—a material that the experts assured him would even withstand the blast of an atom bomb.

Martin began his first statue—the huge figure of Christ—in the back yard of his Inglewood home in 1951. Soon the work was completed and a short time after that received the title of "The Unwanted Christ" because no one would accept it.

Many organizations, including numerous religious groups, wanted the beautiful figure but refused to accept it because of the restrictions Martin put on it. Actually these restrictions were extremely simple—Martin merely required that the statue had to be shown to persons of any race, creed or color at any time without gates or doors and without any kind of an admission charge.

FINALLY, ED GARVER, the "Desert Pastor" of Yucca Valley near Palm Springs, heard of the "Unwanted Christ." Making a quick visit to Martin, Garver urged him to come to Yucca Valley and see if it wasn't the proper place for his statue to be placed and promised to meet all the requirements that went with the gift of the statue.

Martin made the trip to Yucca Valley, took one look at the beautiful but desolate mountainside that made up the homestead and Desert Christ Park was born—to be forever open free of charges to anyone who cared to stop.

The heroic figure of Christ was trucked to the valley and was slowly inched up the steep, rocky mountainside to its present position looking out over the park. Martin returned to his home and immediately began making the Sermon on the Mount depicting Christ and the 12 Disciples. When the new figure of Christ and that of Peter was completed they too were trucked out to the valley. Soon after Martin retired on his small Social Security pension and moved into a trailer on the grounds of the park, and worked steadily to finish the Sermon on the Mount.

That was in June 1953. Today the park holds 34 concrete figures ranging up to 12 feet in height and weighing more than 32,000 pounds.

MARTIN'S CREATIONS emphasize Christ's lessons of compassion, mercy and understanding and he constantly stresses the hopeful, constructive side of religion rather than its more somber phases.

"I believe," Martin says earnestly, "that believers and non-believers alike must learn and put into practice Christ's teachings if all the peoples of the world are to live together without war."

In addition to the Sermon on the Mount, Desert Christ Park now displays Christ and the women of Samaria at the well; also an appealing group where Christ faces parents and children in the scene "Suffer little children to come unto Me." Away from the main groupings, on the hillside, is displayed Christ in prayer at Gethsemane and the sleeping Peter, James and John

Friend of a Robot

SAID to be the most remarkable science-fiction drama ever brought to the screen, "The Invisible Boy" unfolds a thrilling story of a mechanical brain, obsessed by a rule-or-ruin psychosis, which seeks world rule through nuclear bombs and a proposed earth satellite. Robby the Robot plays an important mechanical role and 11-year-old Richard Eyer as Timmy heads the human cast of this MGM release which includes Philip Abbott as Richard's scientist father and Diane Brewster as his mother. A picture-synopsis of the movie is presented herewith.

Robby makes Timmy invisible so pranks will go unnoticed, suggests stowing away on rocket ship. Computer informs father Timmy has been kidnaped, to be killed unless computer's orders, giving it global control, are obeyed. U. S. agents are called in.

Computer, with Timmy's aid, brings federals and scientists under its control. Robby and Timmy blast off in a rocket, but return to earth. Soldiers try futilely to wreck Robby with gunfire and flame throwers.

Timmy accidentally releases Robby from computer's control. Timmy and father go alone to destroy computer; machine hypnotizes them again. At last minute, Robby rushes in and destroys the villainous computer.

Arvo's actress-wife, Naga Norgen, looks on approvingly as he shows skill. She is quick with a Colt, too.

TELEVISION

He Lives by His Six-Gun

By Robert Franklin Ames

STRONG and silent, the hero stood silently to one side as tough cattlemen shouted taunts. He waited patiently for the first cattleman to draw.

Then the cameras moved in for a close-up and TV western fans were treated to some of the fanciest gunslinging on record. The hero, who only last year graduated from an eastern school of dramatic acting, burned the breeze with the slickest, quickest draw ever seen on a picture tube. The Colt's fairly leaped to his hand and spit flame.

After the hero had lessened the odds the camera shifted to another close-up as the Peacemaker flashed in the air in a series of spins and loops and, with a flourish the hero slipped the gun noiselessly back into his holster.

WHAT FEW TV fans realize is that some western actors seldom do their own gunslinging, and that those who do have been religiously schooled by the same individual who usually fills in for those who don't.

And when publicity men begin issuing challenges for quick draw contests for their proteges there's a name that is never mentioned in press releases—Arvo Ojala.

Although little known outside the horse operas, Ojala handles a six gun so expertly that it requires modern camera technique with shutter speeds up to 1/1,000 second to stop his fast-moving hand.

ARVO BECAME interested in guns as a hobby while living in Washington with his Finnish born parents. With an ancient and rusted pistol he practiced quick drawing. Even at an early age he wondered about the slow drawing and sloppy gun techniques of movie cowboys.

But it wasn't until Ojala moved to Southern California that he really became interested in the highly technical side of six-gun proficiency.

What had originally interested him as a hobby became an obsession with him and daily he twirled, spun, tossed and tried to outdraw the "other fellow" in the mirror.

SOON HE BECAME fast enough on the draw to realize that most standard holsters were not constructed to be efficient quick draw tools. Working nights with leather tools he designed and built his own holster. Ornaments, economical gadgets, streamline construction were all sacrificed to make his holster the fastest drawing sheath ever made.

About the time the holster was completed and Arvo's skill in using it began to be passed around gun merchants and shooting fanciers something happened to change his whole life.

A NEW GADGET, television, invaded the living room of millions of houses and western stories became popular, requiring on-the-spot ability with a six-gun. Before long Western stars were asking him for advice and wanting his famous holsters.

Gunslinging stars who were coached by Ojala include Audie Murphy, Rory Calhoun, Natalie Wood, Tab Hunter, Kirk Douglas, Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, Clint Walker, Sammy Davis Jr. and John Bromfield.

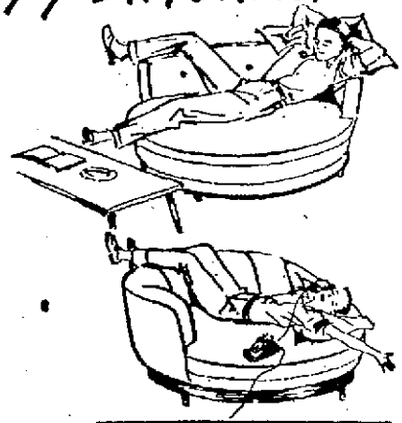

Strangely enough Arvo taught his wife, actress Naga Norgen, how to fast draw. But he confesses that he hasn't had the courage to find out whether she is "the fastest gun in the West"—especially after a difference of opinion.

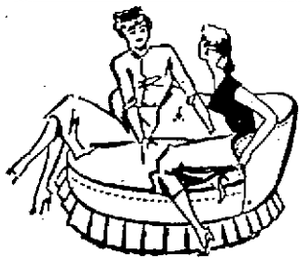

Arvo Ojala, rated tops as gunslinger, demonstrates his speed with a six-gun.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

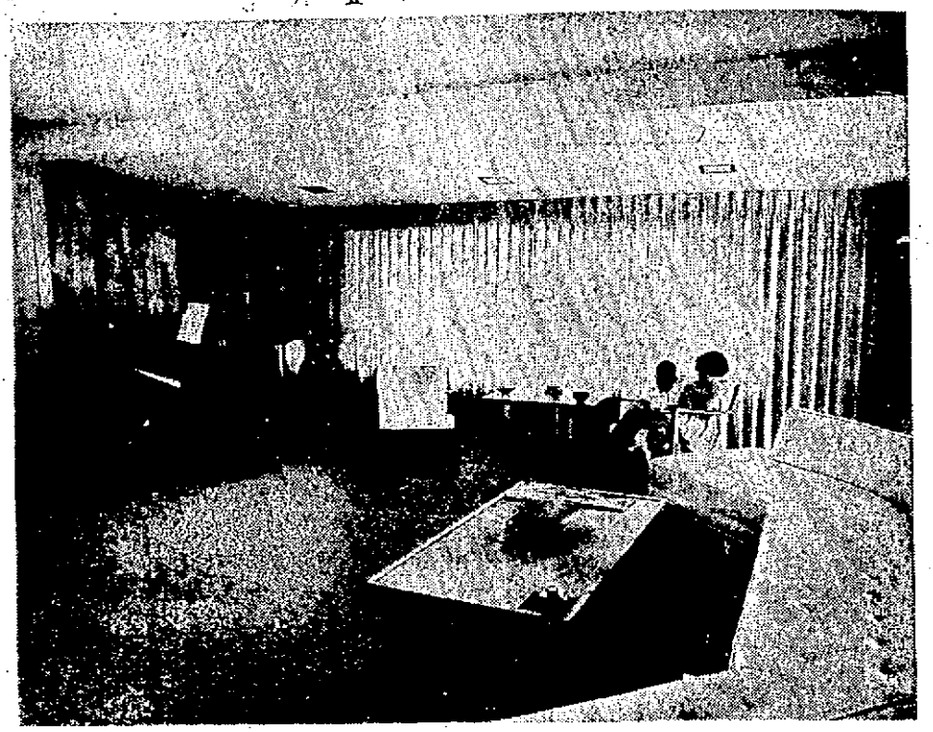

A Doctor Operates on a House

Tropical planting keynotes the patio-garden, the landscaping and planting were carried out by Dr. Temkin.

Nineteen-foot-long master bedroom features glass area extending along the outside wall of the Temkin home.

Extended eight feet beyond soffit, the living room gains new comfort. Ash paneling, flush rheostat lighting are features. Temkin children are shown.

By Eileen Ball

SPANNING the gap from cardiology to carpentry is a project few young men of medicine care to contemplate—especially when the span is basically a yoke and the profession of medicine and the business of building must be pursued practically simultaneously.

Which is all by way of saying that Dr. Eugene Temkin operated on his chronically ailing house and brought it into full health, all the while maintaining his status as a medical practitioner. The home at 2117 Faust Ave., Los Altos, that he and his wife and two small children now occupy has almost doubled in eight months.

The job that Dr. Temkin tackled virtually unaided was heroic in size and involved ripping out and rebuilding while working the irregular hours of his profession, which are, to say the least, not quite those of the average breadwinner.

FIRST, cork flooring was laid in the entry hall. Then the rear wall of the living room was torn out and a new one built in its stead, pushing the dimensions of the living room out eight feet. Thus, the addition to the living room (an added area of 8x20 feet) had the immediate and happy effect of contributing 160 badly needed square feet of living space to this portion of the house. Furthermore, the inclusion of a wide picture window, plus the installation in a side wall of a sliding glass door, had the effect of visually adding many more feet. In this manner the room has literally and figuratively opened itself to a landscaped back yard — a feature the house formerly could not enjoy.

IN A FAR CORNER of the room stands a grand piano. Located on the opposite wall is the Temkin's new and handsome parchment leather angular sofa, a good-looking contemporary design of some 15 feet. Echoing this note of practicality is a pair of Swedish-type teakwood armchairs, their backs and seats similarly covered in the soil-resistant off-white leather. A modern table stands between the chairs, and on this is placed a tall white drum-shaded reading lamp.

It should be noted here that the Temkins' living room is, indeed, a family room — a place where the children, like their parents, may enjoy good music and participate in home movies. Consequently, although romping is discouraged, the youngsters can enjoy the living room with its sturdy tweed carpet and its leather furniture without undue strain.

Another feature of interest in this room is the fact that no sleight of hand was attempted by Dr. Temkin to camouflage the fact that an addition was made to the living room. Rather than merely to add space and attempt to "blend" it into the existing area, the eight-foot increase enjoys architectural characteristics all its own. A spanning supporting beam was a structural necessity at the plane where the addition was introduced. The member, itself, has been plastered into a soffit and painted to match the rest of the ceiling. With this as a starting point, the new ceiling slopes gently and has been installed with three flush rheostat lights. Consequently, the controlled illumination over this part of the room contributes its special effect. Set into one of the new eight-foot side walls is the glass door; the opposite addition is paneled with natural ash, a feature that contributes a distinctive touch of texture to the otherwise completely unrelieved walls of smooth plaster.

BECAUSE the Temkins are mutually devoted to good music, a principal ingredient of furniture in the living room is a large hi-fi cabinet designed and built by Dr. Temkin.

A small and unobtrusive opening in one of the walls enables Dr. Temkin to project movies from the adjoining room —his office-den.

An attractive kitchen in spring green opens directly off the entry to the left. Because the Temkins do considerable informal entertaining — and there is no specific dining area in the house other than the dinette set apart in the kitchen for family meals — arrangements had to be made whereby buffet dinners could be served expeditiously. Consequently, Dr. Temkin hit upon the notion of converting the door opening from kitchen to living room into a two-sectioned Dutch door, the lower part of which is topped with a small serving counter.

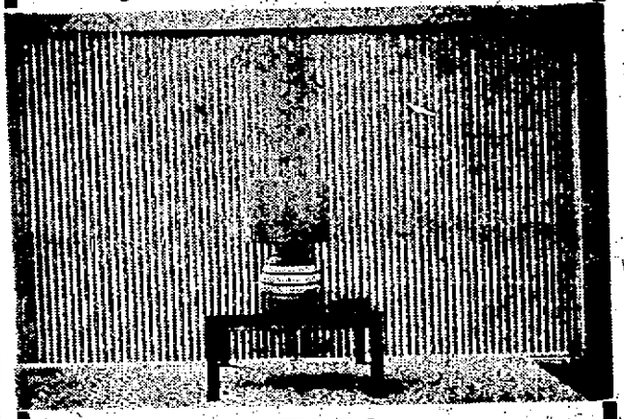

Immediately off the hallway to the right of the entry is a guest powder room. Beyond it is the rumpus room, devoted solely to the play hours of the children. Across the hall is the youngsters' bedroom.

Final step in the Temkins' remodeling efforts is seen in the huge new master bedroom suite that opens off the office-den. This room, a spacious 14x19 feet, is paneled in natural walnut, its ceiling plastered with acoustic stucco. A huge glass-paneled wall slides open to the patio just outside. Turquoise velvet carpet and a white heirloom bedspread establish a cool color scheme.

Turkeys Are Big Business

Barney Taylor's dog inspects a four-legged turkey that was hatched on the Taylor Turkey Farm in Westminster.

By Mary Barry

ON THE FIRST Thanksgiving, held in gratitude for a bountiful harvest, the Pilgrims prepared wild turkey, native fruits, vegetables and pumpkin pies for their feast. As this menu has become traditional for Thanksgiving, turkeys are raised on a large scale in the United States for the annual "Turkey Day."

The wild turkeys the Puritans roasted in 1621 were true native birds of North America, as are the birds we carve today. When the Spaniards conquered Mexico they found domesticated turkeys, and soon after introduced them to Europe. Later the English Colonists brought the North American turkey back to America, and these served as foundation strains along with the wild stocks of the north-eastern varieties.

AMONG THESE breeds is the "Bronze," which is the largest in size, and the most popular in the United States. California and Minnesota are noted for raising the largest commercial flocks in the nation.

Before 1930, turkey growers thought only of raising big turkeys. Since then, however, experiments were made to reduce the size of the birds and to improve the type. As a result, the "broad-breasted" turkey was developed, and is the most prevalent today.

Prize gobbler addresses his flock in this scene on a modern turkey ranch situated in Long Beach area.

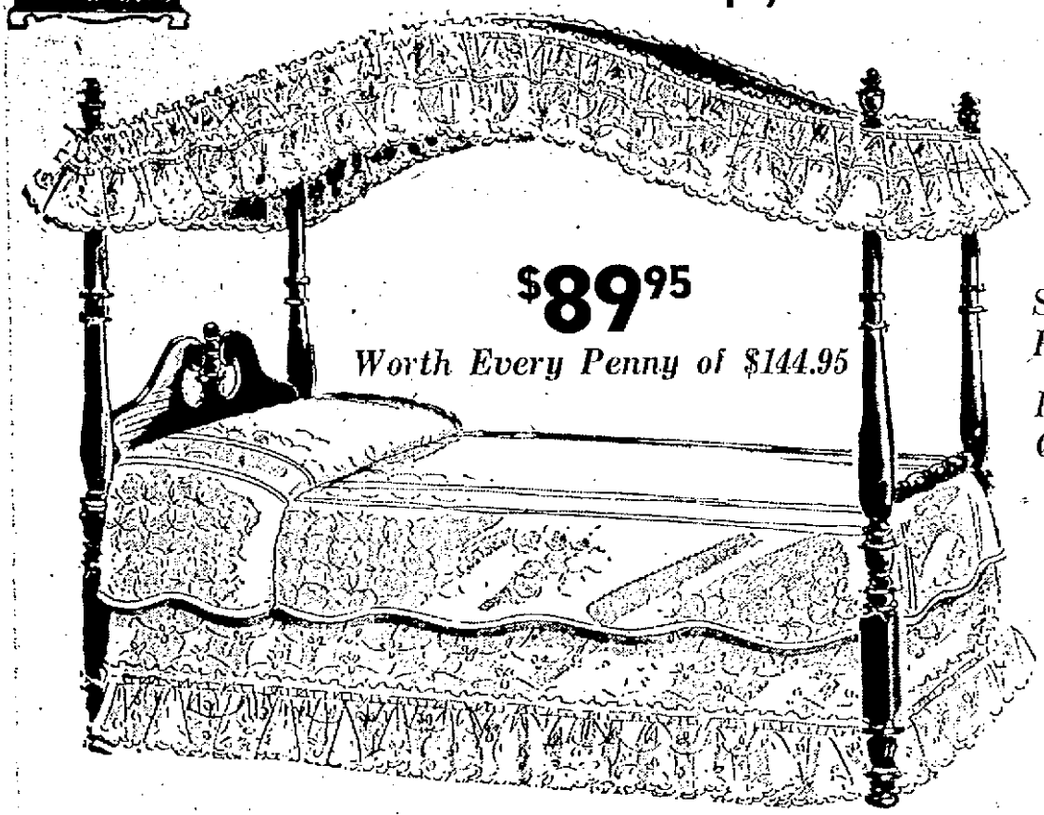

Only in the U. S. are turkeys raised in large numbers and to have thousands in one flock is not unusual. An example is the huge Long Beach area ranch of Barney Taylor who has a flock estimated at 20,000 birds, near Westminster. Taylor has been raising turkeys in this locality for 21 years and his establishment is modern, equipped to dress 800 to 1,200 birds per day.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE turned out to be a bonus bird for some drumstick fancier on Thanksgiving was a four-legged turkey hatched at the Taylor ranch. But the others in the flock of poults seemed to realize the oddity of their four-legged kin and pecked the freak to death before Barney and his son-in-law, Martin Sherrel, who works with Taylor, spotted it.

Heretofore, the biggest turkey business was at the holiday season, but in the last several years there has been a large summer trade due to the popularity of the backyard barbecuing and spit-roasting of the birds.

Accent for Gardens

Fall is the best time to sow seed of Gloriosa Daisies, the glorified Black-eyed Susans which were an outstanding development of the 1957 gardening season.

Give these vigorous, colorful annuals a head start by sowing the seed between now and Oct. 15 and they will pay dividends next year with large, continuous blooms from late June to far into winter, according to David Burpee, president of the W. Atlee Burpee Co. The flowers, up to seven inches across, give accent anywhere in the garden.

Date sowing tests show that, when sown in September or early October, the young plants come up and make a small rosette which will live over the winter without any protection. Seed sown in late October or November usually remains dormant over winter and germinates early in the spring.

Other tests reveal that these plants, with their flowers of bright yellow and rich mahogany, as well as mahogany and yellow bicolors, will thrive in any kind of soil and climate, and withstand drought or severe hot or cold weather.

They Built Their Dam to Stay

By Ada M. Young

AS THE Southland reaches farther and farther into the hinterlands for water for its fertile but arid acres, history discloses that water was ever a problem here for the white man, his fields and his flocks.

Beneficiaries of the bounty of a virgin land, the Mission padres, too, were faced with the problem of adequate water supply to unlock the riches of the soil, and this gave rise to California's first dam which still stands in Mission Gorge, near San Diego, after more than 100 years.

One historian claims that the dam was constructed in 1795. A commemorative plaque states "between 1813 and 1816." It was built by Indian neophytes under guidance of the padres of Mission San Diego Nipaguay or more popularly known as Mission San Diego de Alcala, a few miles to the east.

Made of grey granite and cement 13 feet thick, a tile carried a flow of water into the acequia (canal) made of cement and stones. The channel or flume was engineered to such perfection that notwithstanding the fact that the aqueduct had to be carried over gulches 15 to 20 feet wide, the water was delivered in full flow at a designated spot.

IN EARLY DAYS, Cuyamaca Peak, 40 miles distant, was visible from the crest of the dam. Today the lush growth of trees and vines obscure any view. The timbers for the waste gate for the dam as well as for the mission came from this mountain.

A mile above the dam, was an old fortified sentinel post overlooking Cajon Valley. It was constantly in use because of the hostile attitude of the mountain Indians.

In 1817, Gov. Sola commended the padres on the ingenuity of their project which irrigated many acres of farmland and watered great herds of cattle.

AT ONE TIME, San Diego was referred to as "the city of bay and climate" indicating that was all it had to offer as natural resources. In 1906, there were 13 reservoirs holding 145 billion gallons of water. Today, San Diego ranks 23rd in value of agricultural products in the United States. The "imported" water of the Colorado is brought more than 100 miles.

The Cajon and Mission Valleys are fertile spots. Peaceful little Santee at the crossroads to the back country of San Diego is a quiet agricultural community. Mission Valley has luxurious motels and restaurants on a king size scale amid truck gardens. A freeway is also under construction.

THE ONCE TRANQUIL Mission Gorge today is filled with the howl of heavy machinery. Huge trucks and trailers haul ready mix cement, sand and gravel through the gorge via Cajon and Mission Valleys. Deep gravel pits mark operations of well known companies.

Progress has come to the gorge, but the dam the padres built still stands serene, little the worse for wear after more than a century of battering by the elements.

California's first dam (above) was built by Indians under the tutelage of padres from San Diego Mission.

She Traded Her Rifle for a Pen

By Betty DeWeese

—AP Newsfeatures Photo.

Kyra Petrovskaya has lived her life in high key and has plenty to tell as she nibbles pen, contemplates material for a chapter in her autobiography.

KYRA faced a Red firing squad when she was 7 months old—and escaped.

Her life since then has been hardly less exciting.

She's been a leading actress on the Russian stage, a wife four times, a sniper in the siege of Leningrad, a weekend visitor with the family of Joseph Stalin's son, a $50,000 winner on an American quiz show in the weapons category . . .

Naturally, she's writing her autobiography.

Besides her literary effort for a book publisher, the beautiful and blonde Kyra Petrovskaya keeps busy in her Santa Monica home taking care of her 4½-year-old son, singing with symphony groups, and lecturing. She likes to fill her time with artistic pursuits while she adjusts to her last divorce — from Elliott Shirk, American diplomat.

KYRA'S PERSONAL history goes back to the Russian revolution. As a baby in the arms of her mother, the Princess Zinaida, she waited in a barge to be machine gunned.

At the last minute, Kyra says, the Princess was called out of the lineup by a Red officer who recognized her and helped her to escape. Kyra's father, a White Russian army colonel, already had been executed.

Kyra's earliest memories are of her mother and the soup kitchens of the American Relief Administration which kept them both alive.

Her mother died of starvation years later in the siege of Leningrad during World War II.

By that time Kyra had become a well known actress, her interest in a dramatic career having been sparked by a teenage crush on a leading actor of the day, Boris Temin.

AFTER GRADUATION from drama school she was fortunate at the age of 19 to get into the company of the Leningrad Drama Theater, a state institution.

Almost immediately came one of the greatest thrills of her life: She was picked to play Juliet opposite Temin's Romeo.

Disillusionment quickly followed: She saw him being laced into a corset.

Later, on the Moscow stage, she gave three command performances for Joseph Stalin and became well acquainted with his son, Vassily.

Her first husband, a composer, had died of cancer when she was 19. Her second, a theatrical director, died from pneumonia after falling down a crevice in the ice on a visit to the Russian Arctic. World War II separated her from her third husband.

DURING THE WAR she was mobilized into the army and trained as a druzhinniza, a field nurse. Equipped with a submachine gun and a tarpaulin, she dragged wounded soldiers out of the heavy firing and gave them first aid. On the Leningrad front it often became necessary to stop dragging and start shooting.

When pressure eased, Kyra was put in charge of an entertainment unit for the army.

A directive from Moscow ordered all skits and songs to have the theme: "Kill a Nazi." As a publicity stunt and because she had been her high school's champion sharpshooter, Kyra was given a two-week course in sniping and sent out with a partner to kill a Nazi.

She did—and the retaliating fire killed her partner, an expert with 114 notches on his gun, and injured her with shrapnel splinters in both legs. But it made her a heroine, won her a medal and got her sent to Moscow to resume her acting career.

HER SNIPER TRAINING also gave her the necessary knowledge on weapons to win $50,000 years later, in November 1955, on "The Big Surprise," an American television quiz show.

In American she lived in Pennsylvania with her husband until their divorce last February.

Now, settled in Santa Monica, she regrets the loss of her position on the Russian stage, but she's happy to escape from continual fear.

In Russia, she says, "You keep your expression happy and your mouth shut, you avoid showing any sign of disapproval of anything official—and still you are not safe.

"Of all my friends and relatives in Russia, everyone at some time or another lost someone through exile or liquidation."

Seas of Danger

"Filming an adventure script on location is an adventure in hazards, for both cast and crew," said Carl Dudley, now producing "Cinerama—South Seas," describing the hazards and accidents which best the Cinerama cinema crew on its travels in the far Pacific.

Jack Warren, cameraman, was knocked off his feet and suffered a broken knee in a rough sea near Christmas Island when a boom swung on him, said Dudley, citing the accidents and casualties thus far on the schooner Te Vega.

Joe Raue, assistant cameraman, went down with a brain concussion when a berserk boom knocked him over. Jimmy Engle suffered a broken arm when a high wave threw him against a bulwark. Jim Salmon was washed overboard by a heavy sea and pulled back to safety while two stewards, John Ljestrand and Dick Featherstone, were scalded with hot coffee when the Te Vega heeled over in a sudden squall.

Dudley returned to the mainland for several days of conferences on future South Seas filming and planed out again to connect with what remains intact of his outfit in Hawaii.

They Moved to Mexico and Love It

Harry and Juanita Smith, ex-Long Beach, discuss water tank atop their Mexico home. Height provides pressure.

By Eugenia Macdonald

HERE is the story about a Long Beach man and his wife who succumbed to the lure of living in manana land—Mexico.

Harry and Juanita Smith (he admits to being "a little over 60") lived in and loved Long Beach for more than three decades after they came here from Shanghai in 1923. Then, last year Juanita fell in love with Mexico City during a visit there in October 1956.

Harry Smith had prospered in Long Beach during his time—he owned the Bear State Lumber Co.—but as he reluctantly admits, "I like California, my wife likes Mexico—so we went to live in Mexico."

A year ago in December, the Smiths, after a bit of shopping around, took a lease on an ancient house (it was built in 1680, originally as part of a convent) in the residential San Angel (pronounced Sahn Ahnhell) district about six miles from downtown Mexico City near the sprawling University. The address: Juarez Tres.

THIS PROJECT required some thinking, doing and much hard work.

To begin with the Smiths tore out, ripped out, cleaned out and hauled out 7 dump truck loads of unwanted rubble.

Then they began to redecorate and rebuild. Mexican labor is cheap. But it's also hard to get the real meaning of the word "work" out of the men who are available. Most frustrating thing so far encountered by Harry and Juanita is the seemingly impossible task of keeping workmen on the job.

"A painter will take off for lunch," Harry says, "and not come back for three days."

But the Smiths are persevering. Their "castle" in Old Meh-hee-co is slowly becoming a beautiful home under the clever guidance of Juanita.

THE AMERICAN essentials are installed. Proper plumbing, built-in electric cooking equipment, washing machine, refrigerator and other items are all in and working.

The water to the house is pumped to rooftop reservoirs every night at midnight for use through the following day.

A special tank had to be built high over the roof to supply pressure for the washing machine. And the Smiths never will get over the day the machine was delivered. It weighed nearly 500 pounds and Smith wondered how it ever would be hoisted to the rooftop laundry area.

"Do not worry, Senor," the men said. "Manuel here will carry it up!"

THE ONLY WAY UP was by ladder. And Manuel got the heavy machine on his BACK and literally CARRIED it up.

"I still don't know how he did it," Harry exclaims in amazement, "but I SAW him do it."

The ancient house, with its two-foot-thick adobe walls and huge beamed ceilings, has been painted throughout. Wall-to-wall carpet has been laid in all the three bedrooms and halls. The big living room, dining kitchen and entrance hall floors have been kept as they have been for nearly three hundred years—beautiful, cool, red tile.

JUANITA HAS spent countless days explaining to the so-slow-moving workers how she wants the inside patio walls painted—all a pastel pink with a decorative blue line running all around about four feet from the ground.

Everywhere are pots, pots and more pots containing dozens of different colorful local flowers. Even the servants' quarters on the roof (they have a cook and a cleaning-laundry girl) are decorated with strategically placed, hand-made pottery containers full of beautiful blooms.

Harry and Juanita Smith have a new life now, a far cry from the one they knew in Long Beach. But they seem to like it. Within walking distance of their home is a new supermarket. "It's terrific—excellent," Harry says.

There is a big Sears Roebuck store from which they buy most ordinary necessities.

HARRY AND JUANITA have mastered a working version of the Mexican language. And they go into raptures when they talk about beverage prices at that supermarket. Their favorite is tequilla—at 70 cents a fifth. Fine rum is 75 cents a fifth and Gilbey's gin is $1.40. Food prices are comparable.

The Smiths must return to the United States every six months for re-entry into Mexico because they are not now and so far do not intend to become citizens there.

How long the Smiths will stay remains to be seen. They have a two-year lease. But Harry still likes it in Long Beach.

How to Remove That Stubborn Woodscrew

By H. B. McDermid

EVERY workman or house owner has run into the problem of the woodscrew set so tightly in the wood that it apparently can not be removed.

Perhaps the screw is rusted in the wood; perhaps it has been painted over.

Anyway, it is in so tight it cannot be loosened by giving it a tap with a hammer to shake the threads.

In such a case, the most determined effort of a strong man is useless in trying to back out the screw even with a bit brace and screwdriver.

The tool slips out of the slot in the screw's head, mangling the slot or perhaps tearing off the screw head.

WHAT TO DO?

Get a HOT soldering iron and apply it to the head of the screw, as shown in the accompanying cut.

Use a tool or bit of metal to help place the hot iron exactly where you want it. Hold the tool with one hand and maneuver the hot iron with the other.

Heat the screw thoroughly. Let it cool completely. Then you'll be surprised how easily the screw can be taken out with a screwdriver.

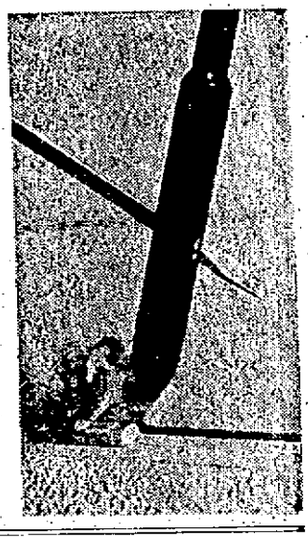

Analyzing the action — the screw is expanded by the heat, enlarging the hole in which it is fast. When the screw cools, it contracts, and its threads break away from the threads in the wood.

Sometimes the problem is to release a lag screw that has been driven into hardwood, like good oak. A wrench and plenty of power would only tear the head off the lag screw.

THE CURE is the same — apply strong heat and let the lag screw cool thoroughly before using the wrench. However, in this case it is wise to use a small acetylene flame instead of the hot soldering iron.

Sometimes rusty nails foil workmen. Suppose a one-inch fairly soft wood board has been nailed onto much heavier wood. The job has set until the nail has rusted into the heavier piece.

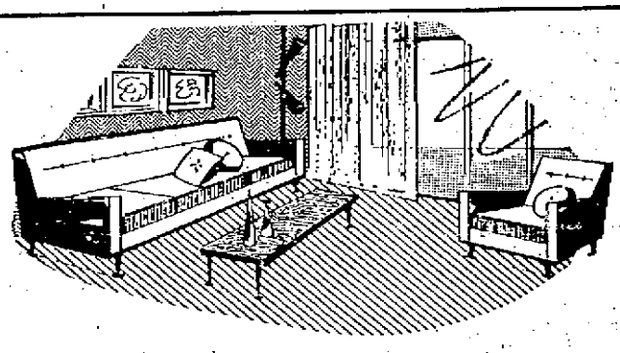

Place a nail set on the nail head and with a sharp blow drive it in slightly deeper, breaking the nail's hold on the wood. Then the two pieces of wood can be separated.

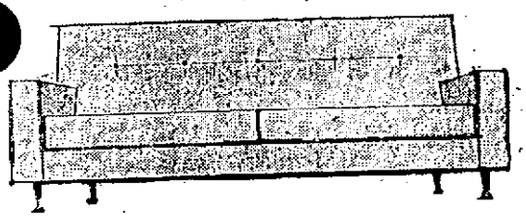

Hot soldering iron applied to head of a stubborn screw will expand it. When it cools it shrinks, can be backed out.

BEAUTIFUL HOMES

Southland takes its readers into a different, attractive Long Beach area home each week.

So You Want to Give a Party!

"HOW TO DO IT, OR THE LIVELY ART OF ENTERTAINING" by Elsa Maxwell (Little, Brown, $4.75).

"TIME FOR A PARTY: THE COMPLETE HOME PARTY BOOK" by Ruth Brent (McGraw-Hill, $4.95): What with the holidays coming up and gay parties or an open house on the agenda, either or both of these ingenious books will be more than a little helpful to the hostess. You may or may not know that Miss Maxwell is the reigning Queen of Party Givers, and in her light and airy style she tells how she has entertained with incomparable style such personages as the Duchess of Windsor, Aly Khan, Clare Boothe Luce, Clark Gable and others. Among other things, Miss Maxwell does not recommend holding one's little finger out when dunking: It's too dangerous. Acknowledged as an expert in the art of entertaining by Good Housekeeping Magazine, and a highly successful party-giver most of her life, Mrs. Brent in her "Time for a Party" helps plan holiday get-togethers, family affairs, parties for the bride and bride-to-be, children's and teenage parties, and whatnot with a minimum of effort and expense. She knows all the shortcuts and her ideas are fresh and exciting.

"KNIGHTS OF CHRIST" by Helen Walker Homan (Prentice-Hall, $12.50): Already the author of a half-dozen books commonly found in Catholic libraries, Helen Walker Homan has added to her stature as a historian of religious literature with this new work which dramatically follows the lives of followers of God who founded holy orders, congregations and societies, bound by special vows and dedicated to special service of the Roman Catholic Church. The book opens with the founding of the first group—the order of Saint Benedict, in 510 a.d.—and follows through to the newest, the Glenmary Missioners, organized in 1939, and shows how each was designed to spread the Christian faith. Catholics will find each chapter a stimulating one.

"THE COMPLETE MANUAL OF FREE DIVING" (Putnam, $4): Famous practitioners in the art of free diving who are members of the Underseas Research and Development Group of the French Navy pooled their talents to produce this one. Safety, diving equipment, underwater photography and hundreds of bits of necessary information to divers, professional and nonprofessional, are found in these pages.

"THE WIDENING CIRCLE, A PERSONAL SEARCH" by John Van Druten, (Scribner's, $3.95): Van Druten, London-born novelist and playwright who now lives in great contentment in the Coachella Valley, near Indio, explores his past, his interests, his beliefs in an ever-widening circle to find the meaning of himself. He uncovers a fetish for nostalgia, an urge so strong that it is almost an obsession, to return to places where he has been, to relive experiences of the past. He finds, too, a need for religion, and this need is filled in a satisfying way.

WITH CALIFORNIA'S capital city in 1912 as its setting, "Sacramento Waltz," a novel by Elva Williams (McGraw-Hill, $3.75) tells the lively, entertaining story of a beautiful widow in search of a husband and a grocery store enchantress in search of men. It's a tale capably told in the lighter vein. Illustration is from the dust jacket.

"GOD IN ACTION" by Lydia Ommen (Vantage, $2): Mrs. Ommen, a Long Beach resident, wrote "America's Prayer" which was dedicated to the armed forces at a Blue Star Mothers convention in Long Beach in World War II, and since has been widely quoted. This volume tells how, from anxiety and travail, she wrote the prayer, and her definite belief in the efficacy of prayer.

"ONE MAN'S FIGHT FOR FREEDOM" by A. G. Heinsohn Jr. (The Caxton Printers, Ltd., $3): Heinsohn heads the Cherokee Textile Mills in Sevierville, Tenn., housed in what is believed to be the most modern cotton mill facilities in the nation. Here he recounts his battle with the government, pleads for a lessening of restrictions on the individual, for a lessening of controls over labor and industry.

MISCELLANY: "THE CHRISTMAS THAT ALMOST WASN'T" by Ogden Nash (Little, Brown, $3), a very dear and lively tale in verse of a crisis that, once upon a Christmastime, overtook a Graustark-like land and very nearly—but not quite—ruined everybody's holiday. . . . "LOOK ON THE LIGHTER SIDE" edited by Gurney Williams (Prentice-Hall, $3.95), a rather large volume packed with cartoons, anecdotes and verse from top humorists that have appeared in Look Magazine. . . . "Pacific Tugboats" by Gordon Newell and Joe Williamson (Superior Pub. Co., Seattle, $8.50), a parade of "little giants" of Pacific ports, in picture and story, many of which will be recognized by Long Beach's big colony of harbor people. . . . "EVERYONE NEEDS A WILL" by Edmond Schapiro (Vantage, $2), an introduction to wills and how to make them, by a San Francisco attorney. "THE AZURE COAST" by Charles Graves (Putnam, $5), a visit to the fabled French Riviera, old and new, that will be absorbing to those who have been there and those who dream of going. . . . "OF LOVE AND LUST" by Theodor Reik (Farrar, Straus and Cudahy, $7.50), a psychoanalysis of romantic and sexual emotions by a world-famed psychoanalyst. . . . "CALYPSO SONG BOOK" by William Attaway (McGraw-Hill, $2.95), a collection of authentic folk music of the Caribbean. . . . "The HAWTHORN BOOK OF CHRISTMAS CAROLS," edited by Cyril Taylor, warden of the Royal School of Church Music, and illustrated in color (Hawthorn, $3.95), a beautiful little book containing all the favorite Christmas hymns and carols.

Protein, Key to Keeping Trim

Meat balls in tomato sauce provide a tasty and satisfying main dish for dinner in a typical "Dieters' Day" menu. Peas, salad and potato are added.

By Mildred K. Flanary

Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

HERE IT IS at last, the complete expose on what goes on during "A Day in the Life of a Dieter." The inside story of how to eat three satisfying meals and stay slim doing it.

For years, nutrition experts have worked on the problem of combating overweight and recent discoveries have shown high protein to be the answer. Protein cuts hunger, yet protein foods keep you well fed. The current trend for weight conscious people is to eat such things as meat, milk and eggs.

Another favorite food, high in protein but low in cost, is oatmeal. Oatmeal gives you more protein than any other leading cereal yet is surprisingly low in calories. Just recently, a series of menus featuring this high-protein food were made available. They are satisfying, nutritious and easily prepared. In fact, the basic meals require no special cooking and can easily be adapted to needs of the growing children and active adults in the family. All the nutrients required during one day are available in both the 1,600 and 2,400 calorie menus.

Take our "Dieter's Day" for example. Here is a typical menu.

For weight-conscious adults:

Leg of Lamb With Cranberry

Split three cloves of garlic into slivers and insert deeply into the leg of lamb. Add 3 cups of cranberries and enough cold water to cover the lamb. Simmer until tender. (The cranberries tenderize the meat and make a great difference in the final flavor.) When the lamb is tender, remove from the kettle, put into roasting pan and cover with the following mixture: 4 tsp. mint jelly, 1 tsp. dry mustard, 1 stalk celery, chopped fine, and 1 cup cranberry juice. Top with buttered crumbs and bake slowly at 300° F. approximately one hour, basting frequently. May be served hot or cold.

SERVE WITH: Consomme, Browned Potatoes, Baked Onions, Hot Rolls, Mint Sauce, Jellied Gingerale, Date-Nut Pudding.

FRIED CHICKEN, FAMILY STYLE

You really have the family at heart when you buy chicken parts as you insure that each has his favorite piece. Of course, there are those that like anything just so long as it's chicken.

Here are some hints on how to fry chicken successfully. The trick is to have each piece well browned and crispy outside, with tender juicy meat inside. Watch browning process to prevent burning. Cook chicken slowly to get the chicken thoroughly cooked, but not dry.

Flour coat chicken parts by putting ½ cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon paprika, ¼ teaspoon pepper or poultry seasoning in a paper bag, shake, add 2 or 3 pieces of chicken at one time, shake well, heat enough shortening in a heavy skillet to make a layer ½ inch deep. Place pieces of chicken in hot fat to fry. When done, remove to platter and make gravy in pan drippings.

tive administrative offices and is under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Fling. Although it is still sponsored by Coordinating Councils of Los Angeles County, Toy Loan's purpose has changed somewhat from depression days.

TODAY THE OBJECTIVES of Toy Loan are:

1. Encourage self-improvement and the solution of individual child problems through the proper use of leisure time.
2. Reduce juvenile delinquency.
3. Enrich children's lives by encouraging hobbies and handiwork in association with the use of toys.
4. Develop desirable social habits through observance by the children of an honor code and merit system.
5. Promote the appreciation and care of property.
6. Promote family unity through circulation of games that can be played by all the family.

TOY LOAN has become not only character-building for children, but means jobs and self-redemption for unfortunate adults. For the toys are completely reconditioned by handicapped persons, who often learn a trade in the process, making it possible for them to find full employment elsewhere.

Also attesting to the success of Toy Loan are its counterparts established in more than a dozen other states and in Germany, Italy and Denmark.

All this, because some children stole some spools of thread 22 years ago!

The Christ

lying nearby.

MARTIN'S MOST ambitious project to date has just been completed. This is a massive setting of "The Last Supper." It took 125 tons of cement and more than a year's work. The 13 figures are nine feet tall and seated at a table 30 feet long. The entire scene is cut in bas-relief in the face of a wall which is over three stories high. The Last Supper is so placed in the park that the sun shines on it throughout the day.

When Desert Christ Park first opened it had only a few hundred visitors the first year —last year more than 150,000 people visited the unique park in its beautiful desert setting.

Martin firmly believes his program is a success, saying, "Civilization will certainly go down beneath atomic destruction unless the religious people of the world get together. My statues are one man's gesture toward a peaceful world and I believe they are helping to bring mankind together."

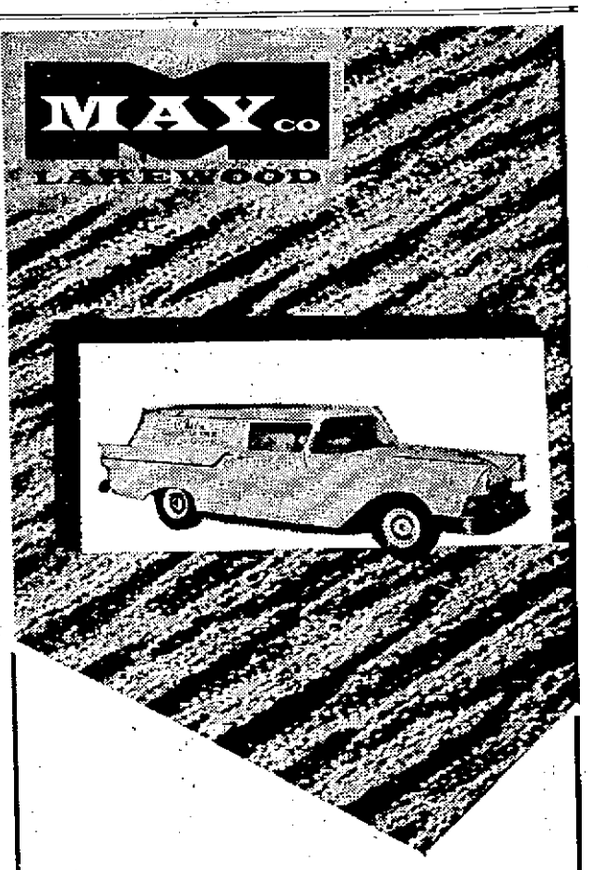

And with that thought Martin returns to his dedicated work of carving the teachings of Christ—teachings that will last forever.

Here's a Santa Set You Can Make

Santa Claus will come and spend the whole holiday season at your home if you make this display for roof or lawn. It can be a family project, too.

By Steve Ellingson

TIME BRINGS many changes — but not to Christmas. The whole world bows before this season with its time honored customs, the wide-eyed wonder of children and the spirit of peace.

Christmas is one time for everyone in the family to participate, the youngest and the oldest. It's an open season for do-it-yourselfers.

To let others make all the preparations for you, takes half the fun out of the yuletide season; the fun you experience when you do things yourself and get the family to help make Christmas something special.

AN OUTDOOR display makes your home a bright spot in the neighborhood and helps to spread the Christmas spirit. It needn't be expensive. As a matter of fact, it costs very little when you do it yourself. Of course, you don't do it all by yourself. Let the children help. You'll be surprised how much fun it is and how capable they are.

The Santa, reindeer and sleigh figures pictured here, with NBC actress Dayle Rodney, will make any yard come alive. The little choir boy and girl figures are 43 inches high and they get the Christmas idea over just fine.

The Santa figures may be fastened on the roof, they may be placed on their way up to the chimney or out in the yard in the snow. (We're sorry they couldn't be pictured in snow, but that's how it is in California.) You can make as many reindeer as you like. The choir boy and girl go well anywhere in your yard.

IT'S EASY to make these figures with the full size patterns. All you do is trace the full size patterns on plywood, next paint over the tracings and then saw out the figures. The patterns give complete directions along with the colors to use, etc. There's nothing to it.

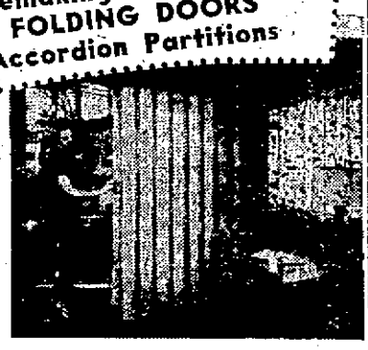

To obtain the full size choir boy and girl patterns No. 153 send $1. The Santa, reindeer and sleigh patterns are No. C-4 for $2. Send the check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine, The Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram, Van Nuys, Calif.

Real Cool Idea

Those pretty girls on television to the contrary, there's still an awful lot of iceboxes being made in this country. However, most of them are now being used by commercial firms rather than in the homes. Recently, a Los Angeles ice company installed huge icehoxes made of fir plywood and report savings of $175 each over previous boxes made of steel.

The boxes are used to keep dry ice from vaporizing in storage and en route to the company's customers.

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

Her Clowns Go 'Round in Circles

Yo-yo clowns, made by Mrs. Glen Gerken (right), spread cheer. Mrs. L. Roy Lash (left) helps make the clowns.

By Caroline Coleman

MRS. GLEN A. GERKEN long will be remembered as the "Clown Lady" to men and women who served with her on Superior Court juries last summer.

During lunch hours and in the waits between cases, Mrs. Gerken sewed hundreds of circles of cloth into yo-yos which became the bodies, arms and legs of clowns.

She took the yo-yos to her home, 200 E. 65th St., and they came back the next day as completed clowns, with ruffles, caps and tassles, to the delight of everyone.

Soon fellow-jurors were bringing her scraps of bright cloth and taking a hand in sewing yo-yos.

MRS. L. ROY LASH, wife of the pastor of Starr King United Presbyterian Church, became fascinated with the clowns.

"I should like to make the faces," she said.

Embroidering the faces before sewing up the head, which is made of unbleached muslin, facilitated assembly of the clowns.

During the 90 days of jury duty, 45 clowns were born. Each an individual in his own right.

IT TAKES 20 YO-YOS to make the body of a clown, 20 more for each arm and leg, plus a big one for a ruffle around the neck. Yo-yos for the body are made from five-innch circles, yo-yos for the arms and legs from four-inch circles, and the neck ruffle is made from a circle six inches or upwards. Mrs. Gerken cuts the tall pointed cap from the material before she cuts the neck ruff.

Arms, legs and body are strung on heavy carpet yarn and assembled. Then the yarn is tied for hands and feet, a tie goes around the neck, and a top piece complete the hat.

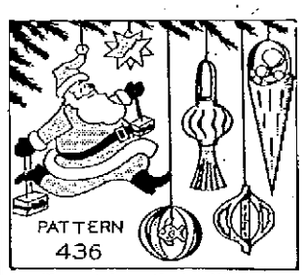

As the clowns come alive, they are given to the Women's Christian Service Assn. (of which Mrs. Gerken is president) of the Starr King United Presbyterian Church and from there they find homes in girls' dormitories in college, at the beds of old ladies and in the cribs of small children.

The clowns will be an attraction at the Nov. 21 bazaar at the church, Artesia St. and Long Beach Blvd.

It's All Greek To Them

By Elson E. Irwin

State College presentation of "Medea" will cast Don Ulander in role of Jason and Mary Daugherty as Medea.

THE GREEKS are taking over State College Little Theater.

"Medea," Euripides' classic tragedy as adapted by Robinson Jeffers, will open a three-night engagement in the Little Theater at Long Beach State College Nov. 14. Curtain time for all performances will be 8:30 p.m.

Dr. Clayton Garrison will direct, period settings will be designed by Dr. John Green, authentic Greek costumes by Miss Inge Schmidt, lighting effects by John Elliott and choreography by Suzanne Fowler.

"Medea" deals with good, evil, prejudice, intermarriage, revenge and jealousy.

"IT IS AS TIMELY as the morning newspaper," says Dr. Garrison. He adds: "We will attempt to be Greek in style, and contemporary in meaning."

Work on the production actually began as far back as last spring when Dr. Garrison, after talking for two years about doing a Greek play, got the go-ahead.

The selection of the play ran the natural course of events. Dr. Garrison ruled out plays which had been done recently, and also those which had run the television and movie gamut.

After the selection of "Medea," Dr. Garrison had the immediate problem of deciding which translation to use. He finally decided on the Jeffers adaptation.

"One of the main reasons that I finally chose the Jeffers version," Garrison said, "is that he was available for questioning."

JEFFERS, currently living in Carmel, was contacted and in a return letter the playwright was able to help Dr. Garrison in the interpretation of the play.

Garrison's two main questions were concerned with style and meaning. Jeffers answered promptly. His answers were short but informative.

"I know nothing about style," Jeffers wrote. "In fact, I know very little about writing plays."

Jeffers admitted that he had seen less than a half-dozen plays in his lifetime. The playwright also said that "the meaning of the play resides with each member of the audience. If the poet must be held accountable for this work, then I refer you to Euripides."

"I felt safe, after reading this," said Dr. Garrison, "to proceed with my investigation of Euripides, feeling absolutely sure that Jeffers was completely honest in his adaptation of the play."

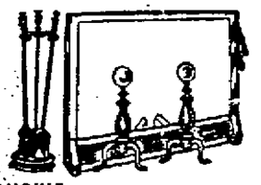

THE ORIGINAL VERSION of "Medea" was written in 431 B.C. Jeffers completed his modern adaptation in 1946.

Reservations for all performances may be made at the Little Theater box office at Long Beach State College.

Taking key roles are Mary Daugherty as Medea, Donald Ulander as Jason, Henry Kemp-Blair as Creon, Duane Ryan as Aegeus, Paula Smith as Nurse, Jo Harestad, Barbara Morris and Norma Myers as the Corinthian Chorus.

Supporting actors include Clifford Hansen, Jimmie White, George Williams, Charles Slater, William Warch, Charles Slater, Roberta Bowker and Phyliss Robertson.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the meaning and geneaology of McLEAN and McCLAIN—Mrs. E. H., Lakewood; L. M., Paramount.

MRS. E. H. and L. M.: The MacLEANS are among the most prominent of the old Scotch Highland clans. Variations of the surname include McLean, McClain, McLane and Macklin. The ancient Gaelic source-name was MacGillaEain, meaning "Sons of the servant of St. John." The clan founder was Gilleon of the Battle Axe in the 13th Century. The MacLean family crest has this battle axe to symbolize the ancestor's prowess in war. Duart Castle has been the home of the clan chiefs for many centuries. It is located on a cliff of the Island of Mull, across a channel from the west Scotch county of Argyll.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly give the analysis of the name WENDT.—MRS. J. W., Long Beach.

MRS. J. W.: The German surname WENDT has two sources. One is Wend, the race-name of the Wendish people. They are of Slavic origin and reside in the eastern German provinces of Brandenburg and Wendt is the old locative German word "wende," meaning "turning point or bend" in a road. The Wendt lineage became counts in the nobility of Austria. Their coat of arms has three blue and silver warrior's helmets on a golden shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: I would like the origin of JONTE.—MRS. C. J., Buena Park.

MRS. C. J.: JONTE is a phonetic, dialect spelling of the French surname Jentet. Jonte is among 50 or more surnames initialed from the given name Jean (John in English). The ancient Biblical "John" or Yehokhanan meant "God is gracious." No other information is available on this family.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly give information on the south Irish name BRENNAN.—J. B., Lakewood.

J. B.: The Irish BRENNAN family trace their ancestry to a chief called Braonain, who lived over eight centuries ago. He was characterized as emanating "Braonain" or "Sadness." The home of his progeny was County Kilkenny, where descendants formed the Clan O'Braonain. This was respelled O'Brennan and later reduced to Brennan. The family coat of arms has a red triangle on an ermine covered shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: I would like an analysis of the name SUMMERS.—V. S., Long Beach; MRS. J. S., Lakewood.

V. S. and MRS. J. S.: The Old English word "Somer," meaning "summertime," was often used to christen children born in July and August. The surname SUMMERS developed from that given-name. Other unimaginative seasonal given-names, Winter, Snow and Spring, became convenient at baptismal fonts and also became permanent surnames. The Summers coat of arms has an ermine band across a green shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: We would appreciate the analysis of LINDSAY.—S. Z. S., Garden Grove.

S. Z. S.: Hidden within the surname LINDSAY is the pastoral meaning, "Isle of Lime Trees." Two places in England are called Lindsay, one in Essex, the other in Lincoln. Walter de Lyndesay is recorded in Westminster in the 56th year of the reign of King Henry III (1272). Some Lindsays migrated to Scotland in the 1200s. They became politically prominent in Scotland and were created the Earls of Crawford. The Lindsay coat of arms, granted in 1398, has a checkered blue and silver stripe across a red shield, with the motto "Endure Fort," meaning "Suffer Bravely." American Lindsay settlers were among the founders of Pennsylvania.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would much appreciate a brief geneal-ogy of the name BOND.—M. R., K. B., Long Beach; D. B., Wilmington.

M. R., K. B. and D. B.: Ten centuries ago in Anglo-Saxon England a "bonda" was a farmer. This term became a surname in the 12th Century. In the 13th Century Robert Le Bonde was a Worcestershire resident. The Bond coat of arms was first granted in Cornwall, a gold stripe across the center of a blackshield. The Bonds settled in Ipswich, Mass., in 1640.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the meaning of the name LARSON.—E.G.L., Long Beach.

E.G.L.: LARSON has a Swedish background. The root-name Lars is the Scandinavian form of Lawrence, from the Latin "Laurentius," translated as "laurel-crowned one." A crown of laurel leaves was placed on winners of athletic contests in ancient Rome and Greece. Consequently the name also meant "the victor." Most Larsons in America are descended from Scandinavian families who came to this country between 1870 and 1890.

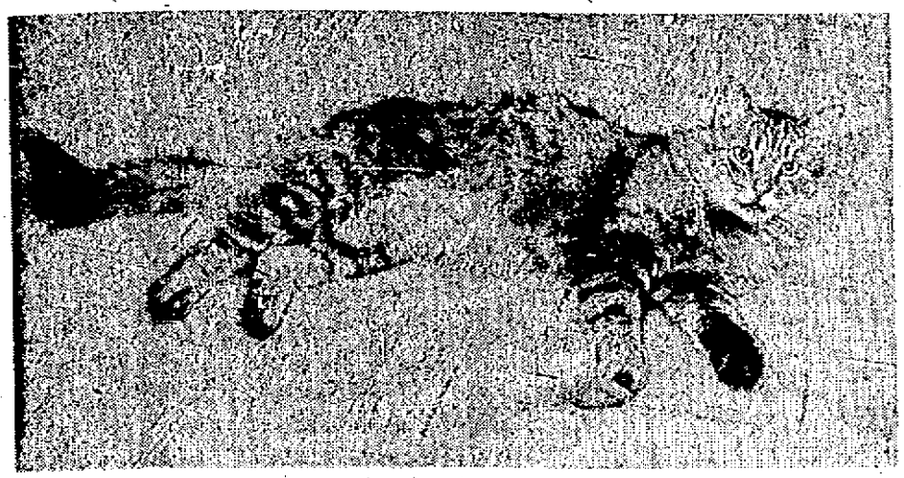

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif., for analysis and brief genealogy, for publication in this column.

What's wrong with me? I'll tell you—the world's going to the dogs, that's what! Cat-astrophic, I calls it. Why, look at Sputnik II. It's a baby moon, and everybody knows moons are made of green cheese. Where there's cheese, there are mice. By gum, if our scientists had any guts (catguts, of course) they'd ship me up there (not a dog!). I'd take care of those Russian rodents!

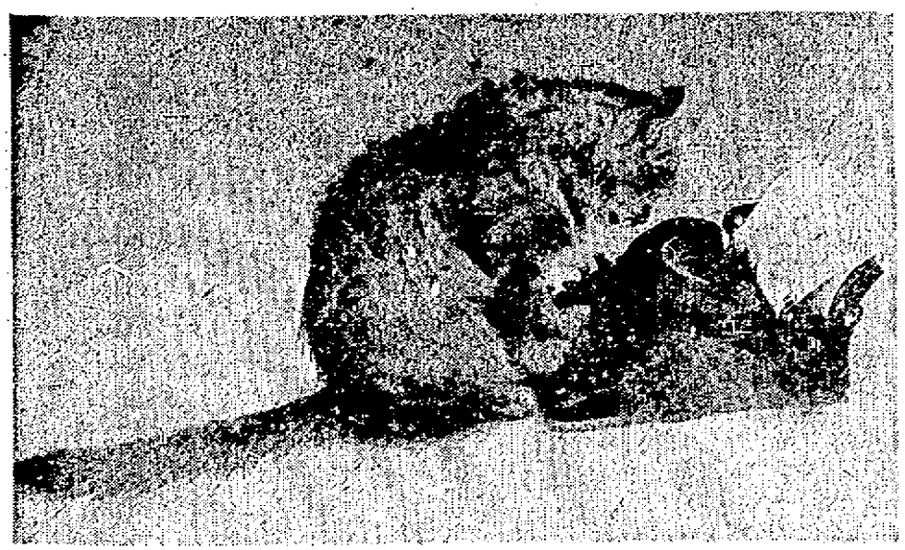

Stanislaus Writes His Congressman

But face it—the cards are stacked against us. Look at this inane magazine story. It's titled "I Hate Cats." Pretty purr taste. I have a notion to write my congressman.

Let's see, now. I could tell him about what happened in Hamlin the day the piper got too pie-eyed to tootle his pipes. Us cats sure pulled his fat out of the fire.

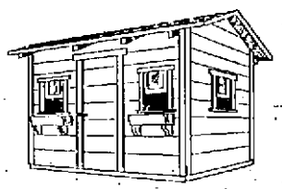

And awa-a-a-y we go! "Dear Sir: Hope this letter finds you bright-eyed and bushy-tailed. We of the C. A. T. (Council of Aroused Tabbies) wanted you to know we resent the purrsecution of kittens and their kind. CAMERA ANGLES

Move In on Those Movie Takes

By Bob Knight

ONE GETS you five that the first snapshot-making habit you acquired was to back up with your camera so as to "get everything in." Feet as well as features. For most snapshots (although they shouldn't be) are made by a one subject-one shot formula. And right here is the chief distinction between snapshots and movies. When shooting movies you film in sequences, with each sequence being composed of several shots . . . the whole of which makes one moving picture of a subject — with the most important shots in each sequence being the close-ups, just as they are in life.

How, for example, do you enjoy a garden? Do you stand back, or circle it, at a distance? You do not. You pause at the outset to take in its full sweep. Then you move in a bit closer to inspect a single flower bed. And then you really move in to savor the beauty of individual blooms — first one, then another, and then another. Which is just what you should do and can do to perfection in movies, with the big difference being that with a movie camera and color film you can reproduce far greater detail and beauty than you were able to perceive with the naked eye when you made your shots. For movie cameras are uniquely well fitted to capture close-ups as big, and even bigger, than life. And that goes for any movie camera, no matter how simple and inexpensive.

Moving in close gives an informal portrait of a boy and his dog pal that will be terrific on the screen.

WITH EVEN the most elementary movie camera equipped with a non-focusing lens you can shoot within 3½ feet of a subject. At that distance its lens will span a field about a foot wide. As even the low-cost 8mm movie projectors will fill a screen two to three feet wide, it automatically doubles or triples the width of your camera target, thus increasing its over-all area four to six times. More brilliant 8mm pro-

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

"We will be in Europe when we have our next baby. We now have a little girl 19 months old. Do you know anything about medical care?"

I NEVER had this problem. But I would suggest the American Hospital in Paris. I know two of the doctors here. They are excellent.

You'll find good medical care in Switzerland. And in London.

You might even come under the socialized medicine plan there. I don't know whether it covers maternity cases. But it seems to cover tourists as well as residents.

A friend of mine had his appendix taken out and the bill was something around $2.50. You can hardly afford to keep an appendix at that price.

* * * *

"We would like to spend Christmas in Mexico and are interested in skin diving."

BETTER TAKE your breathing equipment. You can rent the fins and spears but I hear the other gear is hard to get.

I'd suggest Mazatlan and Puerto Vallarta. Mazatlan is two days down the West Coast from Nogales, Ariz. Nice town. Several beach hotels I hear are good but I haven't stayed in them. I usually get a room high up at the Freeman overlooking the bay. Don't eat there. Eat at the other hotels along the avenue. I like the more Mexican hotels—the ones with the big interior patios and a boa constrictor slithering around as a mouse catcher.

* * * *

PUERTO VALLARTA further south is only open by air. From Mazatlan or Guadalajara. Several good hotels and wonderful bays and islands. This is the absolute favorite with all the American news correspondents in Mexico City.

You'll probably like the outlying Mexican towns for Christmas better than Mexico City. The season lasts about two weeks with some very colorful customs.

Rooms will cost about $5 a day double. Meals about $4 a day for each person.

* * * *

THE STREET STAND oysters with lime juice and hot sauce are great. Don't miss them. They bring them in fresh each day. And I would try the raw fish and onion cocktail called saviche. It's really cooked—cooked by letting it stand in the lime juice.

"I have $400 a month and want to take my two teen-age daughters to live in Europe for a while where they can learn a language."

SPAIN, near Malaga on the Mediterranean Coast has pleasant weather, pink-and-blue houses, little fried fish cooked with their tails together like a poker hand, warm people.

Friend of mine says he does this with his family for $3,000 a year which includes a villa, cook and maid. Buy your money outside Spain. The market peseta is down to 56.17 to the U. S. $1. About 20 per cent better.

"We hear that you have things stolen in Europe."

I HONESTLY don't think there's as much lifting as there is in the States. The whole crime rate in Europe is lower. I never had anything stolen in Europe.

I leave my big money in the hotel safe. Lock my car just as I would here if it's full of baggage. But I leave cameras and change around the room and no maid yet has ever boosted a thing.

TRAVEL AND RESORTS

Tourists Go South

Tourist travel to South America will jump ahead in 1958, continuing a strong trend which began late in 1956.

Escorted-group passengers reported for the first 10 months of 1957 by a nationwide travel service show an increase of 46 per cent over all of 1956. Figures for "independent" tourists are still being compiled, the service says, and are expected to show a parallel upsurge.

The report, based on information gathered from the American and Canadian offices of Cook's Travel Service and their authorized local travel agents, indicates the continuing rise in South American travel is due mainly to a 30 per cent reduction in all-year 30-day excursion air fares. This reduction went into effect in 1956 and is expected to continue throughout 1958.

Japan's Treasure

One of Japan's National Treasures is the "Sanjusangendo," or the "Hall of Thirty-Three Ken." It's so-called because of the 33 spaces between the pillars in the hall. Northwest Orient Airlines, booking its tourists to this showplace in Kyoto, reports that the hall was built in 1266. It's noted for its wooden image of the Thousand-handed Goddess Kannon, the principal object of worship. The Kannon is accompanied by 28 faithful followers and 1,001 smaller images of herself, all of rare artistic value.

Life on Dead Sea

The Dead Sea, Biblical setting for the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah and the rescue of Lot, is making a bid for 20th Century tourists. An air-cooled cafe is being built along the shore, and a luxury hotel is going up atop Mount Carmel.

Sightseers can now visit the restored fortress of Massada and cruise across the Dead Sea to the tropical gardens of Ein Gedi.

British Sea Sport

Sharking is the big sport along the southern coast of England, says Pan American. The waters near Cornwall teem with these great fish, and the Shark Angling Club of Great Britain has its headquarters in the nearby port of Looe. Visitors can hire sharking boats for $22.40 a day, and tackle rents for $3.50.

Taina Elg, Mitzi Gaynor and Kay Kendall (l. to r.) representing France, America and England, sing-dance a Cole Porter hit in musical comedy smash, "Les Girls."

HOLLYWOOD

Beautiful Girls Set to Music

BEAUTIFUL GIRLS set to music written by Cole Porter—those are the ingredients blended into a sophisticated music comedy smash, "Les Girls," produced in CinemaScope and Metrocolor by MGM. Heading the cast are Kay Kendall (see Southland cover), Mitzi Gaynor and Taina Elg, with Gene Kelly in the top male role. It's the story of a gay, tune-filled troupe in the music halls of Europe, and in it Miss Kendall makes her Hollywood debut. Cole Porter songs include "Les Girls," "Ladies in Waiting," "The Rope Song," "The Flower Song," "Ca C'est L'Amour" and "Why Am I So Gone About That Gal?"

jectors will show movies up to five feet wide. And 16mm projectors will "blow up" their images to 10 feet in width, or even larger.

But this is only the beginning of close-up possibilities! With a modest little item known as a portra lens slipped over your camera's standard lens, you can move in to about 10 inches and span a field about four inches wide. Transpose those inches into feet on your movie screen, and you've a real close-up in any league!

MOVIE CAMERAS with focusing lenses can usually be used as close as 12 inches from a subject, which again covers but a four-inch wide field. Add a portra lens to such cameras and you can whoop up a target only about two inches in width. In terms of the garden we were discussing, that's but one flower, the petals of which you can spread across the full proportions of your living room screen!

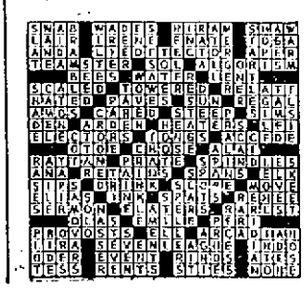

But more important than the mechanics—which is hardly the word—of making close-ups, is their value in filling out your movie diary with the most significant and most satisfying of all picture records. And let's take as our case in point a certain very young lady or very young man of whom you're especially fond. You'll want shots of him or her en toto, of course. But as part of your moving picture record you'll especially want those intimate d all-important little glimpses and all-important little glimpses and mannerisms that make youngsters so appealing . . . so downright adorable: The chubby and dimpled hand patting flat the contents of a sand bucket . . . the ecstatically wiggling toes . . . the button nose, all scrunched up in concentration. And you can film their play from their viewpoint, showing all the wonderful color and detail of their make-believe world. They needn't pose! They needn't pause! Because movies—especially close-up movies—are ideally designed to capture life exactly as it is lived.

(Next week: Composition and Camera Angles.)

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA Council of Camera Clubs (S4C), with which Long Beach Camera Guild is affiliated, will sponsor a lecture, illustrated with colored slides, by Mrs. Daisy Wu, an associate of the Photographic Society of America and an associate of the Royal Photographic Society of Great Britain, at 8 p.m. Nov. 25 in Fiesta Hall, Plummer Park, 7377 Santa Monica Blvd., Los Angeles. Tickets may be obtained from Estil M. Bartlett, S4C board member, 3733 Falcon Ave., telephone GA 7-8052.

'Drift Planting' for Spring Color

By Joe Littlefield

Tall, stately delphiniums rear their spikes of blue in background of this planting and against green hedge.

SOME GARDENERS like to plant a sunny area full of annuals and bulbs for loads of spring color. Others have limited garden space, yet would like to plant as many flowers as is practical. Best way to get the most effective color for spring, whether space is large or small, is to plant combinations of annuals and bulbs.

There is an easy way to accomplish this. First, take a stake or piece of wood and mark off the area you wish to plant. The marked-off area may be square, oblong, egg-shaped, triangular or otherwise.

The area may be five feet long and three feet wide, or three feet long by two feet or a foot and a half wide. It could be much larger, too. Actually, there's no set rule as to size, because yard space really determines the size, anyway.

WITHIN the allotted area, mark some straight lines parallel with the line of the flower bed, walks or driveway which the flower bed may adjoin. The straight lines indicate rows where plants are to be set out. Spacing of the lines depends upon types of plants to be set out. When the plants have been staggered in the rows and have grown together, no one will know that they were set in straight lines! This method of grouping together and planting is called "drift planting." It merely means plantings that are informal.

There are many interesting combinations of plants. As an example, ranunculus, Iceland poppies and blue violas form a delightful group. Iceland poppies, with saucer-shaped blooms and petals like crepe paper, in white, several shades of yellow and orange, rose and pink, bloom early along with the blue violas. Later in the winter, ranunculus with many double and some single flowers burst forth in bright colors ranging from scarlet and rose, orange and yellow, through pink

Tips on Gardening

GARDENING TIPS for the week . . . One of the most attractive ornamentals for the Long Beach area, and of fairly recent popularity, is the Hawaiian fern. The foliage is a shade of light green and the plant is unbeatable for use around swimming pools, patios and as a specimen plant. It is also widely used for foundation planting.

Many varieties of camellias are now coming into bloom. Purchasing them now will provide a wealth of bloom for many months. These shrubs require shallow planting and plenty of moisture. A mulch of peat will aid in conserving moisture, preventing soil cracking and keeping the roots cool.

The Croft lily, often called the true Easter lily will flower in May and June if planted now. The blooms are trumpet-shaped, pure white and wax-like in texture.

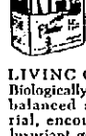

Winter-flowering sweet peas can be started in this area all through the winter months. The plants have the capacity for flowering when skies are grey and temperatures decline. Sweet peas are heavy feeders and drinkers.

Parrot tulips are distinct from the more familiar Darwins, as their petals are deeply cut and fringed. Fantasy, Discovery, Blue Parrot and Firebird are a few of the better varieties for this area.

Oleanders Have Their Place

Oleanders, recommended for the Long Beach area, are excellent background and screening shrubs.

By Walter Finch

FAMILIAR SIGHTS along California's highway system, oleanders are recommended strongly by the California Association of Nurserymen as lovely garden attractions in all warm regions of the state, particularly the Long Beach area. The more sunlight, including reflected sunlight, they receive, the more bounteous the crop of lovely blooms. They are excellent as background and screening shrubs.

There are two botanical species which are familiarly called "oleander"; the popular nerium oleander and the less known but very attractive Yellow Oleander (thevetia nereifolia). The round-headed Yellow Oleander thrives best in the coastal hot areas, while the nerium oleander proves highly successful in the hot interior valleys as well as on the southern coast.

The nerium oleander is a sturdy shrub which grows normally as a many-stemmed bush, one that can be pruned as a multiple-stemmed tree, similar to the multiple-trunked olive tree. The attractive foliage consists of long, feather-shaped, dark green leaves.

NERIUM OLEANDERS are available in many named varieties. Local nurseries each have their favorite named types in many colors, including single or double whites, pink, salmon, yellow and red. The flowers bloom in attractive clusters amidst attractive foliage.

The nerium oleanders bloom profusely from May or June through October while the yellow oleander blooms from June to November. Thevetia has varieties with apricot flowers as well as the yellow from which the name derives.

Fuchsia Society

Mrs. Dorothy Jonson, author of Southland Magazine's popular garden feature "Dorothy Digs in the Garden," will lecture on "Your Garden in the Fall" before the Lakewood Area Branch of the National Fuchsia Society at 8 p.m. Nov. 12 in Legion Hall, Post 496, Parkcrest Dr., Lakewood. H. G. Parker is program chairman.

Plants Add Color

There are many winter blooming plants that will bring color into drab winter gardens if planted right now. Among shrubs, the heater is one of the most attractive and it is available in many species with needle or scale-like foliage and soft purple or white blooms. Another is the pyracantha, whose species and varieties bear gaily colored berries throughout the long winter. See some of these shrubs at your nurseryman's now.

'Drift Planting' for Spring Color

shades to creamy whites. Together, they form a combination that makes those garden spots shine with vibrant color!

SPACE the ranunculus and Iceland poppies five inches apart in the same row, alternating the two types of plants. This may seem like planting too closely. It isn't, because the Iceland poppies grow somewhat low and mounding, whereas ranunculus grow tall, with foliage thin near the ground.

If you've had trouble from birds damaging the tender ranunculus foliage, or perhaps have lost plants due to soil being too damp, plant ranunculus already established from flats or pony packs.

Continue to plant additional rows the same way, excepting the front row. In it, plant blue violas spaced about six inches apart, but slightly staggered on either side of the marked row.

Delphiniums can form masses of bloom in various shades of blue. Use them at the back of the flower bed, in front of garden walls, or shrubbery plantings.

Many gardening folk still wonder what the secret is in growing four, five or six-foot-tall spiked flowers. Actually, there's no secret at all. It's just that they planted the delphiniums either too late in the spring, or else too early in the summer for next season.

IDEAL TIME to plant delphiniums for tallest spike growth is during fall and early winter. Plants must undergo a cool period to develop a sturdy root system.

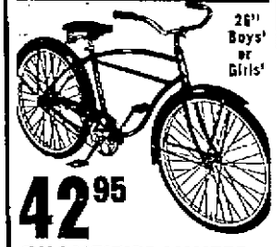

If there's any secret to successful culture of Pacific hybrid delphiniums, then it's working in a half cup of bone meal at the time of planting, whether plant is flat size or larger. Then, too, they should be fed with a complete balanced fertilizer at least twice throughout the winter. Water plants as soil dries, and protect them from chewing worms and slugs.

Cold weather, including frost, seems to give the roots added vigor and toughness. Come late winter, notice flower spike growth will slowly move upwards. As the sun travels northward, its rays seem to have a magnet that draws the flower spikes upward.

Watch your pansy bed. These colorful little plants sometimes suffer from what is popularly known as "pansy wilt." Actually, on most occasions when you find one or two pansies dying every day and still can detect no signs of insect infestation or other cause, the trouble is underground.

Wireworms and other underground pests take their toll by injuring the tender roots of the pansy plants so that they gradually sicken and die. You can eliminate this evil without much difficulty. I use a copper-ether product to disinfect the soil in which the plants are growing. If the pansy plants are well watered a few hours before treating the soil, they will have absorbed all the moisture they want and will not absorb any of the other content, but will go on blooming merrily, freed of their underground enemies. This treatment will be effective on other plants as well.

PET PARADE

Love, Honor and Obey

By Eleanor Avery Price

EXPECTED to be the outstanding event of its kind on the West Coast, the fourth annual convention of the Southern California Obedience Council is being held today at Lakewood Country Club. The public is invited.

The local Lakewood Dog Obedience Club is participating as well as Downey, San Pedro, Southeast, South Gate, Southwest Obedience Clubs, Santa Ana Valley Kennel Club, and many other organizations.

Tickets, which include a program covering all events and scoring sheets, for luncheon and/or dinner will be available at the door.

THE MORNING session got under way at 7:30 o'clock when the track was laid for demonstrations featuring specially selected dogs. Those who missed this early event, may still come out to see the novice, open, utility and police degree demonstrations on the country club grounds.

Special addresses emphasizing all sides of obedience training will be given by experts following luncheon which is set for 11:30 a.m. The afternoon program will include a judges' open forum with audience participation and a social intermission. Concluding event is dinner and a speaker at 6:30 p.m.

Dog owners are increasingly finding it wise to give obedience training a place in the lives of their pets. By virtue of his niche as a member of the family, the dog usually fits easily into his "school" curriculum.

HOWEVER, many persons interested in obedience training feel that because their dogs are mongrels they are not capable of learning even basic good behavior. While it is true that all dogs striving for points in obedience trials must be purebred registered AKC dogs, it is not true that a pedigree necessarily wags the dog. Many mixed breed dogs can be obedience trained with the same methods used with purebred dogs—getting across to the pets exactly what it is they are to learn by familiarization and by understanding, patience, attention, kindness and affection.

One of the most remarkable dog stories in the news this year concerns a mongrel who was at first not even considered very intelligent. The Christian Science Monitor carried this report:

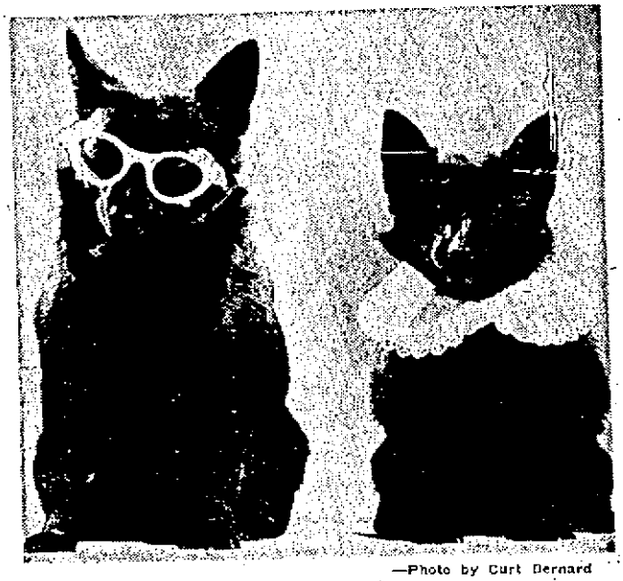

"Our little mongrel, Sparkie, was undeniably a nuisance, always getting underfoot, tripping people on the stairs, racing us to the front door when the bell rang, and refusing to be budged from the big lounge chair.

"THEN MY AUNT came to stay with us and, incredibly, Sparkie at once became a gentleman. He would wait decorously at the top of the stairs until our guest had descended. He kept out of her way when she walked through the house. The lounge chair was his only until he heard her approach, and then he would instantly jump down and lie quietly at her feet.

"We shall never know how Sparkie understood that my aunt was totally blind."

So give your dog a chance and remember that some of our finest purebreds were evolved from a mixture of breeds.

NOON, NOV. 11, is the deadline for entries of the Sequoia Kennel Club unbenched dog show and obedience trial to be held Nov. 24 at Tulare County Fairgrounds, Tulare. Motels accepting dogs are Motel Selma, Drake, El Rancho and Virginia Motor Lodge.

HOW TO Guard Against Rot and Mildew

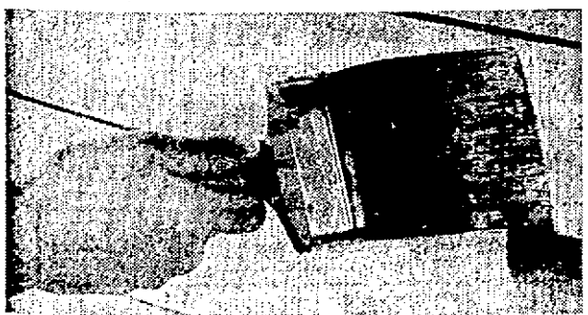

1. WOOD PRESERVING solutions are a good protection against decay and termites. Use them wherever moisture is a problem, especially where wood meets the ground. Apply solution to new and old lumber, brushing it liberally into cracks and joints.

2. MILDEW IS A FUNGUS growth. You'll recognize it by dark, rashlike spots where there's little sunlight and high humidity. Wash the area with warm water and soap suds, or trisodium phosphate solution. Following mixing formula on the package.

3. IF MILDEW HAS penetrated into wood, remove paint in affected area with paint remover. Bleach stain with oxalic acid solution—handle it carefully. Mix three tablespoons of acid to a pint of water. Brush it into wood, rinse with water, and let it dry. Then paint the spot.

4. TREAT AREAS especially susceptible to fungus growth with mildew-retarding paint. These paints can be purchased with mildew retardant already added, or you can buy a mildew-retarding additive that you can mix in paint you've selected to match adjacent areas.

PAUL HOOVER

No Spices Inside, Please

PRIME RIBS au jus is one of the greatest boons known to man. A person who spends an hour concentrating happily on a prime rib dinner just naturally forgets about rising taxes, ICBM missiles, radioactive fallout and all the other cares of this hectic space age.

The prime rib dinner at Paul's of Lakewood restaurant, Carson St. at Bellflower Blvd., is definitely such a worry-eraser. Host and owner Paul Hoover buys the very finest beef obtainable and his chefs spend hours preparing the 17-to-25-pound roasts so they will have the exquisite flavor and tenderness characteristic of excellent prime rib.

After the short ribs are cut off, the roast is cooked for an hour and 45 minutes to 2½ hours, depending on its size. Salt is sprinkled on the roast's exterior, but no spices are added to the interior meat. "The fine flavor of prime rib is the flavor of the meat itself," explains Hoover. "It cannot be improved by spices."

HERBS AND SPICES are added, however, to the hot au jus (thin clear meat juice) with which the prime rib is served. The price of the 14-ounce serving of prime rib at Paul's is quite reasonable, $2.50 a la carte, including large chef's green salad, baked potato with cheese sauce, rolls and butter. It's $3.25 on the generous complete dinner, which includes appetizer or soup, salad, two vegetables, hot rolls, choice of beverage and choice of many interesting desserts.

The large menu at Paul's features numerous other fine complete dinners, such as delectable grilled halibut steak with tartar sauce, $2.20; chicken fried steak, $2.25, and a regular Sunday favorite, stewed chicken with fluffy dumplings, $2. Among the charcoal-broiled steak specialties is the giant 16-to-18-ounce choice T-bone for $3, a la carte.

Paul's, which has a coffee shop and cocktail lounge in addition to the large dining room, is open daily from 7 a.m. to 1 a.m.

AT HOME in Montreat, N. C., the author dictates a memo. He spends much time here between his "crusades."

I'll always remember . . .

A judge who knew me

by BILLY GRAHAM

It happened in Florida. I was speeding — breaking the limit — hurrying to a meeting in Miami. Suddenly I saw a traffic cop coming toward me, and he stopped me.

"How in the world could you stop me coming toward me?" I asked.

"Radar," he said. He took me to the judge — who was in a barber shop. The judge said, "Just a moment" — he was the barber. I waited until the judge got through giving a haircut. Then he came around the little desk. He pounded the gavel and said, "The court will now come to order. Guilty or not guilty?" Then he looked up and said, "Don't I know you?"

And I said, "I hope not."

He said, "Aren't you the preacher, Mr. Graham — Billy Graham?"

I said, "Sir, I am sorry to admit it. I am."

He said, "I listen to you every Sunday on the radio." And he went on to tell about what he thought about our work.

I put my wallet back in my pocket. I thought I had found a friend. We talked a little bit of this and that. Nothing was mentioned of the case.

I said, "Well, I have to be in a meeting in Miami. I am certainly delighted to have met you, Judge."

He said, "Well, I am certainly delighted to have seen you, Dr. Graham. That will be $10, please."

As I paid up, I had to acknowledge that he was right and I was wrong. I might be a Christian inspiration to him on Sundays, but at that moment I was just another law-breaker.

It was a lesson I've never forgotten. ■

On Parade

The recent article on this page about Dr. Albert Schweitzer (A man and an ant, by Marion Mill Preminger) evoked considerable mail.

For readers who asked for the address of this unselfish man who devotes his life to Africa's natives, here it is: Dr. Albert Schweitzer, Lambaréné, Gabon, French Equatorial Africa.

Another item — this one in the In the News page about dogs and the lives they lead (Sept. 22), brings additional news about the dog who went out to get aid for a sick man. Armour F. VanBriesen, Stillman Valley, Ill., writes: "We are owners of the dog now, as the man was my father-in-law. The dog has good and bad points — but he did his duty."

On the cover is an Italian model displaying a new idea in resort wear. It marks a trend you'll see echoed here in America. Meanwhile, you can read about it on pp. 30-31.

New times—new taste

for Light refreshment

THE table's turned these days on many old ideas about entertaining. Figure-conscious moderns like the light, less-filling food and drink featured on the modern buffet.

Pepsi-Cola's there, of course, because it's followed right along with this sensible trend. Today's Pepsi, reduced in calories, is never heavy, never too sweet. Have a Pepsi—the modern, the light refreshment.

See Mary Martin in "Annie Get Your Gun," live in Color, NBC-TV, Thanksgiving Eve, Nov. 27.

PEPSI-COLA

CANDIDATE GARCIA, the incumbent, follows the practice of his predecessor, President Magsaysay, in listening to everyone who comes to his office with a problem. Garcia has been accused of "neutralism" on the Indian model, but says: "Our position is clear. We cannot be neutralists in the fight between Communism and democracy."

Filipinos vote—U. S. style

With 15 men running for president, 6,000,000 ballots will be cast on Tuesday. Best bet: A pro-American will be elected CANDIDATE YULO (above) is given an outside chance. A plantation owner, he has been charged with arranging a government loan to himself while serving in public office. To offset talk that he is a rich man's candidate, he has posted signs like this one. All Filipino candidates must campaign in English, Spanish, local dialects.

by FRED BLUMENTHAL

Parade Washington correspondent

MANILA, P. I.

With the U. S. and Russia locked in a power struggle, every election throughout the world takes on new importance to Americans. Next Tuesday's Philippines presidential balloting is no exception. U. S. government experts will look hard at 6,000,000 Filipino voters as they flock to the polls from this nation's 7,000 vine-tangled islands.

An on-the-spot check indicates that the candidate who convinces voters he is friendliest to America will win. For Filipinos have not forgotten who taught them democratic ways and granted them independence.

Even the campaigns here have a typically American ring. Candidates bombard the electorate with posters, kiss babies, use jeeps, helicopters and sound trucks to reach remote jungle villages. At the same time, police have been rounding up loose firearms to discourage bullets instead of ballots on election day. And 8,000 extra troops will keep order at the polls.

Of the 15 presidential candidates, these five are considered to have the best chance:

Carlos García. Successor to the late President Ramón Magsaysay, after Magsaysay's death last March in a plane crash, García is outspokenly pro-American. He led a guerrilla group during the Japanese occupation. Today, for diversion, he writes romantic poetry, which he has read during campaign speeches to delighted followers.

By Limousine and Jeep

José Yulo. A wealthy sugar-producer, Yulo travels in an air-conditioned limousine but jumps into a jeep outside each town to greet the voters. In the Jap occupation, Yulo held public office and so was jailed by the Filipinos when General MacArthur recaptured the islands. Though pro-American, he still smarts from this postwar treatment.

Claro Recto. Sharply anti-American in the past, Recto also was jailed as a Jap collaborationist. His biggest handicap: Word has leaked out that he dyes his hair, which many Filipinos resent. A campaign asset: His wife is a former beauty queen.

Manuel Manahan. Magsaysay fired him from a high post. A scandal was rumored which never became public. Today, ironically, Manahan capitalizes on his physical likeness to the late president — and, like Magsaysay, he rides water buffaloes, leaps over fences and mingles with primitive tribesmen.

Antonio Quirino. Another outspoken pro-American, he is a brother of the late President Elpidio Quirino. His chief appeal is that his name is familiar to many voters.

All these candidates are experienced in government work. García and Quirino fought the Japs. Yulo and Recto served in the puppet government — a fact voters are not likely to forget.

Who will win? Confidential surveys made available here to PARADE indicate that García will get 45 per cent of the vote. In a five-way race, that's ample margin for victory. And a recent effort to sabotage García's candidacy was stopped cold: The election commission ruled that three other men named García could not get on the ballot! ■

On the Corps' birthday, here are ...

Today, on the 182nd birthday of the U. S. Marine Corps, PARADE salutes the Leathernecks with some of their own photographs. They are typical scenes of Marine activity, showing how traditionally tough boot training paid off in tougher combat. These shots, some of which heartened our country during doubtful times, are the work of Marines who in civilian life were professional photographers or who became "pros" in line of duty. The pictures are from an exhibit of Marine Corps prints which have been on display for the past month in New York City. Now the exhibit goes on a nation-wide tour which begins in Washington, D. C.

Are show people overpaid?

A million dollars for one film is a lot. Here are the pros and cons

by LLOYD SHEARER

Parade West Coast correspondent

HOLLYWOOD.

How high can a star climb? Today, with salaries in the entertainment business at dizzying peaks, movie-makers and others here are facing up to that question. And no wonder: no occupation in the world pays more money, no other industry boasts so many persons earning $100,000 a year.

In recent years, in fact, the amounts demanded by and paid to show-business stars have become so huge as to be almost meaningless. Take a few samples at random: John Wayne now gets $666,666 a picture. Tyrone Power's share of the profits on Mississippi Gambler, a run-of-mine film, now have reached $950,000. Audrey Hepburn, a few years ago a poorly paid London chorus girl, currently is the world's highest-priced actress: she gets $350,000 plus $1,000 a week expenses, or 10 per cent of the film's gross earnings. Her husband, Mel Ferrer, although an actor of scant box-office pull, gets $100,000 a picture.

Five Times Ike's Salary

Nor are these monster pay checks limited to movie earnings. Tab Hunter's royalties for one recording, Young Love, have reached $78,000. Elvis Presley's take for a one-night stand is $25,000. Jerry Lewis' fee for a week in a Brooklyn night club was $40,000.

Some of these entertainers earn five times more in a year than President Eisenhower. Are names worth that much?

Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association, has said again and again, "Salaries are far too high in every field of film production." (Johnston's own salary, incidentally, is $125,000 a year plus expenses.) Veteran producer Sam Goldwyn has said the same thing, in different words.

Independent film producer Charles Schnee is more specific. "Something is very wrong," Schnee says, "when an actor like Cary Grant receives $1,000,000 for his part in The Pride and the Passion before the producer, Stanley Kramer, makes a single cent."

Other producers point out that many stars — Burt Lancaster, John Wayne, Gregory Peck, Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz among them — have set up their own companies. When they agree to work for someone else, they make extreme demands. Yet often enough their terms are met.

Marilyn Monroe demanded 75 per cent of the gross of The Prince and the Showgirl plus ownership rights after eight years. And she got it. And when Frank Sinatra agreed to a TV series if he had complete control, without interference from advertising or network executives, ABC went along with him. The network also agreed to pay him $8,000,000 over three years.

Once in a great while, for old time's sake, a star will consent to labor for a flat amount. Because he is an old friend of Darryl Zanuck, Tyrone Power appeared in The Sun Also Rises for $300,000 and $1,000 a week in expenses. But he hated to do it because of income taxes.

How can stars demand — and get — so much? Producers blame the star shortage and the resultant law of supply and demand. A few admit, privately, that some such demands are justified. "After all," they say, "Clark Gable worked for peanuts at MGM while the studio made a fortune on his pictures. Now he's entitled to what the traffic will bear."

What nettles producers most, however, are the demands of actors of less magni-

A MOST UNUSUAL NEW CAR is now enjoying an enthusiastic reception all over America. It is very low, very daring, beautifully proportioned. Designated "Swept-Wing 58," the car is the successor to the 1957 Swept-Wing Dodge which launched a "buying revolution" against the high, boxy design carried over by other cars in the field. In Swept-Wing 58, owners will have the most advanced 1958 car on the road in style, ride and true greatness of handling. Significant advances include an Electronic, Fuel Injection engine, a new Constant-Control power steering system, and a "Sure-Grip" differential for better traction on snow and ice. Torsion-Aire ride, which virtually eliminates road sway and brake dip, is standard equipment. Driver controls all speed ranges of the automatic transmission by push-button. Dodge spokesmen point out: "The Swept-Wing 58 has no counterpart. To own it is a new adventure."

tude. Victor Mature is a case in point. He demands and gets $200,000 a picture, plus a percentage of the profits. So does Richard Widmark. Similarly inflated prices are demanded by Yvonne DeCarlo ($150,000), Anne Baxter ($100,000), Audie Murphy ($200,000), Jennifer Jones ($250,000), Alan Ladd ($200,000) and others.

Another executive declares that only three or four actors are worth their asking price; the others, he says, "are living on yesterday's reputations." And as for women stars, he continues, "the plain truth is that a studio can take pretty nearly any pleasant, well-built girl and blow her up to star proportions."

The reason for stars' high prices, as this executive sees it, is bankers. "They won't finance a no-name movie. The first thing they ask is, 'Who's in it?' So producers must hire names to get backing."

The worm may be turning. "Lately," he says, "we've begun to develop newcomers whom we've put under long-term contract. TV has proved the public will go for newcomers if they like the series. Look at Gunsmoke. Today the story is more important than the star."

What do the stars have to say? After interviewing dozens, I've yet to find one who admits he's overpaid. Clark Gable, when we were on location for The Tall Men in Mexico, told me:

$40 Million, but No Cut

"The public doesn't realize that an actor doesn't make much money when he first goes under contract. During the first few years, the studio uses you in as many pictures as possible. In many cases, the studio profits are gigantic. Take Gone With the Wind: So far, it's grossed $40 million — but all I got was my regular salary. After years of making profits for others, an actor decides to make some for himself. I can't see anything wrong with that."

Other stars point out that they give at least 80 per cent of their salaries to the Government in taxes. Of the rest, the bulk goes for clothes, personal staff and keeping up appearances. Terry Moore once itemized a list of expenses typical of the young actress making $65,000 a year, or $1,250 a week:

Income tax	$675
Agent's commission	125
Publicity	75
Fan mail, secretary, beauty care, etc.	125
Clothes	125
Total	$1125

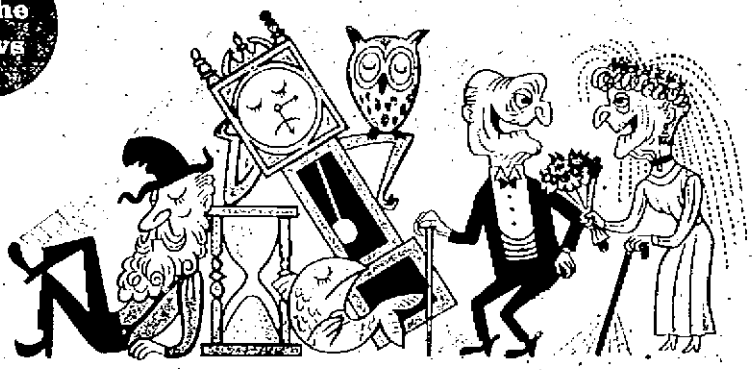

Terry's figures leave about $125 a week for saving and investment. Practically any star can quote similar figures.

The actors' agents, of course, say the stars are worth every penny they get. "After all," says one, "actors bring in the public. How about the producers, the executives, the theater owners? They're the ones who're overpaid."

Louis (Doc) Schnurr, Bob Hope's agent, explains it simply: "Entertainers are in demand. If an entertainer's terms aren't met in Hollywood, he can set up his own company. He can make recordings. He can play Las Vegas, go into TV, make personal appearances. Today in show business we have a seller's market."

I asked Bob Hope what he thinks about performers' pay. Despite his flip tongue, Hope is a shrewd, thoughtful man. "It is never a question of an entertainer being overpaid," Hope declared. "It's simply a question of how much a laugh, a tear or a thrill is worth to the audience. Entertainers, after all, are people. Like all people, what they want most is a sense of security, and peace of mind. Somehow, a fat bank account seems to help." ■

Parade

This is an unusual story. It deals with a young woman who, like 750,000 other Americans, must say...

'I am a mental patient'

by SID ROSS and ROBERT P. GOLDMAN

The woman pictured on the opposite page is one of a growing group of Americans — patients with schizophrenia in mental hospitals. Her name is Priscilla Masterman. Her life-in-sickness represents, to some degree, that of each of the nation's 15,000,000 sufferers from mental disease. PARADE presents her story in hopes of creating broader understanding of problems like hers. It was prepared with Priscilla Masterman's own cooperation. Thanks also are due to Mendocino State Hospital and the California Department of Mental Hygiene.—THE EDITORS.

TALMAGE, CALIF.

"My baby girl had brown eyes and brown hair. The baby we took home wasn't mine; it had blonde hair and blue eyes. I knew it wasn't mine because it would shrink in my arms and then grow bigger again. This baby's features would change as I looked at her. I think she had been born previously and this was a reincarnation from another life . . ."

This is Priscilla Masterman talking. She is patient #31931 at Mendocino State Hospital here. Her disease, schizophrenia, is what you have heard called "split personality."

Born in Seattle 37 years ago, Priscilla is articulate and soft-spoken, with something of a Mona Lisa air. Neat and prim, with pretty dark hair, Priscilla seems to glide in and out of the pleasant buildings that make up Mendocino. Because she is improving, Priscilla, unlike some of the other 2,300 patients here, has "privileges." She can move about freely from her brightly appointed room to the hospital library, recreation rooms and landscaped hospital grounds.

She even can walk right out of the hospital: there are no guards, no walls at Mendocino. But Priscilla knows that she is not yet completely well. She knows that within the hospital she can receive the treatment she needs so badly.

Actually, treatment for schizophrenia is to some extent guesswork. No one knows the cause of the disease. Doctors theorize that it results from brain or chemical defects, or perhaps the early influences of a broken home. So Priscilla gets drugs. She gets constructive work to do. Above all, she gets time, patience — and understanding.

That last may be the key. In schizophrenia, the mind loses touch with reality. There are tortured delusions, unpredictable mental wanderings. Fear, hatred, hostility, grandeur are common manifestations. Unable to control his feelings, the patient at the same time may distrust others and retreat to his own little emotional island.

"I Went to Pieces"

That is how it has been with Priscilla. Sometimes the terror, helplessness, confusion are real to her. More often, today, they are only remembered. So now she can discuss the voices, the "cold, blue level," the despair of feeling tortured.

"At the beginning," she says, "I began hearing voices of people I had known. Some of the voices ridiculed me. Other voices were kind of jealous. 'You're not you. You're not real,' they said.

"I went completely to pieces. I thought I was receiving mental telepathy from people who were killed in the atom bombing. I even went through the death of Christ on the Cross. I felt the nails and the pains through my feet and hands. I was suffering."

That was about five years ago, when Priscilla's illness started. Before that she had been — well, just Priscilla. She had grown up in Seattle, one of three girls. When she was 12, her parents were divorced. Then her mother became mentally ill and had to be hospitalized. In her teens, after graduating from high school, Priscilla went out on her own. She got a job and later married, then was divorced.

Shortly afterward she was remarried to what she simply calls "a Navy man." That was in 1946. Six years later she gave birth to a baby girl.

Just before that, the first sinister symptoms of schizophrenia appeared. Priscilla was returning to the U. S. from Guam with her husband. On the ship, she began to feel ill. She cannot recall having distorted thoughts before — although doctors say she must have had some symptoms. Suddenly she began to live on different "levels."

"There are three levels," she believes. "One is the real cold-blue level, high up. Then there's the extreme hot down below; and medium terra firma. Sometimes I've been on the real hot level, sometimes on the real cold level. The low level is like hell. People there don't count their blessings. On the high level, there is a tremendous battle always going on, a friction to control power."

This is what happens when delusion replaces reality for Priscilla. Similar things happen to sufferers from mental illnesses other than schizophrenia. All told, there now are 750,000 patients in public U. S. mental hospitals. The American public pays $1 billion per year to support them; these patients lose more than $2 billion in annual income through inability to work. In addition, authorities estimate that roughly one in 10 Americans, though not hospitalized, suffers from some form of mental disorder, neurosis or psychosis which can be incapacitating. To some extent Priscilla Masterman speaks for all of these.

"It always becomes hot and dry when I'm upset," she says. This is one conviction she has yet to shake.

Name: Priscilla Masterman
Patient: =31931
Diagnosis: Schizophrenia

"It's amazing the power that human minds have over the physical universe. Within a few moments, nature reflects one's emotions. I can tell that everyone is happy here this morning because the weather's so lovely outside . . . There is magnetism in the air. It can hurt you and confuse you if you don't read the Holy Bible and if you don't count your blessings."

Priscilla's Navy husband learned to expect such statements from his wife — or stronger ones, like this: "I began feeling that we were at war and that the Russians had captured us and were torturing us. I thought they wanted to kill me, but they really wanted to save me to die a slow horrible death. I guess I was really sick . . ."

The upshot was that the husband divorced her and won custody of their daughter. Alone, frightened, depressed, Priscilla continued her downhill slide. She sought work, but almost invariably was turned down: her mental distress was apparent even to the casual outsider. For a period of four years she went from mental hospital to mental hospital in Washington, Utah, finally California. A year ago, Priscilla was admitted to Mendocino.

Prior to her arrival here, she says, "Time seemed to stop and stand still. I couldn't make it move. It was all very strange. I had the feeling that people didn't want me in their world . . . I couldn't shake off the cold, high-level world where people really wanted to capture me."

Here at Mendocino, Priscilla was observed closely after she was admitted. Excerpts from hospital records say of her: "At times, she seems completely absorbed in meditation sitting in a chair, her eyes closed . . . Piano playing seems to have become an obsession with her . . . She seems to have an air of grandeur — acting a part . . . Today she is pleasant . . . seems to have reached a better level in regard to realism . . . not so haughty in action and speech . . . She stated in a very loud manner that she is not to be disturbed when reading her Bible . . ."

"The Voices Followed Me"

Priscilla herself describes her feelings about coming to Mendocino: "The voices followed me. I was really frightened, I was frightened of the doctors and nurses, too. They said they'd give me shock treatment if I didn't calm down. They didn't though, for which I am thankful.

"But still when I arrived, I couldn't shake off these people in the high-level dream world. Oh yes, it's real. It's a very real world. All these reincarnations are created up in that dream world . . ."

Thus, when Priscilla began her treatment at Mendocino, her dream world had become real. She had to struggle against it, because to her it meant constant mental agony, constant harassment. Once she became unmanageable. Last spring, she struck an attendant and had to be restrained by four hospital staff people. But since then she has not been violent.

On another occasion, she indicated to a nurse that she expected to die soon. As a precaution, the ward staff was alerted to watch her closely, lest she attempt suicide. To everyone's relief, she didn't.

Somewhere along the way Priscilla took a turn for the better. The date is uncertain; so are the exact reasons. Perhaps she began to respond to the psychiatric treatment and the medicines she was getting. At least some credit probably goes to what the hospital calls its "therapeutic community," which allows certain freedoms in which patients can help one another, partially set their own routine and thus even influence the hospital's programs.

In any case, Priscilla is climbing slowly out of the hazy world of schizophrenia. She can talk about the illness calmly and even with a degree of objectivity.

"Schizophrenia is a very fearful ailment. I feel it must be some sort of judgment passed on one, to see how one has lived previously. Places change. The scenery changes. Thickly wooded hills become barren and the trees just shimmer and disappear. I've seen it with my own eyes.

Her Chances for Discharge

"Yourself, you sort of shrink. You feel panic. Terrible panic. You shake. You tremble. You seem to get smaller and smaller. You want to get away, but you know you cannot. Only prayer helps.

"People become mean, cruel, sadistic. You feel a bitter resentment of your presence. You feel that they think everything is your fault. Sometimes, the whole place becomes magnetized and things deteriorate. I don't want to hurt anyone, just like I don't want to be hurt."

The voices, the fears, the resentments are coming less and less often to Priscilla. Two or three months ago, she believes, the frightening voices began to diminish. Yet there still are moments when she finds herself in the dream world. There still are moments when she talks about those "levels" and wanders off into her own little emotional vacuum.

What are Priscilla Masterman's chances for discharge? Thirty years ago, they would have been less than one in three. Most patients like Priscilla would have spent their lifetimes in a mental hospital. Today the picture has changed. On the average the chances now are better than 50-50.

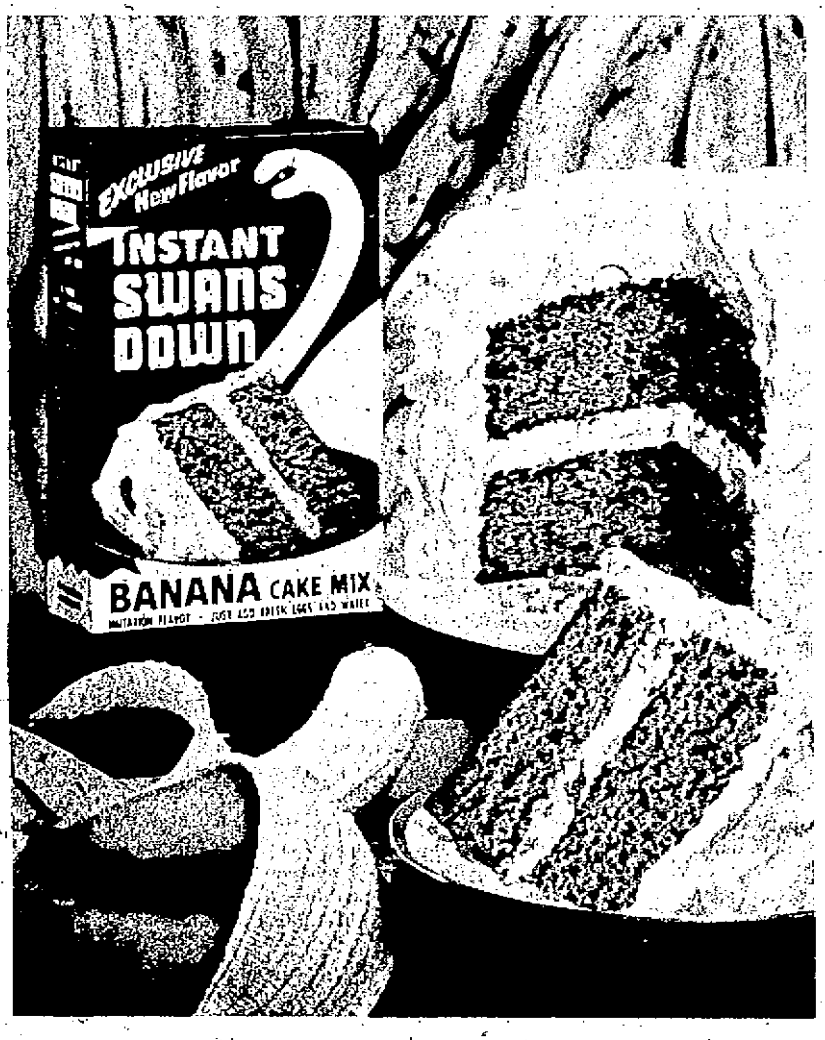

It may take a year for Priscilla's release. It may take more. Priscilla believes strongly that "I have touch with reality. I don't have delusions as long as I remember to count my blessings. I think I am a much better person than I was before. Here in the hospital, I have learned the true values of life. I've learned not to be self-centered. You must think more of others."

Step No. 1 in Priscilla's ultimate release will come when doctors feel she can live on the outside, manifesting few if any symptoms. She would be followed up closely by hospital social workers. Their purpose: to chart her progress which might lead to unconditional release.

But Priscilla is in no hurry. Every evening before going to sleep she offers a little prayer of thanks for the help she has received at Mendocino.

Priscilla is grateful—but

"It's a wonderful home here for those who need it," says Priscilla in a warm, calm manner that makes one forget, momentarily, that she is referring to a mental hospital. "You're always occupied. Your days are full and long."

The photos on these pages bear that out. Priscilla's days include library work (six hours or so, starting at 8 a.m.), socializing, reading, taking medication, relaxing and dreaming of what it would be like to "live on the outside."

Says Mendocino's clinical director, Dr. Ernest W. Klatte: "At present, as you see Priscilla, she is much improved, but still definitely psychotic. Her judgment often is not good. She still has delusions. She still believes that her baby was changed . . ."

Priscilla herself agrees that there is "a bit of schizophrenia" left in her. She still remembers those frightening voices that once taunted her. But she feels that, inch by inch and with the help of Mendocino treatment, she is overcoming her sickness. Now, as she walks to her ward, a serene smile comes over her face and she whispers, almost to herself:

"Someday I'll be heading down the road, going away from here. Someday I will . . . I will . . ." ■

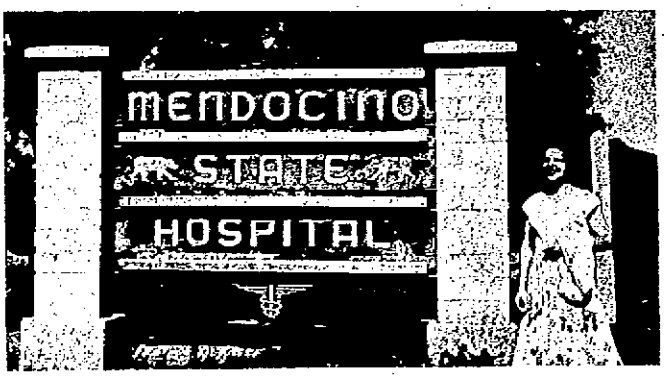

WORK assignment in the library is a big step forward for Priscilla. She enjoys record-keeping and "detail" tasks.

TREATMENT includes pill-taking. Here, Priscilla gulps down a tranquilizer—one of the three on her daily schedule.

DANCING with another patient offers relaxation. Too, social life brings her a little closer to a normal existence.

HOPE for the future is symbolized above. Priscilla stands at the hospital entrance, gate to "the outside."

Jet planes were shattering these Illinoisans' nerves, but the Navy wouldn't budge. Here's how group action made little Glenview . . .

The village that

Lawyer Arthur R. Seder, Jr.: He headed the committee which kept at the Navy until Glenview won.

GLENVIEW, ILL.

If you had a multimillion-dollar jet-plane base in your front yard, constantly noisy, frequently a danger to you and your children, could you persuade the U.S. Navy to pick up and move its jets somewhere else?

The residents of this Chicago suburb have done it. Their secret is a simple one: working together in the good old American spirit of community action for a common goal.

What happened here doesn't really seem special, now that the goal has been won. But there was a time when it looked impossible. That was several years ago . . .

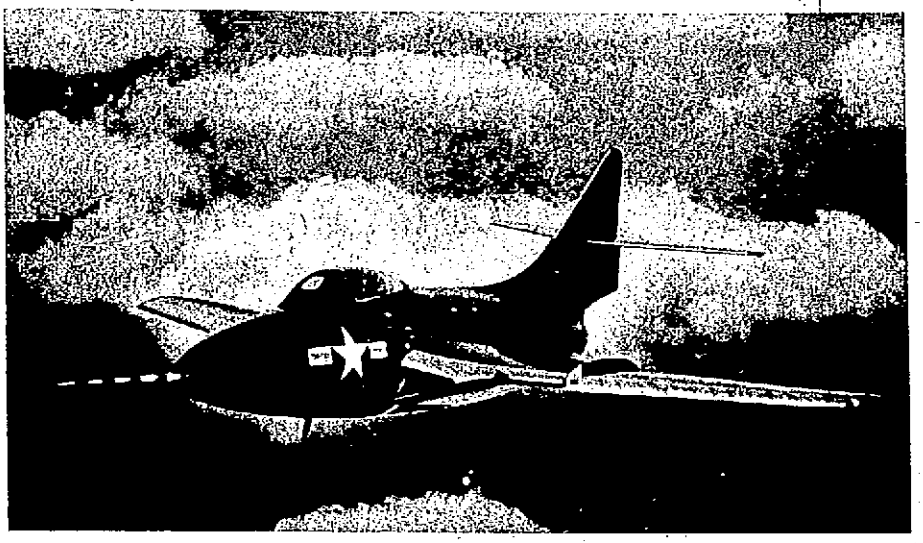

Glenview was a sleepy village then. It awoke only gradually, as so many suburbs did after World War II. New people began moving in. New homes were built by the hundreds. Today the village, no longer sleepy, has a population of 15,000, with at least as many more outside the village line.

Glenview also has, or had, a problem — the Navy's reserve flying base. Maybe your town has one too; there are 28 scattered across the country, plus 26 Air Force bases.

Mushroom Growth

The Navy had moved into Glenview back in 1937, taking over a small private airport. There was plenty of room then. But after the war the base mushroomed. Slow propeller fighters were replaced with high-powered Cougar jets. Runways were extended. Glenview became the Navy's largest inland field and national headquarters for the reserve training command. On week ends, some 500 reserve pilots would come to brush up their jet know-how. Glenview householders, trying to enjoy their days of rest, grew irritable, then anxious, then determined to take steps.

What touched off the first real action was a report that the Navy wanted to extend its main runway right into town. On the 89 acres it coveted were a church, a new park and some 60 houses valued at up to $60,000 each. Suggested date: 1958.

chased the jets away

Actually, the Navy had the power to condemn the site. But to the people of Glenview these "expendable houses" were home. They intended to stay.

Seeking further facts, the League of Women Voters set up a meeting of some 250 civic leaders — and a Navy representative. The civilians gave the Navy man a bad time; results were inconclusive.

Protest by Arrow

But feeling kept rising. One day a 13-year-old boy shot at low-flying jets with a bow and arrow. Alarmed pilots called police, who discovered the youngster was only seeking revenge for the top of his father's favorite oak tree, clipped off by a careless pilot. The incident was amusing — but symptomatic.

All in all, community tension was high when a public meeting was called. More than 800 persons appeared at the high-school auditorium. Main result: naming of a group with the formidable title of the Citizens Glenview Naval Air Station Action Committee.

After weeks of study and debate, the committee agreed on the course to follow. Says its chairman, 37-year-old lawyer Arthur B. Seder, Jr.: "We decided that if the Navy was determined to keep Glenview as an air station, we couldn't reasonably object. Our whole objective was to get the jets removed. We knew this couldn't be done overnight if the reserve program was to continue."

Following this line, the committee persuaded the Navy to reduce the amount of jet activity on Sunday mornings during church services. Meanwhile a volunteer force — mostly members of the League of Women Voters in Glenview and nearby suburbs — was mobilized to carry petitions door-to-door, demanding an end to jet flying at the station.

The petition drive was well under way when a series of accidents at the station increased public alarm. The most serious was the collision of two Marine Cougar jets maneuvering to land. One exploded and scattered wreckage on lawns where children were playing.

After this crash, the committee reached into the Navy's higher echelons for a hearing. Rear Adm. B. E. Moore, then director of the aviation plans division for the Chief of Naval Operations, flew to Glenview for a conference. On his return to Washington, he wrote to the committee indicating jet flying ultimately would be moved and that a survey for another location would be started at once.

The committee, which had been campaigning and conferring for nearly a year, was delighted. Then came disheartening news. Charles S. Thomas, then Secretary of the Navy, rejected as "not realistic or practicable" a proposal that the air station be relocated.

Seder and the committee again talked things over. Despite this setback, they had some 7,000 signed petitions urging the base's removal. Thus armed, they flew to Washington. There they corralled Illinois' two Senators (Douglas and Dirksen) and their Congresswoman, Marguerite Stitt Church, for a meeting with an assortment of admirals.

Agreement At Last

This time they asked for straight information. The admirals listened, noted the thousands of petitions, pondered the opinions of the Illinois legislators. And then they laid down a plan of action — in writing:

- At Glenview, the Navy undertakes to replace the jet squadrons with anti-submarine squadrons, which use propeller-driven planes. This will be a gradual process, requiring about five years. But the Navy is committed to it.
- Elsewhere, the Navy plans to remove jet training to more remote locations, reserving the close-in stations for propeller aircraft.

"Our group and others like us made this problem acute and helped influence the Navy to revise its program," says Seder quietly. "I think we have accomplished something."

MENLO PARK, CALIF.

With the need for good teachers desperate, educators here have started tapping a vein that's close at hand and rich in talent: the American school system's brighter students. Robin Ratcliffe, the 12-year-old pictured on these pages, is a case in point.

Robin was selected from the cream of Menlo Park eighth-graders in a program developed by Dr. Melville Homfeld, superintendent of schools. She and other classmates spent two days learning the basics of teaching from top educators. Then, for a week, they put in the mornings working with first-graders and the afternoons studying in their own eighth-grade classrooms. It went so well that now Dr. Homfeld hopes Robin and the rest will want to turn the experiment into a lifetime career. ■

When are you liable for damages?

A parked car is partway on the road while its owner changes a tire. Not seeing him, you hit and injure him. Is it your fault? — or his? Test your knowledge of negligence.

ANSWERS

1 No. The store or its employes must be negligent before liability can be established. Grease left on the stairs so customers could slip in it would be a case in point. But you simply tripped.

2 Yes. The hotel is liable whether it does the work itself or entrusts it to a plumber.

3 Yes. You told the dentist to extract one particular tooth — not the tooth which, in his opinion, was giving you trouble. If you had asked him to find the trouble and use his own judgment, you would have no claim. The same applies to surgical operations.

4 No. Your defense, if you are sued, is that you did not know about the defective board. Your guest must prove you did know, or lose his case.

5 Yes. And you also may recover the damage to your tire.

6 Yes. Though public carriers do not insure their passengers' safety, they owe them the highest practical degree of care. Such a sudden lunge as that described leaves the carrier liable for resultant injuries.

7 No. The person who drove the ball, provided he used reasonable care and gave audible, timely warning, was not the insurer of the safety of those in its path.

8 Yes. An attorney is under a duty to exercise such skill and knowledge as to preclude such negligent acts on his part.

9 Yes. Even though you placed your car carelessly, the other driver still should guide his car so as to avoid an accident.

10 Yes and no — depending on the dog's reputation. If you knew it to be vicious, you are liable. If it was recognized as gentle and harmless, you are not.

11 Yes. Even under stress, a policeman's duty is to do his job so as not to injure any innocent party.

12 No. Unlike the bus-driver in question 6, the captain of the steamer had no control over water splashing on his deck.

13 No. Any risk attendant on visiting a Turkish bath is assumed by the patron.

14 Yes. A telegraph company is responsible for any direct loss you can prove due to its negligence.

15 Generally, within three years. After that the statute of limitations runs out and you lose your chance.

SCORING

Give yourself 10 points for each question you answered correctly. (Give yourself 5 for getting either part of the right answer to question 10.) If your total score is 120 or better, you have an excellent overall grasp of the legal meaning of negligence. Between 65 and 115 ranks you as about average. If you scored 60 or less, it wouldn't hurt to read up in one of the many good laymen's law books — or even have a chat with your lawyer. ■

PROTECTOR of Buddhist temple, a "Prince" holding symbolic sword and gourd, prepares to battle "Devil" (right). Mask and headdress are made of cardboard.

'Devil dancers' of the Himalayas

In streamlined 1957, the fantastic figures pictured on these pages still caper through a strange rite in remote Nepal, a country sandwiched into the Himalaya Mountains between India and Tibet. Only recently opened to the outside world, Nepal already faces the conflicting pressures of neutralist India on one side and Red China on the other. But such figures as these still live on.

Actually, they are costumed Buddhist priests. PARADE's Richard Harrington found them in the village of Banepa, only 80 miles or so from towering Mount Everest. There he sought out the head lama and, through an interpreter, asked to view the ceremony. The lama gave him permission to enter the temple court, where he watched the grotesquely masked dancers perform the Devil Dance.

The dance depicts a combat between Princes and invading Devils — representing Good and Evil, respectively. The Devils finally are driven out. Says Harrington: "It may be only a dance — but it embodies the hope of all humanity." ■

Study tips from good students

JOHN KANE, Scranton Central High co-captain, takes time out from scrimmage to chat with cheerleader Margaret Mary Whalen, who is dressed in the school colors — navy and gold.

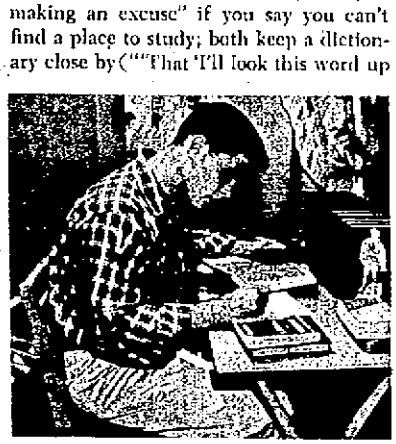

How can the boy or girl who isn't a genius — and who likes a good time — get better-than-average marks?

I recently talked with two "non-geniuses" from Central High in Scranton, Pa., who can tell you: Margaret Mary Whalen, 16, and John Kane, 17.

Yet Margaret Mary has an A-minus average, and John, though he just misses the honor roll, keeps trying — and fully expects an academic scholarship for college.

How do they do it? Both tackle the hard subject first (it's Math for Margaret Mary, English for John); both think "you're just making an excuse" if you say you can't find a place to study; both keep a dictionary close by ("That 'I'll look this word up later' attitude never pays," says Margaret Mary).

JOHN finds a quiet corner for study away from 14-year-old brother and younger sisters.

Black-haired, hazel-eyed "Maggie," as she sometimes is called, is 5'7", weighs 118. She doesn't date during the week, is a cheerleader, takes piano lessons, is on the student council and in dramatics.

Unlike her brothers and a sister, who have all chosen careers in medicine, Margaret Mary plans to major in music in college.

When we met for luncheon one day, she looked neat and attractive in a bright plaid suit, a button-down shirt, stockings and French heels. She wore the same suit that night when she took me on a tour of the teen-age hangouts.

John leads an even busier life than Margaret Mary. A wide-shouldered 6', 225-pounder, he cut out basketball and baseball a year ago because he "needed a chance to rest."

He's an outgoing and friendly young man, though he says that during his freshman and sophomore years he was "pretty shy." But then he was coaxed into playing Boris Karloff's role in Arsenic and Old Lace. "They didn't want a long hair for the part," he says. "After that I figured I could try anything."

Now John talks enthusiastically of college and his future career in business. He is an example of the fact that anyone can get better-than-average marks if he establishes good study habits early. ("My family always has encouraged me — to put it mildly," he says.)

John and Margaret Mary agree that it's never too late to start. Here are a few of their study tips:

1 Listen. Even if a teacher speaks in a monotone, don't let your mind wander.

2 Get the point. If the teacher is a fast talker, don't break your neck taking down every word. Follow closely; jot down a few notes later.

3 Write down assignments. If you don't, you may be on the phone for hours.

Wesson® Oil
takes the smoke out of frying!

SOLID SHORTENINGS SMOKE BECAUSE they contain an emulsifier. This additive is good for baking, but smokes at frying heat. Shortening that smokes is breaking down, and that can hardly be good for you.

WESSON OIL DOES NOT SMOKE BECAUSE it is all shortening in its purest form—nothing added. So clear and brilliant, so light in body, Wesson sparkles as it pours. No other as fresh, as pure and as light.

Holiday confetti bread

BY BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

New Confetti Bread is a handy loaf to have around during the holidays. Spread it with butter or jam; toast it and serve golden-brown and hot; slice it thin for dainty sandwiches. It's easy, because you can make as many loaves as you like and put them in the freezer until needed. Defrosted, they will be as fresh as the day you made them. To do this, let the bread cool to room temperature then wrap securely in heavy-duty aluminum foil or transparent plastic film, seal, label and freeze. You'll be glad you did when the pressure of holiday entertaining is upon you!

Kitchen Hint: For dessert — snip stems from dried figs with kitchen shears, slit figs on one side and stuff with wedges of sharp cheddar cheese. Or leave stems on, dip figs halfway in melted semi-sweet or sweet chocolate; when chocolate hardens, fill the holiday candy dish.

HOLIDAY CONFETTI BREAD

- 2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ¾ cup chopped Brazil nuts
- 1½ cups mixed diced candied fruits
- ⅓ cup raisins
- ½ cup shortening
- ¾ cup sugar
- 3 eggs
- ½ cup mashed banana
- ½ cup orange juice

Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Stir in chopped nuts, candied fruits and raisins. Cream shortening; add sugar; beat until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Combine mashed banana and orange juice; add to creamed mixture alternately with flour mixture, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Turn into waxed-paper-lined and greased 9"-x-5"-x-3" loaf pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 1 hour. Let bread cool in pan half an hour before turning out on cake rack.

How clean is

The author, a former quarterback with the pro Browns, also starred at Notre Dame, now is vice-president of an investment company in Cincinnati.

by GEORGE RATTERMAN with Tim Moriarty

Is pro football dirty?

Some people claim it is. Last year Detroit Lions' quarterback Bobby Layne was tackled from behind when he didn't have the ball; he suffered a brain concussion. The season before, Cleveland Browns' quarterback Otto Graham was kicked in the head and knocked unconscious.

Both Layne and Graham were the stars of their teams. Were they injured accidentally or on purpose, to put them out of the game?

I played 10 years of pro football, the final five with the Cleveland Browns, before retiring at the end of the 1956 season. And this I will say:

- In the National Football League today, players are punched, kicked and otherwise illegally manhandled by some opposing players.
- It is impossible to determine whether these acts are intentional, unintentional or half-and-half — i.e., a player sees an opening and a reflex action on his part does the damage without premeditation.
- Most "dirty play" is not maliciously designed to get a player out of the game. A player usually resorts to illegal tactics because he has become overly enthused or has lost his temper.
- Such players nevertheless should be put out of the game for all or part of its duration, as is done now in baseball and hockey. A hot temper is no excuse for Causes, says the author: tempers, overeagerness.

smashing a man's face or breaking his arm or his leg.

• The blame for dirty football, in my opinion, rests 1) with the officials and 2) with you, the fan. If fans and officials insisted that this kind of football be stopped, it would be stopped.

Till then, it's going to continue because football is the game it is. Pro players are paid to give hard, bruising all-out football. It's inevitable that some players will let their enthusiasm or their tempers run away with them. Let me cite some examples.

Among the overly enthusiastic ones, there's Ed Meadows of the Chicago Bears. A defensive end, Meadows sometimes gets so worked up he knocks down an opposing quarterback even when the latter doesn't have the ball.

The habit got Meadows in trouble last fall. He tackled Detroit's Bobby Layne after Bobby had fed the ball to another player. Layne went down so hard he suffered a concussion. With Layne out of the game, Chicago went on to win, 38-21.

The Lions charged the Bears were out to "get" Layne. Meadows claimed he didn't know Bobby had let go of the ball. Whether he did or not, the fact remains that Meadows should have been penalized for making an illegal tackle by being put out of the game.

But officials are reluctant to put a damper on such players. Once, for instance, a player swung at one of my ex-teammates on the Browns, Chuck Noll. Chuck narrowly ducked the punch, then charged over to an official. "Did you see that?" he demanded.

"Yes," said the official. "So what?"

"Aren't you going to throw him out of the game?"

VIOLENCE of pro football, as shown in this photo, causes some pros to lose their tempers, says Ratterman, and begin using illegal tactics. Though only natural, he says, it should be controlled.

'I saw the hulking Yonaker bearing down...'

"What for?" the official answered calmly. "He missed you, didn't he?"

Another time the Giant's Bill Svoboda threw several punches at me. I complained to the referee, who nodded. "Just let him keep that up," he told me. "We'll catch him before the afternoon's over."

Two other players who let enthusiasm get the better of them are Don Colo of the Browns and Chuck Drazenovich of the Redskins. Chuck is an expert at checking ends illegally at the line of scrimmage so they can't go downfield for passes. Colo's enthusiasm boomeranged on him and his team last year when he roughed a Redskin kicker. Washington got the ball and went on to score the touchdown that finally won the game.

To me, this would indicate that a coach should pull a player out of the game when he becomes too aggressive. Such tactics not only hurt the name of football, they can cost you a ball game in penalties.

Two of the most enthusiastic men in the game are Jim David and Jack Christiansen. Former college teammates at Colorado A & M, they now operate as defensive backs for the Lions. Although relatively small for pro football, they always seem to be looking for trouble. I long have felt they engage in some sort of contest to see who can get into the most mix-ups.

Beware Tempers, Too

The players with quick tempers are just as dangerous as the overly-enthusiastic ones. Several years ago, for instance, John Martinkovic of the Giants pounded Bobby Layne on several plays, drawing two consecutive penalties for unnecessary roughness. Later Martinkovic was asked why he was so angry with Layne.

"He's always yelling at his own teammates," was big John's explanation. "I can't stand quarterbacks who do that."

Another who is said to get hot-tempered easily is Paul "Tank" Younger, 230-lb. Los Angeles Ram fullback. When Tank is tackled, according to some players I've talked to, watch out. If you're at the bottom of the pile-up with him, he may take a nip at you with his bare teeth.

And then there is John Henry Johnson, now of the Detroit Lions. In the heat of one rough game during 1955, Johnson (then with San Francisco) somehow brought down his elbow on the face of Chicago Cardinal star Charley Trippi; Charley's face was so badly cut up he had to undergo plastic surgery.

Still another whose temper sometimes got the better of him — and this is why I'm not calling any of the men I've mentioned dirty players — was myself, George Ratterman. Once, when I was playing for Buffalo, John Yonaker of the Browns kept knocking me down. On one play I went back to pass, saw no one clear and the hulking Yonaker bearing down on me.

Pigskin Persuasion

I wasn't figuring on getting belted again. I took dead aim with the ball and fired it straight at Yonaker's head. This accomplished two desirable ends: it got rid of the ball without any loss of yardage, and it "persuaded" big Yonaker to stay off my back for the rest of the afternoon.

Yet I should have been tossed out of the game for an illegal play that could have injured Yonaker. If this were done, there'd soon be a lot fewer such acts, since in this football age of specialization no team can afford to lose any player for any length of time.

You — as a fan — share the blame with officials. They feel you want to see blood. As a result, they may leave players in the game whose tempers are likely to cause some blood-letting, and I don't think any right-thinking, normal fan wants to see that kind of football. If you let pro football officials know how you feel, by letters and lack of cheers for roughhouse playing, pro football will soon be cleaner — and better. ■

● PARENTS OF FAMOUS CHILDREN

TULSA, OKLA.

There's nothing like a big family.

So say Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin A. Fowler, parents of popular singer Patti Page—and they should know. The Fowlers are the parents of eight girls and three boys. All are living, and with the exception of one daughter, all are married and following their parents' example by busily raising families of their own.

Patti, who joined the married set last year, began life as Clara Ann Fowler. This year she chalked up the sale of her 35,000,000th record (one of the best known: The Tennessee Waltz) and began her weekly, hour-long TV show, The Big Record.

They Picked Cotton

Ben Fowler and his wife live in a pleasant, six-room, five-year-old ranch-style home here. While life is leisurely for them now, they say they wouldn't trade the years when the kids were young for all the oil in Oklahoma.

But they admit it wasn't all joy: "Feeding 11 youngsters, keeping them in clothes and shoes and a roof over their heads was a problem. Especially when the Depression came along. We had to work hard. Oh, it wasn't easy."

During the lean years, Mrs. Fowler and the children who were old enough often bolstered the budget by working long, hot hours in the cotton and corn fields. Mr. Fowler, now retired, worked on the Missouri Pacific Railroad, later on the Midland Valley line.

"We used to live in Claremore, Okla.," says Mrs. Fowler. "That's where Patti was born. Later we moved to other towns and to Tulsa 18 years ago. But wherever we lived, each youngster had his own duties and chores. Everybody had to cooperate to make the family a going concern.

"None of the children was spoiled as they are in many small families. We didn't have time for pampering. But the discipline and even the hardships paid off in character building and—yes, in happiness.

"I certainly recommend having a big family. An even dozen would be ideal, even though we settled for only 11."

Things are quiet around the Fowler home nowadays, since none of the children lives there. But the couple—he is 69, she 67—keeps busy taking care of the place, working around the yard and tending, in season, their vegetable and flower gardens.

"We don't get lonely," Mrs. Fowler adds. "Five of our children live here in Tulsa. But to tell the truth, it seems good now to be alone. When we want to hear Patti's voice, we just put on one of her records. And each week we watch her TV show."

Patti takes time out from her busy schedule to visit her parents once or twice a year. Mrs. Fowler recalls that her famous daughter loved to sing even as a child. "But then, they all did," she says. "Instead of crying, they sang."

Right now Mrs. Fowler is looking forward to a happy reunion when the couple marks its Golden Wedding anniversary in two years.

"It will be quite a get-together," she says. "You see, there will be not only our 11 children, but our 25 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren as well. Patti has her Big Record show, but I think our anniversary celebration will make quite a big record, too." ■

by FRED BREWER

GREENWICH, CONN.

It was a raw, gray morning in March, 1954. Francis X. McGinty, a city patrol officer, was cruising on his motorcycle along the Post Road near here. A car with two youths in it passed him leisurely, headed west. Nothing unusual, you would think. But McGinty suddenly got a hunch.

He stopped the car, asked questions. The car had been stolen; the young men were armed. Later, after they had been locked up, the desk sergeant stared at McGinty. "We sent out an alarm on that car at 8:28," he said, "yet you stopped it 15 minutes before the alarm. How do you do it?"

McGinty shrugged. "I just play hunches."

A detective on the police force here with 22 years' service, McGinty at 43 is a pleasant, unassuming and modest man. You might take him for the friendly policeman who waves school children across the street at a busy intersection. Yet he's a crack officer with several dozen commendations for his uncanny knack of spotting wrongdoers, or would-be wrongdoers. Consider this incident:

Rewarding Hunch

Several years ago a car with two men and a woman in it passed McGinty. They waved. He waved back. But he felt his hunch twitching, and stopped the car. The registration and the driver's license were in order. "We've been on a little vacation," the driver remarked.

Said McGinty, "Then you won't mind if I look in that suitcase there." He pointed to a valise on the rear seat. "Just lady things," the woman said. McGinty looked anyway. The case contained seven new men's suits, with labels removed and valued at $400, all stolen from clothing stores in nearby towns.

Townsfolk and fellow police officers speculate about McGinty's hunches. Some attribute them to supernatural vision — though his blue eyes measure a normal 20/20. A local motorcycle officer, Robert Craemer, says: "He sees right into a car just as if he were sitting in it. But who knows how he does it? No one, not even him." Several years ago when the local Lions Club awarded him a plaque as "Policeman of the Year," a club member asked McGinty what the "X" in his name stood for. "Xavier," said McGinty. "Xavier, heck!" said the clubman. "That X means X ray!"

Thereafter the "X for X ray" idea caught on. And it's little wonder, when you look at a few high spots in McGinty's career:

January 18, 1946. McGinty stops a car matching the description of one stolen in Bridgeport, Conn.

'X-ray eyes'

There really is no reason to; the license plates don't tally with those of the stolen car. But McGinty looks in the trunk and finds a second set of plates. "Switched 'em?" asks McGinty. "Yep," the driver glumly admits.

April 1, 1947. McGinty spots an auto containing two women. Playing his hunch, he stops the car. He finds $185 worth of merchandise stolen from a store in Port Chester, N. Y.

March 5, 1956. McGinty gets a hunch a passing car contains more than the four adults sitting in it. It does — $600 worth of stolen merchandise.

McGinty's hunches aren't always to someone's disadvantage, however. One December, for example, he came across a shivering youth standing outside a Greenwich truck stop, trying to thumb a ride. Traffic was thin. No one was stopping to pick up a hitchhiker. McGinty asked the youth where he was going. "Portsmouth, N. H.," said the young man.

SUSPECT waits as McGinty examines his credentials.

"Hungry?" asked McGinty. "I sure am — but I haven't any money." McGinty led the youth inside the truck stop, sat him down at the counter and departed. A half-hour later he returned. "Here," he said, shoving an envelope in the youth's hand, "this is a bus ticket home."

Several days later the Greenwich police chief received a letter from Portsmouth. The letter read: "May all officers reach the polite and helpful status that Officer McGinty has reached." With it were a few dollar bills in repayment of McGinty's hunch.

McGinty can't explain his X-ray vision. He doesn't believe he has a sixth sense; but only a talent in quickly noting small, seemingly innocent details.

"I look for signs," he says. "A criminal always gives himself away by some nervous motion — he tags himself." These motions, McGinty explains, are apparently normal ones: lighting a cigaret, placing a hand to the face, looking the other way, sometimes just acting friendly. But can you find any signs in the following incident?

A Prim Trio

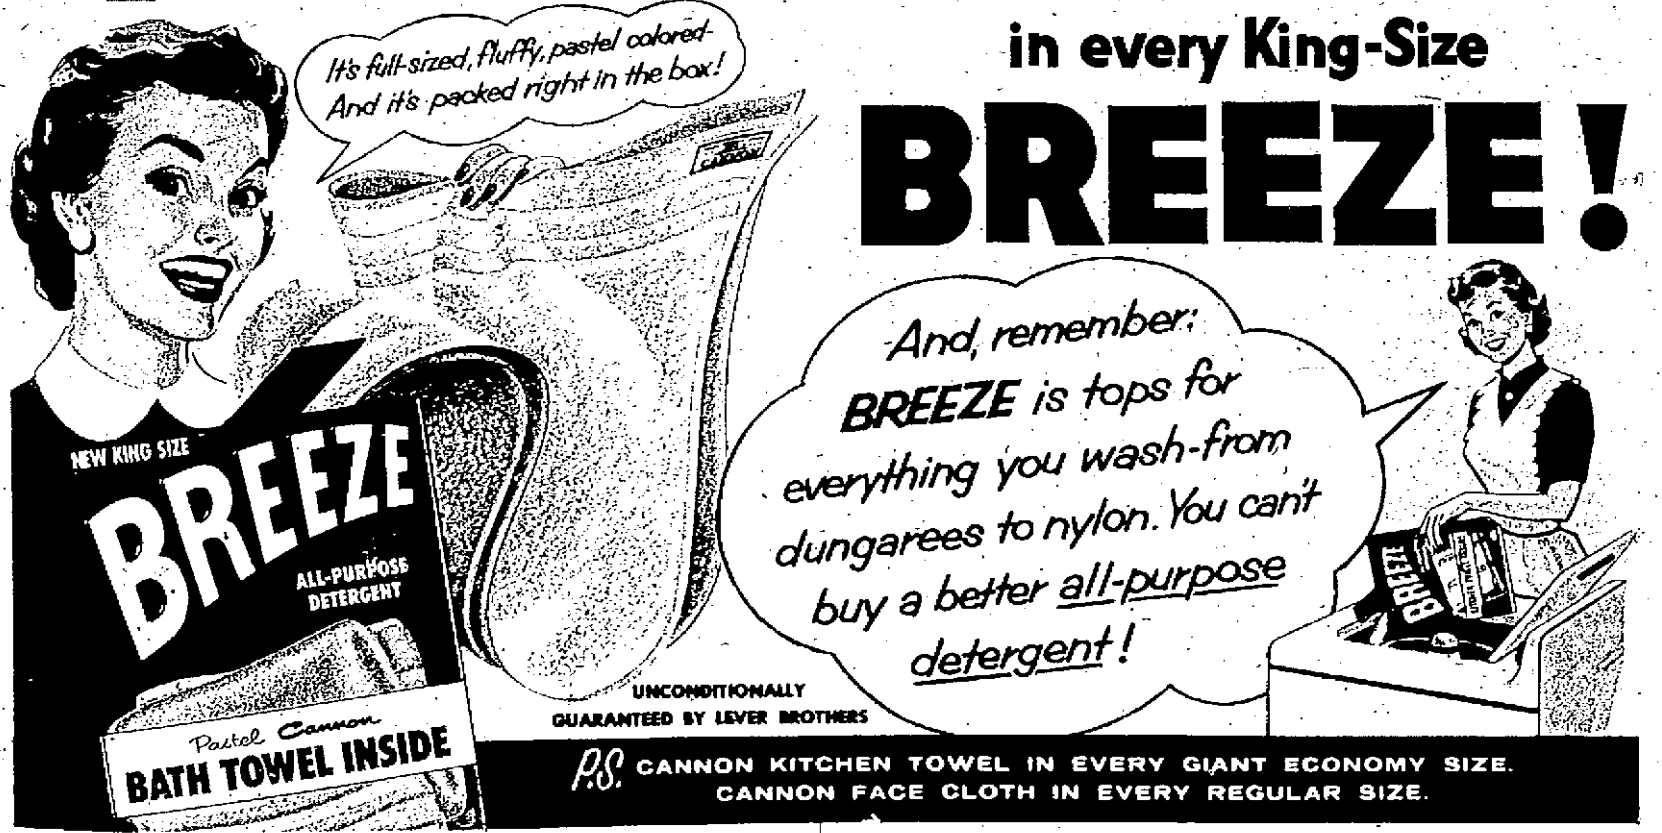

On a sunny afternoon, McGinty was in a squad car waiting for a stop light to change. Across the intersection, headed the other way, was a long limousine driven by a chauffeur. In the back sat two prim ladies, one reading a newspaper. McGinty got his famous hunch. He turned his squad car around and stopped the limousine. The occupants were prim, all right — but not dignified. They were a trio wanted for shoplifting in Connecticut.

And what nervous motion, or sign, revealed this trio to McGinty's all-seeing eyes?

"Well," he says, "I noted this lady reading her newspaper upside down, and —"

Upside down, across an intersection, inside a car . . . McGinty can't explain it, either. "I guess," he says, "a nosy cop is just a good cop." ■

Tomorrow's

This Christmas, boys and girls

Before too long, your child probably will hand you his Christmas list. Before you mail it to Santa Claus, peek — and expect something new. This year, the experts say, the big demand will be for toys that copy the grownups' miracle machines of atomic energy, electronics and rocketry.

On these pages PARADE brings you a preview of several such 1957 toys. Others to look for, come Christmas morning, include Sky Sweeper Truck, a miniature Nike rocket launcher with a rotating searchlight (Ideal Toy Corp., $7.98); Dancing Dan, a toy minstrel man who dances when a youngster sings into a microphone (Bell Products Co., $6.95); Satellite Launcher Truck, a toy that spins plastic space satellites a few feet into the air (Ideal Toy Corp., $4.98). All are battery operated.

Why do today's children want such scientific toys? The Toy Guidance Council has the answer: they learn about man's latest inventions in school, see them on television, hear their parents discuss them. So, like their parents, they demand the world of tomorrow — today. ■

THIS SAVAGE DEVIL DANCE is still performed each year by the Apache Indians. Long ago, this fierce tribe gathered nuts and berries for food—and hunted small game with boomerangs. But when European horses were introduced to the Southwest, the Apache way of life changed overnight—and they became the most dangerous and bloodthirsty of all Indians! The Apaches had many strange customs; a warrior, for example, was forbidden to speak to his mother-in-law . . . or even to look at her face!

GIANT PADDLE WHEEL STEAMERS used to take 20 days for a Mississippi voyage—which a modern jet plane makes in two hours. But these shallow draft ships were perfectly suited to the perils of the River. Even huge floating logs were turned to splinters by their churning oaken paddles! The most famous of all Mississippi pilots was Samuel Clemens—whose pen name "Mark Twain" means "two fathoms (12 ft.) deep water" in the fascinating language of the river boat men.

WHERE IS THE OLDEST HOUSE IN AMERICA? You'll find it in St. Augustine, Florida. This colorful city was founded more than 40 years before Jamestown was settled by the English! Four different national flags have flown over this building. Tories hid here during the American Revolution.

BOBBY PINS AND BULLDOZERS are made from the same kind of steel ingot as this one, shown emerging white-hot from a huge furnace. Today, the United States produces about half of all the steel in the world—or more than 1000 pounds for each man, woman and child in America.

Expert Reveals Why U.S. Missile System Lags

(Copyright 1957 By The Associated Press)

Editor's Note—The U. S. in the words of President Eisenhower is behind Russia in development of satellites and "in some missiles in special areas."

The Associated Press has obtained this exclusive signed story with Dr. Wernher Von Braun, director of the Development Operations Division at the Army's Redstone Arsenal in Huntsville, Ala.

Dr. Von Braun was asked a series of questions relating to the military aspects of the Sputnik program and the future of space in general. Here are his answers.

Q. How do you account for the USSR's apparent ability to outstrip the United States in reaching into space?

A. The main reason is that the United States had no ballistic missile program worth mentioning between 1945 and 1951. These six years, during which the Russians obviously laid the groundwork for their large rocket program, are irretrievably lost. The United States went into a serious ballistic missile program only in 1951, with the decisions to weaponize the Army's JPL Corporal rocket and to develop the Redstone. Thus our present dilemma is not due to the fact that we are not working hard enough now, but that we did not work hard enough during the first six to ten years after the war.

Q. How long before it will be possible for the United States to launch a rocket to the moon? How long before manned space travel will be feasible? How soon might we build a space platform orbiting around the earth?

A. Launch an unmanned rocket one-way to the moon: Two to three years.

Manned flight to an orbit and return: Four to five years.

Construction of a manned space station could be tackled after manned orbital flight has become a routine.

Q. Is it probable that the U. S. public is in for additional shocks insofar as Russian scientific progress is concerned?

A. Yes, it is most likely that we are in for a few more shocks. With the powerful multi-stage rockets they must have used to launch Sputnik II, the Soviets have a definite immediate capability to fire a payload of possibly over 100 pounds on a one-way trip to the moon. With just a trifle more speed the top stage of their rocket would permanently leave the earth's gravitational field and enter an orbit around the sun.

Another possible surprise they may have in store for us is a manned ascent into an orbit with ensuing return and recovery, as previously explained. It is hard to predict which of the many possibilities along these lines the Russians will come up with next. But there can be no doubt that as the first successful conquerors of outer space the Soviets can now reap a whole bunch of easy fruits.

Q. Is it now possible for the United States to launch a satellite with the military hardware now available?

A. Yes. But any further comment in this regard would have to come from the Department of Defense.

Q. What can be done by the United States to achieve superiority in the satellite and missile fields? How long do you estimate it will take?

A. Before we can achieve superiority in these fields we have to catch up with the present Russian lead. In the ballistic missile field the United States, about two years ago, embarked into an all-out crash program which will be difficult to accelerate substantially beyond its present pace. In the satellite field we need a well-planned, long-range national spaceflight program which makes maximum use of rocket hardware (propulsion systems, guidance systems and airframes) emerging from our ballistic missile programs.

This program must be backed up by a firm budget which permits its steady prosecution over a period of several years. Even with no holds barred, I think it would still be well over five years before we could catch up with the Soviets again, because they are not likely to sit by idly in the meantime.

Q. Is money a factor in the development of missiles and satellites at this time? Do you think more money is needed?

A. I believe that, by and large, our five key ballistic missile programs (Jupiter, Thor, Polaris, Atlas and Titan) could not be speeded up appreciably by increases in funds. All these programs were subjected to some cutbacks a few months ago, but if the original budget figures are reinstated it is my

L.B. CARRIER JOINS PLANE HUNT

BELIEF DIMMING

Russ Says Laika May Still Be Alive

MOSCOW (UP)—The dog in the Sputnik may still be alive, a Soviet scientist said Saturday night. His statement ran counter to the growing belief it was dead.

Space expert Prof. Bely said the power in the half-ton satellite used to transmit radio signals also was being used to feed the 40-pound Arctic sledge dog named Laika.

(In Washington, the U.S. Naval Laboratory reported it had stopped receiving signals. The British Broadcasting Corp. also noticed the signals had stopped early Saturday.)

The dog was believed to have been conditioned to take food and thus sustain life every time an automatic bell rang in its kennel. It was believed that there was enough food for eight days aboard the satellite which was hurled more than 1,000 miles into space six days ago. Thus there apparently was enough food to last until Monday.

* * * *

BELY TOLD NEWSMEN he knew nothing of reports the animal might be parachuted back to earth.

He said there might be an official announcement about the fate of the dog today. But for the second day in a row Saturday, the official sputnik communiques failed to mention Laika.

The question arose whether Soviet rocketeers had solved the ultimate problem of bring-

Hypersonic Bomber in Russ Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet science Saturday was reported pointed toward a weapon more terrible than the "ultimate" intercontinental ballistic missile—a manned, hypersonic bomber that could glide at fantastic speeds through space and bomb and spy on any place on earth.

The United States was also described as interested in such a weapon, but far behind Russia in missiles work that could lead to this and other developments.

The informants said:

1. The U. S. government has circulated word that by 1959 the Soviets can be assumed to have long-range missiles able to attack all U. S. strategic air bases.

2. The Russians successfully launched two ICBMS last August. They were in the 4,000-mile range but capable of going further. A September launching attempt of a Russian ICBM-type missile, perhaps a Sputnik earth satellite, was unsuccessful.

3. It is not known whether the Reds have solved ICBM problems of accuracy and re-entry into the earth's atmosphere.

4. A U. S. Defense Department committee has turned thumbs down on proposed use of photons (light particles) to propel space ships. After careful inquiry, it was decided photon propulsion didn't show promise of enough push.

Committees Hit

WASHINGTON (UP)—Chairman James C. Davis of the House manpower subcommittee charged Saturday the administration has hampered U. S. scientific progress by leaving decisions to "cumbersome committees."

Wet Flower Blacks Out N.L.B. Lights

A wet lily disrupted power service in a large section of North Long Beach Saturday night.

The area west of Linden Ave. and north of 47th St. was blacked out at 9:27 p.m. when pranksters heaved a dripping-wet lily onto two terminals at the Southern California Edison Co. substation at E. 57th St. and Linden Ave.

The bloom touched off a spectacular blue flash, as the power lines short-circuited.

Power was restored at 10 p.m.

L.A.C. Says: Those Tax Bills

Property owners are aghast at the city and county tax bills they have just received. They find the bills are 10 to 20 per cent higher than a year ago. Tax rates have changed little but the assessment has been increased. The net result is an overall increase of over $100 million in taxes assessed by the county. Virtually every city has increased in proportion.

It is argued that raising assessments on older buildings is justified because in many instances they are now worth more than the original cost. That seems like a reasonable argument. But the fact is, the same process has ben applied to many newer buildings.

For example, one home built three years ago finds its assessed valuation increased by over 13 per cent. Two blocks away a house 15 years old finds

EYES OF THE FLEET JOIN SEARCH FOR AIRLINER

In a scene starkly reminiscent of wartime, the aircraft carrier USS Philippine Sea takes on the first load of helicopters to aid in the search for the missing Pan American Stratocruiser. Leaves were canceled and crewmen recalled as the carrier, docked at Pier E, made ready for sea. The copters and a squadron of propeller-driven search planes were rushed here from San Diego area.

Civil Rights Backer Leads Young Demos

RENO (AP)—Nelson Lancione of Columbus, Ohio, who campaigned for a strong civil rights platform, defeated Jack Noles of Tonkawa, Okla., for the presidency of the Young Democratic Clubs of America in a bitterly-fought election Saturday.

Lancione's victory at the organization's national convention came after the self-styled liberal caucus, a bloc of western and midwestern states mostly, endorsed the 36-year-old attorney and father of three over State Assemblyman Phillip Burton of San Francisco. Burton withdrew as a candidate and backed the Ohioan.

Sailors Dash to Pier E as Big Flattop Departs

All the drama and urgency of a wartime operation swirled around Long Beach's Pier E Saturday as the USS Philippine Sea was made ready to put to sea to join the search for the missing Pan American Stratocruiser.

Television and radio broadcasts blared orders for crewmen of the aircraft carrier to report back to duty as leaves were canceled.

Shore Patrol trucks and police cars roamed the streets, contacting sailors.

* * * *

DOWN ON THE PIKE, bluejackets strolling arm in arm with their girls heard the announcement over loudspeakers. They said their goodbyes and headed for Pier E.

Switchboard operators at the Naval Station started making phone calls to key personnel of the Phil Sea. The ship carries a crew of 1,600.

In San Diego, the same scene was being repeated. But there the call was for crewmen of Squadrons VS21 and HS6. VS21 is an anti-submarine outfit equipped with propeller-driven Grumann aircraft. HS6 is a helicopter squadron.

Late in the afternoon, an almost-steady caravan of cars began pulling up to the big gray flattop.

* * * *

"NOW HEAR THIS!" boomed the ship's public address system. "This ship is being made ready to join the search for the airliner that is missing at sea. You will be notified of further developments as they are received . . ."

Trucks began arriving with supplies for the ship, which has been on a re-training assignment since she returned Aug. 6 from several months in the Far East with the Seventh Fleet.

Promptly at dusk, the first of 28 helicopters from San Diego roared in over the flight deck. Its choppers beating, it

Death Toll Reaches 21 in Wild Weather Areas

By Associated Press

The season's worst onslaught of wintry weather knocked the mercury to zero or below in parts of the midcontinent Saturday and touched off snow squalls throughout the Great Lakes area.

Stiff northerly winds carried freezing weather southward to Texas and Tennessee.

Storm deaths from the spreading cold front and earlier tornadoes in parts of the south left at least 21 dead.

Fraser in the Colorado mountains had the lowest reading on the weather map, -4.

* * * *

GALE FORCE WINDS plastered snow on highways in western New York, leaving them slick and dangerous. Blustery winds drifted five inches of snow that fell in International Falls.

A near blizzard pounded Michigan piling up snow to a depth of 12 inches in the upper Peninsula. Several duck hunters were marooned overnight with temperatures in the 20s.

Twisters killed seven in Louisiana, three in Texas, two in Mississippi and one in North Carolina. Other storm deaths: Ohio, three; Illinois, two; Wisconsin, one; Indiana, one and Michigan, one.

Wind gusts from 65 to 70 mph raked large areas of the midwest and east in advance of the cold front.

Man Killed; Gang in Two Cars Hunted

GARDEN GROVE — A Midway City man died in Garden Grove Hospital Saturday evening after a scuffle with a group of men. Authorities are seeking two cars in which his assailants are thought to have fled.

No Trace Found of Lost Airliner

HONOLULU (AP)—A sea and air search spreading over 100,000 square miles of the Pacific developed Saturday night—still without a trace of the Pan American Stratocruiser which vanished Friday night with 44 aboard.

The Coast Guard reported several sightings of debris in various parts of the search area east of Hawaii but said it was unlikely the objects were from the four-engine clipper, "Romance of the Skies." However, surface vessels were checking each report.

Joining the massive search today will be the carrier Philippine Sea which left Long Beach with its far-ranging, radar-equipped antisubmarine planes and helicopters. The Navy said the carrier's aircraft would reach the search area late today.

* * * *

TWO DESTROYERS, the John R. Craig and the Orleck, will head toward the area from San Diego. They were to rendezvous with the carrier.

Throughout the day more than 29 planes and 14 vessels criss-crossed a checkerboard search area. Aside from the spotting of various objects in the water—many of them unrelated debris—nothing turned up to shed any light on the big plane's abrupt and mysterious disappearance.

Carrying 36 passengers and a crew of eight, the plane radioed a routine position report at 5:04 p. m. Friday. At that time it was 1,028 miles east of Honolulu—beyond the point of no return to its San Francisco starting base. There was no hint of trouble.

* * * *

VETERAN PILOT Gordon H. Brown of Los Altos, Calif., did not make the customary position report at 6 p. m.

For awhile Saturday, sightings of objects raised some hopes. There were two cylindrical objects which were regarded as possible parts of life rafts—but this was discounted later; they were described as probably the jettisoned fuel tanks of a jet plane.

Later, Air Force Lt. Roy Lee Curry, Springdale, Ark., reported seeing "six to eight orange and yellow objects" 30 miles southwest of Ocean Station November. He said they looked like some kind of survival equipment but he saw no sign of life and no oil slick.

The Coast Guard pressed ahead with its plans for a night-long search. Most surface vessels remained in the area. So did four planes carrying flares.

* * * *

A FULL SCALE search will be resumed at daybreak.

What might have caused the plane's abrupt radio silence and its disappearance, Pan American officials declined to speculate.

"You might hear rumors of an explosion, or sabotage or whatever, but the plain fact

Fifty-Nation Global Pact Seen Likely

LONDON (AP)—Senior diplomats reported Saturday that Britain and the United States are planning a grand global alliance of about 50 countries pledged to resist the spread of space-age Soviet Communism.

The plans are reported to provide for those 50 like-minded states to be aligned in a world-wide defense network under the umbrella of British-American nuclear power.

* * * *

AT LEAST FOUR regional groups — the Atlantic and Baghdad Pacts, the South East Asian and Pan-American alliances—would be included in the network.

The purpose is to launch a new stage in the political-military-economic co-operation of the non-Communist world. Scope of the plan is vast. It ranges from defining conditions for massive nuclear retaliation against an aggressor to standardization of most types of war materials.

American and British specialists are preparing the proposals for submission to the 15 heads of the Atlantic Pact governments who meet in Paris next month. This conference will be followed by high-level meetings of the five-power Baghdad Pact and the eight-power Southeast Asian Treaty Organization (SEATO).

* * * *

(IN WASHINGTON, State Department officials recalled that Secretary Dulles had discounted at his latest news conference the possibility of forming an overall alliance in a single organization.

(Dulles mentioned NATO, the Baghdad Pact, etc. and said, "It's quite obvious that each of these groupings, more or less regional, is concerned with what goes on in other areas.

("However, I would think it would be over-ambitious at the present time to try to put them all together").

L.A.C. Says:

Those Tax Bills

Its increase 16 per cent. The result is, taxes on these properties have increased $220 and $100 respectively. It is hard to find justification for increasing the assessed valuation on the newer house.

The county reports it has sent out tax bills calling for collection of $630 million compared with $530 million last year. That is an overall increase of 19 per cent in the amount of new taxes to be collected by the county in one year. It is evident the major portion of the increase comes from older structures and not from the increased population and new buildings.

These tax bills are evidence of how the real problem for taxpayers is the rising cost of county and city taxes. The federal income and excise tax rates have not been changed. It is the local and county spending that is making property bear an ever increasing load of government spending.

The people are told how county tax rates are held at the same level—or that the rate is actually decreased. Cities are told the local government operates within the tax limits set by their charter. But these factors are meaningless when the assessed valuation is raised so the rates call for higher taxes even though rates are not increased.

As the new tax bills are paid, property owners should be influenced in taking a greater interest in what the money is used for. They must accept responsibility for much of the increased cost of local governments. Many services are demanded which may not be essential. Cost of public employe pensions and fringe benefits is a big factor. Public works are being carried out which deserve much more consideration by the people who pay the bill.

We may be sure this spiraling cost of local government will not be combatted unless the people demand it. It calls for a careful scrutiny of bond issues—of erection of public buildings on lease agreements which are not voted on by the people. Above all it calls for a willingness of groups to not insist on benefits which are not essential to their welfare.

A large portion of the county tax bill is for schools which are used only a part of the time. Until the people insist on economy and more efficient use of public money, they can expect each year will bring greater tax increases. The shock this year is only a starter the way we now operate—L.A.C.

'Moon' Dog May Still Live, Russian Claims

ing the dog, alive or dead, back to earth.

(In London, BBC technicians refused to speculate on whether the lapse in signals meant batteries had gone dead or that the transmitter had been ejected from the satellite along with the dog in its hermetically-sealed container.)

* * * *

LACKING OFFICIAL guidance, newsmen in Moscow speculated that Laika died sometime Thursday night in her air-conditioned doghouse traveling five miles a second in space.

The last report on the dog came Thursday with a Soviet Tass News Agency announcement that scientists were receiving radioed data only on its "main" physical functions. This was taken to mean its health was failing.

Friday, the Tass announcement did not mention the dog.

The return of the dog to earth—a feat similar to the launching of the satellite itself in its implications—would give vital data to scientists on the effects of space travel, cosmic rays, the problem of weightlessness and other space phenomena on living things. Even dead, the body would be useful in postmortem examinations.

* * * *

SCIENTISTS in Moscow have hinted that efforts might be made to bring the dog down. But this never was officially stated.

To return an object from space requires methods of deceleration, a solution to the "thermal barrier" of the earth's atmosphere and many other factors all of which combine to make the re-entry problem extremely difficult.

(The U.S. has brought back the nose cone of a space rocket, and Western rocket experts have said the Soviets probably know the solution to the problem.)

Sputnik II itself continued on its man-appointed course in the heavens. Tass said the maximum height of the half-ton elongated satellite was 1,024.65 miles. Originally, its orbit reached a maximum of 1,056 miles on its launching last Sunday.

* * * *

IT WAS COMPLETING a revolution around the earth every 103.52 minutes.

Sputnik I, one-sixth the size of the big satellite, was making its rounds every 94.72 minutes, decreasing speed by 2.94 seconds every 24 hours.

Its fellow-travelling rocket was revolving around the world once every 95.48 minutes, dropping speed by 6.3 seconds every 24-hour period.

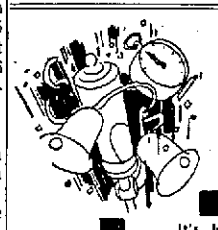

Both Sputnik I and the carrier rocket were orbiting at maximum heights of 503 and 431 miles respectively.

Higher Military, Civil Service Pay Seen Near

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower was reported Saturday to be preparing to recommend pay increases costing more than one billion dollars a year for military personnel and federal civil service employes.

A reliable source said the pay raises are not likely to become a casualty of the "budget squeeze" next year, despite pressure for multi-billion-dollar increases in missile and rocket spending.

If the administration goes through with present plans to ask Congress for the raises, Congress is likely to approve, as 1958 is an election year, the source said.

Massive Search on for Plane

Local Carrier Joins Hunt for Downed Craft

is: We have no idea what might have occurred," said a spokesman.

The Coast Guard commander directing the search for the giant Stratocruiser said there was a "potent possibility" the plane "suddenly and for an unknown reason went out of control."

* * * *

THE FOUR-ENGINED plane, after passing the "point of no return" halfway along the 2,400 mile flight from Honolulu, mysteriously vanished without once reporting any trouble.

The Coast Guard cutter Minnetonka was part of a search party of more than 29 planes and 14 surface vessels covering a charted checkerboard of 65,000 square miles.

The abrupt disappearance of the giant air liner was both baffling and foreboding.

* * * *

CMDR. WILLIAM E. Chapline, heading the Coast Guard phase of the search, grimly pointed out that the ditched plane should have been able to flash some distress signal during a 20-minute descent from 10,000 feet. Failing that, there should be signals from hand-cranked radio transmitters on life rafts—if any were launched.

The weather offered no obstacle to the missing plane.

Among the 36 passengers were a state department official, a chemical company executive and a French air ace of World War II. They were bound for Honolulu, Tokyo, Hong Kong and Rangoon.

HONOLULU (UP) — Navy Wave Lt. (JG) Mary Ann Collins, 29, met her mother, Mrs. John P. Collins, of Cleveland, Ohio, arriving aboard the liner Matsonia Saturday and told her there probably would be no wedding Nov. 16.

Mary Ann's fiance, Cmdr. Joseph V. Jones Jr., 33, was aboard the Pan American plane missing over the Pacific.

The pretty WAVE and her fiance's mother, Mrs. Joseph V. Jones Sr., of New York, N.Y., waited in vain Friday night at Honolulu international airport for word of the missing plane.

Firestone Kin Wed in New York

NEW YORK (UP) — Miss Anne Isabelle Firestone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey S. Firestone Jr., of Akron, Ohio, and John Fleming Ball, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hyde Ball III, of Winnetka, Ill., were married Saturday in the Corpus Christi Church here.

The bride is a granddaughter of the late Harvey S. Firestone, founder of Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. Ball is an executive with the Columbia Broadcasting System.

BROTHER ON MISSING PLANE

Mrs. Faye Cardoza of Honolulu appears stunned as she hears over the Honolulu Airport loudspeaker that the Pan American plane carrying her brother home for their mother's funeral is missing. The brother, Louis Rodrigues, lives in San Francisco. A cousin, Al Fernandez (left), and her niece, Myriam, 9, were also awaiting the plane.—(AP Wirephoto.)

settled down like a plump grasshopper coming in to roost, then was moved aside to await the next arrival.

Air crewmen were flown from San Diego to a staging area at Los Alamitos Naval Air Station. Trucks carried them to the pier.

The 20 S2FS propeller-driven planes were to rendezvous with the carrier some time this morning at sea. They will take off from San Diego.

* * * *

FLOODLIGHTS played over the pier as night closed in.

Still the preparations continued. Seamen lined up to carry supplies aboard. Cranes creaked as they were jockeyed into position to haul aboard bulkier equipment.

"Now hear this!" announced the loudspeaker from time to time, as watches were mustered and assignments made.

Late arrivals pulled up alongside the ship in cars and buses.

The men of the Navy, the youngest recruits, the grizzled chiefs, the men with the gold stripes on their sleeves—said their goodbyes to wives, sweethearts, children.

* * * *

Then, in the middle of the night, the lines were cast off and the big gray carrier put to sea.

She had been in action before. On her bridge are painted the battle stripes she won in Korean waters, when her flight deck was home to the hottest fighter-bombers in the Navy.

The Phil Sea was ready then. And she was ready Saturday night as her bow sliced through the darkened waters, southwestward on a mission of mercy.

Dope Smuggler Suspect Seized by FBI Agents

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The FBI announced the arrest in Torrance Saturday night of Francis D. Liston, 27, identified by agents as an accused marijuana smuggler who failed to show up for trial last Tuesday in San Diego.

D. K. Brown, special agent in charge of the Los Angeles FBI office, said Liston, an unemployed machinist residing in Hermosa Beach, was charged with smuggling marijuana into the United States from Mexico.

Brown said Liston had been released on $5,000 bond. This was ordered forfeited and a new bond was set at $15,000.

Officer Sentenced for Thefts for Girl

BERLIN (UP)—A West Berlin policeman has been sentenced to 18 months in jail for stealing presents for his girl friend.

Heinz Cranow, 38, told the court he didn't have enough money to buy gifts for his girl so he broke into shop windows during his night patrols.

Leis Lie Forgotten

HONOLULU (UP)—The flower leis are piled on the waiting-room counter, wilting and forgotten.

The fragrant garlands were to have been draped over the shoulders of arriving passengers aboard Pan American Flight Seven . . . a flight that never arrived.

Relatives and friends of the passengers have returned home to wait any news of the plane.

Another group waiting to board the plane for its flight to Tokyo left earlier, their faces pale and sober. Earlier, both groups had been chattering gaily.

They received their first word at 8:50 p. m. that the flight was missing.

Passenger supervisor Jack Ditto, visibly moved by the announcement he was making, called the group to the counter:

"I'll tell you all we know," he said. "This aircraft, to be perfectly frank, was last heard from about 3 p. m. At that time, the aircraft had sufficient fuel to carry it up to 1 a. m.

"Everything is being done to find the aircraft—to find it and assist it. That's all we know."

Oil Leak Forces Searching Plane Back to Its Base

HONOLULU (UP) — An Air Force C-124 Globemaster searching for the lost Pan American Stratocruiser developed an oil leak Saturday night and was ordered to return to Hickam Air Force Base.

The pilot radioed that one engine had been feathered but the plane's condition was not serious.

Search and Rescue Headquarters at Pearl Harbor said another C124 was escorting the crippled plane back to Hawaii.

OH, HORROR! SHIRTSLEEVES!

No Red Carpet Ready for Japanese Envoy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Official Philadelphia was caught with its protocol showing Saturday when the Japanese ambassador to the United States made an unscheduled call at city hall.

Ambassador Koichiro Asakai, and his secretary, Yoshio Hatano, properly attired in fitted black overcoat and homburg, were discovered in the almost empty hallway outside Mayor Richardson Dilworth's offices.

The reception committee, on this quiet Saturday morning, consisted of an engineer in shirtsleeves, a porter and a newspaperwoman, the lone representative of the press on duty at the time.

* * * *

THE ILLUSTRIOUS visitor and his secretary were invited into the somewhat less ornate press headquarters while frantic calls were sent via the switchboard for a red carpet and a receiving line.

Unfortunately, channels and red tape being what they are, and Saturday being one of those "unavailable days" in municipal circles, no official worthy of the name could be reached in a decent interval.

Finally while the imperturbable ambassador smiled and chatted amiably with his pinchhitting reception party, the highest ranking and somewhat reluctant officer in the building was pressed into service.

Sans frock coat—in fact in shirtsleeves — a nervous Edgar P. Grim, chief of the Division of Engineering and Communications of the Department of Public Property, made his appearance.

Meanwhile, the operator of the only elevator in use in all of city hall, managed to round up a porter with the key to the mayor's reception room and Mr. Grim received the ambassador with embarrassed apologies.

* * * *

HIS EXCELLENCY presented his card and appeared more at ease than anyone in his unofficial greeting party.

He explained that he wished to convey to the mayor his appreciation for the work of the city in preparing an exhibit of Japanese art at the commercial museum.

He and his wife, he said, had decided on the spur of the moment to come here from Washington to see the exhibit and that he was delighted with its presentation.

As he was being escorted to the elevator, he assured everyone he would return one day to make a formal visit.

(Turn to Page A-8 to find out who said it, and why)

2. "Surrender? I have not yet begun to fight."
3. "Don't give up the ship."
4. "We have met the enemy and they are ours."
5. "I shall never surrender or retreat."
6. "Damn the torpedoes! Full speed ahead!"
7. "Retreat hell! We just got here."
8. "Send us more Japs."

Put Schools First, Reuther Advises

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Charging that "our vision has been clouded by the big dollar sign," labor leader Walter Reuther Saturday criticized America's failure to give a higher priority to education.

Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers of America and vice president of the AFL-CIO, told an audience of local labor representatives:

"We still don't recognize, while the Russians have, that power is measured by the development of the human mind. Our federal aid to education bill failed to pass by five votes. Our half-hearted measures for education are not enough."

Success of the Russian Sputniks, he contended, has brought into sharp focus this country's failure to get its priorities straightened out.

* * * *

HE SUGGESTED that the No. 2 priority, after education, lies in the civil rights. It behooves this country, he said, to "wipe out the ugly gap between promises and realities."

Reuther took occasion to denounce "the small minority of labor's leaders who have betrayed their sacred trust.

"We need to apply soap, disinfectant and a scrub brush to the few unions who need it from the top," he said.

At a news conference earlier, the labor leader was asked whether the AFL-CIO would set up a new truckers' union in the event the Teamsters are expelled from the organization at the national convention next month.

"We are hopeful that that will not be necessary," Reuther replied. "We are hopeful that the Teamsters will take the steps necessary to comply with the edict of our ethical practices committee.

* * * *

"WHATEVER happens, it will be their (the Teamsters') decision. They well know that we will not tolerate corruption or Communists in the American labor movement."

Reuther also was asked about his views on the California political scene in which Democrats have alleged that Republican Gov. Goodwin J. Knight was pressured out of seeking re-election and sidetracked into the GOP senatorial race.

"We will accept the judgment of the California people," Reuther said.

He commented, however, that Knight was "moved out" in tactics that smacked of "smokeroom politics — and I don't believe the people will like it."

Man Killed; Gang in Two Cars Hunted

cars, witnesses said, after Sothan fell to the ground during a scuffle.

Police broadcast an all-points "wanted" bulletin on a late model expensive sedan driven by a woman and a 1956 model pickup truck carrying five men.

Police late Saturday night arrested Charles Lester McCollum, 27, of Lancaster and booked him at Orange County Jail on suspicion of murder. McCollum, a former Air Force boxing champion denied being involved in Southan's death.

* * * *

WALLY FOX, deputy coroner, said an autopsy was to be performed to determine the cause of Sothan's death.

The only visible injury to the man's head was a bruise, Fox said.

The dead man's brother, M D. Sothan, 10111 Malinda Lane, said he knew of no reason for the assault and thought his brother did not even know his assailants.

One Killed, One Hurt on Motorcycle

TORRANCE — A 17-year-old motorcyclist was killed and his passenger injured seriously when their two-wheeler crashed into an automobile on Pacific Coast Hwy. Saturday night.

Billy W. Meeker of 2525 Dalemead St., died in Harbor General Hospital of a skull fracture about two hours after the accident. His passenger, Robert A. Parker, 20, of 24837 Winlock Dr., was in the same hospital with possible fractures of the skull and shoulder.

Police said the motorcycle, running without lights, crashed into an automobile driven by Carl David Sass, 17, of 2605 W. 163rd St., Gardena, who was attempting a left turn from Pacific Coast Hwy. into Winlock Dr.

Cat Blood Saves Mauled Leopard, Leg Amputated

CINCINNATI (UP) — Blood transfusions from domestic housecats Saturday saved the life of a 50-pound prize clouded leopard whose left front leg was badly mauled, apparently by a jaguar in an adjacent cage.

Dr. Byron Bernard, veterinarian at Cincinnati Zoo, said the leg of Sandra, a clouded leopard believed to be the only one of its kind in captivity, was torn so badly it had to be amputated. He credited the blood transfusions from the cats with saving the life of the $1,200 animal.

Expert Explains U.S. Missile Lag

No Program at All From 1945 to '51

belief that much more money could not be intelligently spent on their development.

This statement does not apply to many badly neglected fringe areas of our ballistic missile and satellite programs. First and foremost, there is a crying need for more money for basic and applied research in these areas.

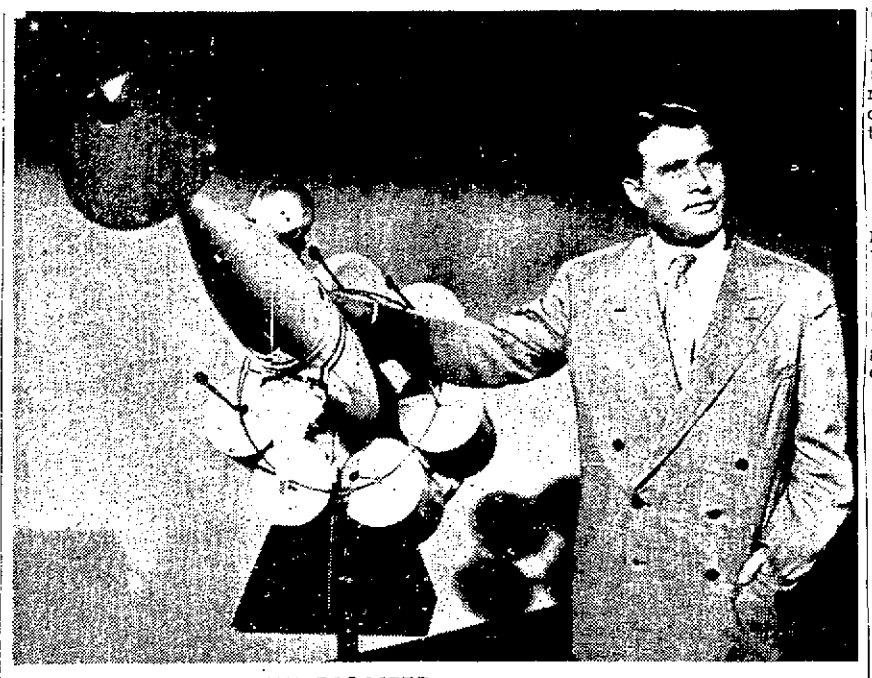

In many fields we are virtually scraping the bottom of the reservoir of knowledge, and the efforts to refill that reservoir with adequate research funds have been limited.

Secondly, while adequate funds are available for the clearly defined missile weapons systems, there is never enough to "advance the art." A typical example is that we don't have a real powerful rocket engine today simply because none of our present crash missile programs need it. But in order to beat the Russians in the race for outer space we absolutely need it—and the development of such an engine requires several years.

* * * *

Q. If the Russians have mastered the ability to return a satellite to earth at will, what would be the United States' best defense?

A. Mastery of this recovery technique in itself does not constitute a threat to the United States. It should rather be considered as an important detail achievement within the framework of an obvious all-out effort by the Soviets to establish themselves as masters of the space around us. Herein lies the real threat to our security, and only the immediate enaction of a well-planned, determined U.S. space flight program can neutralize it.

U.S. ARMY'S MISSILE PIONEER

Dr. Wernher Von Braun, former German V2 rocket expert, explains his design for a rocket to take man on his first exploratory flight to the moon and relates other scientific information in an exclusive interview by The Associated Press.—(AP Wirephoto.)

Q. In view of Russian developments, in what direction should U. S. research now be directed?

A. We should pursue a well-planned and coordinated research and development program covering all aspects of human flight through outer space.

* * * *

Q. In 1953 you predicted that within a few years it would be possible to launch a space satellite carrying warm-blooded animals, as the Russians have done. To your knowledge is there an organized program in this country for physiological research in space travel?

A. The United States Air Force has a department for space medicine attached to its School of Aviation Medicine in Randolph Field, Texas. The Navy's air medical center at Pensacola, Fla., is likewise actively engaged in physiological research in space travel.

The bold experiments carried out by the Air Force's Col. Stapp (with the rocket sled) and Maj. Simons (with the high-altitude balloon) have been extensively covered by magazines and newspapers. Experimenters from Wright Field, Ohio, have test-fired Phesus monkeys in Aerobee rockets as early as 1950.

But there is little, if any, professional contact between these researchers and the present U. S. ballistic missile program.

* * * *

Q. Do you believe a consolidated program, such as the Manhattan Project, would improve our development of missiles? Would this free any scientists for work, say in the field of space travel?

A. We should not lose sight of the fact that there are some fundamental differences between the situation which led to the Manhattan Project, and the situation in the missile field today.

The Manhattan Project was initiated because the physicists had come up with a revolutionary new concept (namely the nuclear chain reaction) which could only be translated into something of military value (namely an atom bomb) by the construction of huge facilities where difficult processes hitherto only demonstrated in the laboratory (namely isotope separation) could be carried out on a vast, industrial scale.

Under these circumstances it was only logical that President Roosevelt handed the job of providing these missing facilities to his biggest and most experienced construction agency, the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers. We should also not forget that the spectacular success of the Manhattan Project was to a large extent due to the fact that in cases where there was only doubt about the possible success of a certain method two or three competitive, parallel approaches were tried without consideration of cost.

In the missile field today, we have practically all the facilities we can intelligently use. Several projects are handled by several teams, each of which is in a different geographical location. Any attempt to dislocate or combine those teams must necessarily lead to immediate interruption of the work, with resultant delays.

A strong, national management of our ballistic missile and space flight program is certainly highly desirable. Since 1951 there has been the institution of a so-called guided missile czar on the level of the Department of Defense. But while the men in this job have made great contributions to the national missile program they lacked one most essential ingredient of power: they did not control the funds with which the programs under their supervision were financed. As a result many of their plans just died on the vine. I believe that if only the position of this missile czar could be strengthened, to the effect that he could back up long-range planning with long-range budgetry, we wouldn't have to start dangerous organizational experiments which might only disrupt the existing missile teams.

* * * *

Q. There are reports that the Russians have developed engines with a thrust greatly superior to anything available in this country. Would you comment on this?

A. This seems to be true. There are some very large rocket engines under development in the United States, but most unfortunately this work has been supported on a shoestring, because it is not considered part of our high-priority missile programs.

Q. There also have been reports of a Russian breakthrough in the development of propellants, allowing them to achieve greater thrust from present engines. Could you comment?

A. We have several rather powerful propellant combinations in this country also, but we prefer not to use them in our ballistic missiles because of their poor handling characteristics. In military weapons systems propellant handling problems are a major consideration. But for the firing of a satellite vehicle you can make provisions and take special precautions which would be unacceptable for a military operation. The situation can be compared with those souped-up superfuels used in hot-rod races, which would not be acceptable for general distribution through filling stations.

It is entirely possible that the Russians decided to use such a super-fuel in order to step up the otherwise lower payload-carrying capacity of their satellite rocket.

* * * *

Q. Are the Russians turning out missile and satellite scientists superior to the products—generally speaking—of American universities?

A. I do not think so. I believe that the professional quality of a young American physicist or engineer, fresh from the university, is at least as high as that of his Russian counterpart. But we do not provide sufficient opportunity for these young scientists and engineers to accrue a sufficient number of consecutive years in missile development to adequately enhance their practical experience. We turn research and development projects on and off like a faucet.

* * * *

Q. In your opinion, what is the military implication of the Russian satellite on the present U. S. defense establishment and its future development?

A. It is another indication of the ever-growing importance of space weapons. Ten or 15 years from now space superiority will have taken the place of today's air superiority.

* * * *

Q. How do you account for the apparent apathy toward missile development in this country between 1947 and 1951?

A. Right after the war, public interest turned away from weapons and toward the resumption of production of badly needed consumer goods. The United States had won the war, but few people in this country realized that that mighty wartime ally, the Soviet Union, had emerged from the war more powerful than ever before — and that her rulers were in no mood whatsoever to lose their wartime gains through hasty disarmament.

There was no ballistic missile development program in the United States between 1945 and 1951 because there was no obvious need for it, no interest for it, and no money for it.

* * * *

Q. Under IGY agreement, knowledge learned by space satellites is to be shared fully. How useful would knowledge learned by Russia's Sputniks be in developing or accelerating our satellite programs?

A. We expect to learn from the Sputniks, with and without Soviet collaboration, quite a few things with regard to the shape of the earth, transoceanic mapping and survey, mass distribution within the earth, and density of the uppermost layers of the atmosphere.

This type of information can be gleaned by tracking Sputnik's orbit and its ultimate fiery destruction by re-entry into the atmosphere.

If and when the Soviets will present the results of their telemetered readings from the satellites themselves, we are likely to learn many new things on cosmic radiation, solar X-rays, effects of extended weightlessness on animals, density of micrometeors and meteoric dust, and the like.

Q. What does Russia's success mean in terms of science education in this country, and public attitudes toward scientists and basic research?

A. I am convinced that the Sputniks will give Russia's science education program an additional most powerful boost. I can only hope that it will give the United States science education program an even greater boost, because we need such a boost badly.

And I also hope it will enhance the recognition of science and scientists in the eyes of the U. S. public. Unless we manage to make careers in the sciences more attractive to the young generation, we cannot hope to win the long-range struggle with the Soviets for scientific and technological superiority.

Rehabilitation Home for Women Goal of Long Beach Service Clubs

By BOB HOUSER

A young woman—first offender—leaves jail without a dime, no job, no job background, no references and no clothes to make herself presentable for applying for a job.

She goes on the night prowl and settles for a hamburger and a bed.

Next time she's picked up for intoxication or immoral conduct she's not likely to cry in jail as she did the first time. Jail has become a lark. She readily associates with veteran women offenders. Her new and callous gaiety is a symptom of her surrender to despair.

* * * *

MATRON LUCILLE MURDOCK, 16 years a policewoman and now senior policewoman of the Jail Division here, thinks a minimum security residence home could rehabilitate some of these young women.

Backed by the women's service club, Zonta, of which she is president, Mrs. Murdock placed the idea of a rehabilitation home for young women before the Service Club Council. The council, comprised of officers of all Long Beach service clubs, named Junior Chamber of Commerce President Gene Kirkpatrick chairman of a committee to study the Murdock plan.

Members of the committee are Dr. Georgia Clark, president of Soroptimist Club; Virginia Youngquist, president of Quota Club, and Dr. Mark D. Miner representing West Long Beach Lions Club.

When the committee meets, Mrs. Murdock will lay the facts on the line:

"We could start with an existing residence, one to accommodate 6 to 10 young women aged 17 to 25.

* * * *

"THEY WOULD be first offenders or women the court believes would respond to this type of rehabilitation. The court, of its own decision, or with probation department recommendation, could put the girl on probation in the home. If she does respond satisfactorily, she would earn suspension of her sentence. If not, she woud serve her penalty.

"Hardest part of this plan is finding a qualified housemother to supervise the girls. But, of course, it can be done.

"Now, here's how such a home would help. In the first place, the girl is not turned out on the streets, hundreds of miles from home, penniless, shabbily dressed and without friends. She goes to this home. That takes off the pressure of food and lodging at the outset. She isn't forced to take the handy, easy way out to get food and a roof over her head.

"If our service clubs support the idea, we'll be able to provide satisfactory clothes, the benefits of leads on jobs she can handle and the recommendation of the court and the housemother and law enforcement people interested in her case that she has been adjudged a good risk for employment.

* * * *

MRS. MURDOCK, as matron of women at City Jail, has no illusions about obtaining a perfect score of rehabilitating these young women.

"I'm not an idealist. Maybe we would help 50 per cent, maybe only 25 per cent. But even if we help only one in 100, it's an investment in a human life. For that reason alone, I believe this rehabilitation home is as worthy as many another civic project which we interest ourselves in.

"Yes, I have been fooled many times by young women I thought were straightening themselves out. Each time I say to myself that's the last time I'm going to waste my time on them. But I know, of course, it won't be.

"Our police officers, men and women, couldn't take this daily grind of seeing heartaches and broken lives if we had no faith in human nature.

"On the credit side, I've received letters from girls I don't even remember thanking us for our aid and guidance. They made up for years of disappointments."

* * * *

ONE OF THE SADDEST phrases Mrs. Murdock has had to utter in her years at the top of City Hall, as the barred elevator door clanked shut, is this, to a tearful young woman prisoner:

"I knew your mother."

Mrs. Murdock has encountered several of these second-generation offenders. Cases of intoxication, immoral conduct . . . mother and now the daughter.

Strictly in the formative stage now, Mrs. Murdock's plan already has significant support.

Zonta, her service club, has tentatively earmarked a good portion of its service budget for the home project if it receives widespread support of other service clubs.

Police Chief William Dovey thinks the idea is a good one.

* * * *

ONE VETERAN POLICE officer disagreed heartily with the Murdock plan:

"It'll wind up being just another nursery for alcoholics," said he. "These women don't want anything better than what they're doing. They want the easy way. Sure, you'll give them free bed and board for awhile, but they'll be back in the bars and on the make next week."

But Mrs. Murdock, who admits she's been fooled before, remembers the many evidences she's seen in her jail . . . evidences that a home had been the missing quantity in the girl's miserable end.

It's seen many times at Christmas time.

"So many of the girls have told me at the gift exchange:

"You know, this is the first time in my life I've ever had a wrapped package with my name on it.' "

Anti-Racist Dixie Vote 'Shocking'

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI)—A student legislature "shocked" Rep. Harold D. Cooley (D-NC) Saturday by voting in a mock session to repeal a North Carolina ban on interracial marriage.

After the 212 students from 21 white and Negro colleges in North Carolina had passed a series of antisegregation measures, Cooley departed from his prepared speech to tell the student assembly they had "shocked the sensibilities of our people."

Cooley then added coldly that he considered the students' actions a personal insult.

"I am certain that my position on the racial matter is well-known," he said. He added he felt a "more constructive agenda could have been prepared."

* * * *

THE STUDENTS, besides voting to overthrow in their state a racial marriage ban that southern conservatives consider a key segregation bulwark, also debated a resolution "censuring" Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas.

The resolution criticized Faubus for using National Guardsmen to thwart court-ordered integration of Central High School in Little Rock, Ark., and commending President Eisenhower for sending federal troops to eneforce integration.

Cooley said their actions were ill-advised and poorly con- . He told a reporter he matters ly.

Girl, 9, Runs 6-Foot Boat to Catalina

A 9-year-old Anaheim girl sped across Catalina Channel Saturday in a 6-foot, 4-inch inboard runabout in two hours flat.

Rosemarie Murphy, 9152 Grand Ave., left Pierpoint Landing at 9 a. m. and encountered "several high 'swells'" before reaching Avalon Harbor, her father, George H. Murphy, reported.

Rosemarie's 7½-horsepower craft was followed by a chase boat.

* * * *

THE ELDER MURPHY, who was aboard the accompanying craft, commented that "all of us were beat afterward except Rosemarie." Four men were aboard the chase boat.

Murphy said Rosemarie attempted a Catalina-to-Long Beach run about two months ago but gave it up after she was 12 miles out.

The girl ordinarily operates her little boat in Marine Stadium.

Blind Hunter Licensed

CAMP CROOK, S. D. (AP) — It's legal for Bud Hoag to hunt deer this year, although he is blind.

Hoag and his wife bought a gun almost a year ago and have been shooting at targets since then.

Mrs. Hoag made application for a deer license and downed a four-point whitetail south of town shortly after the season opened.

Then Bud applied for his big game license. Harding County Treasurer Lucy Lahti asked State's Atty. Don Bennett on legality of licenses for the blind. Bennett, in turn, checked with Asst. Atty. Gen. W. O. Knight in Pierre who said "it's okay."

Rachael explains she sights the gun for Bud and he pulls the trigger.

One such product is special formula K-54 which was developed and clinically tested by university doctors to prove that nervous and emotionally tired people can be quickly helped when not organically or functionally ill.
We have now had over two years experience with this special formula with many hundreds of people.
With special formula K-54, both adults and children who are tired, nervous, irritable, cross, moody, sleep poorly or worry are regaining health and energy by solving the underlying basic nutritional causes.
No matter how mild or severe the symptoms, special formula K-54 should be used for its nutritional benefits. A trial will show you how quickly you can be helped.

Japanese Civic Officials on Two-Day Tour of L.B.

America may have vim, vigor and vitamins, but Japan has the "A-number-one medicine of all—sake."

This statement doesn't necessarily reflect the view of this newspaper, but is attributable to one Taneichiro Nakano, dean of Nipponese distillers and brewers.

Nakano was among a group of 39 Japanese Chamber of Commerce and civic officials who were guests of the Long Beach C. of C. Saturday night at a cocktail party in the Wilton Hotel. The group is on a two-day tour of the city, and tonight will be the guests of Herman H. Ridder, Independent, Press-Telegram publisher, at a party in the Ridder home.

* * * *

SCOTCH AND BOURBON flowed like water at Saturday night's soiree, but there wasn't a drop of sake to be had in the house.

Smiling patiently, Nakano, through his interpreter, Hirom Yagi of the Japan Travel Bureau, told how the average Japanese toper slugs down three gallons of sake a month.

"It is, as you say, good for what ails you," he explained, glancing ever so indulgently at the frosty bourbon and soda being juggled by the reporter.

"Sake picks up the digestion, and makes you live longer."

* * * *

THE REPORTER set down the bourbon and soda glass—empty, of course—and asked if maybe there wasn't a social drinking problem in Japan, what with all that rice beer going down the proverbial hatch.

Nakano demurred.

"Any medicine is bad for you if you use too much of it," he explained, through the interpreter. "Besides, the production of sake is strictly controlled by the government."

Further interrogation revealed that brewing of sake is only a third of what it was in pre-war Japan. We'd like to give you the exact figures, but they got lost somewhere in the translation.

* * * *

REASON FOR the cutback, Nakano explained, is that Japan needs most of its rice for food. His brewery in Kyoto is working only a few months of the year.

Nakano, who is president of the Kyonto Chamber of Commerce, told how his family had been at the sake-brewing business nigh on 100 years.

With a faint mixture of pride and regret, he explained that alcohol taxes are Japan's number two source of revenue, right behind income taxes. Sake, incidentally sells for $1 a gallon and the government takes a two-thirds bite for taxes.

Whiskey-making has picked up in post-war Japan, but it's still far behind sake production, said Nakano.

"Sake is the national drink," he explained.

Bottoms up.

GUESTS OF THE CITY

Testing the relative merits of Japanese and American shrimp are (left to right) Taneichiro Nakano, president of the Kyoto, Japan, Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. Nakano and John E. Biby Jr., president of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce. The Long Beach Chamber hosted Nakano and 38 other Japanese business and civic leaders at a reception Saturday night in the Wilton Hotel.

On, Sputnik! Santa Rides!

BERLIN (U.P.) — The East German Communist newspaper Neues Deutschland said Saturday it wants Santa to ride a sputnik this Christmas.

It rebuked the state-run toy industry for failing to produce a toy satellite for the Christmas trade.

The paper urged the industry to start turning out sputnik Christmas tree decorations.

"They would look fine with a red star and a gold hammer shining on the silver," it said.

WANTED: BRAVE MAN WITH $1,500

Pilot to Hunt Treasure In Land of the Incas

WASHINGTON (UP)—Wanted: A person with stamina, courage and $1,500 to help finance a treasure hunt.

A veteran pilot revealed Saturday he is leaving shortly on a one-year expedition to the mysterious land of the Incas, in South America's wild Andes mountain area.

"All I need is a partner with about $1,500 and plenty of guts," Pilot George Farnham said. "I'm going into places no white man has ever seen and I hope to come back rich."

Farnham flew the Andes as a commercial airline pilot for years, and later explored the Incas region in private planes.

* * * *

"I'VE THOROUGHLY studied the territory from the air," he added. "I've charted locations of ancient buildings, walls, water flumes, towns, old mine indications and the like in land no one's ever explored. I think there are articles of Inca treasure there which might be worth $300,000 or more."

Farnham plans to use every mode of travel from a station wagon and panel truck to a Piper aircraft. His expedition will travel from the Venezuela-Colombia border through Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia and Chile.

He said he first spotted the potential treasure area while flying a commercial DC3 over the Andes.

"The crew I had with me was later killed in a crash," he added, "so I'm the only one who knows exactly where to look."

* * * *

FARNHAM, WHO once flew Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) on a political campaign trip in 1952, estimated he would explore approximately 4,000 square miles of the wild and rugged country.

"Even if there weren't any ancient treasure, I know of hundreds of jungle rivers at the base of the Andes where gold dust and nuggets practically cover the beds of streams," he said. "All it takes is guts and stamina to come out with a fortune."

Farnham said he has contracted with a motion picture company, a magazine and a television network for still and moving pictures of the expedition.

"I've put $7,000 of my own money into making my dream come true," the pilot said. "I've practically re-built my Piper with my own hands."

Molotov Cocktail Party Pepper-Upper

By WALTER T. RIDDER, R. E. LEE AND W. W. BROOM
(Independent, Press-Telegram Capital Bureau)

WASHINGTON—A number of ranking politicians here have received phony invitations to a party, supposedly hosted by Russian Ambassador and Madame Zarubin, to celebrate the 40th anniversary of "the world's most powerful slave labor empire" and the departure of deposed Defense Minister Georgi Zhukov.

The menu for the dinner: Caviar Moskorit (from fish that stinks from head), Cocktail Molotov, Bloody Zhukov Borscht, Meatballs Khrushchev, Grilled Powerhouse Steak a la Malenkov with Sauce Tartare, O-pressed Duck au Captive Nations, Sputniks, Pickled Gherkins Ballistic Missile, Righteous Dessert Creme Reverse Zhukov, Bombehydrogen, Crimean Champagne mixed with Hungarian Blood, Vintage 1956.

DESPITE DENIALS from all concerned, there's a possibility that California Sen. Bill Knowland will resign before his term expires. Here are the conditions which would make it possible for him to pull out:

1. Mayor George Christopher of San Francisco and other Republicans in the senatorial race to succeed him must withdraw their candidacies and leave Gov. Goodie Knight unopposed.

2. Both Knowland and Knight must be reasonably certain they can beat their Democratic opponents in November.

3. If condition No. 1 is not fulfilled, Knowland probably would wait until after the November election before resigning. If both he and Knight have been elected at that time, the Senator will in all probability resign to give the ex-governor a leg up on Senate seniority. Knowland's term expires in January, 1959.

* * * *

GOODIE KNIGHT went to great pains to keep out of sight when he arrived here before dawn Monday to announce he was pulling out of the governor race. He and his party registered at their hotel under assumed names.

The governor called himself "Woodfield." It was late Monday night before reporters reached him because a hotel telephone operator just on duty hadn't been tipped off the governor was incognito. The operator put through a call from a newsman who asked to speak to "the governor of California."

* * * *

COMMENT AT the National Press Club on the California political story: "Well, from here on in it's no longer Goodie, but Good Knight."

Best Seller Lags

TOKYO (AP)—"The New Class," the book by ex-Vice President Milovan Djilas of Yugoslavia, is a best seller in Japan. But the Jiji Press, which printed 30,000 copies in Japanese, said that after a fast upswing, sales seemed to level off when Sputnik I went up.

Less Soap Used by Frenchmen

PARIS (AP) — The average Frenchman uses less soap in a year than any of his European neighbors and less than one-third as much as an American, official statistics showed today.

According to the figures, a Frenchman buys a bit less than 15 ounces of soap each year while the average American—termed "the cleanest man in the world" — uses about three and a quarter pounds.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Ike Gets Medical Checkup Today

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — President Eisenhower will enter Walter Reed Army Medical Center today for an annual, 24-hour "head to toe" medical checkup, the White House said Saturday.

The President is scheduled to enter the hospital late today and return to the White House Monday afternoon.

It will be his first complete physical checkup since Oct. 28, 1956, when the examining physicians reported that he gave "every appearance of being in excellent health." The pre-election checkup confirmed the President's physical fitnss to serve another four years in the White House. His physicians indicated confidence that this checkup will result in another favorable report.

Killer's Wish Fulfilled

DEDHAM, Mass. (U.P.) — A young California airplane mechanic had his wish fulfilled Saturday — he was convicted of slaying his teenage sweetheart and sentenced to death in the electric chair.

Jack Chester, 22, of Lancaster, Calif., was sentenced by Superior Judge Frank J. Donahue when the Norfolk County jury refused to recommend clemency in finding him guilty of the first degree murder of Beatrice Fishman, 19, of Brookline, last April. Chester tearfully pleaded with the jury Friday either to have him executed or confined for life so that he could harm no one else.

Roberto, Sonali Make Plans

ROME (U.P.) — Roberto Rossellini and Mrs. Sonali Das Gupta Saturday made plans to return to India where she will file suit for divorce so she can marry the Italian movie producer, it was reported.

Friends of Mrs. Das Gupta's father said in Calcutta that she planned to return from Paris to try to gain her freedom from her film producer husband, Hari S. Das Gupta. They said she had gone to Paris to "engineer" a legal separation between Rossellini and actress Ingrid Bergman and that this had been accomplished.

Awakes From 5-Day Trance

CHICAGO (U.P.) — A Rip Van Winkle housewife was aroused from hypnotic hibernation Saturday, skeptical about having slept five days in a "heavenly" trance.

Mrs. Nora Hughes, 27, expressed disbelief when she was awakened by hypnotist Edwin L. Baron from the deep sleep in which he placed her last Monday. "When are we going to start?" she asked Baron groggily.

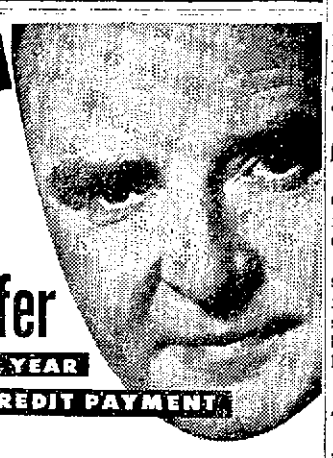

When told she had been dozing peacefully 20 to 22 hours daily since Monday, the East Gary, Ind., mother of three children replied: "You can say it but I won't believe it."

Duke's Pal Dates Heiress

LONDON (U.P.) — Commander Michael Parker, whose broken marriage cost him his job as secretary to the Duke of Edinburgh, has been dating one of Britain's wealthiest women, a newspaper reported Saturday.

Columnist William Hickey of the Daily Express said Parker, 36, has started escorting heiress Nancy Oakes, 32, estranged wife of German Baron Ernst von Hoyningen Huene.

No Knight Deal, Says Knowland

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Promising an active, aggressive campaign for governor, Sen. Knowland told the Republican State Central Committee meeting Saturday that although he will support the party's candidate for the U. S. Senate, he has not conferred with Gov. Knight.

He addressed 750 delegates to the meeting at a luncheon.

"I have not participated directly or indirectly in any discussions or communications with the incumbent governor or his representatives before, during or subsequent to his decision to retire from the gubernatorial contest," said Knowland.

* * * *

"NOR HAVE I made any private commitments directly or indirectly to support any candidate for the United States Senate. I will support the Republican nominee when determined by the voters next June."

Knowland told the committeemen: "There has been much misrepresentation of my views regarding labor-management relations by those who seek to confuse rather than to inform. The right of an individual to join a labor organization is protected by state and federal law. I supported such legislation both as a member of the California Legislature and the Congress.

"Collective bargaining should not and must not degenarate into coercive bludgeoning. No group in industry or in labor should have the power to strangle the economic life of 170 million Americans."

* * * *

GOV. KNIGHT in Puerto Rico on vacation, and Mayor George Christopher of San Francisco, candidates for Knowland's senate seat, were conspicuously absent, but there was considerable informal discussion about their status. Christopher set up headquarters here and his followers said he will not pull out of the race.

Warren Atherton, Stockton lawyer, said that regardless of what Knight or anyone else does, he is out after the nomination, too, and he urged: "Let's make it a race, not an exhibition. Recent election setbacks emphasize that while harmony is important, being right is more important."

Merck & Co. Board Chief Dies, Age 63

WEST ORANGE, N. J. (UP)—George W. Merck, 63, international authority and leader in the chemical and pharmaceutical fields, died Saturday of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Merck was stricken about 4 a. m. and taken to Memorial Hospital in Orange, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

He was chairman of the board of Merck & Co., Inc., Rahway, manufacturing chemists.

The New York-born Merck attended prep schools in New Jersey and Harvard College.

In 1915 he became associated with the Merck & Co. firm and was appointed president upon the retirement of his father in 1925.

Merck married twice. His first wife, the former Miss Josephine Carey, bore him two sons. His second wife had three children.

Elvis Hits It Off With Hula Girls

HONOLULU (AP)—Elvis Presley was the first person off the liner Matsonia when it arrived Saturday and 4,000 young fans rocked the dock with their shouts and shrieks.

The 22-year-old singer paused at the top of the gang plank, drew in his breath, slicked back his long hair, planted a few kisses on nearby hula girls, and hurried to a waiting cab.

Presley was here for two shows today in Honolulu Stadium.

He was accompanied by an entourage of high school friends and disc jockeys.

Presley was attired in a white knit sweater with a large rolled collar, a wine-colored sports coat flecked with black, and black slacks and dark loafers.

Vote Riot Stirred up by Tramp

EDINBURGH, Scotland (UP)—Tramp Jimmy Miller stayed away from his usual haunts Saturday to escape questioning on one of the most riotous elections ever held at Edinburgh University.

Students battled for nearly four hours Friday on the university campus while officials counted the votes that elected Actor James Robertson Justice rector of the college. Three students were injured and sent to a hospital.

The dispute was over the withdrawal of Miller as a candidate in the election. He was nominated three weeks ago despite his boast he hasn't worked in 35 years. But he withdrew because "people are laughing at me."

* * * *

MILLER, WHOSE main occupation is sitting on a park bench, "just thinking about things," stayed away from his bench and his lodging house Saturday while newsmen searched for him.

His supporters clashed with those of Justice and the nine other candidates, battling with tin cans, wooden boxes, fish, fireworks and rotten fruit.

Police finally had to charge with clubs to break them up.

Actor Justice easily won the election with 1,003 student votes against 688 polled by his nearest rival, Sir Alexander Gray, a member of the faculty. Author Malcom Muggeridge, a recent critic of royalty, was fifth with 246 votes.

LIKE STATUE

Stone Child in Woman for 37 Years

CHICAGO (AP)—Removal of a "stone child" from the abdomen of a Chicago woman where it had remained for 37 years has been reported by a medical team.

Dr. Edward J. Krol, chief of staff at Holy Cross Hospital where the operation was performed, said the petrified fetus "looked like a carved marble statue with all the features plainly visible."

He estimated the condition occurs in about one of every four million births but is usually detected early.

He gave this account of the case Saturday.

The petrified fetus, known medically as a lithopedion, was discovered by X-ray when a 67-year-old woman sought treatment for stomach tumor last December. Although the lithopedion and tumor were removed successfully the woman died later.

* * * *

THE BABY BEGAN forming in the uterine tube instead of the uterine cavity. It developed for 4½ months and then ruptured the tube.

The fetus passed into the abdomen and became attached to the omentum or fat pad and was nourished temporarily by the woman's blood supply. When this supply was cut off, nature began to calcify the fetus.

The woman had one son, now 45, before the stone child developed, but no children since that time.

Ired French Set to Build A-Sub Alone

CHERBOURG, France (UP)—The French Navy chief of staff said Saturday his country started building an atomic submarine alone because it got tired of waiting for its Allies to share atomic secrets.

Adm. Henry Michel Nomy chided the United States and Britain for their secrecy on atomic matters during ceremonies here launching the conventional submarine Arethuse.

The Arethuse, a small, 490-ton vessel, is the second of four sister subs designed for use as a defense against larger submarines. It carries advanced radar and sound detection gear.

TB CENTER SET

AMMAN, Jordan (UP)—King Hussein has announced a $31,000 antituberculosis center will open here Nov. 21.

A MEDAL FOR FIDO

Hail Dog for 13-Year Vigil

LUCO DI MUGELLO, Italy (UP)—Fido, a little white dog with a long memory, received a gold medal Saturday.

Inscribed on it were the words: "To Fido, Exemplary Dog."

Fido, whose name in Italian means loyalty, was honored by the citizens of this mountain hamlet in central Italy and by officials of nearby Borgo San Lorenzo.

ABOUT 1,000 persons gathered in a slight drizzle in Luco's main square—a square where Fido has waited for 13 years for his master to come home.

His master, Carlo Soriani, used to ride a bus every morning to work at a factory in Borgo. For two years Fido followed him to the bus stop in the square and then waited there until he returned in the evening.

Then war came. And one day Soriani did not return. He was killed in an Allied air attack that destroyed the Borgo factory.

BUT FIDO still met the bus each night. He soon started to sleep under it, since the bus remained in Luco's square overnight.

His vigil persists.

Everyone in Luco and Borgo knows about it. They send him food. They don't try to move him from the square.

Saturday Giuseppe Graziani, mayor of Borgo, pinned the medal around Fido's neck while Soriani's widow, Maria, knelt nearby. She wept.

Piccard Sees Trips of Thousand Years, No Aging

LOUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) —Prof. Auguste Piccard, famed stratosphere and deep sea explorer, believes space travelers of the future will go on trips lasting several thousand years and return to earth without aging.

The 73-year-old Swiss told a lecture audience here Saturday night that round trips to distant solar systems will eventually become possible in space ships driven by the force of light. He said they would travel near the speed of light, 186,324 miles a second.

"Such machines will enable man to reach a solar system, say, 1,000 light years away and return to earth," Piccard said.

The journey would take 2,000 years as measured on earth, he said, but the travelers would show and feel no trace of the passage of time.

"Only on landing would they perceive that the earth's calendar meanwhile advanced by 2,000 years," he declared. "Everything in the space ship will have been suspended and preserved in time.

"This is no longer science fiction, but strict reality, established by Einstein's theory of relativity and now probable in the laboratory."

Piccard said immense technical problems remain to be solved. He said the fuel problem is the main difficulty in future space travel even within our own solar system.

Crackdown Cools Gridiron Pools

CERRITOS SQUARE Will Replace Virginia Market With 14 Office Structures

Upsets Hit Bookies; Cards Grow Scarce

By BOB WHEARLEY

Not all the football upsets have been on the gridiron these past few weeks.

Long Beach bookies have been hurting, too, and just where it hurts the most—in the bankroll.

So many books have taken losses recently that pool cards are becoming hard to find. There are some still in circulation, but most operators figure they're not worth the risk.

The Independent, Press-Telegram checked with a number of bookmakers and bartenders who have been known to handle football cards.

They agreed that the state's recent warning to tavern men had a lot to do with decline of the pool cards. Russell A. Munro, state liquor director, had warned taverns could face suspension of their licenses if they permitted gambling or lotteries on the premises.

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Dept. office in Long Beach said it was flooded with phone calls after the warning. The callers, tavern operators, informed the department they were shutting down their football lotteries.

* * * *

THESE LOTTERIES—popular during the football season in many business offices and most neighborhood bars—were of the "100 chance" variety.

Here's how they work:

A checkerboard with 100 squares is drawn up, with each square constituting one chance. The player plunks down a quarter or 50 cents, sometimes more, and writes his name in one of the squares. Later, numbers are drawn and assigned to the board. It's not until then that the player knows what teams he's betting on.

Small time as they may seem, they're still verboten under the ABC's pronouncement.

In the pool card operation, the player selects three games from a field of about 36. He plays a point spread. If he wins, his dollar bet will pay off five-to-one. If he picks more than three winners, the odds and payoffs go up—paying as much as $100 for 10 selections.

* * * *

THEREIN LIES the story of the bookies' heartbreak.

During the recent race track strikes, local bookmakers were out of jobs—and with no chance to collect unemployment insurance. On top of that, those of them who also banked football pools were caught flat-footed by several upsets.

The result: Some bookies washed their hands of pools. A couple reportedly left town without paying off.

Much of the football pool money is handled by a syndicate which has its own route men. In many cases, the route men sub-let the distribution to barkeeps, even college students, who in turn take the players' money.

But with the ABC crackdown, more and more tavern owners are reluctant to take a chance.

'Miracle Mile' of Offices Set on Virginia Mart Site

Buildings Cost Total of More Than $4 Million

By KEN CHILCOTE

Providing the ultimate in smart design for office accommodations, a multi-million-dollar development will rise on the old Virginia Country Market site on the northeast corner of Long Beach Blvd. and San Antonio Dr.

To be known as Cerritos Square, the development will eventually include 14 buildings, all of low, open designs yet containing the floor space of a comparable 15-story office building.

Park-like atmosphere will be included in the 8-acre development with picture windows in offices overlooking enclosed patios.

Off-street parking facilities will be more than ample to meet the needs.

Cost of Cerritos Square will be well in excess of $4 million.

* * * *

EACH BUILDING will be custom-made to needs of the major tenant, explained Clark J. Bonner Jr., head of the C. J. Bonner Co., the developers. The firm helped develop Lakewood.

"Surveys have shown us that major corporations are in need of new and improved office accommodations," said Bonner. "Some are new offices being moved to the coast. Others are offices expanding or getting away from the metropolitan congestion.

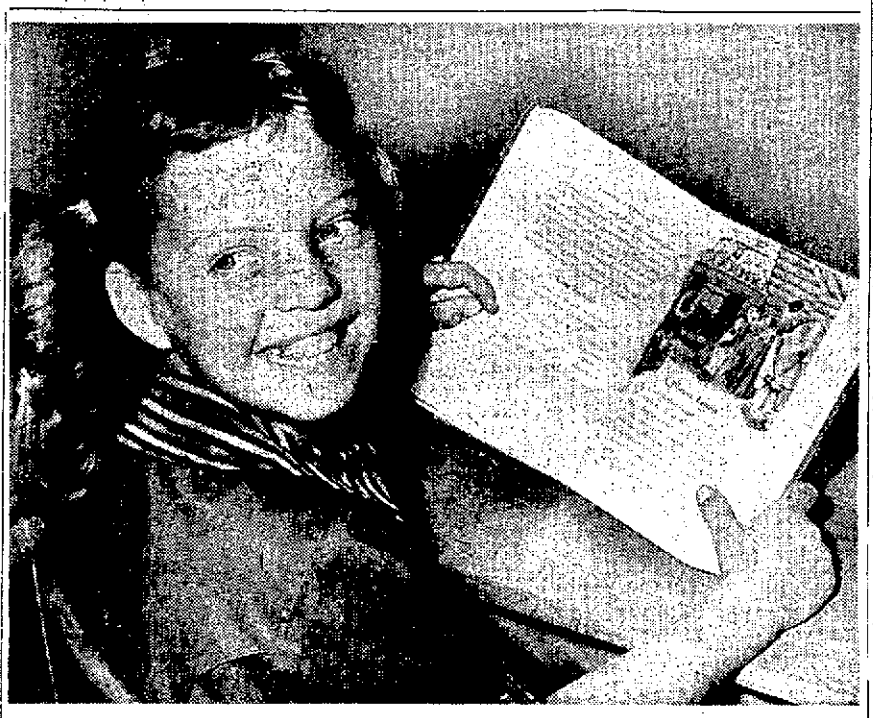

"Until now there has been a somewhat jumbled development with a fine new office being located next to a home or a store. So we decided to develop a virtual miracle mile of offices and found an immediate response."

Although details of the leases cannot be announced at this time it is known that a major insurance company and some oil firms are among those who already have signed.

* * * *

WORK ALREADY is under way. The Bonner Co. has removed all traces of the old Virginia Market and tractors now are clearing away the black-top of the old parking areas. The only structure of the former tenants which will remain is the Richfield Service

I'LL READ YOU A STORY

Adults may peek over the shoulders of Long Beach Public School students during regular classroom hours Tuesday through Friday, American Education Week. Carol Ellis, 5th grade pupil at Buffum Elementary School, presents a fetching kibitzer's preview of her reading lesson. Adults may observe 9 a.m. to 3:10 p.m. in elementary schools and 8:30 a.m. to 3:10 p.m. in junior and senior high schools. Schools will be closed Monday for Veterans Day.

Swindler Gang in Area, So Check What You Buy

By PAUL WALLACE

Word that the most notorious gang of con artists in the nation is congregating in the area has reached Long Beach.

The Better Business Bureau was tipped to the coming reunion in Hollywood of the Williamson Gang by a letter from New York signed by John Williamson, who described himself as a disgruntled former member of the clan.

The Williamsons were subject to a feature story in The Independent, Press-Telegram's Sunday supplement, Parade Magazine, two years ago.

The article described them as a family-gang of swindlers, active for many years in the U.S. and numbering "at least a couple of hundred, at most a couple of thousand."

* * * *

ALTHOUGH KNOWN to many police forces, the gang usually operates very close to the law and is hard to prosecute.

In cases where the Williamson's swindles have been detected in time for arrests to be made, penalties have been very light with false advertising and peddling without a license often the only charges applicable.

Although the group has operated hundreds of variations of bunco and con games, peddling "bargain" woolens, Irish lace, furs, and Oriental rugs door-to-door has been a specialty.

* * * *

ALMOST AS popular with the flim-flam artists have been phony service rackets—lightning rod installations, house painting and roof "oiling" and waterproofing.

Always, the "imported Scottish woolens" turn out to be cheap rayon, the lightning rods fakes and the house "paint" crankcase oil colored with pigments.

And the suckers, usually average middle-class people, often are so embarrased at being bilked they don't report it.

The gang is virtually one family although its members are not all named Williamson. Some of the bigger branches go under the names of McMillan, Stewart, Johnston, Keith, McGavin, McDonald and Carroll.

* * * *

GANG MEMBERS seldom marry outside the clan. Youngsters reportedly are taught the tricks of the trade from the cradle.

The Williamsons normally winter in Texas or Florida, then spread northward in the spring, moving from town to town during the warm months.

A family head is believed to direct operations. The Williamsons love flashy cars and expensive funerals. They live in big house trailers or motels when on the road.

The letter received by local Better Business Bureau manager Robert Gailey warned area residents to be particularly watchful of the gang's con games. It said the gang was working the roof oil-spraying dodge here while awaiting the pending reunion.

GOOD OL' DAYS RETURN

Merchants Dust Off Derbies for Downtown Sales Festival

Planned as the biggest promotional event of the year, "Good Ol' Days" this week is expected to attract record crowds to the downtown area of Long Beach.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday the downtown section will take on an atmosphere of the old days through gay banners and decorations on the streets and in stores. Clerks, bus operators and policemen will join in the festive spirit by dressing in the fashions of the "Roaring 20's" or earlier. Many plan to wear attire from the "Gay 90's" and derby hats will predominate for the males.

Blending the old with the new will be a huge auto show on 9½ blocks of the downtown area. All 1958 models will be on display and mixed with them will be many of the old time cars as well as custom-made cars shown by various youth car clubs.

There will be street dancing and other entertainment, both daytime and night.

ALL STORES are offering spectacular sales during the three-day event.

A window display contest for the stores is set for Wednesday night. Plaques will be awarded for the best displays on the old days theme.

A new feature is the snapshot contest in which the public is invited to participate. There is no entry fee but all entries must be accompanied by an application blank which can be obtained at Walker's, Penney's, Ward-Tallant, Winstead's or Buffums's.

First prize in each category will be $50; second prizes portable radios with four third prizes of $10 gift certificates redeemable at either Walker's or the J. C. Penney downtown store.

ANOTHER FEATURE will be a contest to find the best shopper. Chester Conklin will select some shopper each day to be given $50 to spend. The one who obtains the best bargains for the $50 will receive an additional $50 prize.

Vito Romans, general manager of Downtown Long Beach Associates, sponsors of the event, said all 843 downtown retail stores are participating.

A special "Good Ol' Days" section will appear in the Press-Telegram Wednesday afternoon and the Independent, Thursday morning. Thursday afternoon and Friday morning there will be a special automobile section giving details of the new cars.

THE LUDICROUS PICTURE offered by an approachless bridge caught the fancy of both legislators and reporters when the Assembly judiciary committee heard about some of Long Beach's troubles at a hearing in L. A. last week.

Thereafter outside papers and the wire services carried lively items about the Herbert Davies' bridge across the Marine Stadium—onto which you can't drive a car—and ignored other interesting and important features of the Assembly hearing.

The Davies bridge, as you may know, is approachless because of legal technicalities involving the land needed for the right-of-way on both sides of the structure. And there's no prospect for clearing up all these problems in the near future. The so-called "package deal" with the Pacific Electric railway may provide land for the south approach, but the north right-of-way isn't in that arrangement.

So it will be some time yet before traffic will be rolling over this handsome structure, which would link E. Second St. with Highway 101 and western Orange County.

EMBARRASSED city officials find some little satisfaction in one angle of the situation. They say that the bridge, if built today, would probably cost $400,000 more than the $1,170,000 put into it two years ago.

That's because of rising construtcion costs—15 per cent a years — and because, at the particular time of the bidding on the bridge, a highly competitive situation existed and the successful bid was $200,000 under the estimate.

So the city is getting 15 per cent a year on its investment. When does that 15 per cent accrual stop—when the approaches are built?

If so, the longer we wait, the more money we make. Ridiculous, but it's a way of looking at it.

MEANWHILE, the approachless bridge isn't going completely without use.

Some helicopter pilots have been using it for practice landings. It serves very nicely as a simulated ship's deck.

LONG BEACH, by the way, has had a lot of bridge trouble.

The Davies bridge isn't the first approachless span here. The Belhart Bridge, a county project, stood for a year or more across the Flood Control with no access.

The county built the bridge, anticipating no trouble in acquiring the approach right-of-way. But trouble did develop with some land owners, and it wasn't settled when the bridge was finished.

There was a lot of fuss about that a shake-up in county government resulted. Poking fun at the county for building a bridge you couldn't get to was a favorite pastime around here a few years ago.

OTHER BRIDGES have made trouble here.

In recent years, the Seventh St. and Broadway bridges were torn out because they were regarded as hazards in time of flood in the L. A. River Flood Control. Both bridges were affected by subsidence before they were demolished.

The Pontoon Bridge in the Harbor District is in the center of the subsidence bowl and has had a lot of difficulty. In 1952 it had to be raised so it would operate at high tide. Now it is again inoperable at high tide and must soon be relocated on a new and higher substructure.

Even the impressive Commodore Heim bridge, connecting the mainland with Terminal Island, has its difficulties. Because of subsidence, they're going to replumb the main towers, shorten the lift span and install expansion points to relieve pressure caused by subsidence.

Those are a few examples of local bridge trouble. There are others which indicate that the business of getting traffic across waterways in these parts has been almost too big for us.

'Wings' Show Will Include Air Lovelies

An international bevy of pretty airline hostesses and a simulated sea rescue at Long Beach Municipal Airport are points of interest in the 19th annual "Wings Over the Nation" program to be sponsored here next Saturday and Sunday by the Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Staged to promote the airport and focus world attention on Long Beach as a vacationland, the event opens Saturday noon with the airport arrival of 16 to 20 hostesses. After being interviewed by press and radio there, they will attend the Mayor's Welcoming Luncheon at 1:30 p.m. in the Wilton Hotel Pageant Room.

The lovelies will tour city and harbor and then shine at the "Wings" Ball in the Wilton at 9 p.m.

* * * *

HOSTESSES will be on hand Sunday morning and afternoon in connection with the featured static exhibits and air-ground transportation show at the airport.

The March Air Force Base Band's 38 pieces will open Sunday activities with an 11 a.m. concert, to be followed at 1:30 p.m. by James E. Son's Junior Concert Band and Pom Pom girls; 2 p.m., demonstration and show by Long Beach Model T Club; 3 p.m., Air-Sea Rescue demonstration, and 3:30 p.m., Marvin Marker's Junior Concert Band.

Long Beach's one-year-old 303rd Air Reserve Rescue squad will stage the simulated sea rescue using an SA16 Albatross.

Pilot Capt. Robert Pard, copilot 1st Lt. Frank C. Hoyt, both of Long Beach, and engineer S. Sgt. William Stevenson, Westminster, will take off with jet assist, jettison their jet assist bottles at sea, then return to smoke flares sent up from the airport. The demonstration will be narrated by Lt. David Holliday, Santa Monica.

* * * *

OTHER ACTIVITIES for the "Wings" day will include movie travelogues in the airport administration building, passenger ride service at nominal charge by Avalon Air Transport and free bus rides around the inside perimeter of the airport.

Static exhibits there will include: Navy jet, helicopter, S2F and a Navy display from Los Alamitos Naval Air Station; Nike guided missile, model aircraft carrier, Car Club autos, several other helicopters, B50, model naval aircraft, DC8 display, 1958 auto display, S3H jet fighter and antique auto display.

"Wings" chairman is John Overmyer; coordinator, Dr. Vern Barney, assisted by subchairmen Robert Aughton, Court Prowell Jr., Jack Reynolds, Myron Godwin, Keith Fulmer, Kelly Williams and Don Granger.

SWINGING FOR WINGS

Lee Ann McIntosh, Miss Aviation, tees off at Municipal Airport, where the improvement program includes plans for a golf links. Dean Hollingsworth Tells Progress of 25-Year L. B. Aviation Education

Dean J. E. Hollingsworth of the Business and Technology Division, Long Beach City College, gave a talk-tour over 25 years of local aviation education Saturday night at the division's Aircraft and Engine Club banquet in the Municipal Airport's new Satellite Room.

Hollingsworth detailed the early struggle of teaching aviation classes. Beginning with less than 30 students in depressed 1932, the program encompassed 50,000 trained for the aircraft industry during World War II.

* * * *

THREE EARLY aviation instructors were special banquet guests—Randall Scott, Harvey Martin and Glenn Arbogast. Scott taught the first class in a hanger leased from Mrs. Gladys McDonnell, then speed queen of the airways.

Early hazards included the 2,500-foot dirt runway itself and erratic rabbits racing across it.

Some 200 instructors taught classes around the clock, seven days a week, halting only for Sunday staff breakfasts and church.

* * * *

DEAN HOLLINGSWORTH, who fathered the program as principal of the then Long Beach Trade Extension High School, credited aid and encouragement of the lay advisory committee as the backbone of the BTD program.

"Need for survival" touched off the national defense training in July 1940, the dean recalled. He credited Kenneth Oberholtzer, then school district superintendent, for envisioning the wide scope of training.

Of the early days staff, four are now on the City College staff: Errol Roquet, Leo Gable, John Sprinkel and Herschel Thomas. Present aircraft and engine teachers are Jay Ackerman and Arturo Figueroa.

Array of Offices to Replace Market

Station on the corner and it is to be rebuilt to blend with the rest of Cerritos Square.

For several years the old market area has been a problem, with nearby residents petitioning the city about the declining operations there damaging property values.

Started years ago by a group including Ed (Strangler) Lewis, ex-champion wrestler, the market never fared too well and from the start was beset with difficulties. It was on a county island and did not have city sewer services. Now it is in the city.

Developers of Cerritos Square have gone all out to assure beauty in the development which should enhance other properties.

To the rear of the big area there will be jacaranda trees and shrubbery bordering the parking section.

Fronts of the buildings which will face Long Beach Blvd. and San Antonio Dr., will be masonry with glass and aluminum panels and stainless steel trim.

* * * *

COMMERCIALISM WILL BE at a minimum. The farthest building to the north will be a multi-story medical-dental building and pharmacy.

While many of the structures will have their own cafeterias to provide luncheon service to employes, Bonner said it was decided to provide one large, high-type restaurant. This will be on the San Antonio Dr. side. The only other commercial structure will be the service station.

There will be some office space provided for individuals and small professional or industrial firms, Bonner explained.

Refrigerated air conditioning, fluorescent lighting, acoustical ceilings, column-free office areas, under-floor electrical and telephone outlets will be included.

Bonner said the plans call for parking space for 3½ cars for every 1,000 feet of office space. He estimated there would be at least 2,000 clerical and professional people in the offices when the project is completed.

Hard of Hearing?

Do you know that a great many people who have a hearing loss also have sinus trouble, catarrh or both? Many of these cases could have part or even all of their hearing loss restored; many who now have sinus trouble and no hearing loss may develop a hearing loss later on in life.

Many of our patients now listen to TV and radio at volume that the family enjoys.

Thanks to the new system now being used in all of the Basic Diagnostic Offices throughout California, many who have tried this proven method are overjoyed. Just like magic in many cases, improvement is shown after the first treatment.

If you have a hearing loss, no matter how slight or how bad, it may be due to sinus trouble or catarrh. Why not find out?

Don't delay, we will give you the first treatment and our complete sinus and catarrh examination for the small sum of only $3.00.

We are one of the busiest offices in Southern California, so if we cannot help you be assured that we will not take your case.

The total charge is only $3.00 for the first treatment and the examination, and if you see no improvement from the first treatment we do not want you back. This offer will be withdrawn in ten days.

Yugos Unearth Gothic Frescoes

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (ILP) —Yugoslav archaeologists have discovered Gothic frescoes on the tiny island of Solta, off the central Dalmatian coast.

Experts says the Frescoes are the first Gothic ones to be found in Dalmatia. Found in the Church of St. Mihovil and buried under thick layers of chalk, the discovery reportedly dates from the 14th Century. So far only the figure of St. Mihovil has been identified.

SPECIAL BUSES TO RUN

Douglas Aircraft Co. will be host to United Neighbors Community Chest workers in their second campaign report meeting Tuesday noon.

Campaigners will be treated to a typical Douglas "Lunch Pail Follies" program after they have punched in at the plant with special time clocks and been served a "worker's lunch box."

Kenneth G. Farrar, Douglas general manager will speak.

Nine "million dollar" youngsters representing Chest youth agencies will be introduced.

James C. Craig Jr., Chest campaign chairman announced parking space for the visitors will be available at the plant and special bus service will be provided.

The Navy Really Means Business

THE NAVY THIS WEEK stressed anew the seriousness with which it views the Long Beach subsidence problem.

Naval officials in Washington confirmed that the Navy has requested the Justice Department to institute legal action. While full details are not known, the action basically would seek to fix legal responsibility for damages from land sinkage in the Wilmington oil field.

This is a proper and healthful action.

IT IS AN URGENT ONE. Damage from subsidence has reached the critical stage, and the Navy is face to face with the physical problem of keeping the shipyard operative. If the undeveloped portion of the Wilmington field were exploited without effective anti-subsidence measures, the dikes around the shipyard's facilities would have to be so high that the yard could not be operated efficiently. The Navy and Congress want assurance in the form of an adequate state law that this situation will not arise. Long Beach wants, and the state should want, to provide that assurance because of the tremendous value of the shipyard to the city and state in terms of both dollars and defense.

Experts have stated repeatedly that the land is sinking because of reduction of underground pressures owing to the extraction of oil. The diagnosis of an expert has no legal force, however. Court action is required. Meanwhile, the Navy, which does not produce a drop of oil here, is in the position of the innocent bystander who suffers the consequences of the acts of others.

IRONICALLY, IF THE EXPERTS are to be believed, there is a remedy that will halt the damage and still permit the extraction of oil from the field. A unitized repressuring of the field to restore original pressures would remove the cause of sinking, the experts say, and increase the efficiency of oil recovery.

As long as responsibility for damage is not fixed, the oil producers—which include the city and state—can be expected to pump the shipyard and the city lower and lower. They have done precisely that for 20 years without exerting serious effort to halt sinkage. This is morally, ethically, and legally wrong.

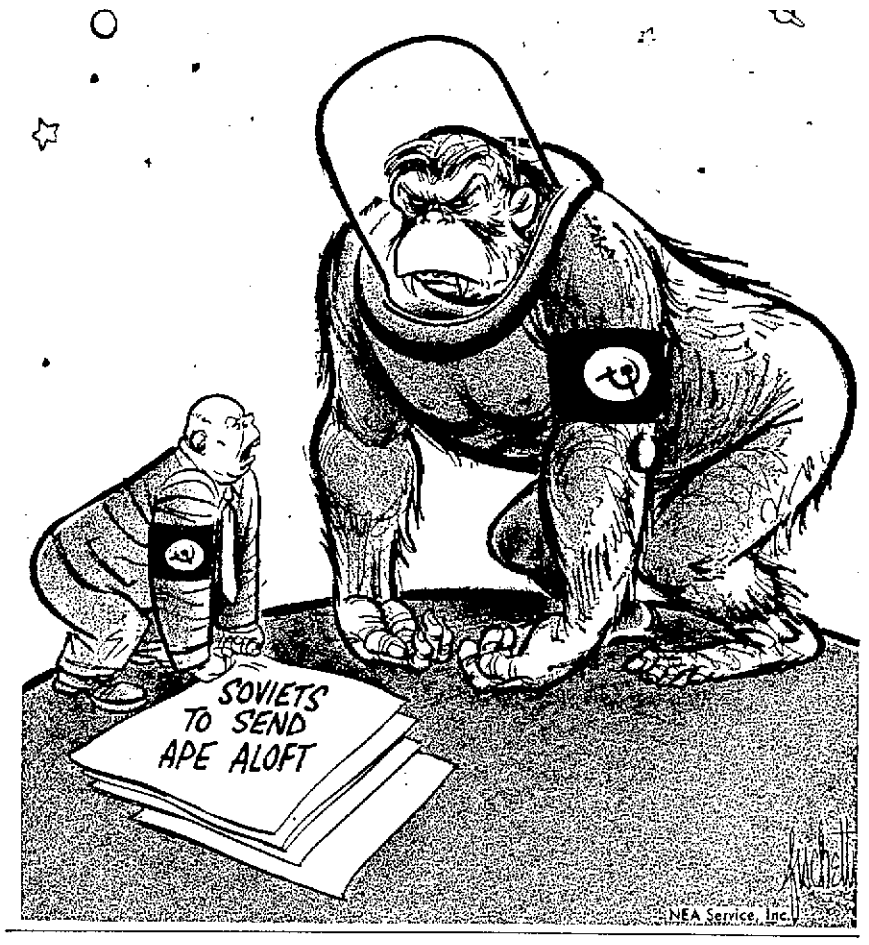

The Navy and Congress now want assurances that oil production is not going to sink a vital defense installation below the waves.

The suit could be of immense value in giving pause to those who want to take oil but remain heedless of the damage their action entails.

The Navy's intention to seek the suit should also add strength to the city's efforts to obtain an adequate compulsory law in the next legislative session. It adds weight to the city's contention that this is a question of utmost urgency.

While lawsuits of this kind are never pleasant, the people of Long Beach should welcome the Navy's action. It will help speed a solution to the city's most vexing and dangerous problem.

President's Speech: Challenge Accepted and Warning Given

WASHINGTON — Words of reassurance and action—this is what the American people expected of President Eisenhower, and they were given both in his nation-wide address Thursday night.

* * * *

A HIGH SENSE of urgency was reflected by the President, but he counseled against any idea "that we should mount our charger and try to ride off in all directions at once."

The inevitable steps, the logical steps in the orderly functioning of a great government in meeting an unprecedented crisis, have been outlined by the President. America, he declared, is behind in some things in military weapons but ahead in others. America is safe in that it has a massive power of resistance to attack, and this is a deterrent against the success of any sudden action by an enemy. The key paragraph in the President's address was this:

"It is my conviction, supported by trusted scientific and military advisers, that, although the Soviets are quite likely ahead in some missile and special areas, and are obviously ahead of us in satellite development, as of today the over-all military strength of the free world is distinctly greater than that of the Communist countries. We must see to it that whatever advantages they have are temporary only."

* * * *

THUS IS the challenge accepted and a warning given. The President's outline of the power of the United States in a military sense was dramatic. Few people realize that America has overseas bases from which intermediate-range missiles can be fired instantly and that this is more important as a measure of defense than even an intercontinental missile may be when it is perfected.

The power of our strategic air defense was emphasized, and the Chief Executive spoke particularly of the atomic submarines and the huge naval carriers "with the most powerful nuclear weapons and bombers of great range to deliver them."

There was no doubt, when the President finished his address, that he had given the first authoritative summary of the entire military power of the United States in the world today. Guided missiles are in production. Intermediate-range missiles have been tested successfully over a range of 3,500 miles. While an intercontinental missile is required, the President pointed out, nevertheless, that because of our bases overseas, "an intermediate-range missile is for some purposes as good as an intercontinental missile."

Mr. Eisenhower didn't question whether Russia could bring back a missile from outer space but preferred to say it this way: "One difficult obstacle on the way to producing a useful long-range weapon is that of bringing back a missile from outer space without its burning up like a meteor, because of friction with the earth's atmosphere."

EISENHOWER
A Dramatic Summary

There's the real point of all the talk about the "Sputnik" as a military weapon. Much can be learned from these spectacular experiments, but the problem of guiding a missile from outer space to a specific target has already been solved by the United States.

The most important thing about the President's address was its positiveness, its call for an abandonment of partisanship in this matter and the stirring appeal he made for peace.

"What the world needs today," he said, "even more than a giant leap into outer space is a giant step towards peace."

* * * *

THIS IS the real challenge. For the President notes that "Soviet expansionist aims have not changed."

The American view is that salvation for the world must come in the inevitable recognition by the Soviet people that they are being deprived of food to pay for weapons of war and that removal of the ruthless rulers in Moscow is absolutely essential to the peace of all peoples.

Red Science Papers Pile Up Here Unread

WASHINGTON—It may be hard to believe, but the administration has been so complacent about Soviet scientific progress that it hasn't bothered to translate the Russian technological documents that enter this country, except for a few hit-and-miss translations.

Truckloads of scientific papers and reports, containing clues to Russia's brainwork, are piled up in the Library of Congress, unsorted and untranslated. Our technologists are convinced they could learn more Soviet secrets by reading these papers than all the reports of the costly Central Intelligence Agency.

IT WOULD COST an estimated $1.5 million to translate and catalogue 80 per cent of the most important reports—a mere fraction of the CIA budget. Yet these papers are known to contain vital information on such Soviet programs as missile and satellite research.

The administration has had the smug attitude that our scientists are so superior we must protect our technological secrets. We needn't bother to learn Russian secrets.

American scientific delegations that visit behind the Iron Curtain are given stern warnings not to disclose technical information of a security nature. Government agents also give management a careful briefing on what not to say before Communist delegations are escorted through American factories.

Yet the administration has all but ignored Russian technical information reaching this county. If this information were properly catalogued by subject matter, it would not only help our scientists in their research but would enable them to evaluate the level of Soviet scientific development.

OUR TECHNOLOGISTS have found that Russian scientists discuss their findings with amazing frankness in their technical papers. Russia publishes about 25,000 technical journals, of which less than 1,000 are considered important. Of these, 80 journals contain most of Russia's research.

Yet the Library of Congress translates only occasional passages from these key journals. Private universities also do some translating. But the mass of Russian technical intelligence is never read by American experts.

In the light of Rusia's missile-satellite achievements, this failure to study Soviet scientific documents may go down as the greatest scandal of the Eisenhower administration.

NOTE: The CIA secretly translates Russian military documents, including some containing technical data. But the CIA doesn't have the scientists to evaluate this information. In the technological age, scientific secrets are now considered more important than military secrets.

L. B. Fared Well in Judiciary Committee's Tideland Hearing

LONG BEACH fared well in last midweek's legislative judiciary committee hearing in Los Angeles.

Its representatives effectively presented a mass of information and had little trouble in the question periods.

There was no hint, as the hearing ended, that any new anti-Long Beach legislation was being cooked up. Assemblyman Bruce Allen, the committee chairman and once regarded as no friend of this city, praised the Long Beach witnesses and general cooperation provided the committee by the municipality.

EPLEY

Chairman Allen's attitude toward the city's witnesses was friendly throughout, as was that of other legislators present. The local people could not have asked for better treatment.

There is no way of knowing, of course, whether the hearing may prove to be preliminary to some legislative plan that could be of serious importance to the city. Presumably, the lawmakers were on the lookout for evidences of any soft spots that might need correcting in the 1956 tidelands settlement law under which city and state are now operating as semi-partners in the tidelands oil field here. There was no sign that they felt they had discovered any serious imperfections in the arrangement.

WHILE IT WAS SHOWN that there are occasional situations in which city and state officials—officials of the land commission and the Attorney General's office—are not in full agreement, the state men said that conferences had proved effective in ironing out the difficulties. Some problems may have to be taken to court, but these involve delicate questions where a firm legal adjudication is in order.

Prior to the hearing, and for benefit of the press, the public and other legislators, Assemblyman Allen had prepared an exhaustive planatory rundown on all the major items on the agenda—subsidence, bridges, Auditorium Annex, YMCA, and so on. This proved to be generally objective and highly valuable background material.

Purpose of the hearing was principally to explore the status of various legal issues concerning the tidelands here, in which, according to the Mallon decision and subsequent legislation, the state has a key interest as trustor and as beneficiary from the tidelands revenues. Many of the matters considered are already in court for adjudication. As to some others, such as the Marina land "package deal," it was not apparent that there was much or anything the legislative committee might be able to do about them. But the hearing was effective in bringing all of these complicated legal problems into focus.

ALLEN HAD PROVIDED the city with an advance list of agenda items, thus making possible preparation of extensive informative material on each. This was most helpful. It is fortunate, however, that such situations do not frequently arise, for city officials and their staffs found it necessary to spend a great deal of time on this effort in the last two weeks.

One thing is a little difficult to understand. Why wasn't this hearing conducted in Long Beach? Most of the witnesses came from here, and all of the subject matter was primarily of interest to the people here. It is likely that the people in the Belmont Park area, for example, would have welcomed the opportunity to attend and hear the discussion of the Marina "package deal" if the hearing had been held in Long Beach. It is not apparent what purpose is served by holding Long Beach hearings in Los Angeles.

BUT REGARDLESS of the location, this particular hearing proved to be generally satisfactory from the Long Beach viewpoint. Next in line is the subsidence hearing set, also for Los Angeles, by the Assembly Oil Committee for early December.

No Bitterness, Just Memories

TO THE EDITOR:

It had been raining the week before and we had prayed that on April 5, Easter Sunday, it would be a most beautiful day so that our last sights of Long Beach on that sad day would truly be lovely. And so it was that day in 1942, clear and sunny when we left with tens and tens of other Japanese Americans for Santa Anita Assembly Center. War had come and we were to be among the victims of its evils, even though our hearts and souls were American. Since that time we had departed for Jerome, Ark., Chicago, Ill., and now for the past 13 years we have been "at home" in the Buckeye State of Ohio, City of Dayton, with our five youngsters (16 months to almost 14 years of age).

* * * *

WE HAVE no bitterness, but only fond memories of Long Beach, and our many friends there. We long for a visit with them, and for the sight of the Pacific and sound of the waves dashing on the surf. However, some day we will be back, but for now we wanted our friends to know we think of them often and do hope they think of us, too.

We have always remembered and tried to live up to the words which were chiseled over the portals of the old Poly High—"Enter to learn, go forth to serve." We hope the new administration building has that same advice engraved over its doors. We're W'31 and W'36 graduates.

Sincerely,

Sees Political 'Soul Sacrifice'

TO THE EDITOR:

In California politics, a man has just sacrificed his soul on the altar of political expediency; his worldly rewards will be great; of dignity he has not one shred left.

He treateth people as willing tools of the deed, but come the next day of decision they shall cast a mark for their dignity, intelligence and political independence.

Calls Tipping Reprehensible

TO THE EDITOR:

In a section of your paper devoted to travel we frequently see articles giving advice on tipping—the amount, etc. Time was when some employes were not paid a fixed salary, hence were in a manner dependent upon the charity of the public for their pay. But at the present level of wages and with the opportunities for jobs available, tipping is one of the most reprehensible practices in our society.

* * * *

WHY SHOULD the public subsidize the help in hotels, restaurants and other places? Why don't the owners come right out and say that they are too small or penurious to pay their help a decent, living wage?

Instead of the practice being on the wane, as it should be, some employes in the better brackets of pay—barbers, bartenders, for example—no longer consider it an insult to be offered a tip. Again, why tip any salaried help?

Wants Year 'Round Daylight Savings

TO THE EDITOR:

A short time ago the Chamber of Commerce was considering sponsoring changes in our laws so we would have daylight savings time until the last Sunday in October.

I urge that the chamber consider this: If daylight savings is good during the summer (and it is), how much more we need it during the winter. Maine and 18 counties in Kentucky have voted to keep daylight savings the year around. We should do the same.

Democratic Trend Holding Up Well

WASHINGTON—Last Tuesday's elections show the Democratic trend holding up well. Republicans privately admitted they lost valuable ground without compensatory gains.

The sampling of voter opinion was too limited for sweeping generalizations, but two Democrats were greatly helped.

Gov. Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey moved well forward in the list of Democratic presidential hopefuls for the most practical of all reasons: he can get a lot of votes from all kinds of people and nobody is mad at him.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York made a striking comeback from his defeat for the Senate last year. He is restored to the ranks of potential candidates for governor, senator and the national ticket.

DEMOCRATS ALSO RELAXED visibly when the Meyner-Wagner returns indicated that the Eisenhower-Nixon popularity was not transferable. Wagner swept Harlem. Meyner handsomely carried the two counties containing the bulk of the New Jersey Negro population.

In both instances Republicans had tried hard to capitalize on Little Rock. They flooded the New Jersey wards with literature demanding that Negroes "repay Ike" by voting for Meyner's opponent, Malcolm S. Forbes.

Undoubtedly one reason the appeal failed is that Meyner has appointed qualified Negroes to jobs such as their race had not before held in the state. Still, the evidence is that Negroes outside the South are not being swept by any anti-Democratic emotions.

Non-southern Democrats now can feel they will not automatically be penalized by the Faubuses of the party. This means that their present edge in the congressional elections next year will not be blunted by events outside of their control. It is good news also for their candidates for governor.

THE EISENHOWER administration gambled its prestige Tuesday and lost. Yet for reasons of party morale, it could not have stood aloof; had the President refused to speak up he would be assailed for running out on his party.

The big parade of political experts and power-seekers will now begin to converge upon the New Jersey statehouse and beautiful Morven, the historic mansion furnished the state's governors.

The governor and his rather recent bride, a cousin of Adlai Stevenson, start with a clean slate. Democrats generally like them; nobody is mad at them. Meyner has managed to walk down the middle of the road and yet maintain his party status intact.

One embittered Republican, pointing out that the Meyner billboards this fall did not say Democrat, put it this way: "All that fellow has to do is to go on not making mistakes."

There is more to Meyner than that; it is not an easy feat to win twice for governor in a state normally tied to the other party and to achieve a 200,000 plurality one year after a president of the other party carried the state by 750,000. He is perhaps lucky that the Democrats are currently short of men of vast experience with towering international stature.

SO GLAD IT HAPPENED

The happiest of happenings . . . That ever happened, dear . . . Was meeting you and seeing you . . . So charming and sincere . . . Perhaps it merely happened, as . . . The world may well agree . . . But I would like to think that God . . . Intended it to be . . . Because I felt, my darling, when . . . I first set eyes on you . . . You were my one, my only one . . . No other one would do . . . It happened that I met you—yes . . . And life became a song . . . And yet somehow it seemed that I Had known you all along . . . But now it really matters not . . . By chance or by design . . . I give my thanks to God and you . . . That you are truly mine.

New High in Puccini's Tosca Seen

By RACHEL MORTON

It would seem that the San Francisco Opera performances get progressively better as the season advances. Because at the Shrine Auditorium Friday night the opera Tosca by Puccini reached an all time high.

This almost melodrama, with a woman's honor at stake, would be almost tawdry were it not for the superb music and the very fine cast of singers which we heard. Puccini has a dramatic sense that few composers know—he gets to the point at once, the curtains are quickly opened and quickly closed. His orchestral effects are dagger sharp, but when there is need of repose—as in the early morning scene of the third act—how misty are the church bells, how far away the little shepherd's song.

Under the sure and inspired direction of conductor Erich Leinsdorf the orchestra abetted the singers in a great performance.

* * * *

DOROTHY KIRSTEN improves every time I hear her. Her voice has gained in power and range. The golden texture of her high voice is something rare to hear, and there is rich vibrance in the tone. Besides being a very handsome woman, she is an actress of arresting personality with a real flair for the dramatic. Her Tosca really lived and loved and heroically died. The ovation she received was richly deserved.

In Guiseppe Taddei we had the most diabolical Scarpia it has ever been my misfortune (or good fortune) to meet. Of course, Scarpia is meant to be a villain but this Scarpia worked overtime. The result, combined with a gorgeous baritone voice, was the greatest portrayal of the part I have ever heard (And I have heard Antonio Scotti many times).

Gianni Raimondi as Cavaradossi shared honors with the others. In the third act he displayed a beautiful tenor voice and his acting had more conviction. But he has not the consuming fire of dramatic intensity that made outstanding the portrayals of his partners.

The huge audience evinced its pleasure in long and loud applause.

'Desk Set' Comedy Isn't Really Funny

"Desk Set," a comedy by William Marchant, opened this weekend at the Community Playhouse. The play when produced on Broadway featured Shirley Booth. The local production doesn't, and that makes all the difference.

"Desk Set" is not an especially interesting or funny play in its own right. It would take a Shirley Booth to cover its inadequacies. Where it ought to furnish sparkle it furnishes only talk, and when it ought to flame out it only smokes a little. Even when Emmerac, the electronic brain, flashes in six colors, it is not a very lively play.

The local players do a good job with the material they have to work with. A couple of secondary roles, one really a bit part, bring forth the best performances of the evening.

* * * *

ADELE MOCERINO is excellent as Ruthie Saylor, the junior researcher in the reference department, and Gerald Foster is fine as Kenny, the office boy. Both are good for some genuine laughs, and Miss Mocerino is the only person who truly comes alive on the stage.

Mary Lou Grubb plays Bunny Watson, the star of the show and chief of the reference department. She is a lovely girl with a fine voice and a poise born, one suspects, of some experience on the stage. But she never quite rings true; throughout the show she is acting—and it shows. Consequently Bunny Watson remains a character in a play, a nice, one, but not a person.

Bob Hanrahan conceals his acting art very well, but Richard Sumner, the efficiency expert he is portraying, isn't very interesting when played straight. A little of the ham might improve him.

* * * *

THE REST OF THE CAST is adequate or better. Jan Schwartz and Kay Salveson play two reference librarians, Bud Lembke is Bunny Watson's indecisive boy friend, and Lee Kissler is the office vamp. Mattie Russell Allen as the lady in the blue suit earns laughs without speaking a single word. Gus Mocerino, Marilyn Peterson, and Bob Blackman complete the cast.

The sets, designed by Director Larry Johns, are just right for the play, and Emmerac is a wonder to behold. All in all, the Community Players have done a creditable job in every department. Still, one wishes all that energy and talent might have been better utilized.

Performances will continue on weekends into December.

SOUCHAK BLOWS TO 77; LITTLER TWO STROKES BACK

Andreason's 134 Leads Open

By JERRY WYNN

Dale Andreason, former Long Beach pro who once was a Press-Telegram carrier boy, fired a five-under par 66 Saturday for a 36-hole total of 134 and a one-stroke lead going into today's final round of the $11,500 Long Beach Open at Lakewood.

While the first round co-leaders Mike Souchak and Gene Littler couldn't hold the pace—Souchak blowing to a 77 and Littler keeping in contention with a 70—Andreason expertly toured his old home course without a bogey and little attention from an enthusiastic gallery of 3,500.

The big blonde 40-year-old Poly High and Long Beach City College graduate, whose ambition was always to be a links hero in his home town but who left here two years ago for a lucrative club position near Pittsburgh, today stands on the threshold of capturing his first major tournament.

However, his task won't be simple for a large and talented band of challengers is also in striking distance of the $1,200 first place jackpot.

Tied for second at 135 are two "hungry" PGA freshmen, little Joe Conrad of San Antonio and lanky Bill Parker of Tulsa. Two strokes back are the poised and powerful trio of Littler, Billy Casper and Eric Monti plus promising Howie Johnson of Akron, O. At 137 come Jay Hebert and Bill Johnston, followed by Al Besselink and Porky Oliver at 138.

It was Parker, an unknown 23-year-old with only $180 earnings on the tour, who tarnished the glitter of Andreason's big day by snatching away the $500 reward for low score.

Andreason had completed his round early in the day and remained at the course to see whether the 66 would hold up. It did until Parker arrived at the 18th green in the next-to-last threesome needing a 15-foot birdie putt for a 65. To a whoop and a fling of his cap, he made the $500 tap.

The field will be pared to the low 66 pros and 11 amateurs for today's payoff round which begins at 9:05. All of the major touring pros made the cutoff figure of 146 but Souchak, Jim Ferrier and Don Whitt informed PGA Tournament Coordinator Harvey Raynor that they will not show up. No reasons were given.

Souchak, who had a 66 opening round, was Saturday's major disappointment with his hard-to-believe 77. He went three over par on the first five holes and never rallied. On the third hole, he called a penalty stroke on himself because his ball moved while he addressed an iron shot.

Another famed pro to experience misery on Lakewood's tough string of starting holes was Tommy Bolt, who double-bogied the first and fifth holes to limp around in 78 strokes.

Most of the other better-known players zeroed in close to par with 33 bettering the 71 standard.

Following Parker and Andreason on the sub-par roster was Jackson Bradley, who like Andreason was a former assistant pro at Lakewood, with a 67 and Conrad, Casper, Monti, Hebert, Besselink, Oliver and Howie Johnson among several 68s.

Andreason had nines of 32-34, Going out, he birdied the third hole on a chip and eight-foot putt; the eighth on a 9-iron that left but a two-foot putt, and the ninth on a 6-iron and six-footer. Coming in, he birdied the 13th and 15th on putts of 10 and 4 feet after wedge shots to the green.

He was in danger on the 18th when his drive veered off the fairway behind a tree, but he hit a nifty 3-wood with a big slice that carried to the front of the green and he got down in par five.

In addition to the pressure putt on the 18th, Parker's round was highlighted by a fabulous front nine of 31 which included five birdies and a sixth that was denied by a penalty stroke.

After bogeying the first hole, he birdied the next four on a 40-foot chip shot and putts of 4, 10, and 3 feet. He hit into the lake on the sixth for the penalty stroke but still saved his par by sinking a 10-foot putt, and then birdied the seventh with a wedge that missed holing out by a foot.

Pars followed until he canned another 10-foot birdie putt on the 16th. He saved par with a six-footer on the 17th and on the 18th had to hit a long third shot to set up his birdie putt after almost shanking a second wood.

Parker putted only 10 times on the front nine and 25 in all.

"I knew the money was riding on that last putt," he ad-

51,923 See Indians Rout Trojans, 35-7

SC Loss Worst to Tribe

By DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES COLISEUM—Stanford's savagely-attacking Indians ripped the Trojan defense to shreds here Saturday to register a 35-7 victory over Southern California and keep alive their Rose Bowl hopes which were revived with the news that Oregon's Webfoots had been upset by Washington.

A crowd of 51,923 fans, largest of the local college season, saw the Indians roll up the highest point total a Stanford team has ever recorded against SC in registering their most decisive win over the Trojans in the long and colorful 36-game series between the two schools. Previous Stanford high was a 34-13 triumph in 1949.

After Stanford broke the scoring ice just 13 seconds before the first period ended, SC fought back to a 7-7 tie at the outset of the second quarter. But the Indians then broke the game wide open with two more scoring strikes before the intermission for a 21-7 halftime advantage.

Two more touchdowns in the third period boosted the count to 35-7 and the Indians coasted home in the final session with the reserves in action.

* * * *

IT WAS THE worst defeat of the seeason for the hapless Trojans, who have now lost six in seven games . . . their lone victory coming a week ago against Washington.

Meanwhile, the victory gives Stanford a 5-3 season record . . . and a 3-2 standing in conference play, which puts them back in range of a possible Rose Bowl bid if things break just right for the Indians, namely (1) victories over Oregon State and California in their last two games for a final 5-2 conference standing, while (2) Oregon was losing its final two starts to SC and Oregon State for a 5-3 record.

However, if the speedy Oregon club can't beat the slow-moving Trojans who crumbled under Stanford's onslaught Saturday, it doesn't deserve to go to the Rose Bowl.

* * * *

OREGON, of course, nipped Stanford, 27-26, a week ago in their crucial battle . . . an occasion which marked the fifth time in the last 11 games the Indians have lost by the margin of points-after-touchdowns.

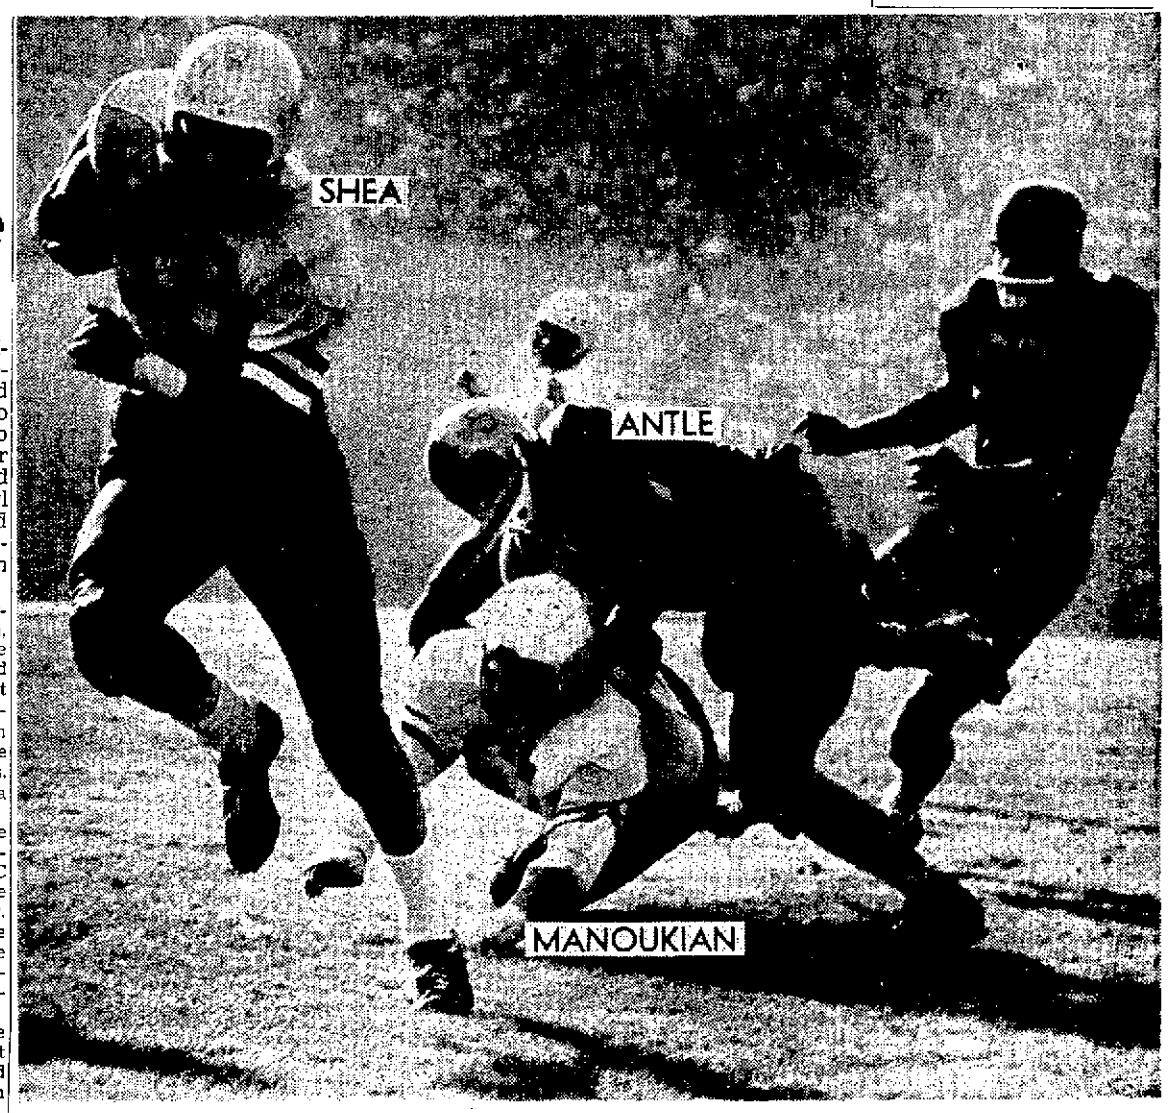

Against the Trojans, though, Stanford finally overcame its conversion difficulties with five perfect placements by three different men—two each by Al (Hulu) Harrington and Jack Taylor, and one by Armand DeWeese.

Brawling broke out between the two teams in the closing seconds of play and Troy's Walt Gurasich and Stanford's Don Dawson were ejected from the game even though observers agreed that neither one touched off the incident. Cooler heads quickly broke up the brief flareup.

Sports Merry-Go-Round

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

"Hey," said a little fellow, introduced to me Saturday on the Lakewood Golf Course as a gentleman from Bellingham, Wash., "why don't you write a piece in your paper about all the noise around this course? It's terrible."

"Well, it so happens," I replied, "that a man who pounds the typewriter for United Press, name of Hal Wood, beat me to the punch. He wrote this has to be the noisiest golf course of all time.

"I'm not saying I agree with him, though," I continued. "I am not a fanatic on this sport, but this doesn't necessarily seem to me the noisiest course on which I've ever set forth."

At that precise moment, an Air Force cargo plane, with every motor wide open, skimmed just inches above the trees on the course as it was coming in for a landing at Long Beach Airport.

Not three minutes later, two motorcycles racing on Carson St. set up such a roar that golfer Eric Monti, preparing to putt, straightened up and shook all over.

And not five minutes after that, someone at the Douglas Aircraft Plant right across the street decided to test every jet engine in the joint. This last jam session sounded like Omaha Beach on D-Day.

"Say," commented the Guy from Bellingham with a knowing wink, "I'd sure like to visit that course you think is noisier than this one."

Oh, well, what other course has a highway running through its center, yet still can host a major tournament? Top that one, Bellingham, old boy!

THERE WAS a rumor circulating Saturday that some big money has shown in Los Angeles betting marts on the Rams over the 49ers today. That might seem strange with the Rams' 2-4 record and San Francisco's 5-1 mark, but one bookmaker explains it thusly:

"In both betting and football circles, the Rams are regarded as the second best team in the Western Division, next to the Chicago Bears — REGARDLESS OF PRESENT STANDINGS. With so much adverse news about the Rams in the papers lately, we just figger they're going to rack San Francisco up good. They're due, you know."

With four Ram losses in the last five games, I must subscribe to that statement.

IF OREGON UNIVERSITY football followers have any stomachs left today, they're the hardiest souls in the Western U. S. The Ducks nipped Stanford, 27-26, at Palo Alto last weekend in a game decided only in the final 20 seconds. The same lads barely missed tying Washington in the final 12 seconds Saturday in another cliff-hanger. This is one team that will go into the Rose Bowl without the excuse of not being battle-tested.

Incidentally, Oregon QB Jack Crabtree must know how Rams passers Norm Van Brocklin and Bill Wade feel now. The kid from Lakewood was rushed faster Saturday than a Powers model at a fraternity dance!

THE READERS can (and do) write . . .

"I am glad to tell you that I won $20 betting on Halimi. I bet on the Frenchman after I saw a prediction in your paper touting Macias to win. I knew that put the curse on the Mexican and he was a cinch to lose. Please keep up the good work. I appreciate it." (signed) Jimmy Murray (whose letter had a Long Beach postmark, but was in an American Trailways envelope with a Lincoln, Nebr., address).

(You must have been reading a Lincoln, Nebr., paper, James. I tabbed Halimi. Don't deprive me of a fleeting moment of glory.)

"Say, what goes? Your column said, 'How can the Rams be favored against 49ers?' Then, low and beholded, in the football writers' selections, who is there with 'Rams by 3'—but Hank Hollingworth. Let's make up your mind." (signed) Two Ram Backers, 1347 American Ave.

(The odds may have stunned me, but not enough to let a good thing get away.)

"Congratulations. You are a real sportsman. Managed to drive 147 miles in two hours over busy highways and live. Thanks to irresponsible people like you, I hesitate to take my wife and three children on weekend trips." (signed) Arthur H. Brayfield, 5282 The Toledo.

(So do I. But if I had not driven at that speed, I would have been cited as a traffic hazard. Or haven't you visited our lovely freeways lately?)

"You wrote that one reason why the Ram's Bill Wade was thrown for repeated losses was because he lacked long range vision. From where I sit, it seems he lacked short range blocking. They say Wade will develop into a better QB when he learns to stay within the 'cup.' My thoughts are that the only benefit he would receive would be less loss of yardage." (signed) Newchy Mignone, 6063 Hershot Ave.

(Climb aboard, friend. The Van Brocklin bandwagon now has two members.)

"I was shocked at your statement that 90 per cent of spectators who saw Gavilan-Ortega fight went to see Ortega. How wrong can you get? Ninety per cent—including me—were there to see Gavilin." (signed) Harry Eagles, 210 E. Third St.

(Harry, whenever a Mexican boy fights in Los Angeles, 90 per cent of the turnout is there to see that boy. Strange as it might seem, you and I were in the minority that night.)

"You're getting more like Bob Kelley every day. Your favorite characters lately seem to be Tommy Bolt and Pat Ahern. You three deserve each other." (signed) Ralph Christian, Bellflower.

(That's a heckuva thing to say about Bolt, pal.)

CHALK UP SIX FOR UCLA

Hero's Role to Wallen

SPOKANE (Special) — UCLA's brilliant end, Dick Wallen, ruined Washington State as an alert defender and great pass catcher Saturday to bring the Bruins from behind for a 19-13 Pacific Coast Conference victory in 36-degree weather.

The favored Uclans came from behind with two last period touchdowns, the winner with only 40 seconds remaining.

The Bruins stopped Washington State's feared passing attack cold, intercepting five of them. Washington State, on the other hand, showed a surprisingly tough ground game which at times threatened to break the game wide open.

* * * *

WALLEN PROVIDED the spark for the Bruins. He intercepted two passes and recovered a fumbled Washington State punt. Each break was converted into a touchdown.

His first interception came early in the first period. He hauled in quarterback Bob Newman's pass on the WSC 26 and returned it to the 10. Tailback Don Long scored on the next play.

Wallen intercepted again in the fourth period on the State 34. He took a 26-yard pass from Long to the two and Long scored on the next play. Fullback Don Duncan converted to tie it at 13-13.

Moments later, Wallen recovered a fumbled punt on the Washington State 40. The Bruins ground out yardage in small chunks and fullback Ray Smith plunged from inches out to score the clincher.

* * * *

THREE PLAYS had gained only two yards and on fourth down Chuck Kendall hit the weak side for a first down—by inches—one foot from the goal line.

UCLA coach Red Sanders, who got the 100th victory of his 15-year coaching career, was a picture of depression when the Bruins, trailing 13-6, blew a chance to tie in the third period as Smith fumbled on the four.

The Cougars had rebounded with two quick touchdowns after giving up UCLA's first score. The first drive went 56 yards in 10 plays with Newman plunging for the score.

State started another drive from its own 25 which ended with quarterback Bunny Aldrich passing six yards to end Jack Fanning. The touchdown was set up by another Aldrich-Fanning aerial for 36 yards. Aldrich's conversion put WSC in front, 13-6, at the half.

* * * *

BRILLIANT IN defeat was fullback Dick Windham, a demon on defense and a consistent ground gainer on offense. Both teams were plagued by fumbles during apparent scoring drives.

Newman, the nation's total offense leader and second-ranked passer, completed only six of 15 aerials for 59 yards. Four of them were intercepted. He lost 15 yards rushing.

CROW, OSBORNE STAR

Aggies Rock SMU for Eighth in Row

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (U.P.) — Big John Crow and smooth Roddy Osborne led Texas A&M, the nation's top-ranked team, to a 19-6 victory Saturday night over Southern Methodist before 28,000 fans in Kyle Field.

Crow and Osborne scored one touchdown each as the Cadets maintained their Southwest Conference leadership and their unbeaten streak in eight games.

The 210-pound Crow, a candidate for all-America honors, scored the Aggies' second touchdown to break a 6-6 tie and led ground-gainers with 89 yards. He intercepted a pass on the final play of the game.

The Cadets scored their final marker with only 40 seconds left when substitute fullback Gordon LeBoeuf smashed over from the two and Crow converted.

* * * *

THE AGGIES struck late in the first period, marching 49 yards to a touchdown scored by Osborne on a four-yard keeper around right end.

Southern Methodist, behind the quarterbacking of sophomore Don Meredith, moved 71 yards to tie the score early in the second period. Meredith scored on a one-yard plunge.

Crow sparked A&M's game-winning drive late in the third period. The march went 65 yards, and Crow smashed over right tackle for the final two.

GAME BALL PRESENTED TO SANDERS

SPOKANE (U.P.)—The game ball with the figure "100" in adhesive tape stuck on it was presented to UCLA coach Red Sanders by his jubilant players Saturday after their 19-13 victory over Washington State.

The win was Sander's 100th of his 15-year coaching career.

"Tommy Prothro of Oregon State told me WSC was the finest team the Beavers had met all year, and he obviously was not far wrong," Sanders said. "They have the finest group of running backs we've faced all year."

He singled out end Dick Wallen and backs Bill Mason and Phil Parslow for their outstanding work.

WSC coach Jim Sutherland conceded his star quarterback, Bob Newman, was off. "He had a bad day—a real bad day."

PENALTIES HURT, 32-20

San Diego Drubs Fumbling Vikes

By JACK TEELE

SAN DIEGO—Long Beach City College completely outplayed Metropolitan Conference leader San Diego JC in the first and fourth quarters here Saturday night but was a sad sack outfit in the interval and lost the important contest, 32-20.

A crowd of 4,000, including 500 Long Beach fans, witnessed the game at Balboa Stadium.

The win was the fifth straight without loss in Metro play for the Knights. The defeat evened Long Beach's conference record at 2-2-1.

The second and third quarters were a tragedy of Long Beach errors as the Knights scored all five of their touchdowns. For their 32 points, the Border Boys put together only one sustained drive.

* * * *

THERE WERE extenuating circumstances, but the Vikings helped the Knights move to within one game of the conference title with six fumbles, four of which set up San Diego touchdowns.

However, and to their credit, the Norse did not quit even when on the short end of a 32-7 score. They pushed over two touchdowns in the final quarter and both scores came at the end of good sized drives and with several San Diego first stringers still in the game.

Both teams were troubled by the officiating, but the Vikes were hardest hit. A 53-yard, fourth quarter scoring pass from Mel Montalbo to Vic Gausepohl was nullified by a penalty as were four other long gainers, the longest of which were 20 yarders by halfbacks Henry Andrews and Mickey Flynn.

* * * *

THE OFFICIATING reached the height of the ridiculous when, after its second touchdown, Long Beach tried an onside kick which appeared to be knocked out of bounds by a Viking at the San Diego 39. However, the officials could not agree on a ruling and after a five minute conference democratically settled for another kickoff.

Here, briefly, is a resume of the scoring:

LBCC 7, San Diego 0: A 22-yard pass play from John McDonald to end Bill Tomasic and runs of 22 and 18 yards by Flynn set up the Vikings' first quarter touchdown. Ken Ruhlen sliced two yards off tackle for the score with 2:51 remaining in the period. Danny Wasnick added the conversion.

San Diego 7, LBCC 7: The Knights tied it up with 12:45 left in the first half, marching 60 yards to a touchdown. Fullback Benny Martin went over from one yard out. Richard Morris added the conversion.

San Diego 13, LBCC 7: San Diego recovered a fumble on the first play from scrimmage following the ensuing kickoff and went 30 yards in five plays. Key play was a pass good for 13 yards from quarterback Jerry Sange to end Leonard Burnett. Halfback Dave Grayson scored two plays later from one foot out.

San Diego 19, LBCC 7: An old Viking bad habit, a poor pass from center, set up the third San Diego touchdown. Tomasic fumbled the pass while standing on the Viking goal line and even though he ran it out 27 yards, the Knights were in possession. Grayson's five yard slant off the right side for the touchdown came with 2:49 left in the first half.

San Diego 26, LBCC 7: A San Diego punt slid off the finger tips of Ruhlen and was recovered by Burnett on the Long Beach 13. Halfback Allee Nowden made the touchdown in two cracks at the Viking line.

San Diego 32, LBCC 7: Another Viking fumble, this one on the Long Beach one, made the fifth San Diego touchdown an easy one. Morris ran two yards over the middle for the touchdown with 10:55 still remaining in the third quarter.

San Diego 32, LBCC 13: Led by halfbacks Flynn, Vic Gausepohl and Andrews, the Vikes marched 67 yards to score with 8:14 remaining in the fourth quarter. Little Eddie Vergara went the final four yards.

San Diego 32, LBCC 20: Long Beach marched 52 yards for the final score of the game with Gausepohl nicking up 39 of that total. He raced six yards over tackle for the touchdown with 1:59 left in the game.

Long Beach	7	0	0	13—20

Long Beach scoring: Touchdowns — Ruhlen (2, run), Vergara (4, run), Gausepohl (6, run). Conversions—Wasnick 2.

KO IN EIGHTH

Belma Stops Dorando

Undefeated Frankie Belma, 145, Wilmington, scored a knockout over willing Joey Dorando, 146, North Hollywood, Saturday night in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-rounder at Hollywood Legion Stadium.

Referee Tommy Hart stopped the contest because of severe cuts near both of Dorando's eyes, but said he was ruling it a knockout because of the "fearful beating Dorando was taking."

It was Belma's ninth win against one draw.

COP Topples Spartans, 21-6

SAN JOSE (AP) — Heavily-favored College of the Pacific had to fight every inch of the way Saturday night to down traditional rival San Jose State, 21-6, before a homecoming crowd of 14,500 in the 33rd renewal of their football seriess.

Pacific scored once in each of the final three periods — twice on the ground and once in the air. San Jose tallied in the fourth, mainly on the passing of quarterback Dick Vermiel who accounted for 151 yards passing.

Tarheels Whip South Carolina 28-6

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—North Carolina's alert Tarheels turned three recovered fumbles and a bad punt into touchdowns to rout South Carolina 28-6 Saturday before a crowd of 22,000 and a regional television audience.

Coach Jim Tatum's Tarheels struck for two touchdowns in the second period and one each in the third and fourth to hand Gamecock coach Warren Giese his worst defeat since going to South Carolina.

Eagles Triumph

BOSTON (U.P.) — Fullback Don Seagar scored twice as once-beaten Boston College spotted Boston University a second period safety Saturday and then rolled to a 27-2 victory for its sixth straight.

Auburn Line Stops Rugged Maroons, 15-7

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Auburn's murderous line brought the third-ranked Tigers a 15-7 victory over highly rated Mississippi State Saturday after the victors overcame the shock of a 57-yard scoring pass.

A Tom Miller to Ned Brooks pass put the winners behind 7-0 at halftime.

But with Tommy Lorino doing most of the gaining, the Tigers took the second half kickoff in for the tying score, pushed State back to its end zone and got a safety, and then drove 10 in three plays for another touchdown after recovering a fumble.

Billy Atkins, Auburn fullback, made both touchdowns as 42,000 fans saw the Tigers win their seventh game of this season and their 11th in succession.

State was held to 80 yards rushing and 57 passing, leaving the Tiger defensive record for the season unchanged at 136.7 per game, lowest in the nation.

Mississippi State	0	7	0	0—	7
Auburn	0	0	7	8—	15

Mississippi State scoring: Touchdown—Brooks (57, pass-run from Miller). Conversion—Tribble.

Auburn scoring: Touchdowns—Atkins 2 (2, plunge; 3, plunge). Safety—Schuenrock, Mississippi State (tackled in end zone by Whatley). Conversion—Atkins.

'BRIBE OFFER' AMUSES REF

Referee Mushy Callahan only chuckled Saturday when told that a Paris sports paper charged he was offered $20,000 to vote for Raul (Raton) Macias in Wednesday's bantamweight championship fight with French-Algerian Alphonse Halimi.

"Are they kidding? It's just too silly . . . ridiculous," Callahan said. "I'm going golfing . . . they can't be serious."

Callahan was roundly criticized for his 144-141 vote favoring Macias.

AMES, Iowa (U.P.)—Iowa State punctured an 11-year jinx and defeated Nebraska, 13-0, Saturday by mounting two long scoring drives against the luckless Cornhuskers before 10,145 fans.

Francis Ready for Stanford

BERKELEY (U.P.) — Coach Tommy Prothro of Oregon State's Beavers said Saturday that tailback Joe Francis will be ready to play for them again next week against Stanford.

The Honolulu star listened to Saturday's 21-19 victory over California from a sick bed in a San Francisco hotel nursing a fever of 102 degrees.

"But Francis will be ready next week," Prothro said. "He's just got the two-day flu."

PENN WHIPS YALE FOR SEBO, 33-20

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Pennsylvania, with the dismissal of Coach Steve Sebo in the balance, whipped itself together Saturday to roar back from a two-touchdown deficit and overwhelm Yale, 33-20, in a thunderous Ivy League upset.

After Yale scored twice in the first eight minutes the Quakers were alert opportunists who turned an interception and three Yale fumbles into four scores.

Penn players, scoring their first win in seven games, tossed Sebo on their shoulders and carried him from the field.

Cincinnati Hammers Hapless Hoosiers

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Barry Maroney, a 181-pound halfback with an infuriating change of pace, showed Cincinnati's Bearcats the way to a 21-0 victory over Indiana Saturday.

Cincinnati held Indiana to five first downs—two on penalties—while racking up 19.

Indiana, so riddled by flu and injuries that it had only one healthy quarterback, never got inside the Cincinnati 32.

PCC CHIEFS IN CRUCIAL CONFERENCE

SAN FRANCISCO (U.P.) — University presidents who wield the big stick in the battered Pacific Coast Conference will meet today at a hush-hush session which conceivably could put the loop on the skids for good.

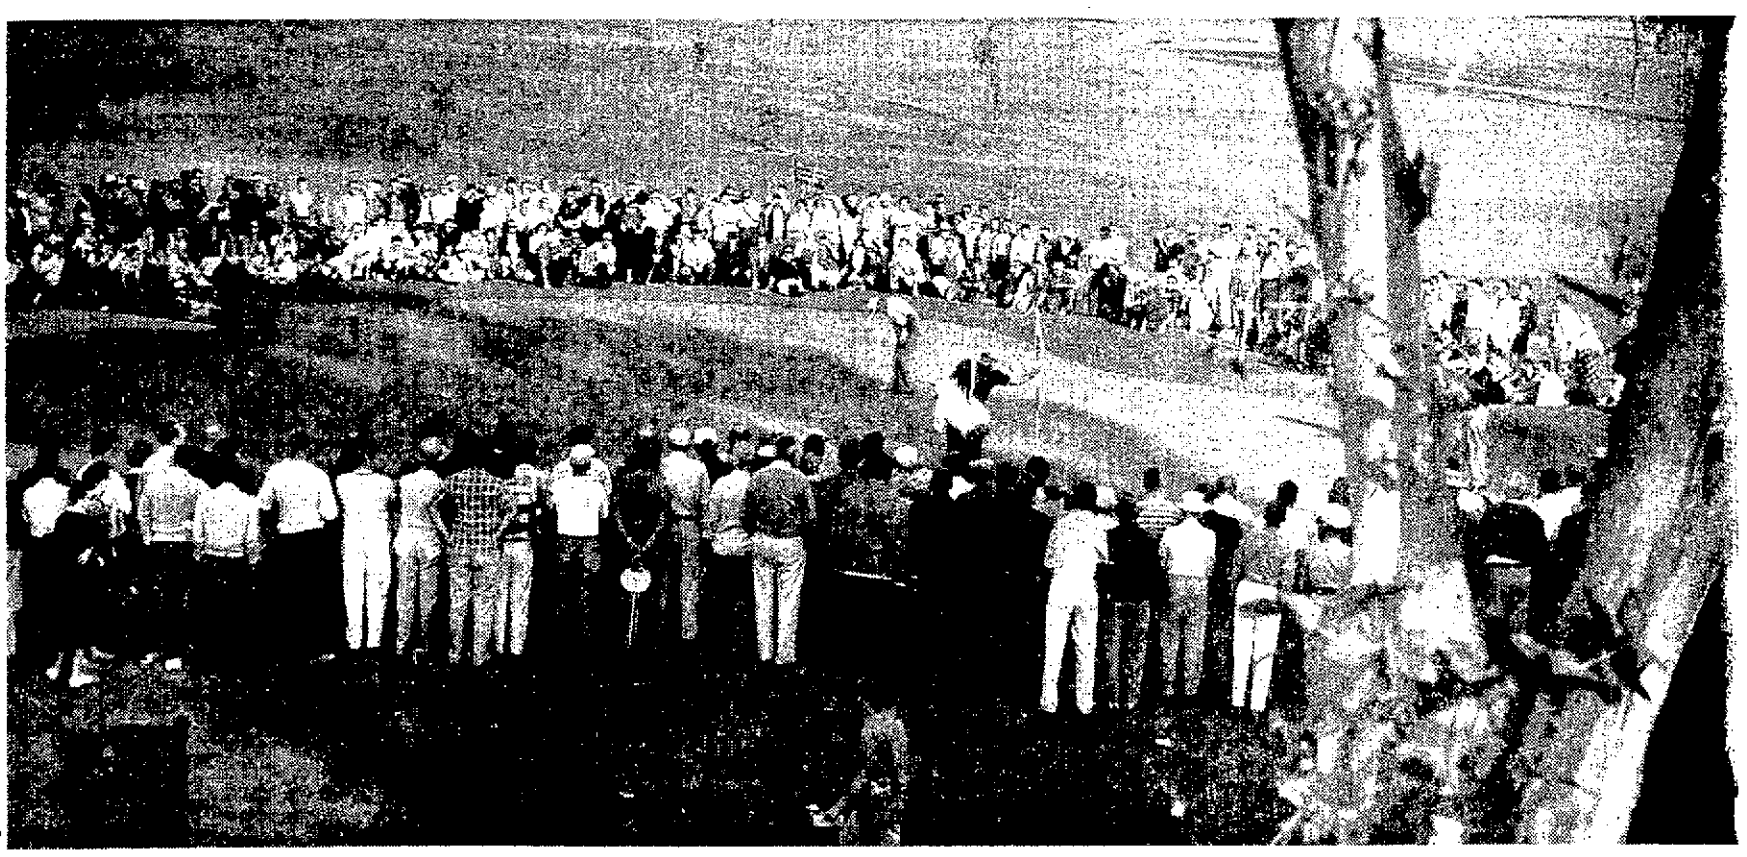

The parley was called so that other member schools can study a five-point plan adopted by Cal and UCLA last June.

This change in policy calls for a stricter athletic code than espoused by the PCC but also virtually serves notice on the conference that the Bears and Bruins will schedule whomever they please after the current football season.

Fired-Up Huskies Hand Webfoots 13-6 Defeat

PORTLAND (U.P.)—Washington's fired-up Huskies shook Oregon's Webfoots out of their Rose Bowl dreams with a 13-6 football upset Saturday before 30,010 fans and a regional television audience.

It was the first loss for Oregon in six Pacific Coast Conference games. But Oregon, despite the defeat, remained in first place in the PCC and can still go to Pasadena by beating Southern California or Oregon State in its final two games.

Washington, winner of only one game until Saturday, turned an intercepted pass into its first touchdown and then marched 67 yards in the final quarter for the clincher.

Oregon, trying to gain its first Rose Bowl trip in 38 years but plagued by injuries, came alive in the second half and appeared on its way to possible victory.

Trailing 7-0, the Webfoots scored two minutes into the second half on a 76-yard pass play from quarterback Jack Crabtree to end Pete Welch, who took the ball on the Washington 43 and raced over. But fullback Jimmy Jones, one of many Washington heroes, broke through to block Jack Morris' extra point try.

* * * *

THE WEBFOOTS then came back again and drove to the Washington 16 but were held. In the final minutes Oregon drove 76 yards to the Huskies' 16 but an intercepted pass by Duane Lowell spoiled Oregon's last hope on the final play of the game.

The first Washington touchdown came directly as a result of spirited defensive play. End Bruce Claridge broke through to knock Charley Tourville's pass into the air and center Mary Bergman made a leaping interception on the Oregon 26. Quarterback Bobby Dunn went off right tackle from three yards out for the touchdown and then converted.

The Huskies, who had beaten only defending PCC champ Oregon State in a dismal season, went 67 yards on the ground in 13 plays for the final score in the fourth period with quarterback Al Ferguson scoring from the three.

* * * *

JIM SHANLEY, Oregon's great halfback, became the Webfoots leading rusher of all time. Shanley carried the ball 10 times for 42 yards to reach a total of 1740, passing George Bell's 1947-48-49 mark of 1729 yards.

Once Over Lightly

By DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor

Down through the years, golf's long hitters have always succeeded in capturing the fancy of the sporting public.

For instance, Jimmy Thomson, one of the first of the game's distinguished "sluggers," never will make the links hall of fame on his overall golf game . . . but fans still talk of his long hitting.

And although Sam Snead has one of the finest swings of all-time, he's "Slammin' Sammy" to the golf world. The public knows him best for his long driving.

The two top "power" golfers in the game today are currently playing in the Long Beach Open. They are George Bayer and Mike Souchak.

And speaking of these two at this time of the year makes it seem a little more fitting in that both are ex-football stars.

Bayer, the current "long ball" king of the golf world, played at the University of Washington in the late 1940's, and spent a half-season with the Washington Redskins in 1950. The 6-5, 240-pounder was a tackle.

Souchak, of course, was captain of the Duke University Blue Devils in the early 1950's, playing end and also handling the placekicking chores.

STRANGELY ENOUGH, THE TWO SLUGGERS have reached a parting of the ways in their approach to golf.

While Bayer intends to keep belting away in defense of his "long ball" title . . . Souchak has cut down his drives in almost completely renovating his game.

By shortening his drives with a controlled swing, Souchak feels he is improving his general game "which should put me up with the front runners more consistently," he points out. "I've had a few hot streaks, of course, but too many times when I've been out to knock the cover off the ball, I haven't scored well enough to be among the leaders.

"I'm quite a bit stronger physically than a majority of the other playing pros and in particular have more powerful wrists. This allows me to be a long hitter without any particular strain and I've found now that I can still be quite a bit longer than most of the others while using a controlled swing.

"There's no percentage in playing out of the 'bushes' as a result of long scattered drives. A smooth coordinated overall game is what pays off."

He still averages around 270 to 275 yards with his "controlled drives." Mike used to hammer them out to around the 360 to 370 mark on his better wallops.

WITH SOUCHAK BOWING OUT of the slugging department, Bayer has the field pretty much to himself now. Not even Snead can come close to him.

Bayer, on the other hand, intends to continue emphasizing his long driving for two purposes.

For one thing, unlike most long hitters who spray their drives all over the lot, Bayer is unusually "straight" and also uses his power to better advantage than most other long drivers. He needs the extra distance off the tee to get in close enough to the green to go for birdies because his iron game fails to measure up to the standard usually found among the top "name" pros.

Secondly, his "power golf" has made him a gallery favorite wherever he plays . . . and which has proved a most lucrative item in regard to exhibitions, etc.

Bayer is the first to admit that he would be just another "starting time" on the pro circuit if he didn't have the reputation for being the game's longest hitter.

Fans want to see him belt one like he did in 1953 at Las Vegas when he set the all-time distance record with an incredible measured drive of 420 yards. He doesn't hit 'em like that every time, of course, but he manages to wallop 'em consistently around 350 yards.

BAYER IS ONE of the few top golfers who quit the game for a long spell and then came back to meet with success on the fairways. George was away from golf for 10 years while in school.

He took up golf at the age of seven in his native Seattle and played steadily until he was 16 when football, basketball and baseball in his school captured his main interest.

After playing varsity football for Washington in 1947-48-49, he was drafted and signed by the Washington Redskins in 1950, but left the squad in mid-season.

Two car salesmen and Bob Hope figure prominently in Bayer's triumphant return to golf.

After he left the Redskins, he went to work selling cars in Los Angeles and finally played his first game of golf in 10 years early in 1951 when he and two fellow salesmen each put up $10 to settle who was the best golfer.

Despite his long absence from golf, Bayer "murdered" the two salesmen. Even then he could make a golf ball "whimper."

After that he began playing regularly again. He began thinking seriously of golf as a career in 1953 and began hitting the big amateur tournaments in the West. Finally, Hope saw him in action in a tournament at Lake Tahoe. Hope couldn't believe a golf ball could be hit as far as Bayer was hammering 'em out.

LATER ON, BAYER was leading the field in another tournament by four strokes going into the final 18 holes when he received a telephone call from Hope with an invitation to play in the Celebrity Tournament in Washington, D. C.

Bayer withdrew from the tournament which he had virtually sewed up and went to Washington where he was an immediate hit with galleryites. A few months later, in January of 1954, he turned professional.

This has been a big year for Bayer. He won his first major tournament last summer when he captured the Canadian Open and has finished second in four other open events.

On top of this, he has landed a lush new job as pro at the new Belbrook Country Club currently being built in Dallas, Texas. The official announcement will be made next weeek.

The future looks bright for the undisputed "king of the drivers!"

BEARS' LINE TOUGH

Longhorns, Baylor Fight to 7-7 Tie

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Baylor quarterback Doyle Traylor engineered a 78-yard fourth quarter scoring march to give the Bears a 7-7 tie with favored Texas Saturday.

Larry Hickman plunged over from the one for Baylor's score and Junior Beall kicked the PAT.

Texas quarterback Walt Fondren, who fumbled away the ball twice inside the Baylor three yard line, tossed to halfback George Blanch for a 32-yard scoring play in the third period. The conversion try was bobbled, but Fondren picked it up and scooted end for the extra point.

Baylor's tough line allowed the frustrated Steers only 28 yards but Fondren's passes kept the Longhorns in a constantly threatening position.

The Longhorns had three chances to score in the first half inside the 10 but fumbles and the Bears' alert defense kept the scoreboard clear at the half.

Beavers Squeeze by Bears

BERKELEY (AP) — Oregon State breezed away to a 21-0 halftime lead Saturday then had to fight for its life to squeeze out a 21-19 victory over the revitalized California Bears.

With California trailing 21-13 and 43 seconds to play, Joe Kapp passed to halfback Jack Hart from 22 yards out to give the Bears their third touchdown of the second half. But as had been the case in their first tally, the attempted point after touchdown was blocked.

Right guard Jim Brackins stormed through to block California's first conversion attempt in the third period and center Buzz Randall stopped the final PAT attempt.

* * * *

HERO FOR Oregon State was tailback Larry Sanchez who took over for Joe Francis after the Honolulu hotshot came down with the flu. Sanchez passed for two touchdowns, one of them a 16-yarder to end Bob De Grant and the other a 46-yard toss to wingback Earnel Durden.

Durden scored the Beavers' second touchdown early in the second period on a six-yard reverse play.

Kapp passed for two Bear touchdowns—the first coming on a 33-yarder to end Mike White early in the third period which preceded his 22-yard toss to Hart as time ran out.

In between these tosses the rugged Bear quarterback smashed over from the one yard line for touchdown early in the final period to climax a 52-yard march.

* * * *

A POSSIBLE fourth Cal touchdown was halted in the fourth quarter before the final score when fullback Nub Beamer of Oregon State intercepted a Kapp pass on the 10 right out of White's hands.

MSU Romps Over Notre Dame, 34-6

EAST LANSING, Mich. (U.P.)—Michigan State overcame its own mistakes and made the most of Notre Dame's Saturday to swamp the Irish, 34-6, before 75,391 chilled fans at Spartan Stadium.

The fourth-ranked Spartans outrushed Notre Dame by 221 yards as they scored five times in the final three periods after the first period was scoreless.

Michigan State stayed on the ground all the way as it marched 46 yards for the first score of the game in the second period. Fullback Bob Bercich and halfback Art Johnson, both second-stringers, ripped off most of the yardage and it took the Spartans only six plays to score with Johnson going the final 11 yards.

Quarterback Jim Ninowski mixed a pair of passes in a scoring drive which started after the second half kickoff. But again Michigan State's running attack was chiefly responsible for the touchdown.

Walt Kowalczyk carried over from one foot out to climax the 57-yard drive.

After that it was a simple task for the Spartans. They scored two more touchdowns before the period ended and recovered a fumble at the Notre Dame 19 on the last play of the period to set the stage for their final score.

Notre Dame averted a shutout in the closing minutes when quarterback Bob Williams took to the air in a 82-yard march and finally plunged a foot to score after his aerials had set up the score.

Aroused Hawkeyes Trounce Minnesota

IOWA CITY (AP)—Aroused, massive Iowa, tossing in brilliant versatility to go with its power, fired a record-breaking scoring salvo at Minnesota Saturday for a 44-20 Big Ten football victory.

Undefeated Iowa, nursing a slow burn all week over criticism that it "quit" in settling for a 21-21 tie with Michigan, burst into full flame against the Gophers with 23 points in the second quarter for a 30-7 lead.

The victory was the fourth in the conference for Iowa's defending champions. A triumph next weekend over Ohio State, present leader with a 5-0 mark, would give Iowa its second straight undisputed championship.

It was a game of sensational performance, with the longest touchdown run coming on Bill Happell's 48-yard sprint late in the third period for Iowa's final touchdown. Mike Hagler had a 59-yard dash to the Minnesota 19 in the fourth quarter but Iowa didn't score.

* * * *

HAWKEYE quarterback Randy Duncan and Jim Gibbons, the big end, teamed up for spectacular aerial stunts. Gibbons caught nine passes, tying the Iowa record, and accounted for 164 yards—a new high.

Gibbons made a sparkling catch on the eight in the second period and stepped over for the touchdown. The play covered 52 yards. He had opened the scoring in the first period by snaring a five-yard toss.

47TH STRAIGHT WIN

Oklahoma Ruins Missouri, 39-14

COLUMBIA, Mo. (U.P.) — The Oklahoma Sooners, using sophomore halfback Bobby Boyd as their star, won the Big Eight Conference berth in the Orange Bowl Saturday by downing Missouri, 39-14. The Sooners played brilliant but not especially powerful football.

It was Oklahoma's 47th straight win. Boyd picked up several crucial first downs, set up the first touchdown and scored the second himself.

Missouri's star also was a sophomore, quarterback Phil Snowden, who ran and passed the Tigers to their first touchdown. Snowden scored it from inside the one. Missouri got its second touchdown after an Oklahoma fumble with Hank Kuhlmann going 33 yards for the six-pointer.

* * * *

OKLAHOMA'S first touchdown was scored by Dick Carpenter on a 19-yard double reverse. Boyd scored the second from the four, climaxing a 49-yard drive. The third came after Carpenter intercepted a pass thrown by Snowden and was scored by halfback David Baker from the one.

The Sooners then marched from their 16 and Carl Dodd scored from the two. An intercepted pass set up another tally with Clendon Thomas scoring from the two. Third team halfback Prentice Gatt scored another in the waning minutes from the three.

Middies, Duke Tie 3rd Time

BALTIMORE (AP)—Navy and Duke fought to a 6-6 football tie Saturday, their third straight deadlock in three years.

Duke made a mighty effort to win in the closing minutes and came within two yards of the Navy goal, only to have a penalty halt the drive.

Duke, biding its time while Navy was wearing itself out running all over the field except the goal, made its big move with eight minutes left.

* * * *

LED BY 166-POUND halfback George Dutrow, the Blue Devils rammed from their 47 to the Navy 14. Quarterback Bob Brodhead spotted end Dave Hurm and threw to him on the Navy 2.

But Duke was caught clipping and moved back to the Navy 34 to kill the Blue Devils.

Navy bounced back to go deep into Duke territory for the eighth time and got to the 27 before elapsing time forced the Middies to have tackle Bob Reifsnyder try a field goal. It was short and wide from 33 yards away.

* * * *

NAVY SCORED after ten minutes of the first quarter when quarterback Tom Forrestal hit end Wayne McKee with a 12-yard pass. Forrestal's kick was wide.

Duke tied it in the second quarter after Don Padgett intercepted on the Navy 43. Three plays later Dutrow scored on a 14-yard run. Wray Carlton, who had hit on nine of 10 previous PATs, missed.

Vols Blast Tech, Eye Bowl Berth

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Ninth-ranked Tennessee, displaying a great defense and deadly blocking, blasted Georgia Tech, 21-6, Saturday on the running of halfbacks Bobby Gordon and Bill Anderson.

A record homecoming crowd of 45,000 saw the Volunteers win their sixth straight game and put in a strong bid for a postseason bowl game.

The victory gave Tennessee a 3-1 mark in the Southeastern Conference and kept alive Vol Hopes of retaining the league title. The loss was Tech's third of the season and gave the Yellow Jackets a 3-3-1 worksheet.

After a scoreless first period, Tennessee marched to touchdowns in each of the remaining quarters. Tech's touchdown came in the last 30 seconds after end Jack Rudolph recovered Carl Smith's fumble on the Tennessee 17.

Rice Scores on 5th Down for 13-7 Win

HOUSTON (AP)—Rice needed five plays from the one-yard line Saturday to power over a fourth quarter touchdown that broke a 7-7 tie and gave the Owls a 13-7 win over Arkansas.

With less than three minutes to play, the Owls held for down by inches to stop a Porker threat that had carried 62 yards to the seven.

Fullback Raymond Chilton scored the winning touchdown from the half-yard line. Two offsides penalties against Arkansas had moved the ball to the one and another on fourth down gave Rice its fifth crack at the Porker line.

Halfback Ronnie Stone had climaxed an 80-yard Arkansas drive early in the final period by racing around right end from the one on fourth down to give the Porkers a 7-7 tie. Rice had jumped into its 7-0 lead by scoring late in the second period on a 17-yard pass from quarterback Frank Ryan to end Gene Miller.

Buckeyes Roll, Near Rose Bowl

COLUMBUS, Ohio (U.P.) — Ohio State hit Purdue with an explosive offense and five great defensive stands to crush the Boilermakers, 20-7, Saturday and stay on top of the Big Ten Conference race.

The Ohio victory, made certain by its rugged defense, moved coach Woody Hayes' team to within one game of the Rose Bowl and its third Big Ten title in four years. Ohio now must win only one of its remaining games, with Iowa and Michigan, to clinch the title.

The Buckeyes, with halfback Don Clark and fullback Bob White ripping the Purdue defenses, rolled over three first half touchdowns. Then the Bucks dug in to stop Purdue three times within the Ohio 10 in the last period.

The victory may have proved costly for Ohio as Clark, the Buckeyes' candidate for all-American honors, suffered a pulled leg muscle early in the second period and sat out the rest of the game. But before he quit he had battered Purdue with 56 yards in six carries.

Clark was the spark of Ohio's first touchdown drive, carrying five times for 47 yards and scoring on an 18-yard sprint to put Ohio in front with scarcely five minutes gone in the first period.

Wisconsin Routs 'Cats

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Wisconsin's sophomore studded Badgers scored three lightning like touchdowns early in the third quarter and rolled to a 41-12 Big Ten football victory over Northwestern Saturday.

A crowd of 32,250 braved 27 degree temperatures and saw the under-manned Wildcats grab a 6-0 lead before 19-year-old substitute quarterback Dale Hackbart took over and turned the game into a rout.

Hackbart engineered the first Badger touchdown late in the second quarter when Wisconsin moved 69 yards in 11 plays. On the third play of the second half, Hackbart faked a handoff, went off tackle for a 57-yard touchdown run and the rout was on.

Illini Surprise Michigan, 20-19

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (U.P.)—Second-string halfback L. T. Bonner ran 59 yards for one touchdown and five yards for another Saturday to lead Illinois to a 20-19 upset over Michigan and ruin what chances the Wolverines had left of going to the Rose Bowl.

Quarterback Tom Haller's success on two of three conversion attempts was the margin of victory. Illinois' Gene Chruney deflected two of Jim Van Pelt's conversion tries.

The victory before 46,007 chilled fans in Memorial Stadium was Illinois' second in five Big Ten games, and the other one was an upset too, over Minnesota.

The loss gave Michigan a 2-2-1 conference mark.

Van Pelt, sidelined most of the day by a leg injury, came into the game for Michigan in the final period and passed brilliantly in a desperation effort that netted Michigan two final-period touchdowns.

Michigan was hampered by the fact that its ace ground gainer, Jim Pace, was injured early in the game and taken from the field on a stretcher.

Van Pelt completed three passes, the final one to end Chuck Teuscher on the four-yard line to set up the second Wolverine touchdown.

Grosscup's Arm Gives Army Scare

WEST POINT, N. Y. (AP) — Lee Grosscup, Utah's amazing passer, befuddled the Army defense Saturday, but Bob Anderson's superb running and Army's all-around strength proved a bit too much for the Redskins and the Cadets pulled out a 39-33 victory.

Grosscup's passing figured in all five Utah touchdowns and accounted for two directly.

Anderson was the big gun in the Army offense. He scored three times for a total of 13 touchdowns this season and piled up 212 yards running to move within striking distance of the Army ground-gaining record held by Glenn Davis.

Davis gained 930 yards in 1945 and Anderson now has 818 yards with two games to go.

90,000 May Watch Rams, 49ers Tangle

By GEORGE LEDERER

Sid Gillman brings a vote of confidence from the owners and a revamped Rams lineup into the Coliseum this afternoon to try and stop the San Francisco 49ers' winning streak at five straight.

Clear skies, with only the threat of Sputniks and footballs disturbing the atmosphere, may bring a near-record crowd of about 90,000 fans, curious to see what makes Sidney run when everyone knows he should pass.

Kickoff time for the Rams' final game of their current three weeks home stand is 1:35 p.m. There is no local TV, but KMPC will carry the broadcast.

Oddsmakers are defying the 49ers' Western Division leading 5-1 record as well as the Rams' 2-4 cellar status in making the Rams luke-warm two-to-three point favorites. They have taken in account, perhaps, the fact that San Francisco is winless against the Rams in the Coliseum since 1953.

The 49ers have lost only two of 12 starts this year, counting six exhibition games. They were clobbered, 55-28, by the Rams in their pre-season meeting, then dropped the NFL opener to the Chicago Cardinals, 28-20.

* * * *

FOUR OF San Francisco's five league victories came on last-minute passes, three from Y. A. Tittle to R. C. Owens, at present the No. 1 claimant to rookie of the year honors.

It was Owens, a former Little All-America end from College of Idaho, who beat the Rams, 23-20, at Kezar Stadium to launch the 49ers' current streak.

Although covered both times, Owens outjumped Rams defenders in the end zone to take 46 and 11-yard winning tosses from Tittle.

This same combination beat the Bears, 21-17, when Owens caught a seven-yard toss on his knees in the end zone after earlier grabbing a 30-yard TD pass. Last week, with 11 seconds remaining, a Tittle-to-Owens pass of 41 yards gave the 49ers a 35-31 decision over the Lions.

Gillman regards Owens as "an absolute marvel. From what we've seen of him, I'd say step ladders would be the only certain defense against him."

Although Owens stands only 6-3, it is said he can jump as high as Bill Russell, the 6-10 basketballing Celtic. Of his 13 receptions this reason, seven have come on high lobs from Tittle. He has caught five touchdown passes, three on lobs.

Tittle, the balding veteran of 10 pro campaigns, is having his greatest year with such receivers as Owens, Clyde Conner, Hugh McElhenny and Wilson as targets. Against the Lions' stingy secondary, Tittle completed 21 out of 28 passes for 226 yards and two touchdowns last week.

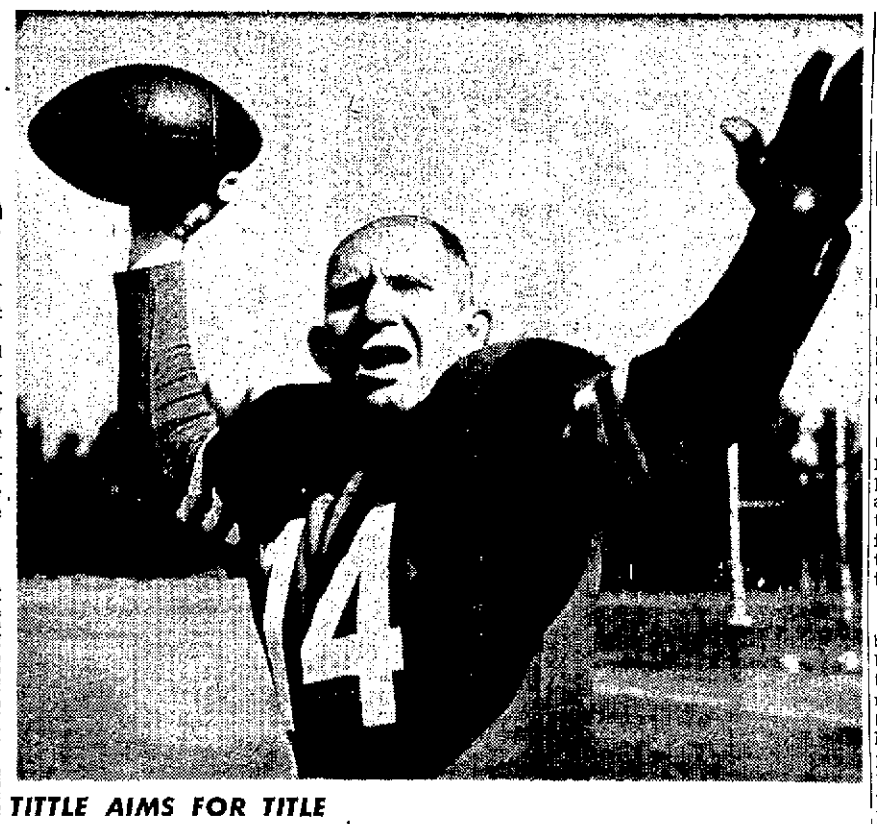

* * * *

AS FOR THE RAMS, Gillman hopes a new backfield combination may be the answer to an offense that was non-existent against the Bears last week. Sid is stringing with Norm Van Brocklin at quarterback, but will start Jon Arnett in place of Tommy Wilson at left half, Tank Younger for Joe Marconi at fullback and rookie Lamar Lundy for Bob Boyd at slot back.

Boyd moves to right end and Elroy Hirsch to the left flank. Hirsch will be spelled by Arnett on occasion, but Boyd may have to go it alone because Leon Clarke, the club's No. 1 receiver, has not fully recovered from a hip injury. Clarke and tackle Bob St. Clair of the 49ers are the only casualties.

Probable starters.

TITTLE AIMS FOR TITLE

San Francisco quarterback Y. A. Tittle sets sights on beating Rams with passes in Coliseum this afternoon. The balding Tittle is having his greatest year as 49ers seek first title since entering NFL in 1950.

Andreason's 134 Leads L.B. Open

mitted after the round, "and I had to make it."

The young Oklahoman then recounted a disastrous experience in the recent $40,000 Dallas Open to point up his determination.

"I shot 67 and 66 the first two rounds to tie for third place with Middlecoff. So they paired me with Snead, who had a 60 the day before, and I got trampled on by 11,000 Snead followers. I ended with an 85 that day and finished out of the money."

* * * *

BRADLEY'S 67 featured a back nine of 32. He had five birdies, all on putts of less than six feet. Of the 68s, Conrad came through with a 10-foot birdie putt on the 18th; Monti had seven straight one-putt greens from the second through eighth holes, and Oliver birdied four of the last five holes.

Littler played the front nine in two under par with birdies on the tough second and easy seventh holes—the former on a four-foot putt after a great 3-iron shot sliced around a tree, the latter on a 12-footer. But his putter turned fickle on the back nine and he missed several birdie tries and a three-footer to bogey the 13th.

* * * *

BOB TOSKI, who played with Littler before a huge gallery, made four birds on the back nine to finish with a 72. George Bayer, who had a 72 with a ball out-of-bounds on the 10th hole, hit a 5-iron second shot two feet from the pin on the 18th hole but missed the eagle putt.

Pacing the amateurs with a 73 Saturday for 144 was young Bob Boughner of Downey. He holds a one-stroke edge over Jim Ferrie and Buck Bailey, who had 72s, and Pinky Stevenson, who tanked a gallery-pleasing 25-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole for a 74.

Both Ferrie and Stevenson suffered unusual misfortunes—the Virginia Country Club veteran three-putting four straight greens; the Recreation Park youth watching his tee shot on the 10th hit a stake and ricochet out of bounds to lead to a triple bogey.

But their trouble couldn't compare to that of host pro Jim Ireland who had to sink a 10-foot putt for a NINE on the par-five third. Ireland hit into a trap on his second, blasted over the green into an unplayable position in weeds from where he took five swipes to get on the green!

WINS $30,747; WHO IS IT?

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico (AP)—Although a majority of longshots came in, one unidentified selector correctly picked six winners in the 5-10 handicapping contest to win $30,747.20 at Caliente Saturday. At a late hour the winner hadn't appeared to claim the jackpot.

The fortunate picker, who marked the selections in red ink, won on a $2 ticket. Nine ticket holders that correctly listed four winners received a payoff of $1,138.60 apiece.

Bold Ruler Wins Wire-to-Wire

1st Pacing Heat to Diamond Hal

(Compiled from UP and AP)

Bold Ruler, the speed horse everyone said couldn't run for distance, laid a strong claim to the three-year-old thoroughbred championship Saturday with a front running victory in the $82,350 Trenton Handicap. He soundly whipped his chief rivals for the title, Gallant Man and Round Table.

And at Hollywood Park, Diamond Hal won the first leg of the $75,000 American Racing Classic.

The Wheatley Stable's horse, owned by Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps and trained by the venerable Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, took the lead at the start of the mile and a quarter three horse race and never was headed. Under a tremendous ride by the veteran Eddie Arcaro, Bold Ruler raced to an eight-length lead at the three quarter pole.

It was here that the crowd of 39,077, who jammed Garden State Park on a brisk, cold afternoon, expected to see the big son of Nashrullah fade. They watched the two other great champions, Travis Kerr's Round Table and Ralph Lowe's Gallant Man, begin to make their move.

* * * *

BUT BOLD RULER, winner of the Preakness Stakes and 10 of 15 races this year, was not a quitter Saturday, distance or no distance. His lead was cut to 3½ lengths by Gallant Man with a quarter of a mile to go. Arcaro, who never laid a whip on his mount, called on him to meet the challenge and he did, holding his ground as Gallant Man, ridden by Willie Shoemaker, flashed through the stretch in strong pursuit.

Bold Ruler, carrying 122 pounds to 124 for his rivals ate up ground as he hugged the rail and sped across the finish line in the race of the year, a 2¾ length victor. Gallant Man was second, eight lengths ahead of the fading California champion, Round Table, who had his winning streak of 11 straight snapped.

Bold Ruler returned $5.20 and $2.40. Gallant Man paid $2.60 to place. There was no show wagering.

* * * *

LITTLE JOE O'Brien drove Diamond Hal to a stirring victory in annexing the first heat of the pacing classic at Hollywood Park. O'Brien brought the six-year-old Hal Dale stallion through the stretch to wear down a couple of longshots at the wire.

Diamond Hal was kept tucked in for three-quarters of a mile while four or five others battled fiercely for the lead despite a suicidal early pace. Once he found racing room after moving off the rail in the drive it was all over as he picked up Ozark Chief in the final strides to win by a half-length in 1:59 4/5. Frisco Creed was third as favored Dottie's Pick and strongly regarded Adios Harry faded.

Diamond Hal paid $5.90, $4.30 and $3.50, Ozark Chief $41.10 and $19.60 and Frisco Creed $13.70.

Battle Dance won the San Francisco Mile at Golden Gate in 1:55 1/5, nodding North End and Hi Pardner. He paid $4, $3.20 and $2.30 as the heavy favorite.

SWITCH TO MEDAL?

PGA Convention Begins Monday

The national convention of the Professional Golfers' Association gets under way here Monday and on the eve of the first full-scale session there were reports that the annual PGA tournament, currently decided on match play, will be switched to a 72-hole medal play event.

A spokesman for the PGA said the change would be necessary from a financial standpoint.

"We draw about $40,000 gates on the final day of the National Open," said the PGA man, "but last year we drew only $5,000 for the two-man finals of the PGA tournament. I understand the tournament lost something like $10,000."

* * * *

THE WEEK-LONG meeting, which will be attended by about 80 delegates, plus as many other professional golfers, is expected to run into some knotty problems, including these:

1.—What to do in the way of disciplinary action for members who "pop off" out of turn, or who in any other way hurt the organization.

2.—Consideration of a new way of selecting the Ryder Cup team.

The latter item has been hot copy ever since the U.S. team was whipped in England last month. Sam Snead and Jimmy Demaret blamed the U.S. loss on the fact that the best men were not on the team.

* * * *

"WE HAVE HAD a lot of ideas for a change in the selection method," said Al Houghton of Washington, D.C., chairman of the selection committee. "Some one proposed that we use the current system of selection, except that we keep two places open to add strong men who did not make the official list. However, I doubt that such a proposal would win approval of the members in a vote."

The convention is expected to elect Harold Sargent, Atlanta, as its new president.

A report also will show that PGA members in 1958 will play for $1,400,000 in official and unofficial prize money.

Dartmouth Edges Columbia

NEW YORK (UP)—Unbeaten but once-tied Dartmouth favored by 19 points, squeezed out a first-period touchdown on a six-yard "drive" after a fumble recovery Saturday and made it stand up for an unimpressive 7-0 victory over fired-up Columbia.

Quarterback Dave Bradley, who sneaked over for the touchdown from the one after six minutes of play, had one 55-yard touchdown pass play called back because of a penalty and early in the fourth period Dartmouth had a first down on Columbia's five but could not score.

Oklahoma State Routs Wyoming, 39-6

STILLWATER (UP) — Oklahoma State, fielding two well-balanced teams under twin-sophomore quarterbacks, ran up its highest score of a successful season Saturday to hand Wyoming a 39-6 defeat, its worst in 11 years.

Quarterback David Cross's alternate team accounted for four scores to show it had a ground gain slightly superior to the pass-prone first unit, under quarterback Dick Soergel.

Oklahoma State	0	19	6	14—39
Wyoming	0	0	0	6— 6

Oklahoma State scoring: Touchdowns, Banfield (17, pass from Wiggins); Soerger, (2 plunge); Wiggins (40, run); Rundle 2 (7, run, and 14, run); Wagoner (3 run). Conversions, Jacob 3.
Wyoming scoring: Touchdowns, Domanski (43, pass from Wilkinson).

Caliente Bids Record $150,000 for 'Dream Race'

A record $150,000 winner-take-all match race among Gallant Man, Round Table and Bold Ruler was proposed late Saturday by Caliente race track director John Alessio. Distance would be a mile and a quarter at a date agreed on by the horses' owners.

Alessio said his earlier proposal of a $100,000 match race between Round Table and Gallant Man was withdrawn because they were beaten at Garden State in the mud Saturday.

"If Gallant Man and Round Table had finished one-two in the Trenton Handicap, we still would have stood by our original offer of the $100,000 match race," Alessio said. "However, Bold Ruler's victory has complicated the picture. Official notification of the new offer is being sent to each of the owners.

Big Triumph; Taylor Pleased, 'Won't Quit'

By DON HARDIN

"I don't believe in running up a score on anybody," said coach Chuck Taylor after his Stanford Indians had completed a 35-7 massacre of SC Saturday afternoon in the Coliseum.

This was the largest score any Stanford team has ever run up against an SC squad, but the likeable Indian coach played his second and third teams most of the second half in backing up his statement. "I don't like high scoring games, but sometimes it's inevitable," added Taylor.

It was a satisfying victory for Stanford, which still has a slim chance of making the Rose Bowl trip, but no sooner than Taylor had settled down in the dressing room he was queried about the rumors emanating that he was tired of football and would resign at the end of the season.

"I want to say this once and for all," said Taylor, "and that'll be the end of it. I categorically deny everything that's been said or written about it and I have no intention whatsoever of resigning. Now, let's talk about football."

* * * *

TAYLOR PRAISED Stanford "as my best running team, and this is the greatest bunch of kids I've ever had, especially in desire and intenseness to win. Don (Clark, coach of SC) just doesn't have the material but his boys are real scrappers and so is Don."

Stanford's Jackie Douglas passed only 13 times against the Trojans, completing eight for 79 yards and one touchdown. Taylor, in comparing him to other Stanford quarterbacks, under the Taylor regime, rated Gary Kerkorian the best allround, Bobby Garrett and John Brodie the best passers and Douglas, although "not the best passer, is a fine passer with great leadership qualities and good running ability."

When asked why he always has a good quarterback passer, Taylor replied: "Our system of play attracts good passing quarterbacks."

* * * *

STANFORD, WHICH has had miserable luck on extra point tries since Taylor became head coach, converted after each touchdown Saturday but the coach, who has always been outspoken against the extra point, emphasized once more that he would like to see it abolished.

Taylor said the team practiced no more during the week than it normally does on placekicking. When told that California lost to Oregon State, 21-19, he laughed and said: "Elliott (Pete, coach of the Bears) will get the h— kicked out of him for not making the PATs."

Clark, apparently unruffled over his team's sixth loss in seven games, credited Stanford with "the best balanced, most experienced squad in the conference. They have a great and versatile offense and do everything well. They surely exploited our weaknesses with the optional rollout by Douglas, and the trap play up the middle."

Stanford used the rollout almost exclusively in the first half to run up a 21-7 lead, then used traps up the middle for big yardage in the second half after the SC defense had been spread. Chuck Shea, the Indians' fullback, and Jim Byrer, replacing injured halfback Al Harrington, were responsible for most of the big gainers.

* * * *

CLARK SAID his team was unable to cope with it because Stanford's attack was just too versatile, and the young Trojan mentor was again bemoaning the fact that he can't get a complete, healthy unit together for any one game.

"If we could get all our kids well at once we could give anybody in the PCC a good game," he said. "We have to have everybody in top physical and mental condition every week and we didn't today. It wasn't one of our best efforts. Monte Clark and Mike Henry were doubtful all week. Frank Fiorentino didn't play at all and we took a chance trying to use Rex Johnston."

Johnston, SC's top scoring threat, has been injured off and one all season and has a bad knee. He was used only briefly in the game but Clark had high praise for little Frank Buford who carried the ball 12 times for 40 yards from Johnston's regular halfback spot.

* * * *

"BUT," SAID CLARK, "when you lose Johnston you lose a helluva lot of offense."

When told that his team could possibly aid Stanford in getting the Rose Bowl nod by beating Oregon next week, Clark replied:

"I don't care who goes to the Rose Bowl as long as we can't. I'd just as soon beat one team as another. However, we should be in better shape next week for the Oregon game and, who knows."

The fight near the end of the game which resulted in two players being ejected — Walt Gurasich of SC and Don Dawson of Stanford—was treated as just one of those things by coaches and players alike, a heat-of-the-battle incident that involved several players, not just the two singled out.

No serious injuries were reported from either team. Harrington was carried off the field on a stretcher but suffered only a bump on the head. The Indians' Bob Van Galder came off with a broken nose, but other injuries were treated as rather minor.

touchdown which came at 14:47 of the first stanza when Rick McMillen barreled six yards around right end after taking a pitchout. Two deadly jump passes by Jackie Douglas accounted for 17 and 8 yards in key situations, and Douglas finally set up McMillen's scoring romp with a beautiful 10-yard spurt to the six on which three Trojans had clear shots at him . . . but missed.

The Trojans snapped right back after the kickoff with a 76-yard advance in 12 plays capped by Willie Wood's 20-yard scoring pass to end Don Voyne at 5:09 of the second quarter. Don Buford kicked the conversion.

Moments later the roof caved in on the Trojans when Wood passed from his own 17-yard line . . . and Taylor picked it off on the 37 and returned 27 yards to set the stage for Stanford's go-ahead TD. Fullback Chuck Shea picked up the 10 yards in two tries, making four at left guard, and then cutting inside right end to score from the six. Shea dropped the ball on the scoring play, but picked it up without losing a step and scored easily.

* * * *

STANFORD MOVED 71 yards in 13 plays to its third touchdown the very next time it got the ball.

Douglas mixed his plays beautifully on this march as he kept the SC defense off balance with sweeps by Shea to the left and McMillen to the right plus two jump passes down the middle that put the ball in position for halfback Roy Stephen to score from the one-yard line just 19 seconds before the half ended.

SC adjusted its defense during the intermission to meet the threat of Stanford's sweeps around end, but the Indians met this switch by blasting 57 yards through the middle of the Trojan line in six plays after the second-half kickoff for their fourth touchdown.

Shea started it off by charging 21 yards up the middle; Douglas added five; Jim Bryer shot through the center for 16 more yards and Bryer came right back to hit the same hole for 15 more yards and the score at 2:12.

* * * *

TROJAN HALFBACK Bill Howard's fumble in the closing second of the third quarter was recovered by Douglas on the SC 29 to set up the Indian's final tally.

McMillen took a pitchout and boomed 17 yards around right end to the 12 . . . and Douglas then fired a jump pass to end Chris Burford for the score just three seconds before the period ended.

Twice the Trojans reached the Stanford 19 in the final period against the Indian reserves, being held for downs the first time and having a final last-ditch advance wiped out at that point by the final gun.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

By DON HASTINGS
(Fishin' for Don Culpepper)

The 1957 pheasant season opens next Saturday and prospects are good or better than last year in most areas. The season ends Dec. 1.

The Department of Fish and Game reports 20,050 pheasants will be stocked in Southern California and the Owens Valley prior to and during the 16-day season.

Total 1957 pheasant stocking allotments for this region are as follows:

Etiwanda cooperative public hunting area at Etiwanda, in San Bernardino County, 7,900 birds. Releases will be made each day from Nov. 16 through 25, since this co-op area will be operated for only the first 10 days of the season.

Lakeside cooperative public hunting area at Morena Lake, in San Diego County, 3,100 birds. Same release schedule as at Etiwanda.

Imperial Valley, 3,650 birds to be planted on agricultural lands throughout the valley, from Niland south to Calexico and from Westmoreland east to Holtville.

Coachella Valley, 2,350 birds to be planted on farm lands from Indio to Mecca.

Bard Valley, along the Colorado River north of Winterhaven, 500 birds to be planted on farm lands open to public hunting.

Palo Verde Valley, southwest of Blythe, 500 birds to be released both north and south of Palo Verde.

Owens Valley, 2,050 birds to be planted on habitat areas in the vicinity of Lone Pine, Manzanar, Ft. Independence, Big Pine, Bishop and Round Valley.

* * * *

QUAIL and chukar partridge hunting also get under way Saturday in Southern California and the Inyo-Mono area, with a bumper crop of quail in most Southland brushlands and the chuker population definitely up in most desert canyons, the DF&G reports. The season ends Dec. 31.

Among the best bets for quail in Southern California will be the northwestern section of Los Angeles County and the Coachella and Imperial Valleys.

OCEAN FISHING bounces from fair to excellent. Skippers have had a problem locating working fish the last two days. Yellowtail fishing was good Friday and Saturday on the Horseshoe Kelp and at Point Vincente. Barracuda fishing was fair in the Huntington Flats. All three areas were slow Saturday, except for bonito, but boats trying the Dana Point area did well on yellows and barries. Saturday's catch on boats from Pierpoint and Pacific landings and Seal Beach Pier totaled 311 yellowtail, 469 barracuda and 489 bonito.

The Rhinos have scored 318 points, while holding opponents to 85 so far this year.

Cal Frosh Trip Touted SC, 13-9

BERKELEY (AP)—The California freshman Saturday upset a highly-touted SC frosh team, 13-9.

The Trobabes took an early 2-0 lead when Andy Segale of the Cubs centered the ball out of the end zone on a punt attempt.

Cal came back with a second quarter touchdown and conversion to hold a 7-2 halftime lead. John Blaylock went four yards after Cal recovered a fumble. Jim Ferguson converted.

The Cubs went into a 13-2 lead midway in the third quarter when right half Ernie Reese scampered 19 yards on a double reverse.

A desperate Trobabe passing barrage in the last period netted them their only touchdown. The payoff play was a three-yard Al Prokup to Luther Hayes pass. Carl Skvarna converted.

LIONS' ANNIVERSARY EVENT

Car, Cycle Dragsters Meet

At least 250 of the hottest car and cycle drag racers in the Southwest will battle today in one of the biggest meets of the year on the 223rd St. and Alameda Ave. black-top.

It's the second anniversary drag of Lions Associated and, per custom of many strips, every acceleration record hung up today in 34 classes will go on the books.

In the hot-shot dragster class, the field reached 14 cars Saturday with entry of Jim Nelson's Chev-powered speedster from Oceanside and "re-entry" of the national top eliminator team of Mudersbach and Dillon.

The Arizonians have completely rebuilt their Olds-powered dragster which it had been thought was totaled-out in flips Sunday at Phoenix.

To expedite handling of 7,500 anticipated spectators, meet director Mickey Thompson said dual entry gates will be open from 9 a. m. throughout the day-long meet. In event of rain, Thompson said, there will be a one-week postponement.

As added inspiration in a host of awards to winners, the day's top eliminator will get the largest trophy ever awarded in drag competition —a six-foot six-inch creation of matched hardwoods and metal, which weighs nearly 200 pounds.

MOTOR SPORTS

Top Drivers in Riverside Race

By PAUL WALLACE

So next weekend it comes up Riverside. There, on the new International Motor Raceway, the Sports Car Club of America will run its 1957 national capper.

At this writing, the entry roster still is incomplete—and probably will be until post time. Nevertheless, the list of drivers competing is even more imposing that the list of those not competing.

And that's not as silly as it may sound with Ken Miles, Chuck Daigh, Pete Woods, Jean Kunstle, Lance Reventlow and Ricardo Rodriguez blacklisted and Phil Hill having no ride (to date).

On the plus side of the ledger, Carroll Shelby, Walt Hansgen, Masten Gregory, John von Neumann, Richie Ginther, Paul O'Shea, Bob Drake, Pete Lovely, Jack McAfee, and Max Balchowsky will run (barring accidents at Pebble Beach this weekend).

* * * *

ADDITION OF HILL, fresh from one of his biggest international wins (paired with Peter Collins in a factory Ferrari last weekend in Carracas, Venzuela), would really complete the dazzling lineup.

The course, too, has been improved since the recent opener there with the devastating Turn 6 reworked to eliminate the hazards that took such a toll. Paved parking lots, close spectator access to the pits and start-finish line and some landscaping should cut down dust and improve the onlooking.

* * * *

TOP CONTENDERS include Shelby in the John Edgar 4.5 litre Maserati. Gregory will pilot the 4.7 litre (bored out 4.5) factory Maserati he flipped last weekend at Carracas. It was only superficially damaged and is being brought to Riverside by Temple Buell.

Hansgen will drive one of Briggs Cunningham's 3.8 litre D-Jaguars. Charlie Wallace of the Washington, D.C. Lavender Hill Mob also may show in a Cunningham Jag.

Von Neumann will choose between two 2.5 litre Farrari Testa Rossas, one just off the boat last week, the other (his "old" one) equipped with a 3 litre Monza engine.

Ginther will pilot Edgar's 4.9 Ferrari, O'Shea a Mercedes-Benz 300SL roadster, McAfee a Porsche RS Spyder and a Ferrari.

With other hot stuff promised, the two-day meet on the beautiful road course should be the big one of the year. The track is located near March Field at Hwys. 60 and 395. Action starts at noon each day.

* * * *

THIS TROPHY business has gotten out of hand. Take, for example, the 200-pound, 6½ foot tall monster for top eliminator at today's Birthday Drag Meet at the Lions Associated Drag Strip here.

But the car clubbers and drag buffs like them imposing and the big chunk of tin should draw a formidable entry.

Action will run all day at the 223rd and Alameda Sts. speedway with the place open to contestants and spectators. Among entries is expected to be the Muddersbach-Dillon dragster from Phoenix.

* * * *

OTHER COMING events:

Pacific Coast Championship Steeplechase Motorcycle Race at Riverside Fairgrounds at noon today — postponed from last Sunday when it was rained out.

Amateur motorcycle scrambles races at Nail Flats behind the San Pedro Drive-in Theater on Gaffey St. all day today.

The Southern California MC sportsmen's scrambles today at Crater Bowl on Malibu Canyon Road.

A rally by the Douglas Sports Car Club to the Riverside races starting at 8 a.m. next Sunday from the Santa Monica Douglas parking lot, Ocean Park and Bundy. Open to all.

THE WILMINGTON Vulcans Car Club took the first place participation trophy—a 3½-foot tall affair—last weekend on the Wilmington Essenes Reliability Run.

David McDaniel, Wilmington Lords, won first place for individuals followed closely by William Brandes of the Mercedes-Benz Club of America.

Other individual winners were Gilbert Valles, Continentals, third, John Kripel, Continentals, fourth, and J. C. Bennet, Vulcans, fifth.

The Road Kings copped the sportsmanship cup, the Continentals the combined time laurels and the Furies, second place for participation.

The 320 people (175 cars) who made the run wound up at a dance in Wilmington. We hear the joint really rocked and the whole deal was a full custom, pin-striped, eight-barrelled bash.

Rossmoor Homes Appeal to Long Beach Families

More than 63 per cent of the home buyers at Rossmoor are from the Greater Long Beach area, reports Bill Cheney, of Walker & Lee, sales agents for the new 1200-acre community near Long Beach State College.

Cheney attributed the popularity of Rossmoor among Long Beach families to the convenient location of the new community.

"Of course, the choice of 7 floor plans and 30 exterior designs available at Rossmoor has also been a significant factor," Cheney said.

Modern, traditional two-story and California ranch house stylings are now available.

Proving particularly popular, Cheney noted, is the ranch house, which has from 1,440 to 1,658 square feet of living area.

* * * *

PRICED FROM $18,600, with newly authorized FHA down payments from $2,000, the ranch house includes a living room and den panelled in mahogany and white birch, with a choice of drop, cathedral or beamed ceilings. Kitchens have built-in dishwashers, ovens and ranges, a choice of wall refrigerators and built-in automatic washers and dryers.

The two-story Williamsburg home features 18x18 living rooms with wood-burning fireplaces and mahogany panelled walls; separate 12x13 dining rooms with traditional 18th century chandeliers; and all-electric built-in kitchens with birch-panelled walls, 24-inch oven and range, dishwasher, garbage disposal unit, and new electric hot food server.

* * * *

PRICED AT $26,500, the Williamsburg provides 2,390 square feet of living area, including 4 bedrooms, family room, and 2 full baths and a 2-car garage. Exteriors features Palos Verde stone, cedar shingle, and cedar shake shingle roofs.

Homes in the Starlite Modern series contain 4 bedrooms, living room, family room, 2 baths and a 2-car garage.

Priced from $24,700, the Starlight provides 1,740 square feet of living area. Its 15'8"x19'8" living room features walnut panelled walls and slumpstone fireplace.

Starlite built-in kitchens include walnut cabinets, fully automatic electric ovens, platform ranges, dishwashers, garbage disposal units and hot food servers.

Seven model homes are open daily from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

To reach Rossmoor, Long Beach families are advised to follow 7th St. past the Veterans Hospital to Los Alamitos Blvd., then left to the project.

THE WILLIAMSBURG

The traditional two-story home, the Williamsburg, shown here, is now available at Rossmoor, the new 1,200-acre community near Long Beach State College.

IN LINCOLN PARK MUTUAL

Abundant wallpaper, built-in gas range and oven, hood, natural cabinets, sliding glass doors, fireplaces are all part of the features offered at Lincoln Park Mutual Homes in West Anaheim.

Low Interest Asked on Holstein Homes

One of Southern California's outstanding financing plans is being offered at Lincoln Park Mutual homes in West Anaheim where both veteran or non-veteran can purchase for only $795 down and enjoy 5 per cent financing for 30 years, the builders, George M. Holstein and Sons, stress.

The plan is ideal for veterans who have already used their "GI benefits" and are anxious to 'step-up' in space and luxury, a spokesman for the builder said. The overall monthly payments are approximately $100 per month, the builder said, and pointed out the new financing eliminates balloon payments, due-dates, and other "extras."

THE LINCOLN PARK homes offer 3 and 4 bedroom plans with large dining areas, service porches, attached or detached garages, fireplaces, natural cabinets, built in range and oven, hardwood floors, sliding glass doors, forced air heat, and a score more luxuries, the Holstein organization declared. Prices start from $15,495.

Four Lincoln Park furnished model homes are located on Euclid at Crone in West Anaheim and can be reached via the Santa Ana Freeway to Anaheim. Turn right at the Lincoln (Carson) signal to Euclid and left on Euclid to the homes. From Long Beach the homes can be reached via Lincoln (Carson) to Euclid.

Luxury Trailer Park Nearly Filled Before It Is Finished

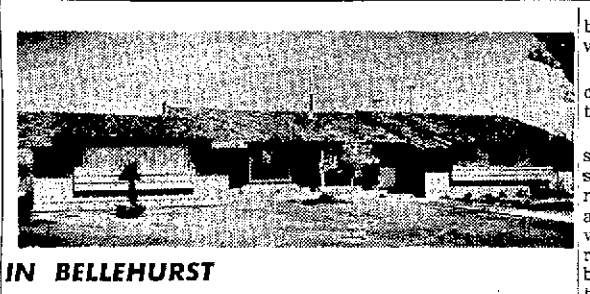

With 90 per cent of the space occupied, a planned open house for Long Beach Trailer Estates today will be more of a formal affair for the residents.

Located at 6541 Atlantic Blvd., just off Artesia St., the 7½-acre project is considered the showplace of trailer homesites in the Southland.

Developed by four Long Beach men, Robert and Eugene Kirkpatrick, Milt Arthur and Ely Somerville, there is a luxury setting for the 103 lots. There is a large central clubhouse and a heated swimming pool for the residents. Extensive landscaping was done throughout the area. Natural gas, power lines, TV lines, sewer and water all are piped to the individual lots via underground conduits.

Planned for quiet surroundings, the park does not permit children or pets. There is 5 miles of piping in the park, 1⅛ miles of redwood fencing, 1⅔ square miles of asphalt paving and 14,000 square feet of concrete paving, 100 miles of wiring and 40,000 square feet of patios. Mr. and Mrs. Gus Gillette manage the park.

Although it had been planned to conduct a public open house, so many of the lots already are occupied that today's affair will be limited. Mayor Ramond Kealer, city councilmen, members of the planning commission and Supervisor Burton Chace have been invited. Residents of the park also have invited guests.

IN BELLEHURST

Its long, low casual lines bespeak the comfort of this traditional California home, the Andover, in the new private country club community of Bellehurst. One of 15 distinctively styled home designs by James R. Wilde, AIA architect, the Andover is one of eight models furnished by W and J Sloane.

Los Coyotes Country Club Holds Dedication Parties

Dedication entertainments attended by social and business figures mark the opening of the million-dollar Los Coyotes Country Club at Buena Park, where two weeks of parties started Nov. 1. This will be high lighted on Nov. 13 with the largest gathering of all, according to W. D. Windisch, official of the organization, when the clubhouse and its adjoining $3 million golf course will be placed in service.

The country club development covers 257 acres of hilly land in a 900-acre residential community established in Orange County. The project has been set up to combine sports with suburban living.

THE 27,000-SQUARE-FOOT clubhouse is the center of the two weeks' festivities.

On an adjoining site, construction has begun on two swim pools, badminton and tennis courts and a unique teenage center. In the latter there will be a TV and a hi-fi room, recreation center and a snack bar. Additional family facilities will include a 24-hour nursery run by a registered nurse to free parents for club activities.

Women's golf instruction will be given by Betty Hicks. Selection of an equally noted male pro will be made soon.

All of the events will be climaxed on the night of the 13th, with an elaborate fete at which C. J. Jones of Long Beach, developer of Los Coyotes and its surrounding $40,000,000 residential community, will be host to more than 400 guests.

A SHERWOOD RANCHO HOME

New spacious homes in the styles of many countries such as this California Ranch Style, may be found at Sherwood Ranchos No. 4 in Costa Mesa. These homes, with a minimum of 1,500 square feet of floor space, may be reached by taking the Santa Ana Freeway to Harbor Blvd., go south to Costa Mesa. At Wilson Ave.—indicated by a Sherwood signboard, turn left to furnished models.

New Sherwood Ranchos Ideal for Large Family

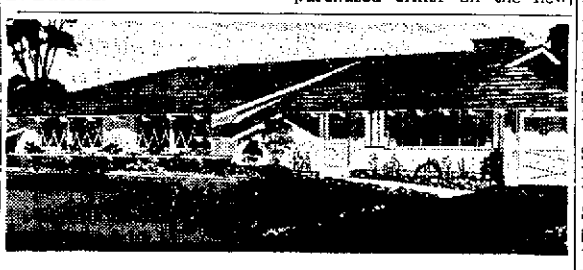

Only 45 custom-designed homes are in the new Sherwood Ranchos No. 4 development and each has a minimum of 1,500 square feet of actual living area, ideal for large families, according to the builder, George D. Buccola.

These spacious homes are designed in the styles of many countries and eras and are available with down payments as low as $495. The Sherwood Homes range in price from $15,200 to $16,500 and may be purchased either on the new, low FHA or conventional terms. Interest is at 6 per cent over 20 years, the builder said.

A WIDE RANGE of exterior designs, 16 in all, cover such style variations as rambling ranch, farmhouse complete to simulated hayloft; New Orleans contemporary with iron grillwork and even a New England home with roof-top "Captains Walk."

All Sherwood Rancho homes have a minimum of 3 bedrooms, family room, and 2 large bathrooms. There are wide hearth fireplaces and fully built-in kitchens. The oversize 2-car garages provide space for a family hobby-work shop.

IN BOLSA GARDENS

With a down payment of only $295 plus $90 costs, homes such as this are being offered in Bolsa Gardens with carpeting, drapes and curtains provided to reduce move-in costs to the buyers.

Extra Costs Slashed for Buyers in Bolsa Gardens

Today the home buyer wants a complete package without a lot of expensive extras when moving into a new home, states Gilbert J. Hayes, sales agent for Bolsa Gardens.

Move-in costs are cut to a minimum by providing wall-to-wall carpeting, traverse drapes and curtains with cornice boxes throughout these color coordinated pleasant homes.

Everything has been considered to keep costs where people of average income can live in a lovely new home without the strain of high payments after a high move-in cost, he added.

* * * *

DOWN PAYMENTS are $295 plus $90 costs and total payments including principal, interest, taxes insurance are only $89.50 per month.

Exterior elevations are available in 9 different styles and 3 different floor plans provide features of design to suit the most discriminating taste.

Hayes reports that early sales of this unusual home development package have been moving fast and an early sell-out of this first unit is expected.

The excellent location for schools, shopping, freeways, beaches and play areas is an additional attraction.

To visit these complete homes drive east on Carson to U. S. 39, south to Bolsa, east to Cannery, north to Bolsa Gardens.

Veterans may still be able to purchase Cinderella Homes on the quickly disappearing 4½ per cent GI loan, it was announced by an executive of the Cinderella by the Sea tract near Costa Mesa. They must purchase the homes within the next few weeks.

FEATURES include heavy shake shingles, long overhangs, massive fireplaces, with the homes situated on large lots. Buyers have a choice of 17 exteriors and several floor plans. Homes Near Beach Appealing; Marina Shores Sales Soaring

Attraction of luxuriously-planned, estate-class homes, built in a seaside, resort-like vacation area in Seal Beach, has drawn more than 20,000 visitors to Marina Shores, since recent grand opening of the fashionable new community.

Officials of Butler-Harbour Construction Co., citing millions of dollars in sale of both homes and view-lots for custom building, credited much of the buying enthusiasm to the desirability of living the year around in a vacation-like setting.

Record crowds and visitors were confirmed by Walker & Lee, sales agents, who said the five model residences, designed by two leading architectural firms, will continue open daily and Sunday at 600 S. Shore Dr., Seal Beach.

One display residence features a large swimming pool and two patio areas linked to the home by big sliding glass doors.

* * * *

BUYERS HAVE A CHOICE of 3 or four bedrooms and 2 luxury baths, while all homes have spacious family rooms. They are priced from $21,150 to $22,500 and both FHA and conventional financing are available.

"Thus far," a spokesman said, "visitors have shown as much interest in the fully developed lots ready for custom home building as in the model homes themselves. These sites, averaging 60 feet wide, with sewers, paved streets, curbs, sidewalks, ornamental street lights and utilities in and paid for, are priced in the $5,500 to $8,375 category."

Also attracting considerable interest, it was stated, are such features as hardwood oak floors, fireplaces with raised hearths and hoods in some models, mosaic tile tub enclosures and tile in the stall showers, electric ceiling heaters in some baths and heat lamps in others, and built-in gas ranges with thermal eye burners and gas ovens.

NEW LINCOLNS ON DISPLAY

Intriguingly new in every respect, the 1958 Lincoln Premiere introduces classic, sculptured lines, a long, low hood topped by a horizontal grille and canted dual headlamps. The 1958 Lincoln line is now on display at Harbor Lincoln-Mercury, 1633 American Ave.

'58 Model Lincolns Shown by Dealers

By ART STEPHAN
Independent, Press-Telegram Auto Editor

Six models of the 1958 Lincoln Premiere and Lincoln Capri, inspired by the styling of the Continental, are now on display at Lincoln dealerships across the nation.

In each line there is a four-door sedan, a four-door hardtop and a two-door hardtop coupe.

Designers and stylists enhanced the low, and long graceful lines of each Lincoln by complementing each model with the Continental roof line, canted dual headlamps, an extended long, low hood and a wide, sweeping rear deck lid.

Set between the canted dual headlamps is a horizontally-louvered grille with a massive flared bumper across the front. A Lincoln script on the left side of the grille gives the car distinctive identification.

* * * *

FROM THE SIDE, the Lincoln suggests the classic simplicity of the Continental profile. Along the side is a single strip of chrome which extends from the rear bumper to the middle of the front door. On Premiere models, the end of this molding is highlighted by an 8-pointed star.

The styling theme at the rear matches the front with an oval-shaped horizontally-louvered grille treatment. On either side are integrated tail lights and backup lights set into the grille. The bumper matches the chrome treatment on the lower portion of the rear deck lid which outlines and protects the oval-shaped grille.

The long, lithe silhouette of the Lincoln extends 229 inches in overall length while the over all height is 56.5 inches. Wheelbase has been increased to 131 inches, an increase of five inches over the 1957 models.

* * * *

THE 1958 LINCOLNS are built in a plant specifically designed for integrated body and frame construction.

This new method has allowed the designers to lower the height of the car, strengthen its torsional rigidity which resists body twisting effects on rough roads and provides built-in quality.

The floor pan, side panels, roof panels, quarter panels are all welded into one single unit.

Besides the styling inspiration of the Continental, the Lincoln power train will provide the same kind of performance as the Continental.

BEL AIR ROOM — Jim, Crooker, major domo at Beach City Chevrolet, has come up with a clever idea that should appeal to the fair sex in the area.

Jim, who very efficiently runs one of the top agencies in the west, decided that gals who are waiting for their Chevrolets to be serviced, should do it in glamorous surroundings.

So taking one of the storerooms at the Coast Hwy. agency, Crooker has done it over in pastel colors, soft-tone drapes and wall of cork. Aptly he's named it the Bel Air Room, it has that touch of Chevrolet class. It's right adjacent to the service department and you ladies can sit there, relax watch televeision and enjoy a cigaret while you're waiting for the Chevvy to be brought around.

FUNNY? — Brewster Gray, whom you might call "Mr. MG of Long Beach," having been an MG dealer here so many years, is a little bit chagrined about the publicity and advertising we carried last week on the opening of his big new plant at 3515 Atlantic Ave.

First of all, his ad read "open from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m." when of course everyone knows you can't do business being open only one hour a day.

Then, we spelled the name of his general manager as Clarence Colbert instead of Covert, and, if that wasn't enough, Max Briney, service manager, found his name was spelled Brieney.

Well, Brewster, there are days like that. Let's blame it on Sputnik.

Mink Stole Offered for Name of Homes

Model homes are completed, furnished and on display this week announced Gilbert J. Hayes, sales agent for Hintz Construction Co.'s newest development in West Anaheim. The striking styling of X-Homes has caused much activity and pre-selling while construction was starting and attracted many visitors, he added.

X-Homes is a temporary name for the development, he pointed out since the real name is to be selected from suggestions submitted by visitors.

A mink stole will be given to the person who names the development and a mink scarf for the best name for each of the three model homes, he added.

"THE ATTRACTIVENESS of X-Homes makes them look as luxurious as mink but they are actually only $295 down plus $90 costs to move in," said Hayes.

"Three and 4 bedrooms or 3 bedrooms and study, all with 2 baths and over 1300 sq. ft. of living area for as low as $13,495 is surprisingly reasonable, report homeseekers who know values.

"The large pool and patio-sized lots, fireplaces, decorative stone, and brick work in planters and fireplaces, natural ash cabinets, concrete drives and walks, louvered windows and many more expensive features all add up to the luxury best expressed as "Mink Stole Quality."

HAYES INVITES anyone to inspect X-Homes and submit a name for the development and model homes at the pre-showing.

Fourteen different exterior stylings are available in variation with three convenient central hall plans. Located in an area of $20,000 and up properties these choice family styled homes are a better than average investment.

To see the homes and enter the name contest, drive out 7th St. in Long Beach (which becomes Garden Grove Blvd.) to Hwy. 39, north to Katella and east to the furnished models. X-Homes are on Katella just west of Disneyland in West Anaheim convenient to freeways, shopping and beaches.

CALLED 'X HOMES' NOW

Visitors to the Hintz Co. development in West Anaheim can participate in a contest to name the new homes, the winner receiving a mink stole. This is one of the models now being shown with the unit merely called "X Homes" until named.

If You Are Looking For A Home Under $30,000

This is an invitation to those of you who have searched in vain for that quality home in the exclusive residential districts of the Greater Long Beach area.

If you're fed up with being offered ancient and decrepit homes which will require thousands of dollars in modernization and repair for exorbitant prices simply because the lots they are situated on are worth more than the houses themselves, then search no further. We have the answer to your dilemma.

We have under construction the only quality homes in a quality neighborhood in the entire Long Beach area which represent real value. These are the homes you've waited and hoped for.

Nowhere else can there be found the smartness of design—abundance of built-ins and the all-out luxury that is found here.

Never before have homes of this quality and class been offered in the Greater Long Beach area, reflecting such truly outstanding value.

With such outstanding value, we are necessarily limited in number, so don't delay and become a next-year buyer who pays thousands more for the same home.

NOW AND NOW ONLY is it still possible for you to choose the decor that reflects your own personality and taste by selecting from the professionally prepared decorator's layout, planned exclusively for these homes.

LONG BEACH 2, CALIF. SUNDAY, NOV. 10, 1957—SECTION W

We're Having a Ball!

There's something in the air, there's something in the wind. With all the talk this week centered on outer space, a person's first thoughts might conceivably dwell on satellites and mystery lights.

But baby moons and green flashings are far from the minds of Dames Club members. For them, the something-in-the-air is excitement; the something-in-the-wind is a grand ball.

Their world Saturday night will be one of gold and white as they enter Lakewood Country Club on the arms of their escorts. To harmonize with the glittering decorations few Dames Club members have chosen gold and white gowns for the festive occasion. Among these are Mrs. Milton Cantor, ball chairman, and Mrs. Thomas Wall, Dames president.

* * * *

WHILE FRIVOLITY bubbles on the surface, a note of solemnity underlies the party, for all proceeds will be given to the Sister Kenny Foundation.

Members and guests will dance from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. to the music of Jimmy Whetmore's orchestra.

Capably assisting Mrs. Cantor in handling pre-ball details are Mmes. Harry Stafford, Leonard Brock, James Collins, John Henderson, Duane Warner and Barbara Eckert.

Customarily before large parites, clubs divide into convivial small groups for cocktails in their homes, and Dames Club is no exception.

Mr. and Mrs. William Barry and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hazzard will co-host a gathering in the Hazzard home, 1830 Vuelta Grande Ave., consisting of Messrs. and Mmes. Bob Croxson, John Buckley, Norm Hastings, Bob Benson, Al Beach, Douglas Benwell, Robert Greenberg, Stan Allen, Claude Buckmann, Herb Cook, William Palmer, Wendell Goudy, Dan Tanahill, Sam Hardin, Frank Marshall, Robert Holland and Mrs. Donald Whitmyre.

Mrs. Glenn Giffen will wear a black peau de soie gown when she and her husband welcome Messrs. and Mmes. Robert Sturgeon, Jerry Gunther, William Moore Jr., Lee Krell, Norman Scott, Sid Pizer, Preston Johnson, Roy Parker, John Webb and Robert Sausa to their home at 3250 Chestnut Ave.

* * * *

A BUFFET SUPPER is being planned by Mr. and Mrs. Patrick E. Dixon, 3102 San Anselmo Ave. Their guests will include Messrs. and Mmes. Robert McDonnell, Dean Jones, Glenn Anderson, John B. Dixon, Gene Dreckman, Robert Carter, Joseph Spinelli and Lee Meenshuber.

Cocktail guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hall, 3025 Marwick Ave., will be Messrs. and Mmes. George Brenner, Dan E. Budnick, David Miller, Carroll Simon, Robert Pugh, Richard Russell, Stuart Wall, Fred McKibben, Milton Churchill and Sidney Ellis.

On the guest list of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Williams for cocktails are Messrs. and Mmes. Bob Lemon, James Pino, Fred Wolcott, Harry Stevens, Walter Strawinski, James Nagle, Gilmer Millie, Stanley Weiss, P. I. Wilsey Jr., Harold Horrocks, Chris Conway, William Gillis, Miss Helen Pickett and John Dood.

Mrs. Williams will be attired in a green and silver brocade sheath with flowing chiffon back panel when she and her husband greet their guests in their home, 1121 Claiborne Dr.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stafford will give a pre-ball party for Dr. and Mrs. Richard Blowers and Dr. and Mrs. Earl Wallace and Messrs. and Mmes. Robert Hill, Ted Peacock, Harold Hirst, Dale Dalton, Don Wilson, John McCutcheon, Ed Wentworth, Gale Houser, Larry Shoe, Lenny Shoe, Ronald Dean, Robert Wilmont, Robert Gracely, Robert Folger, William Siels, Jed Crain, Robert Ludwig, John Mendiza, Robert Ray and Al McConville.

Sigma Kappa Alumnae Plan Nov. 22 Toy Fete

When Sigma Kappa Alumnae of Long Beach meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Alex F. J. Hansen, 2621 E. 1st St., they will complete plans for a toy party to be given Nov. 22 in the Lorne Middough home.

In other business, Mrs. John Dillard will report on arrangements for Sigma Kappa Founders Day to be celebrated Nov. 17. The 83rd anniversary of the organization will be marked by a dinner at 2 p.m. in La Ronde Rue restaurant. Mrs. R. J. Kettenburg of San Gabriel and Mrs. John Dillard of Long Beach are in charge of reservations and will be assisted by presidents of local alumnae groups from Glendale, West Los Angeles, Van Nuys, Whittier, Arcadia and Long Beach.

Mrs. Everett L. Nicklaus, president of Southern California Council, will preside. Members of Gamma Theta Chapter, Long Beach State College, and of Alpha Omicron Chapter, UCLA, will assist.

National officers attending will include Mrs. William Greig, national Panhellenic chairman, and Mrs. Edward Douglas Jr., national rush chairman. Honored guests will be members who have belonged to the sorority for 45 years or more.

HERALDING the coming gala holiday season, gold and white have been chosen as color motif for the Dames Club ball. Immersed in a discussion as they fashion glamorous decorations are, from left, Mrs. Thomas F. Wall, Mrs. Leonard Brock and Mrs. James F. Collins.—(Staff photos.)

PUTS YOU in a festive mood just looking at all the glittering decorations, doesn't it? As decorative as the golden spheres and medallions are these Dames Club members, from left, Mrs. Duane Warner, Mrs. Harry Stafford and Mrs. Milton Cantor, chairman of the club's ball Saturday night in Lakewood Country club. Many cocktail parties will precede affair.

Let's Go Traveling---Say to the Enchanting Hill Towns of Italy

By ILKA CHASE

Orvieto, Assisi, San Gimignano, Perugia, Siena . . . the names of the Italian hill towns sing and it is hard to say which casts the greatest magic. There is another town, however, about which there is no doubt—Ravenna. The last link with civilization before the Dark Ages set in in Europe is Dogpatch. Today that is. Things were different in the fifth and sixth century and the great mosaics that make the town worth a visit date from that time. The Byzantine architecture and the mosaics-scenes from the Christian legend-majestic, ablaze with color, are well worth while, but there's no use staying overnight as we did.

We did it because it broke the long trip from Florence to Venice, but we recall the beds and food of the Jolly Hotel without affection and the place itself is drab.

THE OTHER TOWNS, however, stand in Fair, Sunny: Spring Fashion Prediction

By MARY LOU ZEHMS
Independent, Press-Telegram Women's Editor

LOS ANCELES, Nov. 5—There are great artists and technicians creating new products for us to live better, longer and happier. The great artists in the women's apparel industry in California are not the least of these—for if a woman is well dressed she is certainly happier. Four great artists in the field of design, Edith Small, Howard Greer, Irene and Rex, were hosts one afternoon this week to the fashion editors attending the seventh annual national Press Week by California Fashion Creators.

First we were taken from our field of operations, the Beverly Hilton Hotel, by bus (there are 73 of us here) to the Beverly Hills Hotel for a delightful champagne luncheon with Edith Small as our hostess. While a string trio played in the background, Miss Small did the commentary as 50 of her new spring suits, costumes and dresses were modeled on a long ramp set in the middle of the luncheon room.

* * * *

EDITH SMALL'S creations certainly have a new look—this next season you will find the 40 inch straight silk coat to be worn over tight sheaths (the only fullness is in back from the shoulders to the waist); the broader shoulder is back; short in front; waistlines are low-placed.

And, all her ensembles are very, very short, at least 17" from the floor. She remarked, "I'm afraid the chemise look is going to take over completely"—so in the line are a few dresses reminiscent of the 1920's—and although they were applauded, several of the editors looked questionably when asked if they would include one such dress in their spring wardrobe.

* * * *

BACK TO the bus and we were on our way to Rex's hat salon—to see the ensemble completed. His great artistry is unsurpassed and everything he creates is with a loving touch.

This year his new look in hats is fabric. If you can get a half a yard of material from the dress designer after you purchase the suit or dress of your choice, Rex will make up the hat.

Of course he is at his best in the flowered hats—appliqued roses on straw hat brims, silk poppies on a small dinner hat—a single red rose on a green satin turban and another graced with pearl lilies of the valley.

We saw more of his hats when we spent an hour in Irene's Salon for he created all the fabric hats to match her suits.

Howard Greer invited all the fashion editors to his salon for a preview of his new line for spring.

As we view each new collection by a California designer, we are given a fact sheet explaining what that individual creator is trying to achieve in clothes for women.

Greer has done such a magnificent job of his fact sheet that I am quoting from it:

"If you're expecting the sack look in our spring and summer collection, you're in for a disappointment.

"OVER THE past several decades designers have searched frantically for new hooks upon which to hang their seasonable foibles. Japan, India, Egypt and the South Seas have been exploited. The Spanish bolero, the Eskimo's parka and the bronze circlets of the giraffe-necked women of Africa have had their day.

Periods and personalities of history have alternately shared the spotlight. Even the alphabet was looted from A to Z to describe otherwise undescribable fashions.

"Women have been asked . . . ASKED? TOLD! . . .at intervals to resemble open umbrellas, shooting arrows and winged sausages.

"The time has come, we think, to eschew periods and personalities, Broadway hits and reigning sovereigns, dead courtesans and science fiction fantasy as sources of inspiration. The time has come, we think, to return quite simply and unaffectedly to a

SLEEKLY TAILORED, gold and black silk check suit with contrasting black faille trim on jacket and skirt is Edith Small's way of welcoming spring (that's right—spring!) during Fashion Press Week in Los Angeles. She predicts shorter skirts.

EMPEROR'S LADY, a formal gown for a grand occasion, is designed by Howard Greer of gold embroidered white velvet flowers on white silk organza. Bodice is draped to one side; narrow sheath is covered by two floating panels that form side trains. Worn with white gloves, satin shoes.

REGAL MAGNIFICENCE for a grand entrance describes this dramatic and feminine gown of pure taffeta from Irene's spring collection. The rose, the designer's signature, "grows" superbly against a white background.

AN OVERTURE to Thanksgiving entitled Golden Harvest Ball by Suchfunsky will be played at Virginia Country Club Nov. 23 to open the winter season on a high note. Conducting the party concert are Edna and Bill Abrams and assisting with a really masterful arrangement are co-chairmen Pat and John Connolly. Among others who are adding their own ideas to the score are Marge and Al Davis, Eleanor and Roy Brown, Marge and Loren Conley, Nancy and Bill Brooks, Dr. Robert and Catherine Blake and Ann and Andrew Gaydash.

"High note"

Understand that the committee doesn't think it will be necessary to gild the lily for this formal dinner dance—just everything else, including pumpkins, cornstalks and maybe themselves in the process.

SPEAKING OF Virginia, those men who claim that the way women play golf is spooky missed the chance of a lifetime to say "Ah-ha! told you so" if they weren't present last week to watch the gal golfers annual costume Halloween tournament. Thelma Cone copped first prize for her Vampira get-up. She wore a black wig that looked like it might have belonged to the first Neanderthal woman with snakes crawling through and out of it. For beauty marks she glued some big, black spiders to her cheeks and as if that wasn't enough she even "wore" a wriggling turtle.

Julia Cheney marched away with second prize for her Groucho Marx rig complete with wriggling eyebrows, tent-size nightshirt, cigar and owl-eyed glasses. Kay Roggeveen came as "one of the girls" in a burlap sack, black velvet hat and a mask only a werewolf could love. Even Pearl McInnes got into the act and panicked the crowd by donning a Frankenstein mask to serve the pre-luncheon witches brew.

There is some talk, we understand, of drumming Tressa Slausson and Libby Spawr out of the corps. No wonder. Those two came dressed as the most glamorous Indian maidens seen in this country since Sitting Bull got up and walked away.

DO YOU know why children of Sandlark members are so angelic these days? Their mothers have 'em confused, that's why. All the kids have been hearing about is decorating Christmas trees! Now, as any child under 7 can tell you, when that kinda talk is rampant St. Nick's got his notebook out keeping track. What the angels with smudged faces don't realize is that their mothers are way ahead of Santa Claus as they complete arrangements for Sandlark's bigger every year Christmas Fantasy—an open to the public show of unusual and beautiful holiday decorations and trees entered in competition by business firms, artists and just plain townspeople like you and me. It's to take place in the Red Velvet Room of the Lafayette Hotel on Dec. 5.

"Early angels"

Beth Hannaman had a doughnuts and coffee party at her home Wednesday night for the committee and it was decided they would continue to accept entries for a few more days. Particularly in the women's club competition, a new category this year, being chairmanned by Phylis DeLance. Doris Marsh is in charge of all other entries and Gloria Grandle is general fantasy major domo.

KNIGHTS OF the kilocycles or angels of the antenna would be a much more appropriate name for those amateur short wave radio men than "ham operators" as far as Lydia Jones is concerned and, here's why. Her son, Vincent Jones and his bride the former Laurine Ellis of Berkeley, who have been honeymoon traveling in their own private plane through South America, "telephoned" the other night from Trinidad via a "ham" operator there and a connecting station in Beverly Hills. No time limit on that conversation! Lydia learned the newlyweds would be in Long Beach in a couple of weeks with plans to stay here until at least the first of the year.

HERE'S A mathematical problem you won't even have to take your shoes off to solve. Add a roomful of good friends to one pleasant evening. Multiply by good hosts Kay and "Scrub" Elliott. The answer is last night when the Elliotts entertained at a little dinner party for close friends. Kay whipped up an ample potful of beef stroganoff and while it simmered "Scrub" kept saying, "May I fix you another one?", and usually he could. Afraid to get on the scales this morning due to calorie excesses last night are Barrie and Margaret Stimson, Elva and Dick Lawson, Vivian and Short West, Kay and Buford Smith, Kay and John Roggeveen, Cleone and Sol Deeble, Pat Cameron and Ed Davies.

THE DOCTOR said, "You can go home, if you like" to Sue Wright at the hospital last Sunday and he didn't have to say it twice or even very loud the first time. Recuperating is much more pleasant out there on Lemon Ave., according to the patient. Besides, husband Fred is easier to bluff than some stern-eyed nurse when it comes to disobeying medical orders.

OF COURSE it was fun to keep bumping into Long Beach people unexpectedly in the lobby of the Waldorf Astoria in New York for Norma and Bill Harris, who returned Monday night from their travels, but on the other hand it made their days in Gotham seem unreal. Sort of like they were actually in the Lafayette lobby and just pretending. At one time or another here are the people they met—Les Still Jr., Laura and Wally Jacobson, Joe Bishop, "Frenchy" Amar, Bob Metzger and Cleo and Ted Bowman.

Gyro Club Presents Big Horror Show

If Naomi and Chuck Chandler's house was equipped with a theater marquee they could have lit up the place last night with a sign reading, "Now Playing. A Gyro Club Production, the Year's Biggest Horror Show." Actually, it was a costume party left over from Halloween and yiiiipes! what characters!

"Yiiiipes!"

As if the decorations, including glowing skeletons, a make believe corpse and howling black cats weren't weird enough people like Ann and Berry Merritt came as that gruesome twosome, Vampira and Dracula. Pat and Jim Collins arrived driving an old, black hearse—dressed as an undertaker and an angel!

Others who received the sinister invitations, printed on bleached bones and sent in jet black boxes, were Frances and Alan Bonzer and Marilyn and Larry Bonzer, Isabel and George Cadwallader, Bea and Gib Millie, Dorothy and Jim Nagle, Mary and Jack Failkins, Gertrude and Hugh Gibbs, Mona and Paul Henderson, Pauline and Ed Simons, Smitty and Harry Stevens, Dorothy and Walt Strawinski, Geneva and Stan Weiss, Elaine and Don Will, Mary Edna and Floyd Williams, Dorothy and Woody Wilsey, Millie and Frank Vessels, Ann and Julius Molina, Mary Stanton, John Dodd and Dr. Frank Bowan.

Russia Topic for Lakewood Republicans

His recent itinerary also included visits to Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia. With his topic, "A Look at the New Look in Russia," Dr. Miller uses his own films to portray a dramatic and enlightening picture of life in Russia today.

With the president, Mrs. Joseph N. Striegel, presiding, election and installation of club's new officers for 1958 will be the most important business. Mrs. Russell Brougher, chairman of Los Angeles County central committee, 18th District, will be special guest and will install officers.

BEAUTIFUL, blonde and stately Irene was our last hostess for the day. To wear an Irene suit or dress I'm sure is the ultimate achievement of every well dressed woman. Top fashion model, Maruja, expressed it so well when she said, "Irene creates for love." And it is undeniable—the lines, the details, the applique, the treatment of lace—all bespeak the love of her great art. And, there is a timeless quality to her designs. Nothing is faddy or for the moment. Her clothes can be worn from year to year with equal pride.

To wind up this inspiring day, we were dinner guests at the Mocombo and there was another of the great artists—song stylist Ella Fitzgerald—as great in her art as the designers are that we just visited.

Although the week is now over, we will be bringing our readers more news of California fashions for spring in the following weeks.

Italy Intrigues Travel Scribe

glory, enduring monuments to the past. To me one of the highlights of our entire trip was the frescos by Giotto in the church of St. Francis of Assisi. Naive and endearing, they are superb in color and design. But like much of the great art of Italy they are hard to see. We were there on a cloudy afternoon and it was hard to discern them in the gloom.

When one thinks of the centuries they have been there and the wealth of the Catholic Church it seems curious they have never been properly lighted. Were I Mr. Rockefeller, that would be one of my projects and oddly enough, in the long run, I think it would give just as much pleasure, if of a slightly different kind, to just as many people as trying to keep the Dodgers in New York.

The church of St. Francis is the most famous monument in Assisi, but quite as lovely in its way is the small and exquisite Temple of Minerva in the upper square. It is the color of dark honey and was built long before the birth of Christ.

THE MEDIEVAL FORTRESS town of Perugia still stands, but the old walls are largely obscured by modernity and it is very noisy. Unfortunately, it is the spiritual aspect that causes the trouble. Religion in Italy is loud, early and discordant. The church bells start before 6 o'clock and they clang without harmony, reverberating through the narrow streets of the towns and one, this one I am afraid, is moved not so much to contemplation of matters spiritual as to irritation at having been awakened at dawn after a day of intensive sight-seeing.

Among the sights worth seeing in Perugia are two rooms: The Merchant's Guild and the Stock Exchange of the 14th Century. The panels and benches, almost like pews, are superbly carved and there is a charming small chapel adjoining, its altar gay with painted bouquets.

My thoughts also dwell lovingly on San Gimignano where the patient oxen walk the furrows and where the strange square, quiet towers rise into the sky, the skyscrapers of the Middle Ages.

But I suppose of the lot Siena is the pearl. Siena with its shell-like Piazza Del Campo, the shape of a lion's paw, and with its magnificent Gothic Town Hall and Campanile.

WE LUNCHED at La Speranza, a restaurant facing the Hall across the Piazza in sunshine and shadow and it was all the good doctor could do to down his pasta, so involved was he with picture taking. Three kinds of cameras.

Then, too, there is the Cathedral, the Duomo as Italian churches are called, which must stand as one of the most magnificent examples of religious architecture in the world. For the church of Siena one rings out all the adjectives—superb, imposing, magnificent, colorful, yet it is still somehow intimate. More personally appealing than St. Peter's while richer in treasure, marble and mosaics than Orvieto. It was built in the 14th Century and has, heaven be praised, been spared through the ages to gladden the hearts and eyes of thousands of travelers who have gazed upon it as well as the lucky Sienese who live beside it.

Twice a year, on July 2nd and August 16th, the town relives its splendid past when the young men of Siena's 17 wards don the costumes of the 15th Century and march in a great procession with banners and join in a wild horse race. The festivity is called the Palio which means banner and it is something I want to see. Would the doctor get pictures on that great day! Wow!

WINE LUNCHEON

THE COLLECTION of Rembrandt etchings in the Museum of Art is lent by the Achenbach Foundation for Graphic Arts and first was shown in the California Palace of the Legion of Honor in San Francisco during the summer of 1956. It is one of the most comprehensive exhibitions of the great Dutch master's etchings recently offered on the West Coast. Included are Rembrandt's portrait of the preacher Cornelis Sylvius, 1634; "Raising of Lazarus," 1642, and "Three Crosses," 1653.

The exhibition of "Young American Painters," circulated by the Museum of Modern Art, New York, is one of a series of shows intended to acquaint the public with the works of artists not yet widely known.

"Nineteenth Century American Landscape Drawings" lent by the Corcoran Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C., shows the work of famous landscape painters, including Whistler, Blakelock, John S. Sargent, William S. Mount, Worthington Whittredge and Thomas Moran.

The MacLean exhibition includes oil paintings and collage works covering a variety of subjects including landscape and figure studies, completed by the artist in the past three years.

Albums for Small Fry

Young America's listening nowadays is receiving the same serious treatment in record making as is given to discs for adults.

Whether it's a recording of Brahms' Lullaby for a new album for sleepy heads or the songs of Walt Disney to the accompaniment of a 30-piece orchestra, each phase of the recording, from selection of the subject to the choice of the artist and the actual production of the record, receives the attention of an expert in his particular field.

Mothers are discovering what records can do not only in keeping the youngsters amused but in developing in them an ear for good music.

The traditional children's classics—Pinocchio, Cinderella, Aladdin and Sleeping Beauty—are now obtainable on lp records.

All of the albums have four-color illustrations to make them attractive to the eye as well as the ear.

Sputnik, Muttnik—Let's Visit Paris!

An outstanding group of color travel films will be screened at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Los Altos Branch Library, 5614 Britton Dr., by Miss Nina Boyle, film librarian at the Main Library.

"Paris on the Seine," a beautiful camera study of the "Queen of Cities," and "In Paris Parks," a personal view of children in Paris will be shown first. Following a brief intermission "Madeline," Ludwig Bemelman's delightful story of a lovable little girl and "Lascaux — Cradle of Man's Art" will complete the program.

The public is invited. There is no admission charge.

By RACHEL MORTON

The Ford Foundation has recently allotted $760,000 for five projects; three in music, one in drama and one in art. Considering the Foundation's multi-million grants to education and its own vast resources, the Arts come out at the lean end of the horn!

Why are the Arts so neglected in this country? Why are artists in America looked upon as poor relations, entitled to little better than handouts? (And I don't mean Ford handouts!)

Of course I know the answer. Success in American terms is synonymous with MONEY. Artists seem mostly to be paupers.

In Europe it is not so. Art with the Europeans is the highest achievement of man, and an artist, whether an actor, a musician or a painter is the idol of the people.

* * * *

JUST NOTE the contrast. In this rich country of ours musicians who have spent their lives perfecting their art to a point where they are eligible to an "improved contract" with a major symphony orchestra can be assured of only 32 weeks of employment and a $5,000 salary.

In some cities, so-called major symphony orchestras have seasons of only 20 weeks and pay salaries of $100 a week. Imagine trying to live and support a family on that kind of money! Naturally the musician must hustle around for some other work to augment his meager pittance. Is this fair? Is this democratic? Is this human? Especially considering what plasterers and painters and carpenters are getting today.

* * * *

HOW DO the Europeans sponsor Art? The governments of France, Italy and Germany have subsidized conservatories in every major city where talented youth may have four years of superior training in all branches of the Arts, absolutely free. But the pupil, if successful, is obliged to pay back to the government what his training has cost.

And what of the graduate? Is he left to flounder around alone after he leaves school? Not at all. Subsidized opera houses, symphony orchestras and art galleries with continous exhibits, all are waiting to absorb the new talent. The people in Europe enjoy the Arts, not only as entertainment, but as education.

* * * *

WHEN I WAS in Germany after World War I there were 154 opera houses giving performances in the German cities every night, while the movies were sparsely attended. After World War II, Vienna rebuilt her opera house, though there was scarcely enough to eat. On Lake Como, in Italy, one summer I used to hear boatloads of people sailing by, singing lustily all the loved opera airs. In France one sees groups of eager faces scanning the week's opera schedule pasted on the cylindrical disks on every corner. Yes, the European loves music, loves beauty, loves culture. And the last thing that concerns a European artist is getting rich. (That is, until they strike America.)

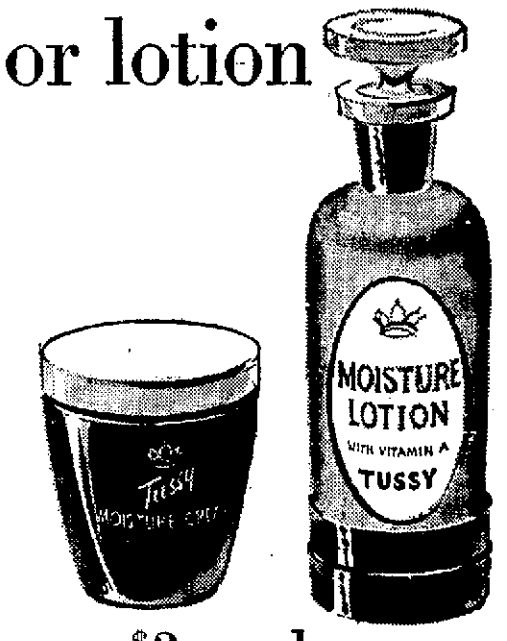

As long as there is recurrent life there will be artists, sensitive people who want, more than anything else, to give expression to the God-sparked talent within them. Where shall these talented ones find opportunity in our country?

Perhaps the Ford Foundation will consider the European way of sponsoring and subsidizing Art. Let the Foundation set up art and music centers in all our great cities with opportunities for study and opportunities for expression and most of all, opportunities for earning commensurate with the rare gift that is an artist's.

Days of Forty-Niners

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS

—by PLACER MINER—

The pace of student activities at Long Beach State College this next week slows down a bit in comparison to the action-packed days just ended. With the hustle and bustle of Homecoming out of the way, we would venture a guess that some Staters might even be able to squeeze in a few hours for study.

No books for Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority and Phi Kappa Tau Fraternity tonight, however. The two are having an exchange from 8 p. m. to midnight in the Soroptimist House. The theme is Ivy League, and refreshments, singing, and dancing are on tap.

TUESDAY NIGHT sees CSTA (California Student Teachers' Association) in their second meeting of the year in the Soroptimist House at 8 p. m. to hear a panel discussion, "Children Speak."

Pupils from the fourth and sixth grades, junior high, and senior high will talk about school, teachers, likes, and dislikes. Gordon Klein, program chairman, will moderate, and refreshments will be served.

The committee, taking note of the successful last meeting when attendance was so good that there were not enough chairs, urged, "Y'all come—more chairs have been obtained."

FOOTBALL GAME FRIDAY with Cal Poly marks the end of the 1957 season, and to take note of the event Associated Men Students are sponsoring an after-the-game-dance in the cafeteria.

Young ladies on campus will be admitted free, but males will have to fork up 25 cents in order to avail themselves of the chance to dance with the girls of their choice.

Refreshments will be served at the dance, the first of several activities planned by AMS during the current school year.

SATURDAY SEEMS a busy day, with three major happenings scheduled.

First, the CSTA is active again, this time trekking to Mt. Saint Mary's College in Los Angeles for a professional problems conference. The day-long session will be devoted mainly to panel discussions centering around teaching ethics, NEA, provisional credentials, and other subjects dear to a teacher's heart.

Another group which hits the road Saturday is Delta Zeta Sorority; they are headed for nearby UCLA where they will initiate the Delta Sigma Epsilons into the DZ organization.

Incidentally, were Ol' Placer Miner's eyes deceiving him, or did he see a Delta Zeta Homecoming Queen poster with "Homecoming" spelled with two "e's"?

Back to your fifth grade spellers, girls, or you'll never keep the scholarship trophy your sorority won last year!

Saturday is also the time for the monthly get-together of Omega Alpha Delta, Professional Women's Service Group. They have scheduled a potluck luncheon in the Soroptimist House. Recipes from A to Z are expected in response to chairman Andre Meyer's invitation to members to bring their "best dish" and the recipe so others may copy it.

Nellie Pyeatt, Ruthe Duvalle, Mabel Leyba and Genevieve Jenkins will be on hand to decorate the festive board in real Thanksgiving style.

Can't close without taking note of a truly fine production, "Medea," which opens a three-night run at the LBSC Little Theater on Thursday night. And we suppose we should also mention Veterans Day—a school holiday Monday which we surmise is the most popular listing on the entire week's calendar.

Do-It-Yourself Yule Program

A program of "Do It Yourself for Christmas" gift, decoration and wrapping ideas will be given when Recent Grads group of American Association of University Women meets at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Richard L. Rutgers.

Mrs. Robert B. Rose, program chairman of the main group, will discuss future meetings of interest.

Betrothal Announced

A party in the Long Beach home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Orloff on Nov. 3 served to reveal the engagement of their daughter, Louise Orloff, to Jerry Schwartz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schwartz. A July wedding is planned.

The bride-elect received her early schooling in Canada and is a psychology major at Long Beach City College where her fiance is a student of education. He attended high school in Los Angeles.

Story League

Long Beach Story League will meet at 1 p.m. Monday in the home of Mrs. Charles Carver, 18103 S. Jersey St., Artesia. Dessert luncheon will precede the program. Mrs. Rose E. Berry will preside and visitors are welcome.

AMONG CAREER WOMEN

Some Facts About Work and Widows

By ANNE GILCHRIST

Widows, a new book plus some recent survey figures add up to an interesting and timely topic for discussion in this column concerning working women.

A nationally conducted survey recently disclosed that of the country's more than eight million widows almost half of them are employed at full-time or part-time jobs. In reference to the new book, "How to Be a Successful Widow," author R. Louis Zalk points out that a surprisingly large number of widows seek work to overcome the destructive consequences of loneliness and inactivity. He strongly recommends employment as a very real source of satisfaction and as a well-paved highway leading to new friends and interests; an invaluable aid to readjustment.

* * * *

IT WOULD seem that age is no serious obstacle to employment for more than a quarter of the working widows are in the 65-69 years of age group. Even more interesting is the fact that some half million women in the over-70 group are working regularly.

The severe emotional experience of widowhood and the after effects of fear, depression and loss of self-confidence are overwhelming. For many women their troubles seem to be compounded by the pressing need for financial security. And getting a job often is a job in itself for women who have had little if any career experience. But once achieved it is a rich source of satisfaction to widows.

Zalk says that helping the widow evaluate her capabilities in terms of employment is the first step. He lists seven general employment categories to be studied.

* * * *

1. DOMESTIC service—There is always a market for such help. The average widow's housekeeping experience has left her fully trained for such a job.

2. Light industry—The natural dexterity of women can be used to good advantage in many lines of manufacturing.

3. Agriculture—Farm wives frequently are able to turn their knowledge of produce, dairy products and the like into profitable small business ventures.

4. Office work—This is a highly competitive field and offers opportunity only to the widow with basic business skills who is alert and energetic.

5. Sales—Retail selling is well suited to the feminine temperament and offers satisfaction to the neat and personable widow who has been active in social, club and church circles and thus is accustomed to dealing with a variety of people.

6. "At Home" employment—This is an increasingly popular means of making an income while taking care of household duties and responsibilities. Inventiveness and a particular ability can combine to make it a well-paid career.

7. Professional work—Of all categories this is perhaps the most difficult for an older woman to enter as a career. Extensive training and rigorous hours are the obstacles.

For the widow who doesn't need the extra income of employment or whose health makes regular work impossible, there are many, many "jobs" open for the asking to give her life incentive and meaning. These jobs are open to all in work for Red Cross, Civil Defense, Community Volunteer services and in dozens of club and church groups whose main object is help others.

Insurance Women

The do's and don't's of "dressing up" a home were explained to Insurance Women of Long Beach at their dinner meeting Thursday conducted in the Boulevard Room of the Lafayette Hotel by guest speaker Elizabeth Norberg Hodgkin, interior decorator associated with Anne Phillips. She was introduced by Roberta Gordon, program chairman.

Pauline Kincaid, president, welcomed several guests, prospective members especially bidden to this meeting. Plans were completed for the club's annual bosses night in December and it was announced that a family has been adopted to receive special attention at the holidays.

DEFENSE CHIEF

Long Beach Medical Assistants' distinguished guest speaker for their Monday night dinner meeting in Morgan Hall will be Mrs. Lovilla Lalor, director of women's activities for the eight western states of Federal Civil Defense Region Seven. This area's Civil Defense leaders have expressed keen interest in her appearance here.

100 Greet Newlyweds

Approximately 100 guests greeted newly married Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Ted Schwarz Nov. 3 at a reception from 4 to 6 p.m. at Balboa Bay Club. The bride, the former Mrs. Illene Stanlea Kimbrell, of Newport Beach, received in a Dior original gown of champagne slipper satin.

Members of their immediate families witnessed the double-ring wedding service performed Oct. 11 in Seattle, Wash. The couple is now residing in Long Beach.

The new Mrs. Schwarz received her education in San Antonio, Tex. Her husband attended Texas University and the American Academy at Rome.

DINING OUT IN PASO ROBLES
. . . And so's his old man!

Something for the Boys

Back From Bay City With Horrible Tale

By TED KREC

I have just returned from a week in San Francisco, and I'd like to say for the record that our men-about-town would do well to take a leaf from the book of the boys in the fog capital.

Dining out in the Bay City is a genuine pleasure fashion-wise. I didn't see a sport shirt in a restaurant all week, and when a diner would get up to leave, he'd reach up on a peg and take down—you guessed it—a hat!

I noticed, too, in my meanderings around Shakyville that the European influence is making itself felt in men's wear. I saw countless displays of imported styles in the store windows and on the streets.

Of course, the business suit still is holding its own up there and the Ivy or natural look predominates.

* * * *

MY WIFE and I drove up to San Francisco, and thereby hangs a dandy tale.

We left on Sunday by way of the Hollywood Freeway and out Ventura Blvd. to Hwy. 101. On the way, I was making a silent survey of styles in men's clothes. (My wife will argue about that term 'silent." Guess I did get a bit vociferous at times.)

Through Long Beach, Los Angeles and the Ventura Blvd. area, the men were about evenly divided—careless dressers and neat, correct dressers. I did see quite a few sports-shirted and coatless men coming out of restaurants.

In Ventura we stopped for a cup of coffee and went into a beautiful little place. There wasn't a coat or tie in the room! All the men were wearing open-neck sport shirts despite the fact that it was Sunday afternoon and they were taking their well-dressed wives out to dinner!

But the show-stopper came in Paso Robles. There we stopped at the very fashionable Paso Robles Inn for a bite to eat. While sitting at the curved counter, I happened to glance at the lad next to me, and I must confess the sight gave me quite a start. He looked very sheepish. By this I do not mean he looked meek and timid—he looked like a sheep, and a sheep badly in need of shearing, at that!

He was about 14 or 15 and was clad in a ratty T-shirt, baggy slacks, clod-hopper shoes and big, wide suspenders. But it was his hair that fascinated me most. In the back and on the sides it was as long as a girl's hair, and he had it arranged fetchingly—right over his face. I'm afraid I stared in bewilderment, wondering how he was going to get his food through the hirsute tangle. In fact, I didn't rest easy about it until I saw his fork disappear into this portable coco mat and saw him swallow. Then, at least, I knew he wasn't going to die of malnutrition.

* * * *

"WHAT KIND of a family must he have," I whispered hoarsely to my wife, "to let him appear in public looking like a dirty ball of yarn?"

"See for yourself," she said. I craned my neck around and looked past the lad—never fearing embarrassment about staring, for he couldn't possibly see me through that mop. His parents were seated right next to him.

The kindest thing I can say about his mother was that I honestly don't remember what she looked like; but his father was dressed in a ratty T-shirt, baggy slacks, clod-hopper shoes and big, wide suspenders. And he couldn't see me, either, because his hair was as long as a girl's hair on the sides and in the back and he, too, had it arranged fetchingly—right over his face!

And then as the sun sank slowly in the west, I pointed the prow of my valiant Volvo northward and took my leave of Paso Robles—vowing never to return again!

Nobody Wins Arguments Between Men and Women

By RUTH MILLETT

It's a mistake for a woman ever to argue with a man. There are a lot of sound reasons behind that conclusion as all truly feminine women eventually will agree.

A woman never is less feminine than when she is attempting to prove a man wrong. What woman would rather be right than be feminine?

The man's ego can't be overlooked. When a woman tells a man he is wrong and can prove it, she is putting him in a position where he has to defend his stand even if he is convinced she is right. How can he happily admit that a woman has bested him in an argument?

If a woman does occasionally win a man's grudging, "OK, maybe you're right," she drives a wedge between their mutual admiration for each other. For a while at least, he thinks she is bossy and opinionated, and she thinks he is a stubborn mule. This doesn't help their relationship.

THERE IS ALWAYS the chance that the man is right and wins the argument hands down. Then he isn't going to let her forget how wrong she was. The fact that she doubted his wisdom in the first place makes it necessary for him to rub in his triumph just a little.

So nobody wins when a man and woman argue. Wise women learn this young and prove the points they want to make without damaging a man's self-esteem.

It's one of the reasons men say they can't understand women.

What they really mean is they can't understand women who know how to get their own way or put across a point without resorting to an argument.

TODAY'S contract was bounced back and forth like a rubber ball.

West opened the king of diamonds and East played the three. West shifted to the king of clubs and East made the mistake of signaling an enthusiastic comeon.

West came on with the queen of clubs and South ruffed. Now if South had been satisfied to make his contract on the nose, he could have breezed in. All he had to do was to lead a diamond. Either opponent could win and play anything but South would be able to get into dummy twice; once with a spade and once by ruffing his last diamond. This would have given South time to take two trump finesses and he would have picked up East's trumps.

* * * *

SOUTH WANTED an over trick. He led the jack of spades and overtook with dummy's king. The heart was led and finessed and a second spade was led toward dummy at which point the hand collapsed. East ruffed and put his partner in with a diamond whereupon another spade was led and ruffed. Down two.

Good defense would not have given South a chance to misplay the hand. East should have played his lowest club at trick two whereupon West should have shifted to a spade. Now South would have had to lose a spade ruff no matter how he played the hand.

Furthermore, good bidding would have given East and West the rubber. Five clubs makes easily if the diamond finesse is taken.

Operation Needed? Tell Child the Truth

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Few children escape at least one experience in a hospital. And whether this be a tonsillectomy or something more serious, there must be some preparation made before the visit there.

A parent who wants to retain her child's trust never will announce the child's coming hospital episode as if he were going to a picnic. The hospital is a place for helping people to get well and to care for them while they are ill—but it is not pleasurable recreation.

If the child is from 2 to 3, he should not be told about his going until just a few days before it will happen. If he is older there is no harm in telling him sooner — if you know it. This explanation should be completely reassuring.

* * * *

WHAT BOTHERS children is separation from the parents and the strangeness of a hospital about which they may have heard in rather menacing terms, such as "He HAS to go to the hospital."

Explain all about it, how it looks and what will happen to him there. Don't forget the prick of his finger for blood tests, or the enema he may have to suffer from strange hands. Describe the nurses and how nice they will be to him. And make the doctor seem his friendly ally.

Sometimes there may be a sedative before he goes into the operating room; in which case he will be less frightened. But if he is wheeled in, describe the way the room will look and all the masked attendants. Tell him if he breathes deeply of the anesthetic, he will go to sleep promptly and will know nothing until he is ready to come out and be welcomed back in room by his parents. In some hospitals children go to sleep to a soothing record player, or breathe ether from a cuddly, toy animal. But he should be prepared for the mask.

Do not disguise the fact that if his tonsils are taken out his throat will be sore afterwards, but by late that night he probably will enjoy some refreshing ice cream. Assure him that if there is any pain he will be given drugs to dull it.

* * * *

MAKE MUCH of the fact that you will be right with him when he goes into the operating room, and right there when he comes out. Other children may be in the room with him, too, and he can visit with them and enjoy their experiences.

Let him take some of his favorite toys and books with him and borrow or rent a radio if he enjoys listening to it. When you come to see him bring a bright face and some small gift each day. This will take his mind from his own discomforts and help him to say goodby to you with greater grace because he'll be looking forward to the next day.

There are times when a doctor has to curtail or even prevent parents from visiting the child if their coming or going upsets him too much. But, ordinarily, nurses and doctors welcome the presence and the help of parents. They can do much for a child and make him feel that he is not being neglected by them.

Most important of all is the parental attitude that all is going well with him, that he soon will be home to relate his adventure to other children. There should be no long faces, no emphasis upon "How do you FEEL?" but only assurance that he is progressing as everyone wishes that he would. When the child thinks his parents are not afraid, then neither is he.

Worry Clinic

Columnist Justifies Journalistic Efforts

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case W-341: Matilda Y., aged 43, is a cultured woman.

"That awful Dr. Crane," she protested recently to an editor friend of mine.

"How can you possibly justify the use of his daily column in your FAMILY newspaper?" she added.

"Why, he presented the case this week of a high school girl whose escort insisted on illicit sexual liberties.

"What will the children think when they read such things in the newspaper! It is shocking!"

First, children rarely read the editorial pages of newspapers. They usually stop with the comic pages.

In late high school, they finally dip into some of the other features, including the local sport news.

But these children of such "tender years" as Matilda indicates, seldom look at this or any other editorial feature.

Second, what about the 70 million people in America who belong to no church whatever, either Jewish, Protestant or Catholic?

Their children are growing up, almost like Topsy, with little or no moral instruction. They read about rape on page one.

* * * *

SO ISN'T it the function of a great newspaper to help educate and prepare its vast readership for happier adult lives by this type of educational column?

Actually, high schools all over America are using this column and the medico-psychological booklets offered herewith, to help instruct teenagers.

So, too, are scores of colleges and universities. Moreover, 1,500 priests, rabbis and clergymen every year write to me via this column for advice on family counseling and sexual problems of their parishioners.

This daily newspaper is a great "University in Print," and its educational value is incalculable.

When the Roman Catholic Bishop of Iowa commissioned Father Kinnavey of St. Ambrose College to conduct a special clinic for priests who were to go forth and conduct Cana Conferences for the great Roman Catholic Church, Father Kinnavey asked for a whole set of these newspaper booklets on "Sex Problems in Marriage," "Impotence," etc., to use in that worthy project.

And many other denominations have done likewise. I have personally been asked to conduct marriage clinics for the Methodists, Baptists, Orthodox Jews, Church of God, Seventh-day Adventists, Presbyterians, Disciples of Christ, Lutherans and other great religious denominations.

* * * *

SO DON'T get the idea that a daily newspaper is a "yellow" journalism sheet. Instead, it is the main educational prop for most Americans!

After the age of 18, about 85 per cent of Americans quit all contact with the formal classroom forever.

Who educates these 85 per cent the remaining adult years that they live? It's the newspaper!

Who furnishes you the latest history of this planet, Earth? Who offers medico-psychological advice on all phases of family and social affairs?

Who gives you political science lessons via its editorials? Who hands you the latest financial quotations and banking news?

And who offers a variety of cultural columns on music and art, the theater, needlecraft and a dozen other vital aspects of modern life?

It's the daily newspaper! So when you hear old-fashioned views like those of Matilda, please set her straight.

We live in the midst of 20th-century progress, which is paced by newspapers.

Why Grow Old?

Exercise to Make Legs Lovely for New Fashions

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Very short skirts are not flattering to many women. The chopped off silhouette itself is awkward but most important, few women have legs which are that good looking, and let's not even mention knees!

No doubt some women will wear the knee-length mode. Even more usual, skirts as a whole will shorten an inch or so. However, we all know now that the most becoming length for legs is mid-calf. Since women have become so much more independent and individual in their dress, they probably will not take their skirt lengths all the way to the knee.

Just the same the leg will be more prominent as a part of your figure ensemble this season than it has been for some time. Therefore, "Why Grow Old?" is here today to take you a step or two toward leg beauty.

2. Lie on the floor on your back or sit in a chair. Raise your left leg up in front of you. Bend the knee slightly and make circles with your lower left leg. Circle for a while in one direction and then in the other. When circling lead with your toe. After a while do the same thing with your right leg. This is beautifying to ankle and calf.

3. One of the best exercises for the ankle is circling with the foot, first in one direction and then in the other.

4. The best calf-slimming exercises take stretching into account. For instance, this one. Lie on the floor on your back. Raise your left leg up as far as you can with a stiff knee. As you raise the leg pull back with the toe, or the toe points back toward the head. Alternate left and right. Feel your way along with this one. It is painful if you do it too suddenly and strenuously.

Dear Abby

Be Firm! It's Your Home

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My neighbor lady was having some sort of depression so her doctor told her to get out amongst people so she started to come over here at 8 o'clock every morning.

She'd bring her lunch and lie on my davenport and tell me, "Go ahead and do your work, I won't bother you." My husband and kids would refuse to come to the breakfast table so I had to bring them trays in their rooms. When the kids came home from school she'd still be there. I can't get rid of her, but I tell you, Abby, I am going to beat her to the nut-house if she doesn't leave me alone. How can I get her out of my house?—GOING CRAZY.

ABBY

DEAR GOING: Self-preservation is the first law of nature. Tell her as diplomatically as possible that YOU get nervous with someone around when you do your work. Sorry, but you'll have to be firm or YOU'LL be having the depression.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: What do you do about a husband who talks about another woman in his sleep? Yet when I told him about it he said I am making it all up. We have been married a long time and have four children and it isn't like me to be upset over something like this but it really has gotten on my nerves hearing that woman's name all night. Should I talk this over with this other woman (she is my friend) and find out if she has given him any reason to be talking about her in his sleep?

—NERVOUS.

DEAR NERVOUS: Don't talk to this woman who probably is the innocent victim of your husband's nocturnal babbling. And don't nag your husband about it—it probably is something he ate.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: My wife is 38 but looks like a teenager. I am 44 but I guess I'm not what you'd call the romantic type. My neighbors tell me that all the young men who come to my house on business stick around and visit with my wife. I mean the delivery men, the insurance man and the mailman. Should I call up and ask their bosses to send older men?

—NOT ROMANTIC.

DEAR NOT: Older men is not the answer—What your wife needs is a husband with YOUNGER IDEAS.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's ex-wife left him for another man. She didn't want the kids so I am raising them. About once a month she takes the kids (two girls, age 10 and 8) for a weekend. When she brings them back they are very spoiled because she lets them sit up and watch TV as long as they want and she gives them all they want to eat. I mean candy and pop. The girls think she is wonderful and I am terrible. I am rather quiet and like peace. Should I take this up with my husband or what?

ANNOYED SECOND WIFE.

DEAR ANNOYED: This woman either doesn't know any better—or she is deliberately making it tough for you. By all means talk to your husband about it—and if necessary—talk to her.

* * * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO STELLA: Fourteen years is a long time. Live a little.

IF YOU HAVE a problem, write to Abigail Van Buren in care of this paper. She will be glad to answer your letter. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Set Special Thanksgiving Table for 'Little People'

By KAY SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

Festive simplicity is the watchword of the modern hostess planning her Thanksgiving celebration. The nostalgic picture of the elaborate feast with all the kinfolk gathered around the banquet table just doesn't jibe with modern living.

In the first place, who has a banquet table or the space to put it? With families widely scattered, the gathering together to give thanks today often includes close friends and their children.

The spirit of the occasion is as graciously expressed in a simple setting with a menu planned in consideration of the hostess-cook's time, and the determination of the weight - watchers in most households.

ONE OLD - FASHIONED custom to which I subscribe, however, is the separate table for the youngsters. Appoint one of the older children hostess for the table and she can help serve plates, check up on milk drinkers and suggest games to be played while the adults linger over coffee.

Add a festive air with a few decorations. This year on their table I'm using a Pilgrim couple made from milk cartons and paper. These can be made anytime by you or the older children. All you do is tape black paper around a milk carton to form the body; cut out arms from black paper and hands from pink paper and tape onto body. Pink paper around a cardboard tube and decorated with paint makes the face. Ruffled collars and cuffs are cut from white paper baking cups; a strip of tissue paper makes the lady's cape. The Pilgrims will be surrounded by ribbon-tied apples for favors.

* * * *

IF YOU PLAN buffet service, you don't have to forego a decorative centerpiece but arrange it to complement your dinnerware and the table size. One effective and simple arrangement I saw recently is well suited to a small table. This was an arrangement of seasonal fruits and small gourds and vegetables in a pretty wicker basket set on a narrow tapered runner of green felt.

The pale green felt repeated the frosty green of melamine dinnerware and the centerpiece blended well with the informal service. Because felt comes in so many clear colors this idea is easily adaptable.

MOLLY MAYFIELD

Psychopathic Boy Friend

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My fiance says he trusts me, but once in a while he gets the feeling that I'm meeting someone secretly or having different guys come by the house after he's gone.

He doesn't seem to realize how bad it makes me feel. He says after he talks to me about them—yells would be more like it—he gets out of a bad humor. What in the world can I do? I don't want to marry someone who feels that way about me.

For example, I was asked to baby sit once, and because he couldn't come with me, he was certain I had another date. I told him I didn't, but in a little while he called back to be reassured again.

I never have done anything to earn this distrust. Boys come to see my sister, and my fiance is sure they're just using that as an excuse to see me. TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED:

A little jealously is a lot of fun, but your beau sounds downright psychopathic. I agree that you don't want to marry someone in that state of mind and, what's more, you don't even want to stay around him too long.

Why not just speak right out and say: "Look, I never have cheated on you. But every time you talk, it gives me ideas. And, so help me, the next time you hint at something like that, I'll try and live up to your worst expectations." Or words to that effect.

The shock treatment might be just strong enough to get him off this suspicious kick—at least for an interlude.

M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

What do you think of a husband who insists on going with his wife when she does her weekend marketing? He tells her what she should buy, how much, and even picks out things we don't need. (Obviously, I'm married to the man in question.)

It makes me feel silly to go into a grocery store and go through the same fuss every week—like I wasn't quite responsible.

I'm a pretty good shopper and a pretty good gal with a budget. Why should I put up with this kind of interference? EVERYDAY READER

DEAR EVERYDAY READER:

You shouldn't. Not unless hubby is ready to have you accompany him to the garage and explain to the mechanic what you think is wrong with the car . . . or have you pick out all of his wardrobe for him . . . or have you give him explicit instructions about fixing the lawn mower.

There are some men who like to shop and some women who like to have them shop. Fine and dandy. But your gent is just kibitzing in a province that's rightly yours. And unless he's ready to grant you "equal time" at the tasks he customarily performs, 'tain't fair.

I'd just explain those conditions to him — and the whole dilemma likely will go away. At least I've known very few men who enjoyed hearing a woman explain the car trouble by saying the "do-ma-floppy doesn't quite jig the thing-a-ma-jig."

'Cat in Bag' Tells Troth

Jean Louise Treichel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Treichel, of Long Beach, will become the bride of Edward Beckstrom June 21. Friends learned in a surprise announcement made at a party given by Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Gripp, 4228 Greenbrier Rd.

The news was disclosed in a novel manner when friends "let the cat out of the bag" by opening a paper sack tied with ribbon and containing a white foam kitten with two wedding bells, bearing the names of the couple, tied around its neck.

The bride-elect attended Wilson High School and Long Beach City College. Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. August Beckstrom of this city, is a pre-theological student at Long Beach State College. The two young persons take an active part in Trinity Lutheran Church Young People's Organization, where they met.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

'Feathers' Featherman Is Meandering Man

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

His modus operandi is in good repair. He started on it early and keeps it that way. Chef of the Week Graham F. (Feathers) Featherman (Careful Cleaners) never attended the same school two consecutive years until he landed in junior high. And then his high school career was divided between the states of Missouri, Kentucky and Montana. By this time he had completed a round-trip to his home port, Phillipsburg, Mont.

Featherman started his meandering at the age of 6, and today still brings this same friendly, personal touch to his own business. You see, he makes most of the pick-ups and deliveries whenever possible.

* * * *

HE CAME to Long Beach in 1924, after having worked for a time for his uncle in Omaha, Neb., selling hospital supplies. Quite naturally, he followed this same occupational procedure for a time. Eventually, the cleaning and dyeing business attracted him, and he started his own shop.

A Downtown Lion, he also belongs to the Executives Club, the Bixby-Cal Heights Men's Club, the Long Beach Dinner Club, and is very active in the California Heights Methodist Church. In keeping with his vocation, he not only is a member of the Harbor Dry Cleaners Assn., the National Institute of Dry Cleaners, but also serves as president of the California Dry Cleaners Assn.

Our "chef" contends he plays a dismal game of golf . . . but loves it.

He has come up today with a top-flight recipe for Barbecued Ham Slices. It's one you'll like.

BARBECUED HAM SLICES

Saute:
1 medium onion, sliced in
2 tblsp. butter
Add:
4 tblsp. brown sugar
2 tblsp. vinegar
4 tblsp. lemon juice
Salt and pepper
1 cup ketchup
3 tblsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 tsp. prepared mustard
½ cup water
½ cup chopped celery

Simmer 1 hour. Add more water if necessary.

Have slices cut from middle of ham. Brush one side of ham with sauce. Slash the fat edge. Place on broiler rack three inches from heat, sauce side up. Brown. Turn and brush other side with sauce. Continue broiling until well done. A slice ½ inch thick requires five to seven minutes. A slice one inch thick requires 20 to 30 minutes. Serve with any remaining sauce.

USC Friends Feted at Home

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Bole Jr. entertained a group of Trojan friends at their home, 2848 Montair Ave., Saturday evening following the USC-Stanford game.

Invited were Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Andrews of Los Angeles, George Flynn of North Hollywood, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Balians of Pasadena, and Messrs. and Mmes. Frank E. Fishbaugh, Edward R. Ludloff, Wilbur B. McColm Jr., Robert H. Middough, and Floyd L. Newsom of Long Beach.

Back From Texas

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Cross of 3030 E. 2nd St., have returned home from a 30-day sojourn in Texas where Mrs. Cross attended the 1925 class reunion of Wesley College at Greenville. The Long Beach couple was extensively feted while in Texas.

Our Children

Understanding Cure for Misbehaviorists

By ANGELO PATRI

Simon was "new boy" in the school. Soon after his arrival scrawled words appeared on the walls. A sharp watch proved this to be Simon's work. The teacher talked things over with the principal and they decided that Simon should become official wall washer. Accordingly Simon was appointed. He was to have charge of walls just as Tony had charge of the playroom floor. He had a badge, a bucket, cloth, powder and a brush. At set times he patrolled the halls and should a mark appear it vanished under his prompt ministrations. The walls were spotless under his reign.

I have known supervisors of children and teachers in elementary schools to spend hours and hours in searching for the sinner who marked a wall, or who made an unholy racket in the hall. That is a sad waste of time and energy both of which could be put to far better use.

* * * *

IN SIMON'S case nothing was said to him about his being concerned in the mischief. Nobody was certain that it was he who made the marks. He was suspected because until his appearance there had been no such marks, and they looked like what he might do, so he was elected. His responsibility and activity helped make him feel needed and wanted in the school, something that had not been his lot in previous experience. He thrived under the feeling of being important, and he was.

Often a nuisance of this sort can be managed in silence. Too much questioning, too much emphasis on the untoward act only serves to lengthen its life. A prolonged investigation is enjoyed by the boys. One passes the word to the next, mentions the fact to the supervisor of this other lad's knowing something about the matter. A session with the supervisor has been known to relieve a person of a dreaded period with the geometry teacher.

* * * *

WHAT IS one to do when there is a series of thefts, of obscene writings, of catcalls in quiet halls? Watch and listen. The custodian, the trusted monitor, the alert supervisor, can keep a watch and in time discover who is behaving childishly in circumstances that require more maturity of thought.

When the culprit is found, the case against him clear, the principal can say "You have done this. Can you tell me why?" The boy rarely can tell why but the experienced supervisor, listening to him, watching him as he talks or squirms in his chair, soon can tell, and go to work to remove the cause.

Jill Gregson Says Vows in Baptist Church Rite

A bridal gown of embroidered tulle over satin in waltz length complemented the youthful beauty of Jill Gregson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Gregson, of Long Beach, when she became the bride of Philip W. Ayars in a Nov. 2 ceremony at First Baptist Church.

More than 100 friends of the bridal pair, including his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Lane, of Fort Worth, Tex., gathered to witness the double-ring rite. Dr. Frank M. Kepner officiated.

With her gown, the bride wore a tiara embroidered with seed pearls to hold her elbow-length veil, and she carried white roses with an orchid.

Striking contrast to her gown was the emerald green satin chosen for the gowns of her attendants, Mrs. Peter H. Young Jr., matron of honor, and Dell Gravette and Marilyn Sherman, bridesmaids. The matron of honor, sister of the bride, carried a bouquet of American beauty roses while the bridesmaids carried the same roses in arrangements with white carnations.

THE BRIDEGROOM asked Peter H. Young Jr. to serve him as best man, and ushering duties were performed by Ronald Gravette and Bill Jensen. Little Valerie Young, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

A reception followed at the church with Patsy Graves, Helen Winton, Evelyn Powell and Marilyn Steyer as hostesses.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Palm Springs and now are at home at 3852 Charlemagne Ave.

The new Mrs. Ayars was graduated from Polytechnic High School and Long Beach City College. Her husband received his schooling in Fort Worth, Tex., and recently was discharged from the Navy. Both are active in youth groups at First Baptist Church.

OUR COVER

Southland's cover girl Kay Kendall is new to Hollywood, but the experts agree that she will make a big hit in the soon-to-be-released "Les Girls, (see Page 36), an extravagant song-and-dance picture tinseled with gorgeous dolls. Last of a family of British dancers, Kay went to London at age 12 and promptly landed a job with a traveling musical show. At 17, she was playing leads. Her part in J. Arthur Rank's film "Genevieve" brought her to the attention of American producers and in 1955 MGM starred her with Robert Taylor in "Quentin Durward." She agreed to come to Hollywood to star in "Les Girls" provided she could have time off during the shooting to go to New York for a visit with her husband, Rex Harrison, with whom she is very much in love.

Mindful of frequent talk that a monorail system might go a long way towards alleviating the Southland's traffic problem, Blaine Nels Simons (a regular contributor to this magazine) checked into Germany's "schwebebahn" or "suspended monorail" during a recent trip to Europe with his family. He came up with some interesting facts which will be presented to Southland readers next Sunday in an article "Is Monorail Practical Between Long Beach and Los Angeles?"

Among the multitude of other features is the story, told in pictures, of an exciting visit to the Hollywood home of a television-motion picture actress by a new arrival in Long Beach from Argentina. There are some timely tips on Thanksgiving cookery. A short short story by Homer M. Parsons will amuse just about everyone, particularly horseracing fans. And chief photographer Roger M. Coar contributes a cover "Four-Way Conversation" that will take readers back to their childhood in a hurry.

Toybrarian Alice Woodbury explains toy "adoption" procedure to prospective new members at a Long Beach Toy Loan Center, Truman Boyd Manor, 377 Truman Boyd.

The Case of the Stolen Thread

By Afton Booth

THE QUALITY of the mother is all that is considered in the adoption ceremony at three Long Beach institutions.

The diminutive petitioner may have a winsome smile and sparkle in her eye. She may zealously attest to the fact that she wants to adopt the child and will always give it a good home, but that isn't enough. She must also prove good character. Then, and then only, may she claim her new charge and skip off to join her contemporaries.

Many such adoptions take place in Long Beach and other Southern California cities each year through the 43 branches of the Toy Loan Program.

The "adoption for keeps" ceremony is a solemn occasion resembling legal court procedure. Real adoption papers — signed by petitioner and toybrarian, and suitable to frame for the proud new mother's boudoir — are issued.

"ADOPTION" is the reward of 20 or more "S" marks on the small borrowers' toy loan card. The "S" denotes the borrowing and returning of toys in satisfactory condition.

"Toy Loan" is patterned after the book-lending library, with each Toy Loan Center being managed by a toybrarian. There are three such centers in Long Beach:

1. Truman Boyd Manor, 377 Truman Boyd (approximately 3400 Santa Fe Ave.), open Wednesdays, 1:30 to 4:20 p. m.

2. Volunteers of America Bldg., 1700 block Alamitos Ave., open Tuesdays, 1:30 to 4:45 p. m.

3. Cabrillo Housing, 2400 River Ave.; open Fridays, 1:30 to 4:45 p. m.

There is no fine for delay in returning of, or damage to, toys. The boy or girl is simply asked how it happened. During the explanation (some quite fabulous) the toybrarian has an opportunity to judge character by some of the seven "Honor Code" rules: Promptness, cooperation, courtesy, improvement, honesty, cleanliness, and new members.

SINCE BOYS are usually more interested in things with wheels than dolls, their incentive to belong on the Honor Roll is a game or toy.

The drive for discarded or broken toys is always on. Long Beach centers alone average the loan of over 900 toys monthly.

Toy Loan was founded during "depression days," when some children were arrested for stealing spools of thread from a five-and-dime store.

Curious as to why they had stolen only spools of thread, probation officers questioned the young delinquents and found that they used the spools to make wheels for homemade toys. Further investigation revealed that these children came from what had formerly been good homes, but that their parents were listed unemployed or on relief. There just wasn't any money in the family budget for toys.

SOME OF THE CHILDREN were enrolled at the 87th St. School in Los Angeles. Mrs. Gertrude Peddy, principal, and chief probation officer Carl Holten decided something had to be done.

"We can't have children like these become problems — just for lack of toys," they declared.

In 1935 they opened up the first Toy Loan Center under sponsorship of L. A. County Coordination Councils in a gloomy downtown basement.

Today, Toy Loan headquarters occupy a whole factory building, with a suite of attrac-

BOAT TALK

The Lonely Magellan

By Bob Ruskauff

UNTIL he married at the age of 74 (In 1944), Harry Pidgeon, the farm boy from Henry County, Iowa who became the world's greatest single-handed voyager, had been a man alone.

He was a friendly, simple man, with a keen sense of humor; a soft-spoken but engaging conversationalist; a man whose blue eyes in his bronzed, furrowed face could suddenly light at some quick turn of humor then, again, look somberly beyond you into far places.

TWICE, ALONE, in the sturdy 34-foot yawl, Islander, which he built before World War I on the one-time mudflats of Terminal Island, Harry Pidgeon sailed around the world.

Even as the young farm boy was inspired by reading accounts of Capt. Joshua Slocum, the first single-handed globe-circumnavigator, Pidgeon became the inspiration for others.

And, those today who may be dreaming of some future Odyssey in terms only of glamour and pleasure, would not be amiss to read Pidgeon's book, "Around the World Single-Handed." It is a most interesting account of his first world voyage, made between 1921 and 1925.

Few, probably, of those who would heed the call of the main and "escape this maddening throng," possess the timbre that it takes. Harry Pidgeon had it.

Yet, when he had first sailed around the world to the westward ("you don't sail against the trades when you needn't"), Harry had made a decision. He said:

"The sea is lonely and I'm through with it."

SEVEN YEARS LATER he began his second, five-year voyage and then, in 1951 — this time accompanied by his wife and another woman companion —the now 81-year-old mariner sailed for Hawaii and "well, maybe," a third world trip.

It was never completed. Troubles beset them in Honolulu and the Pidgeons returned. In April 1954, after long-failing health, the grand seafarer died in San Pedro.

But the saga which this mild-mannered man of adventure provided, long after he had turned 50 years of age — one that will live as long as there are annals of the sea—could well, it seems, be inspiration for many and not, necessarily, seafarers.

BOAT HOOKS: Today, in sailing, it's the 14-Mile Bank race for blue water boats, off Newport. At San Diego, 1957 national championships for F-Class racing outboard runabouts wil lfeature a regatta sponsored by Pacific Power Boat Club and the Los Angeles Speedboat Association.

They Replace Lost Muscles With Sinews of Steel

By Bryan Hodgson

MECHANICS and engineers have joined the doctors at Rancho Los Amigos Hospital at Downey to form a unique medical team which may change the lives of paralysis victims all over the world.

Using a brand new approach to an old science called orthetics, they are developing devices and techniques to simplify and standardize the incredibly complex task of replacing lost muscle functions with sinews of metal and wire.

Already their work is creating great interest in medical schools and hospitals across the country.

The story of Warren Cox is an example. The 20-year-old Marine veteran is completely paralyzed from the neck down as the result of an automobile accident. But he plans to return to work soon.

In a small workshop in the polio unit, the team of mechanics and engineers has fashioned for him the mechanical means of leading a useful life. He can now control his wheelchair, pick up small objects and-- most important of all--dial a telephone.

THANKS TO THEM, HE CAN now perform a job in the office of the construction company where he worked before the accident.

His wheelchair is electrically powered, and a control box is mounted over his lap. He operates the controls by moving a lever with his mouth. Another switch, mounted under his chin, enables him to operate a solenoid which opens and closes a metal "hand." Special articulated braces attached to his wheelchair enable him to move his arms back and forth and up and down.

In addition, orthotists have developed an attachment for telephones which allow him to dial a phone by pushing buttons.

"Almost all these devices can be standardized in production, and would require only minor modifications for other cases," said Roy Snelson, 30-year-old senior orthotist at Rancho.

"This would materially reduce the time and money now required to custom-build orthopedic devices, and enable a far larger number of paralysis victims to be helped."

THERE ARE NINE MEMBERS of the orthetic staff at Rancho, including three orthotists, three assistants, a graduate engineer and an occupational therapist. The group works closely with the hospital's surgical and medical staffs.

"Within a week after a patient is admitted to the hospital, we apply special braces to the affected members to prevent deformity," Snelson said.

"This is necessary because, without bracing, the stronger muscles tend to overpower the weaker ones, causing a distortion which would make the effects of paralysis far more difficult to remedy orthopedically.

"When the patient is ready for orthopedic treatment, we first make a complete survey of the surgical and mechanical possibilities. Many times it is possible to alter the function of remaining muscles through surgery to give the patient limited use of hands or to make the use of orthopedic devices simpler and more efficient.

"THE PATIENT IS THEN INFORMED of all the possibilities, and decides for himself what is to be done.

"Many times, a patient decides to get by with what functions he has left. Others have a distaste for mechanical braces and aids. Some can be restored to limited activity by means of occupational therapy.

"But once a decision has been made, we go to work.

"First, we have to find a suitable source of power – muscles which can be used to operate the devices. In Cox's case, all we had to work with were his neck and shoulder muscles. Other patients have the use of arm, shoulder or leg muscles.

"The engineering comes in when we have to devise equipment to transfer this power to other uses, and that is where we are trying to design standardized parts for use in many applications."

One important invention designed by the orthotists is an automatic pressure relief mechanism which can be used in any arm-brace device. These braces are usually equipped with a spring tension which opposes or assists the patient's muscles. However, to prevent the tension from exhausting already weak muscles, something was needed to relieve the pressure mechanically when the arm was at rest.

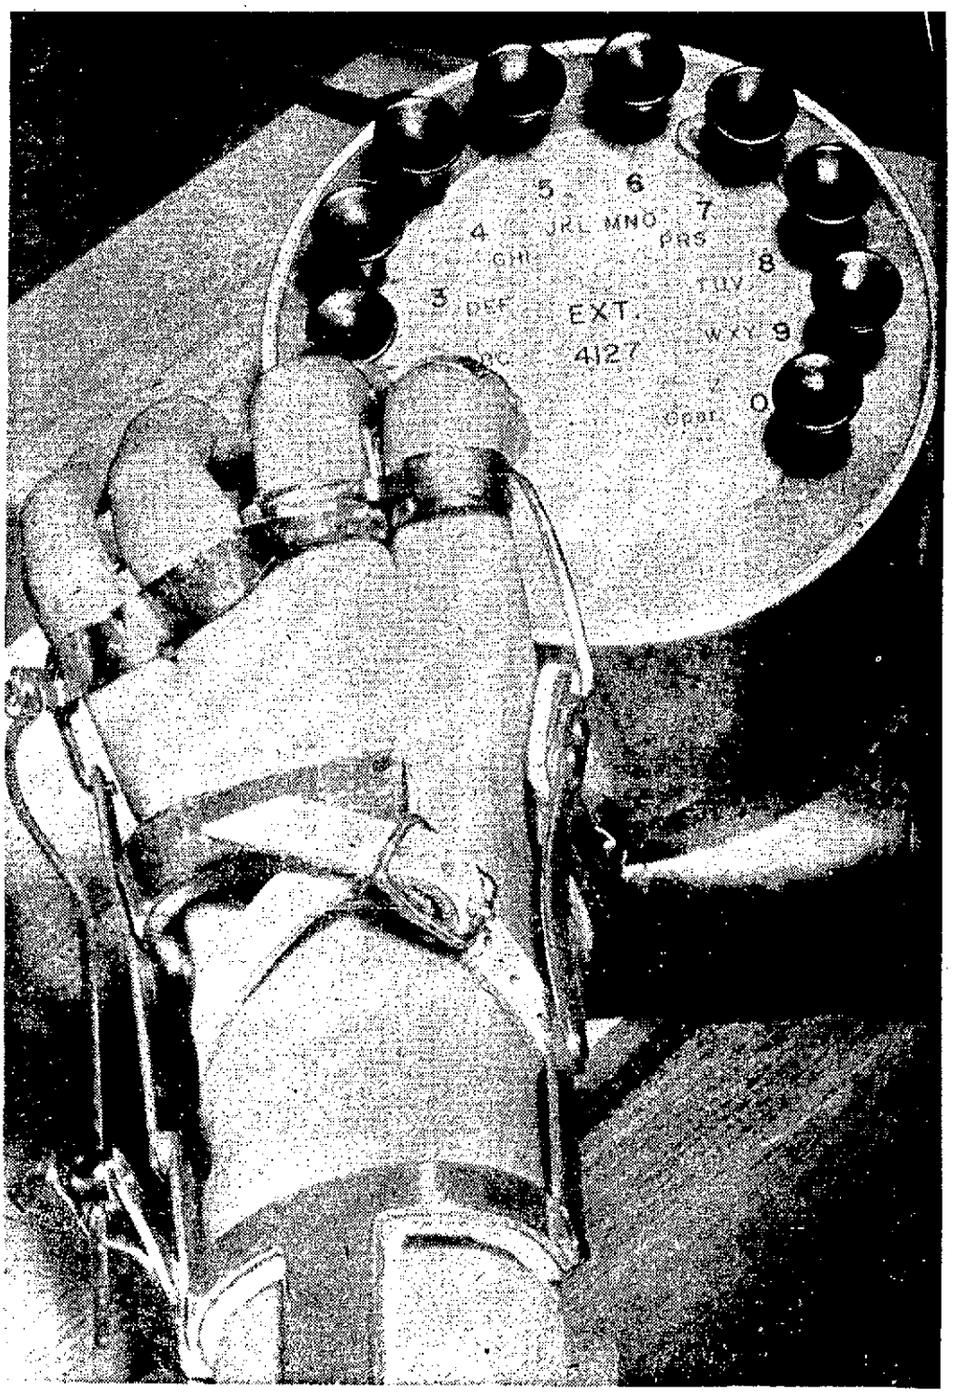

AFTER LONG HOURS of design and machine shop work, the relief mechanism was perfected. It consists of a sliding rachet bar in a small metal case. The patient can release or engage it simply by moving a shoulder or arm.

Other devices designed by the Rancho orthotists include a rachet "shoulder" joint for braces, which can also be easily engaged and released, and special braces called ball-bearing feeders which are attached to the wheelchair and support the arms as they move back and forth and up and down.

"Of course, it would be unrealistic to attempt to replace all lost muscle functions mechanically. What we try to do is design equipment which enables the patient to perform a limited number of useful functions with a minimum of machinery.

"This equipment must be light, practical and easy to operate. Sometimes it is sufficient merely to give the patient the ability to open and close his hand. That may not sound like much, but there's this to remember:

"When you've lost everything, a little is a lot."

The Christ Nobody Wanted

By Jack B. Kemmerer

AT FIRST GLANCE, the scattered groups of white figures on the side of a desolate desert mountain gives the viewer an odd feeling that he is seeing a mirage. If he is inquisitive, he'll follow a winding dirt road up from the floor of Yucca Valley, California, and very suddenly he will arrive at the dubious mirage—which turns out to be, probably, one of the country's most unique places of worship—Desert Christ Park.

On a sloping, rocky mountainside, scattered among the desert's Joshua trees and yuccas, are the sculptured figures of Christ, His Disciples and other Biblical characters. Also here on this five-acre jackrabbit homestead stands a tiny chapel beautifully constructed of native stone. And all is dedicated to God and to peace, tolerance and love.

This unique place of worship was created because of a statue of Christ that nobody wanted. The 10-foot, four-ton statue was monopolizing the driveway of the modest home of sculptor Antone Martin of Inglewood. Martin, a patternmaker at a Los Angeles aircraft plant, was a man with a conscience—a conscience which had been worrying him for many years.

AS A PATTERNMAKER, Antone Martin worked hand-in-glove with engineers to create the deadly weapons used in conducting modern warfare. And yet, Martin was basically a man of peace and his remaining ambition was to somehow convince his fellow man that a more merciful way of solving problems than through bloodshed had long existed but was too little used.

"I was afraid of an atomic war," recalled the sculptor. "Politicians of all nations have failed to prevent wars. The only solution is in the hands of the people of the world's great religions. I personally am not interested in what these creeds are—I am satisfied to know that none of them teach the killing of one's fellow man.

"Many politicians deal in power attained by inciting age-old hatreds and jealousies. If the massed millions of the world demand an end to killing, aggression, hatreds that breed conflict, to oppression of those of different skin or belief, they would have the power to prevent war. There are enough of these people, and their religion teaches them precisely these things. But, somewhere along the line there has been failure. The masses have joined in condemnation and bloodshed on every occasion. Too often enemies will pray to the same God to destroy one another."

WITH THESE inspiring thoughts foremost in his mind, Martin thought constantly of his problems as he went about his work of creating weapons of war. What he wanted was to find a way to influence as many people as possible to return to the teachings of Christ.

Finally, because he was an excellent sculptor and a skilled patternmaker, Martin decided to present Christ's teachings in reinforced concrete—a material that the experts assured him would even withstand the blast of an atom bomb.

Martin began his first statue—the huge figure of Christ—in the back yard of his Inglewood home in 1951. Soon the work was completed and a short time after that received the title of "The Unwanted Christ" because no one would accept it.

Many organizations, including numerous religious groups, wanted the beautiful figure but refused to accept it because of the restrictions Martin put on it. Actually these restrictions were extremely simple—Martin merely required that the statue had to be shown to persons of any race, creed or color at any time without gates or doors and without any kind of an admission charge.

FINALLY, ED GARVER, the "Desert Pastor" of Yucca Valley near Palm Springs, heard of the "Unwanted Christ." Making a quick visit to Martin, Garver urged him to come to Yucca Valley and see if it wasn't the proper place for his statue to be placed and promised to meet all the requirements that went with the gift of the statue.

Martin made the trip to Yucca Valley, took one look at the beautiful but desolate mountainside that made up the homestead and Desert Christ Park was born—to be forever open free of charges to anyone who cared to stop.

The heroic figure of Christ was trucked to the valley and was slowly inched up the steep, rocky mountainside to its present position looking out over the park. Martin returned to his home and immediately began making the Sermon on the Mount depicting Christ and the 12 Disciples. When the new figure of Christ and that of Peter was completed they too were trucked out to the valley. Soon after Martin retired on his small Social Security pension and moved into a trailer on the grounds of the park, and worked steadily to finish the Sermon on the Mount.

That was in June 1953. Today the park holds 34 concrete figures ranging up to 12 feet in height and weighing more than 32,000 pounds.

MARTIN'S CREATIONS emphasize Christ's lessons of compassion, mercy and understanding and he constantly stresses the hopeful, constructive side of religion rather than its more somber phases.

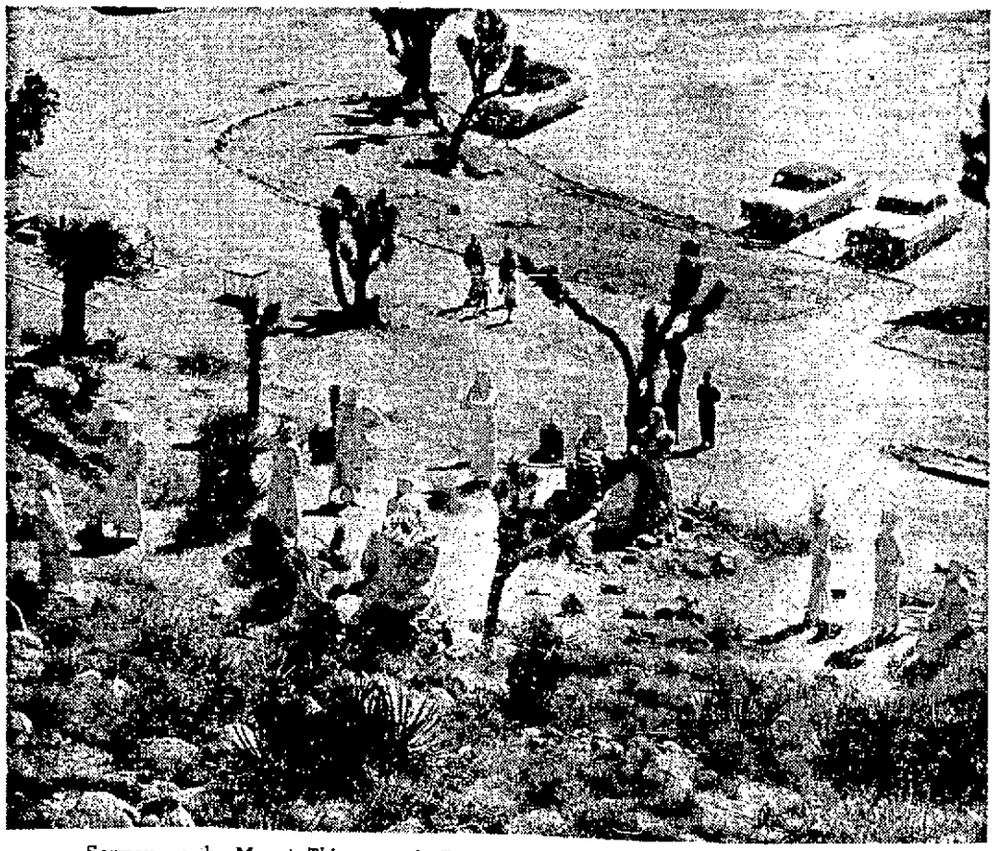

"I believe," Martin says earnestly, "that believers and non-believers alike must learn and put into practice Christ's teachings if all the peoples of the world are to live together without war."

In addition to the Sermon on the Mount, Desert Christ Park now displays Christ and the women of Samaria at the well; also an appealing group where Christ faces parents and children in the scene "Suffer little children to come unto Me." Away from the main groupings, on the hillside, is displayed Christ in prayer at Gethsemane and the sleeping Peter, James and John

Friend of a Robot

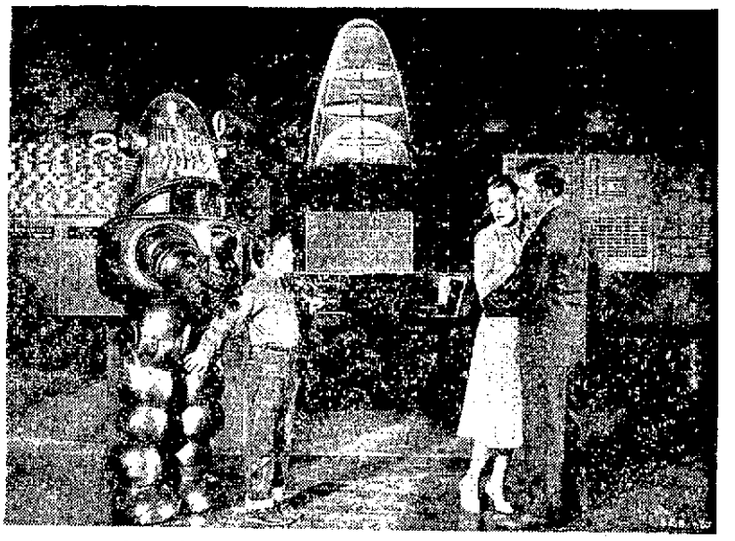

SAID to be the most remarkable science-fiction drama ever brought to the screen, "The Invisible Boy" unfolds a thrilling story of a mechanical brain, obsessed by a rule-or-ruin psychosis, which seeks world rule through nuclear bombs and a proposed earth satellite. Robby the Robot plays an important mechanical role and 11-year-old Richard Eyer as Timmy heads the human cast of this MGM release which includes Philip Abbott as Richard's scientist father and Diane Brewster as his mother. A picture-synopsis of the movie is presented herewith.

Robby makes Timmy invisible so pranks will go unnoticed, suggests stowing away on rocket ship. Computer informs father Timmy has been kidnaped, to be killed unless computer's orders, giving it global control, are obeyed. U. S. agents are called in.

Computer, with Timmy's aid, brings federals and scientists under its control. Robby and Timmy blast off in a rocket, but return to earth. Soldiers try futilely to wreck Robby with gunfire and flame throwers.

Timmy accidentally releases Robby from computer's control. Timmy and father go alone to destroy computer; machine hypnotizes them again. At last minute, Robby rushes in and destroys the villainous computer.

Arvo's actress-wife, Naga Norgen, looks on approvingly as he shows skill. She is quick with a Colt, too.

TELEVISION

He Lives by His Six-Gun

*By Robert Franklin Ames

STRONG and silent, the hero stood silently to one side as tough cattlemen shouted taunts. He waited patiently for the first cattleman to draw.

Then the cameras moved in for a close-up and TV western fans were treated to some of the fanciest gunslinging on record. The hero, who only last year graduated from an eastern school of dramatic acting, burned the breeze with the slickest, quickest draw ever seen on a picture tube. The Colt's fairly leaped to his hand and spit flame.

After the hero had lessened the odds the camera shifted to another close-up as the Peacemaker flashed in the air in a series of spins and loops and, with a flourish the hero slipped the gun noiselessly back into his holster.

WHAT FEW TV fans realize is that some western actors seldom do their own gunslinging, and that those who do have been religiously schooled by the same individual who usually fills in for those who don't.

And when publicity men begin issuing challenges for quick draw contests for their proteges there's a name that is never mentioned in press releases—Arvo Ojala.

Although little known outside the horse operas, Ojala handles a six gun so expertly that it requires modern camera technique with shutter speeds up to 1/1,000 second to stop his fast-moving hand.

ARVO BECAME interested in guns as a hobby while living in Washington with his Finnish born parents. With an ancient and rusted pistol he practiced quick drawing. Even at an early age he wondered about the slow drawing and sloppy gun techniques of movie cowboys.

But it wasn't until Ojala moved to Southern California that he really became interested in the highly technical side of six-gun proficiency.

What had originally interested him as a hobby became an obsession with him and daily he twirled, spun, tossed and tried to outdraw the "other fellow" in the mirror.

SOON HE BECAME fast enough on the draw to realize that most standard holsters were not constructed to be efficient quick draw tools. Working nights with leather tools he designed and built his own holster. Ornaments, economical gadgets, streamline construction were all sacrificed to make his holster the fastest drawing sheath ever made.

About the time the holster was completed and Arvo's skill in using it began to be passed around gun merchants and shooting fanciers something happened to change his whole life.

A NEW GADGET, television, invaded the living room of millions of houses and western stories became popular, requiring on-the-spot ability with a six-gun. Before long Western stars were asking him for advice and wanting his famous holsters.

Gunslinging stars who were coached by Ojala include Audie Murphy, Rory Calhoun, Natalie Wood, Tab Hunter, Kirk Douglas, Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, Clint Walker, Sammy Davis Jr. and John Bromfield.

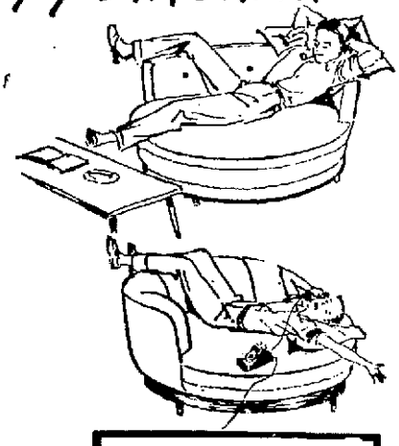

Strangely enough Arvo taught his wife, actress Naga Norgen, how to fast draw. But he confesses that he hasn't had the courage to find out whether she is "the fastest gun in the West"—especially after a difference of opinion.

Arvo Ojala, rated tops as gunslinger, demonstrates his speed with a six-gun.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

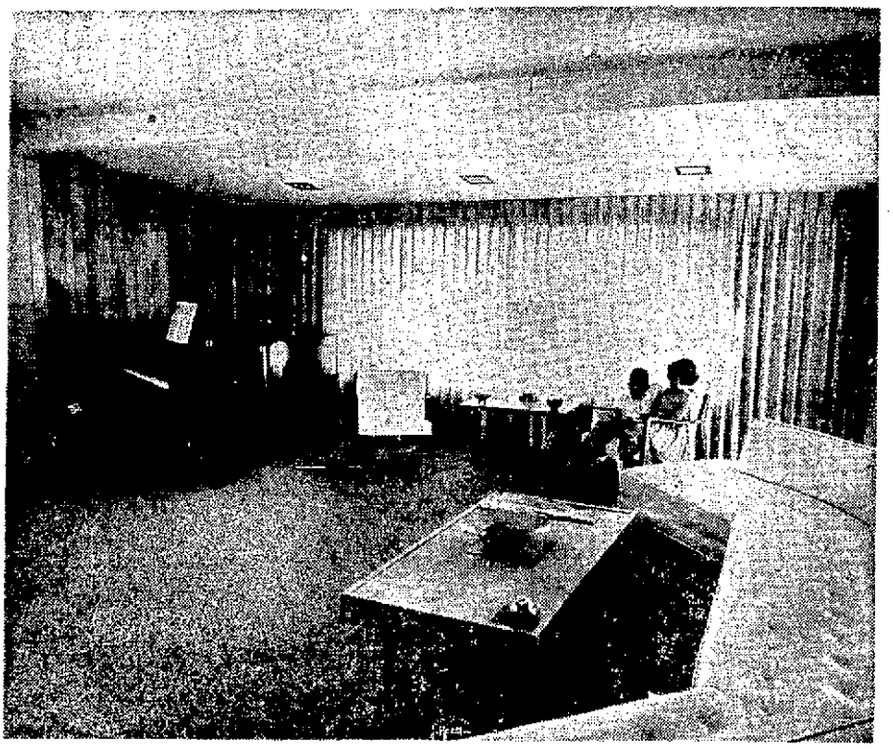

A Doctor Operates on a House

Tropical planting keynotes the patio-garden, the landscaping and planting were carried out by Dr. Temkin.

Nineteen-foot-long master bedroom features glass area extending along the outside wall of the Temkin home.

Extended eight feet beyond soffit, the living room gains new comfort. Ash paneling, flush rheostat lighting are features. Temkin children are shown.

By Eileen Ball

SPANNING the gap from cardiology to carpentry is a project few young men of medicine care to contemplate—especially when the span is basically a yoke and the profession of medicine and the business of building must be pursued practically simultaneously.

Which is all by way of saying that Dr. Eugene Temkin operated on his chronically ailing house and brought it into full health, all the while maintaining his status as a medical practitioner. The home at 2117 Faust Ave., Los Altos, that he and his wife and two small children now occupy has almost doubled in eight months.

The job that Dr. Temkin tackled virtually unaided was heroic in size and involved ripping out and rebuilding while working the irregular hours of his profession, which are, to say the least, not quite those of the average breadwinner.

FIRST, cork flooring was laid in the entry hall. Then the rear wall of the living room was torn out and a new one built in its stead, pushing the dimensions of the living room out eight feet. Thus, the addition to the living room (an added area of 8x20 feet) had the immediate and happy effect of contributing 160 badly needed square feet of living space to this portion of the house. Furthermore, the inclusion of a wide picture window, plus the installation in a side wall of a sliding glass door, had the effect of visually adding many more feet. In this manner the room has literally and figuratively opened itself to a landscaped back yard — a feature the house formerly could not enjoy.

IN A FAR CORNER of the room stands a grand piano. Located on the opposite wall is the Temkin's new and handsome parchment leather angular sofa, a good-looking contemporary design of some 15 feet. Echoing this note of practicality is a pair of Swedish-type teakwood armchairs, their backs and seats similarly covered in the soil-resistant off-white leather. A modern table stands between the chairs, and on this is placed a tall white drum-shaded reading lamp.

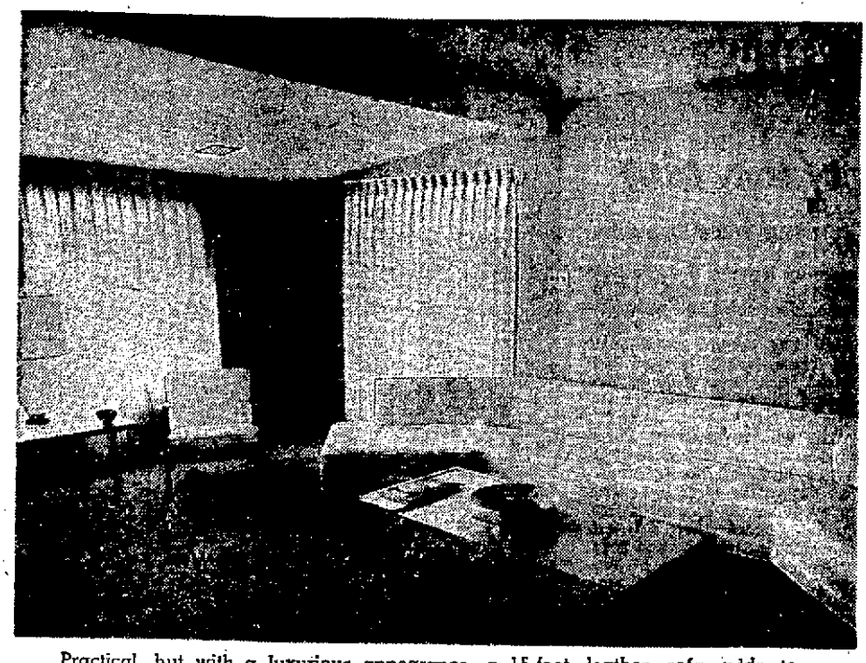

It should be noted here that the Temkins' living room is, indeed, a family room — a place where the children, like their parents, may enjoy good music and participate in home movies. Consequently, although romping is discouraged, the youngsters can enjoy the living room with its sturdy tweed carpet and its leather furniture without undue strain.

Practical, but with a luxurious appearance, a 15-foot leather sofa adds to the remodeled living room. The decorative scheme is simple but effective.

Another feature of interest in this room is the fact that no sleight of hand was attempted by Dr. Temkin to camouflage the fact that an addition was made to the living room. Rather than merely to add space and attempt to "blend" it into the existing area, the eight-foot increase enjoys architectural characteristics all its own. A spanning supporting beam was a structural necessity at the plane where the addition was introduced. The member, itself, has been plastered into a soffit and painted to match the rest of the ceiling. With this as a starting point, the new ceiling slopes gently and has been installed with three flush rheostat lights. Consequently, the controlled illumination over this part of the room contributes its special effect. Set into one of the new eight-foot side walls is the glass door; the opposite addition is paneled with natural ash, a feature that contributes a distinctive touch of texture to the otherwise completely unrelieved walls of smooth plaster.

BECAUSE the Temkins are mutually devoted to good music, a principal ingredient of furniture in the living room is a large hi-fi cabinet designed and built by Dr. Temkin.

A small and unobtrusive opening in one of the walls enables Dr. Temkin to project movies from the adjoining room —his office-den.

An attractive kitchen in spring green opens directly off the entry to the left. Because the Temkins do considerable informal entertaining — and there is no specific dining area in the house other than the dinette set apart in the kitchen for family meals — arrangements had to be made whereby buffet dinners could be served expeditiously. Consequently, Dr. Temkin hit upon the notion of converting the door opening from kitchen to living room into a two-sectioned Dutch door, the lower part of which is topped with a small serving counter.

Immediately off the hallway to the right of the entry is a guest powder room. Beyond it is the rumpus room, devoted solely to the play hours of the children. Across the hall is the youngsters' bedroom.

Final step in the Temkins' remodeling efforts is seen in the huge new master bedroom suite that opens off the office-den. This room, a spacious 14x 19 feet, is paneled in natural walnut, its ceiling plastered with acoustic stucco. A huge glass-paneled wall slides open to the patio just outside. Turquoise velvet carpet and a white heirloom bedspread establish a cool color scheme.

Turkeys Are Big Business

Barney Taylor's dog inspects a four-legged turkey that was hatched on the Taylor Turkey Farm in Westminster.

By Mary Barry

ON THE FIRST Thanksgiving, held in gratitude for a bountiful harvest, the Pilgrims prepared wild turkey, native fruits, vegetables and pumpkin pies for their feast. As this menu has become traditional for Thanksgiving, turkeys are raised on a large scale in the United States for the annual "Turkey Day."

The wild turkeys the Puritans roasted in 1621 were true native birds of North America, as are the birds we carve today. When the Spaniards conquered Mexico they found domesticated turkeys, and soon after introduced them to Europe. Later the English Colonists brought the North American turkey back to America, and these served as foundation strains along with the wild stocks of the north-eastern varieties.

AMONG THESE breeds is the "Bronze," which is the largest in size, and the most popular in the United States. California and Minnesota are noted for raising the largest commercial flocks in the nation.

Before 1930, turkey growers thought only of raising big turkeys. Since then, however, experiments were made to reduce the size of the birds and to improve the type. As a result, the "broad-breasted" turkey was developed, and is the most prevalent today.

Prize gobbler addresses his flock in this scene on a modern turkey ranch situated in Long Beach area.

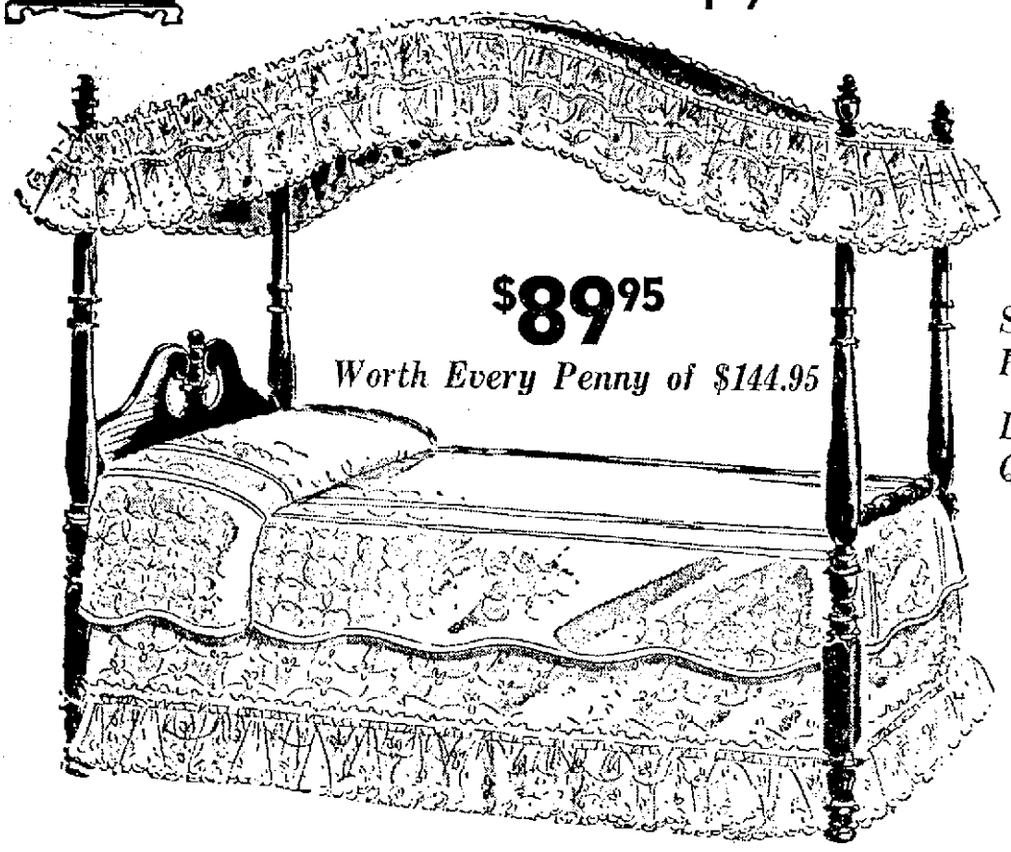

Only in the U. S. are turkeys raised in large numbers and to have thousands in one flock is not unusual. An example is the huge Long Beach area ranch of Barney Taylor who has a flock estimated at 20,000 birds, near Westminster. Taylor has been raising turkeys in this locality for 21 years and his establishment is modern, equipped to dress 800 to 1,200 birds per day.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE turned out to be a bonus bird for some drumstick fancier on Thanksgiving was a four-legged turkey hatched at the Taylor ranch. But the others in the flock of poults seemed to realize the oddity of their four-legged kin and pecked the freak to death before Barney and his son-in-law, Martin Sherrel, who works with Taylor, spotted it.

Heretofore, the biggest turkey business was at the holiday season, but in the last several years there has been a large summer trade due to the popularity of the backyard barbecuing and spit-roasting of the birds.

Accent for Gardens

Fall is the best time to sow seed of Gloriosa Daisies, the glorified Black-eyed Susans which were an outstanding development of the 1957 gardening season.

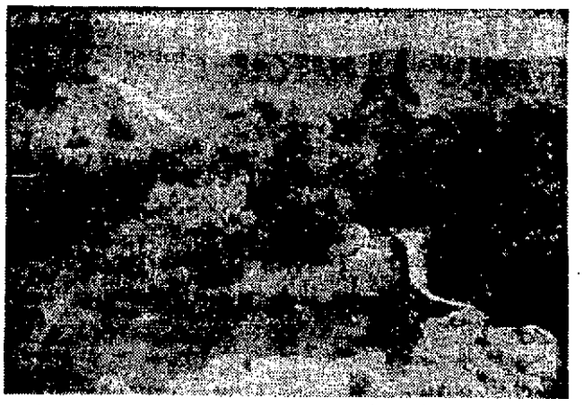

Give these vigorous, colorful annuals a head start by sowing the seed between now and Oct. 15 and they will pay dividends next year with large, continuous blooms from late June to far into winter, according to David Burpee, president of the W. Atlee Burpee Co. The flowers, up to seven inches across, give accent anywhere in the garden.

Date sowing tests show that, when sown in September or early October, the young plants come up and make a small rosette which will live over the winter without any protection. Seed sown in late October or November usually remains dormant over winter and germinates early in the spring.

Other tests reveal that these plants, with their flowers of bright yellow and rich mahogany, as well as mahogany and yellow bicolors, will thrive in any kind of soil and climate, and withstand drought or severe hot or cold weather.

CALIFORNIA YESTERDAYS

They Built Their Dam to Stay

California's first dam (above) was built by Indians under the tutelage of padres from San Diego Mission.

By Ada M. Young

AS THE Southland reaches farther and farther into the hinterlands for water for its fertile but arid acres, history discloses that water was ever a problem here for the white man, his fields and his flocks.

Beneficiaries of the bounty of a virgin land, the Mission padres, too, were faced with the problem of adequate water supply to unlock the riches of the soil, and this gave rise to California's first dam which still stands in Mission Gorge, near San Diego, after more than 100 years.

One historian claims that the dam was constructed in 1795. A commemorative plaque states "between 1813 and 1816." It was built by Indian neophytes under guidance of the padres of Mission San Diego Nipaguay or more popularly known as Mission San Diego de Alcala, a few miles to the east.

Made of grey granite and cement 13 feet thick, a tile carried a flow of water into the acequia (canal) made of cement and stones. The channel or flume was engineered to such perfection that notwithstanding the fact that the aqueduct had to be carried over gulches 15 to 20 feet wide, the water was delivered in full flow at a designated spot.

IN EARLY DAYS, Cuyamaca Peak, 40 miles distant, was visible from the crest of the dam. Today the lush growth of trees and vines obscure any view. The timbers for the waste gate for the dam as well as for the mission came from this mountain.

A mile above the dam, was an old fortified sentinel post overlooking Cajon Valley. It was constantly in use because of the hostile attitude of the mountain Indians.

In 1817, Gov. Sola commended the padres on the ingenuity of their project which irrigated many acres of farmland and watered great herds of cattle.

AT ONE TIME, San Diego was referred to as "the city of bay and climate" indicating that was all it had to offer as natural resources. In 1906, there were 13 reservoirs holding 145 billion gallons of water. Today, San Diego ranks 23rd in value of agricultural products in the United States. The "imported" water of the Colorado is brought more than 100 miles.

The Cajon and Mission Valleys are fertile spots. Peaceful little Santee at the crossroads to the back country of San Diego is a quiet agricultural community. Mission Valley has luxurious motels and restaurants on a king size scale amid truck gardens. A freeway is also under construction.

THE ONCE TRANQUIL Mission Gorge today is filled with the howl of heavy machinery. Huge trucks and trailers haul ready mix cement, sand and gravel through the gorge via Cajon and Mission Valleys. Deep gravel pits mark operations of well known companies.

Progress has come to the gorge, but the dam the padres built still stands serene, little the worse for wear after more than a century of battering by the elements.

She Traded Her Rifle for a Pen

Kyra Petrovskaya has lived her life in high key and has plenty to tell as she nibbles pen, contemplates material for a chapter in her autobiography.

By Betty DeWeese

KYRA faced a Red firing squad when she was 7 months old—and escaped.

Her life since then has been hardly less exciting.

She's been a leading actress on the Russian stage, a wife four times, a sniper in the siege of Leningrad, a weekend visitor with the family of Joseph Stalin's son, a $50,000 winner on an American quiz show in the weapons category . . .

Naturally, she's writing her autobiography.

Besides her literary effort for a book publisher, the beautiful and blonde Kyra Petrovskaya keeps busy in her Santa Monica home taking care of her 4½-year-old son, singing with symphony groups, and lecturing. She likes to fill her time with artistic pursuits while she adjusts to her last divorce — from Elliott Shirk, American diplomat.

KYRA'S PERSONAL history goes back to the Russian revolution. As a baby in the arms of her mother, the Princess Zinaida, she waited in a barge to be machine gunned.

At the last minute, Kyra says, the Princess was called out of the lineup by a Red officer who recognized her and helped her to escape. Kyra's father, a White Russian army colonel, already had been executed.

Kyra's earliest memories are of her mother and the soup kitchens of the American Relief Administration which kept them both alive.

Her mother died of starvation years later in the siege of Leningrad during World War II.

By that time Kyra had become a well known actress, her interest in a dramatic career having been sparked by a teenage crush on a leading actor of the day, Boris Temin.

AFTER GRADUATION from drama school she was fortunate at the age of 19 to get into the company of the Leningrad Drama Theater, a state institution.

Almost immediately came one of the greatest thrills of her life: She was picked to play Juliet opposite Temin's Romeo.

Disillusionment quickly followed: She saw him being laced into a corset.

Later, on the Moscow stage, she gave three command performances for Joseph Stalin and became well acquainted with his son, Vassily.

Her first husband, a composer, had died of cancer when she was 19. Her second, a theatrical director, died from pneumonia after falling down a crevice in the ice on a visit to the Russian Arctic. World War II separated her from her third husband.

DURING THE WAR she was mobilized into the army and trained as a druzhinniza, a field nurse. Equipped with a submachine gun and a tarpaulin, she dragged wounded soldiers out of the heavy firing and gave them first aid. On the Leningrad front it often became necessary to stop dragging and start shooting.

When pressure eased, Kyra was put in charge of an entertainment unit for the army.

A directive from Moscow ordered all skits and songs to have the theme: "Kill a Nazi." As a publicity stunt and because she had been her high school's champion sharpshooter, Kyra was given a two-week course in sniping and sent out with a partner to kill a Nazi.

She did—and the retaliating fire killed her partner, an expert with 114 notches on his gun, and injured her with shrapnel splinters in both legs. But it made her a heroine, won her a medal and got her sent to Moscow to resume her acting career.

HER SNIPER TRAINING also gave her the necessary knowledge on weapons to win $50,000 years later, in November 1955, on "The Big Surprise," an American television quiz show.

In American she lived in Pennsylvania with her husband until their divorce last February.

Now, settled in Santa Monica, she regrets the loss of her position on the Russian stage, but she's happy to escape from continual fear.

In Russia, she says, "You keep your expression happy and your mouth shut, you avoid showing any sign of disapproval of anything official—and still you are not safe.

"Of all my friends and relatives in Russia, everyone at some time or another lost someone through exile or liquidation."

Seas of Danger

"Filming an adventure script on location is an adventure in hazards for both cast and crew," said Carl Dudley, now producing "Cinerama—South Seas," describing the hazards and accidents which beset the Cinerama cinema crew on its travels in the far Pacific.

Jack Warren, camerman, was knocked off his feet and suffered a broken knee in a rough sea near Christmas Island when a boom swung on him, said Dudley, citing the accidents and casualties thus far on the schooner Te Vega.

Joe Raue, assistant cameraman, went down with a brain concussion when a berserk boom knocked him over. Jimmy Engle suffered a broken arm when a high wave threw him against a bulwark. Jim Salmon was washed overboard by a heavy sea and pulled back to safety while two stewards, John Ljestrand and Dick Featherstone, were scalded with hot coffee when the Te Vega heeled over in a sudden squall.

Dudley returned to the mainland for several days of conferences on future South Seas filming and planed out again to connect with what remains intact of his outfit in Hawaii.

They Moved to Mexico and Love It

Harry and Juanita Smith, ex-Long Beach, discuss water tank atop their Mexico home. Height provides pressure.

By Eugenia Macdonald

HERE is the story about a Long Beach man and his wife who succumbed to the lure of living in manana land—Mexico.

Harry and Juanita Smith (he admits to being "a little over 60") lived in and loved Long Beach for more than three decades after they came here from Shanghai in 1923. Then, last year Juanita fell in love with Mexico City during a visit there in October 1956.

Harry Smith had prospered in Long Beach during his time—he owned the Bear State Lumber Co.—but as he reluctantly admits, "I like California, my wife likes Mexico—so we went to live in Mexico."

A year ago in December, the Smiths, after a bit of shopping around, took a lease on an ancient house (it was built in 1680, originally as part of a convent) in the residential San Angel (pronounced Sahn Ahnhell) district about six miles from downtown Mexico City near the sprawling University. The address: Juarez Tres.

THIS PROJECT required some thinking, doing and much hard work.

To begin with the Smiths tore out, ripped out, cleaned out and hauled out 7 dump truck loads of unwanted rubble.

Then they began to redecorate and rebuild. Mexican labor is cheap. But it's also hard to get the real meaning of the word "work" out of the men who are available. Most frustrating thing so far encountered by Harry and Juanita is the seemingly impossible task of keeping workmen on the job.

"A painter will take off for lunch," Harry says, "and not come back for three days."

But the Smiths are persevering. Their "castle" in Old Meh-hee-co is slowly becoming a beautiful home under the clever guidance of Juanita.

THE AMERICAN essentials are installed. Proper plumbing, built-in electric cooking equipment, washing machine, refrigerator and other items are all in and working.

The water to the house is pumped to rooftop reservoirs every night at midnight for use through the following day.

A special tank had to be built high over the roof to supply pressure for the washing machine. And the Smiths never will get over the day the machine was delivered. It weighed nearly 500 pounds and Smith wondered how it ever would be hoisted to the rooftop laundry area.

"Do not worry, Senor," the men said, "Manuel here will carry it up!"

THE ONLY WAY UP was by ladder. And Manuel got the heavy machine on his BACK and literally CARRIED it up.

"I still don't know how he did it," Harry exclaims in amazement, "but I SAW him do it."

The ancient house, with its two-foot-thick adobe walls and huge beamed ceilings, has been painted throughout. Wall-to-wall carpet has been laid in all the three bedrooms and halls. The big living room, dining kitchen and entrance hall floors have been kept as they have been for nearly three hundred years—beautiful, cool, red tile.

JUANITA HAS spent countless days explaining to the so-slow-moving workers how she wants the inside patio walls painted—all a pastel pink with a decorative blue line running all around about four feet from the ground.

Everywhere are pots, pots and more pots containing dozens of different colorful local flowers. Even the servants' quarters on the roof (they have a cook and a cleaning-laundry girl) are decorated with strategically placed, hand-made pottery containers full of beautiful blooms.

Harry and Juanita Smith have a new life now, a far cry from the one they knew in Long Beach. But they seem to like it. Within walking distance of their home is a new supermarket. "It's terrific—excellent," Harry says.

There is a big Sears Roebuck store from which they buy most ordinary necessities.

HARRY AND JUANITA have mastered a working version of the Mexican language. And they go into raptures when they talk about beverage prices at that supermarket. Their favorite is tequilla—at 70 cents a fifth. Fine rum is 75 cents a fifth and Gilbey's gin is $1.40. Food prices are comparable.

The Smiths must return to the United States every six months for re-entry into Mexico because they are not now and so far do not intend to become citizens there.

How long the Smiths will stay remains to be seen. They have a two-year lease. But Harry still likes it in Long Beach.

How to Remove That Stubborn Woodscrew

By H. B. McDermid

EVERY workman or house owner has run into the problem of the woodscrew set so tightly in the wood that it apparently can not be removed.

Perhaps the screw is rusted in the wood; perhaps it has been painted over.

Anyway, it is in so tight it cannot be loosened by giving it a tap with a hammer to shake the threads.

In such a case, the most determined effort of a strong man is useless in trying to back out the screw even with a bit brace and screwdriver.

The tool slips out of the slot in the screw's head, mangling the slot or perhaps tearing off the screw head.

WHAT TO DO?

Get a HOT soldering iron and apply it to the head of the screw, as shown in the accompanying cut.

Use a tool or bit of metal to help place the hot iron exactly where you want it. Hold the tool with one hand and maneuver the hot iron with the other.

Heat the screw thoroughly. Let it cool completely. Then you'll be surprised how easily the screw can be taken out with a screwdriver.

Analyzing the action — the screw is expanded by the heat, enlarging the hole in which it is fast. When the screw cools, it contracts, and its threads break away from the threads in the wood.

Sometimes the problem is to release a lag screw that has been driven into hardwood, like good oak. A wrench and plenty of power would only tear the head off the lag screw.

THE CURE is the same — apply strong heat and let the lag screw cool thoroughly before using the wrench. However, in this case it is wise to use a small acetylene flame instead of the hot soldering iron.

Sometimes rusty nails foil workmen. Suppose a one-inch fairly soft wood board has been nailed onto much heavier wood. The job has set until the nail has rusted into the heavier piece.

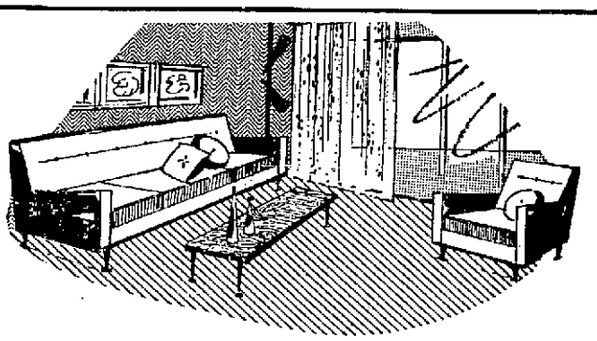

Place a nail set on the nail head and with a sharp blow drive it in slightly deeper, breaking the nail's hold on the wood. Then the two pieces of wood can be separated.

Hot soldering iron applied to head of a stubborn screw will expand it. When it cools it shrinks, can be backed out.

BEAUTIFUL HOMES

Southland takes its readers into a different, attractive Long Beach area home each week.

So You Want to Give a Party!

"HOW TO DO IT, OR THE LIVELY ART OF ENTERTAINING" by Elsa Maxwell (Little, Brown, $4.75).

"TIME FOR A PARTY: THE COMPLETE HOME PARTY BOOK" by Ruth Brent (McGraw-Hill, $4.95): What with the holidays coming up and gay parties or an open house on the agenda, either or both of these ingenious books will be more than a little helpful to the hostess. You may or may not know that Miss Maxwell is the reigning Queen of Party Givers, and in her light and airy style she tells how she has entertained with incomparable style such personages as the Dubbess of Windsor, Aly Khan, Clare Boothe Luce, Clark Gable and others. Among other things, Miss Maxwell does not recommend holding one's little finger out when dunking: It's too dangerous. Acknowledged as an expert in the art of entertaining by Good Housekeeping Magazine, and a highly successful party-giver most of her life, Mrs. Brent in her "Time for a Party" helps plan holiday get-togethers, family affairs, parties for the bride and bride-to-be, children's and teenage parties, and whatnot with a minimum of effort and expense. She knows all the shortcuts and her ideas are fresh and exciting.

"KNIGHTS OF CHRIST" by Helen Walker Homan (Prentice-Hall, $12.50): Already the author of a half-dozen books commonly found in Catholic libraries, Helen Walker Homan has added to her stature as a historian of religious literature with this new work which dramatically follows the lives of followers of God who founded holy orders, congregations and societies, bound by special vows and dedicated to special service of the Roman Catholic Church. The book opens with the founding of the first group—the order of Saint Benedict, in 510 a.d.—and follows through to the newest, the Glenmary Missioners, organized in 1939, and shows how each was designed to spread the Christian faith. Catholics will find each chapter a stimulating one.

"THE COMPLETE MANUAL OF FREE DIVING" (Putnam, $4): Famous practitioners in the art of free diving who are members of the Underseas Research and Development Group of the French Navy pooled their talents to produce this one. Safety, diving equipment, underwater photography and hundreds of bits of necessary information to divers, professional and nonprofessional, are found in these pages.

"THE WIDENING CIRCLE, A PERSONAL SEARCH" by John Van Druten, (Scribner's, $3.95); Van Druten, London-born novelist and playwright who now lives in great contentment in the Coachella Valley, near Indio, explores his past, his interests, his beliefs in an ever-widening circle to find the meaning of himself. He uncovers a fetish for nostalgia, an urge so strong that it is almost an obsession, to return to places where he has been, to relive experiences of the past. He finds, too, a need for religion, and this need is filled in a satisfying way.

WITH CALIFORNIA'S capital city in 1912 as its setting, "Sacramento Waltz," a novel by Elva Williams (McGraw-Hill, $3.75) tells the lively, entertaining story of a beautiful widow in search of a husband and a grocery store enchantress in search of men. It's a tale capably told in the lighter vein. Illustration is from the dust jacket.

"GOD IN ACTION" by Lydia Ommen (Vantage, $2): Mrs. Ommen, a Long Beach resident, wrote "America's Prayer" which was dedicated to the armed forces at a Blue Star Mothers convention in Long Beach in World War II, and since has been widely quoted. This volume tells how, from anxiety and travail, she wrote the prayer, and her definite belief in the efficacy of prayer.

"ONE MAN'S FIGHT FOR FREEDOM" by A. G. Heinsohn Jr. (The Caxton Printers, Ltd., $3): Heinsohn heads the Cherokee Textile Mills in Sevierville, Tenn., housed in what is believed to be the most modern cotton mill facilities in the nation. Here he recounts his battle with the government, pleads for a lessening of restrictions on the individual, for a lessening of controls over labor and industry.

MISCELLANY: "THE CHRISTMAS THAT ALMOST WASN'T" by Ogden Nash (Little, Brown, $3), a very dear and lively tale in verse of a crisis that, once upon a Christmastime, overtook a Graustark-like land and very nearly—but not quite—ruined everybody's holiday. . . . "LOOK ON THE LIGHTER SIDE" edited by Gurney Williams (Prentice-Hall, $3.95), a rather large volume packed with cartoons, anecdotes and verse from top humorists that have appeared in Look Magazine. . . . "Pacific Tugboats" by Gordon Newell and Joe Williamson (Superior Pub. Co., Seattle, $8.50), a parade of "little giants" of Pacific ports, in picture and story, many of which will be recognized by Long Beach's big colony of harbor people. . . . "EVERYONE NEEDS A WILL," by Edmond Schapiro (Vantage, $2), an introduction to wills and how to make them, by a San Francisco attorney. "THE AZURE COAST" by Charles Graves (Putnam, $5), a visit to the fabled French Riviera, old and new, that will be absorbing to those who have been there and those who dream of going. . . "OF LOVE AND LUST" by Theodor Reik (Farrar, Straus and Cudahy, $7.50), a psychoanalysis of romantic and sexual emotions by a world-famed psychoanalyst. . . . "CALYPSO SONG BOOK" by William Attaway (McGraw-Hill, $2.95), a collection of authentic folk music of the Caribbean. . . . "The HAWTHORN BOOK OF CHRISTMAS CAROLS," edited by Cyril Taylor, warden of the Royal School of Church Music, and illustrated in color (Hawthorn, $3.95), a beautiful little book containing all the favorite Christmas hymns and carols.

Protein, Key to Keeping Trim

Meat balls in tomato sauce provide a tasty and satisfying main dish for dinner in a typical "Dieters' Day" menu. Peas, salad and potato are added.

By Mildred K. Flanary

Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

HERE IT IS at last, the complete expose on what goes on during "A Day in the Life of a Dieter." The inside story of how to eat three satisfying meals and stay slim doing it.

For years, nutrition experts have worked on the problem of combating overweight and recent discoveries have shown high protein to be the answer. Protein cuts hunger, yet protein foods keep you well fed. The current trend for weight conscious people is to eat such things as meat, milk and eggs.

Another favorite food, high in protein but low in cost, is oatmeal. Oatmeal gives you more protein than any other leading cereal yet is surprisingly low in calories. Just recently, a series of menus featuring this high-protein food were made available. They are satisfying, nutritious and easily prepared. In fact, the basic meals require no special cooking and can easily be adapted to needs of the growing children and active adults in the family. All the nutrients required during one day are available in both the 1,600 and 2,400 calorie menus.

Take our "Dieter's Day" for example. Here is a typical menu.

For weight-conscious adults:

Leg of Lamb With Cranberry

Split three cloves of garlic into slivers and insert deeply into the leg of lamb. Add 3 cups of cranberries and enough cold water to cover the lamb. Simmer until tender. (The cranberries tenderize the meat and make a great difference in the final flavor.) When the lamb is tender, remove from the kettle, put into roasting pan and cover with the following mixture: 4 tsp. mint jelly, 1 tsp. dry mustard, 1 stalk celery, chopped fine, and 1 cup cranberry juice. Top with buttered crumbs and bake slowly at 300° F. approximately one hour, basting frequently. May be served hot or cold.

SERVE WITH: Consomme, Browned Potatoes, Baked Onions, Hot Rolls, Mint Sauce, Jellied Gingerale, Date-Nut Pudding.

FRIED CHICKEN, FAMILY STYLE

You really have the family at heart when you buy chicken parts as you insure that each has his favorite piece. Of course, there are those that like anything just so long as it's chicken.

Here are some hints on how to fry chicken successfully. The trick is to have each piece well browned and crispy outside, with tender juicy meat inside. Watch browning process to prevent burning. Cook chicken slowly to get the chicken thoroughly cooked, but not dry.

Flour coat chicken parts by putting ½ cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon paprika, ⅛ teaspoon pepper or poultry seasoning in a paper bag, shake, add 2 or 3 pieces of chicken at one time, shake well. heat enough shortening in a heavy skillet to make a layer ½ inch deep. Place pieces of chicken in hot fat to fry. When done, remove to platter and make gravy in pan drippings.

TOY LOAN has become not only character-building for children, but means jobs and self-redemption for unfortunate adults. For the toys are completely reconditioned by handicapped persons, who often learn a trade in the process, making it possible for them to find full employment elsewhere.

Also attesting to the success of Toy Loan are its counterparts established in more than a dozen other states and in Germany, Italy and Denmark.

All this, because some children stole some spools of thread 22 years ago!

lying nearby.

MARTIN'S MOST ambitious project to date has just been completed. This is a massive setting of "The Last Supper." It took 125 tons of cement and more than a year's work. The 13 figures are nine feet tall and seated at a table 30 feet long. The entire scene is cut in bas-relief in the face of a wall which is over three stories high. The Last Supper is so placed in the park that the sun shines on it throughout the day.

When Desert Christ Park first opened it had only a few hundred visitors the first year —last year more than 150,000 people visited the unique park in its beautiful desert setting.

Martin firmly believes his program is a success, saying, "Civilization will certainly go down beneath atomic destruction unless the religious people of the world get together. My statues are one man's gesture toward a peaceful world and I believe they are helping to bring mankind together."

And with that thought Martin returns to his dedicated work of carving the teachings of Christ—teachings that will last forever.

Here's a Santa Set You Can Make

Santa Claus will come and spend the whole holiday season at your home if you make this display for roof or lawn. It can be a family project, too.

By Steve Ellingson

TIME BRINGS many changes — but not to Christmas. The whole world bows before this season with its time honored customs, the wide-eyed wonder of children and the spirit of peace.

Christmas is one time for everyone in the family to participate, the youngest and the oldest. It's an open season for do-it-yourselfers.

To let others make all the preparations for you, takes half the fun out of the yuletide season; the fun you experience when you do things yourself and get the family to help make Christmas something special.

AN OUTDOOR display makes your home a bright spot in the neighborhood and helps to spread the Christmas spirit. It needn't be expensive. As a matter of fact, it costs very little when you do it yourself. Of course, you don't do it all by yourself. Let the children help. You'll be surprised how much fun it is and how capable they are.

The Santa, reindeer and sleigh figures pictured here, with NBC actress Dayle Rodney, will make any yard come alive. The little choir boy and girl figures are 43 inches high and they get the Christmas idea over just fine.

The Santa figures may be fastened on the roof, they may be placed on their way up to the chimney or out in the yard in the snow. (We're sorry they couldn't be pictured in snow, but that's how it is in California.) You can make as many reindeer as you like. The choir boy and girl go well anywhere in your yard.

IT'S EASY to make these figures with the full size patterns. All you do is trace the full size patterns on plywood, next paint over the tracings and then saw out the figures. The patterns give complete directions along with the colors to use, etc. There's nothing to it.

To obtain the full size choir boy and girl patterns No. 153 send $1. The Santa, reindeer and sleigh patterns are No. C-4 for $2. Send the check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine, The Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram, Van Nuys, Calif.

Real Cool Idea

Those pretty girls on television to the contrary, there's still an awful lot of iceboxes being made in this country. However, most of them are now being used by commercial firms rather than in the homes. Recently, a Los Angeles ice company installed huge iceboxes made of fir plywood and report savings of $175 each over previous boxes made of steel.

The boxes are used to keep dry ice from vaporizing in storage and en route to the company's customers.

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

Her Clowns Go 'Round in Circles

Yo-yo clowns, made by Mrs. Glen Gerken (right), spread cheer. Mrs. L. Roy Lash (left) helps make the clowns.

By Caroline Coleman

MRS. GLEN A. GERKEN long will be remembered as the "Clown Lady" to men and women who served with her on Superior Court juries last summer.

During lunch hours and in the waits between cases, Mrs. Gerken sewed hundreds of circles of cloth into yo-yos which became the bodies, arms and legs of clowns.

She took the yo-yos to her home, 200 E. 65th St., and they came back the next day as completed clowns, with ruffles, caps and tassles, to the delight of everyone.

Soon fellow-jurors were bringing her scraps of bright cloth and taking a hand in sewing yo-yos.

MRS. L. ROY LASH, wife of the pastor of Starr King United Presbyterian Church, became fascinated with the clowns.

"I should like to make the faces," she said.

Embroidering the faces before sewing up the head, which is made of unbleached muslin, facilitated assembly of the clowns.

During the 90 days of jury duty, 45 clowns were born. Each an individual in his own right.

IT TAKES 20 YO-YOS to make the body of a clown, 20 more for each arm and leg, plus a big one for a ruffle around the neck. Yo-yos for the body are made from five-inch circles, yo-yos for the arms and legs from four-inch circles, and the neck ruffle is made from a circle six inches or upwards. Mrs. Gerken cuts the tall pointed cap from the material before she cuts the neck ruff.

Arms, legs and body are strung on heavy carpet yarn and assembled. Then the yarn is tied for hands and feet, a tie goes around the neck, and a top piece complete the hat.

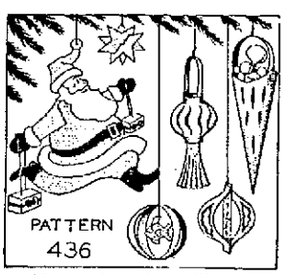

As the clowns come alive, they are given to the Women's Christian Service Assn. (of which Mrs. Gerken is president) of the Starr King United Presbyterian Church and from there they find homes in girls' dormitories in college, at the beds of old ladies and in the cribs of small children.

The clowns will be an attraction at the Nov. 21 bazaar at the church, Artesia St. and Long Beach Blvd.

Oldest Orchard

The oldest apple orchard in America is at Mazano, in central New Mexico. Originally planted in 1676, when New Mexico was a Spanish territory, the orchard still includes trees bearing fruit after more than 150 years.

You Make It

Tree trims that glitter may be made from scraps of foil, colored paper and sequins. Santa with arms fitted in slots carries boxes suspended on threads. Pattern 436, which gives actual-size cutting guides, costs 25c. This pattern also is included in Packet 48 with many more guides for Christmas decorations and cards, all for $1. Orders under $1 add 10c service charge. Send orders to: Pattern Dept., Southland Magazine, Independent-Press-Telegram, Bedford Hills, N. Y.

It's All Greek To Them

By Elson E. Irwin

THE GREEKS are taking over State College Little Theater.

"Medea," Euripides' classic tragedy as adapted by Robinson Jeffers, will open a three-night engagement in the Little Theater at Long Beach State College Nov. 14. Curtain time for all performances will be 8:30 p.m.

Dr. Clayton Garrison will direct, period settings will be designed by Dr. John Green, authentic Greek costumes by Miss Inge Schmidt, lighting effects by John Elliott and choreography by Suzanne Fowler.

"Medea" deals with good, evil, prejudice, intermarriage, revenge and jealousy.

"IT IS AS TIMELY as the morning newspaper," says Dr. Garrison. He adds: "We will attempt to be Greek in style, and contemporary in meaning."

Work on the production actually began as far back as last spring when Dr. Garrison, after talking for two years about doing a Greek play, got the go-ahead.

The selection of the play ran the natural course of events. Dr. Garrison ruled out plays which had been done recently, and also those which had run the television and movie gamut.

After the selection of "Medea," Dr. Garrison had the immediate problem of deciding which translation to use. He finally decided on the Jeffers adaptation.

"One of the main reasons that I finally chose the Jeffers version," Garrison said, "is that he was available for questioning."

JEFFERS, currently living in Carmel, was contacted and in a return letter the playwright was able to help Dr. Garrison in the interpretation of the play.

Garrison's two main questions were concerned with style and meaning. Jeffers answered promptly. His answers were short but informative.

"I know nothing about style," Jeffers wrote. "In fact, I know very little about writing plays."

Jeffers admitted that he had seen less than a half-dozen plays in his lifetime. The playwright also said that "the meaning of the play resides with each member of the audience. If the poet must be held accountable for this work, then I refer you to Euripides."

"I felt safe, after reading this," said Dr. Garrison, "to proceed with my investigation of Euripides, feeling absolutely sure that Jeffers was completely honest in his adaptation of the play."

THE ORIGINAL VERSION of "Medea" was written in 431 B.C. Jeffers completed his modern adaptation in 1946.

Reservations for all performances may be made at the Little Theater box office at Long Beach State College.

Taking key roles are Mary Daugherty as Medea, Donald Ulander as Jason, Henry Kemp-Blair as Creon, Duane Ryan as Aegeus, Paula Smith as Nurse, Jo Harestad, Barbara Morris and Norma Myers as the Corinthian Chorus.

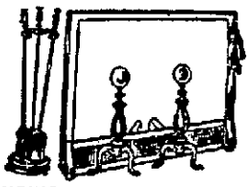

Supporting actors include Clifford Hansen, Jimmie White, George Williams, Charles Slater, William Warch, Charles Slater, Roberta Bowker and Phyliss Robertson.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the meaning and geneaology of McLEAN and McCLAIN—Mrs. E. H., Lakewood; L. M., Paramount.

MRS. E. H. and L. M.: The MacLEANS are among the most prominent of the old Scotch Highland clans. Variations of the surname include McLean, McClain, McLane and Macklin. The ancient Gaelic source-name was MacGillaEain, meaning "Sons of the servant of St. John." The clan founder was Gillean of the Battle Axe in the 13th Century. The MacLean family crest has this battle axe to symbolize the ancestor's prowess in war. Duart Castle has been the home of the clan chiefs for many centuries. It is located on a cliff of the Island of Mull, across a channel from the west Scotch county of Argyll.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly give the analysis of the name WENDT.—MRS. J. W., Long Beach.

MRS. J. W.: The German surname WENDT has two sources. One is Wend, the race-name of the Wendish people. They are of Slavic origin and reside in the eastern German provinces of Brandenburg and Wendt is the old locative German word "wende," meaning "turning point or bend" in a road. The Wendt lineage became counts in the nobility of Austria. Their coat of arms has three blue and silver warrior's helmets on a golden shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: I would like the origin of JONTE.—MRS. C. J., Buena Park.

MRS. C. J.: JONTE is a phonetic, dialect spelling of the French surname Jentet. Jonte is among 50 or more surnames initiated from the given name Jean (John in English). The ancient Biblical "John" or Yehokhanan meant "God is gracious." No other information is available on this family.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly give information on the south Irish name BRENNAN.—J. B., Lakewood.

J. B.: The Irish BRENNAN family trace their ancestry to a chief called Braonain, who lived over eight centuries ago. He was characterized as emanating "Braonain" or "Sadness." The home of his progeny was County Kilkenny, where descendants formed the Clan O'Braonain. This was respelled O'Brennan and later reduced to Brennan. The family coat of arms has a red triangle on an ermine covered shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: I would like an analysis of the name SUMMERS.—V. S., Long Beach; MRS. J. S., Lakewood.

V. S. and MRS. J. S.: The Old English word "Somer," meaning "summertime," was often used to christen children born in July and August. The surname SUMMERS developed from that given-name. Other unimaginative seasonal given-names, Winter, Snow and Spring, became convenient at baptismal fonts and also became permanent surnames. The Summers coat of arms has an ermine band across a green shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: We would appreciate the analysis of LINDSAY.—S. Z. S., Garden Grove.

S. Z. S.: Hidden within the surname LINDSAY is the pastoral meaning, "Isle of Lime Trees." Two places in England are called Lindsay, one in Essex, the other in Lincoln. Walter de Lyndesay is recorded in Westminster in the 56th year of the reign of King Henry III (1272). Some Lindsays migrated to Scotland in the 1200s. They became politically prominent in Scotland and were created the Earls of Crawford. The Lindsay coat of arms, granted in 1398, has a checkered blue and silver stripe across a red shield, with the motto "Endure Fort," meaning "Suffer Bravely." American Lindsay settlers were among the founders of Pennsylvania.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would much appreciate a brief geneology of the name BOND.—M. R., K. B., Long Beach; D. B., Wilmington.

M. R., K. B. and D. B.: Ten centuries ago in Anglo-Saxon England a "bonda" was a farmer. This term became a surname in the 12th Century. In the 13th Century Robert Le Bonde was a Worcestershire resident. The Bond coat of arms was first granted in Cornwall, a gold stripe across the center of a blackshield. The Bonds settled in Ipswich, Mass., in 1640.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the meaning of the name LARSON.—E.G.L., Long Beach.

E.G.L.: LARSON has a Swedish background. The root-name Lars is the Scandinavian form of Lawrence, from the Latin "Laurentius," translated as "laurel-crowned one." A crown of laurel leaves was placed on winners of athletic contests in ancient Rome and Greece. Consequently the name also meant "the victor." Most Larsons in America are descended from Scandinavian families who came to this country between 1830 and 1890.

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif., for analysis and brief genealogy, for publication in this column.

What's wrong with me? I'll tell you—the world's going to the dogs, that's what! Cat-astrophic, I calls it. Why, look at Sputnik II. It's a baby moon, and everybody knows moons are made of green cheese. Where there's cheese, there are mice. By gum, if our scientists had any guts (catguts, of course) they'd ship me up there (not a dog!). I'd take care of those Russian rodents!

Stanislaus Writes His Congressman

But face it—the cards are stacked against us. Look at this inane magazine story. It's titled "I Hate Cats." Pretty purr taste. I have a notion to write my congressman.

Let's see, now. I could tell him about what happened in Hamlin the day the piper got too pie-eyed to tootle his pipes. Us cats sure pulled his fat out of the fire.

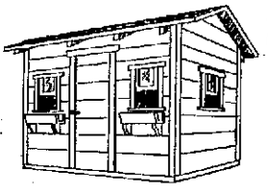

And awa-a-a-y we go! "Dear Sir: Hope this letter finds you bright-eyed and bushy-tailed. We of the C. A. T. CAMERA ANGLES

Move In on Those Movie Takes

By Bob Knight

ONE GETS you five that the first snapshot-making habit you acquired was to back up with your camera so as to "get everything in." Feet as well as features. For most snapshots (although they shouldn't be) are made by a one subject-one shot formula. And right here is the chief distinction between snapshots and movies. When shooting movies you film in sequences, with each sequence being composed of several shots . . . the whole of which makes one moving picture of a subject — with the most important shots in each sequence being the close-ups, just as they are in life.

How, for example, do you enjoy a garden? Do you stand back, or circle it, at a distance? You do not. You pause at the outset to take in its full sweep. Then you move in a bit closer to inspect a single flower bed. And then you really move in to savor the beauty of individual blooms — first one, then another, and then another. Which is just what you should do and can do to perfection in movies, with the big difference being that with a movie camera and color film you can reproduce far greater detail and beauty than you were able to perceive with the naked eye when you made your shots. For movie cameras are uniquely well fitted to capture close-ups as big, and even bigger, than life. And that goes for any movie camera, no matter how simple and inexpensive.

Moving in close gives an informal portrait of a boy and his dog pal that will be terrific on the screen.

WITH EVEN the most elementary movie camera equipped with a non-focusing lens you can shoot within 3½ feet of a subject. At that distance its lens will span a field about a foot wide. As even the low-cost 8mm movie projectors will fill a screen two to three feet wide, it automatically doubles or triples the width of your camera target, thus increasing its over-all area four to six times. More brilliant 8mm pro-

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

"We will be in Europe when we have our next baby. We now have a little girl 19 months old. Do you know anything about medical care?"

I NEVER had this problem. But I would suggest the American Hospital in Paris. I know two of the doctors here. They are excellent.

You'll find good medical care in Switzerland. And in London.

You might even come under the socialized medicine plan there. I don't know whether it covers maternity cases. But it seems to cover tourists as well as residents.

A friend of mine had his appendix taken out and the bill was something around $2.50. You can hardly afford to keep an appendix at that price.

* * * *

"We would like to spend Christmas in Mexico and are interested in skin diving."

BETTER TAKE your breathing equipment. You can rent the fins and spears but I hear the other gear is hard to get.

I'd suggest Mazatlan and Puerto Vallarta. Mazatlan is two days down the West Coast from Nogales, Ariz. Nice town. Several beach hotels I hear are good but I haven't stayed in them. I usually get a room high up at the Freeman overlooking the bay. Don't eat there. Eat at the other hotels along the avenue. I like the more Mexican hotels—the ones with the big interior patios and a boa constrictor slithering around as a mouse catcher.

* * * *

PUERTO VALLARTA further south is only open by air. From Mazatlan or Guadalajara. Several good hotels and wonderful bays and islands. This is the absolute favorite with all the American news correspondents in Mexico City.

You'll probably like the outlying Mexican towns for Christmas better than Mexico City. The season lasts about two weeks with some very colorful customs.

Rooms will cost about $5 a day double. Meals about $4 a day for each person.

* * * *

THE STREET STAND oysters with lime juice and hot sauce are great. Don't miss them. They bring them in fresh each day. And I would try the raw fish and onion cocktail called saviche. It's really cooked—cooked by letting it stand in the lime juice.

"I have $400 a month and want to take my two teen-age daughters to live in Europe for a while where they can learn a language."

SPAIN, near Malaga on the Mediterranean Coast has pleasant weather, pink-and-blue houses, little fried fish cooked with their tails together like a poker hand, warm people.

Friend of mine says he does this with his family for $3,000 a year which includes a villa, cook and maid. Buy your money outside Spain. The market peseta is down to 56.17 to the U. S. $1. About 20 per cent better.

* * * *

"We hear that you have things stolen in Europe."

I HONESTLY don't think there's as much lifting as there is in the States. The whole crime rate in Europe is lower. I never had anything stolen in Europe.

I leave my big money in the hotel safe. Lock my car just as I would here if it's full of baggage. But I leave cameras and change around the room and no maid yet has ever boosted a thing.

TRAVEL AND RESORTS

Tourists Go South

Tourist travel to South America will jump ahead in 1958, continuing a strong trend which began late in 1956.

Escorted-group passengers reported for the first 10 months of 1957 by a nationwide travel service show an increase of 46 per cent over all of 1956. Figures for "independent" tourists are still being compiled, the service says, and are expected to show a parallel upsurge.

The report, based on information gathered from the American and Canadian offices of Cook's Travel Service and their authorized local travel agents, indicates the continuing rise in South American travel is due mainly to a 30 per cent reduction in all-year 30-day excursion air fares. This reduction went into effect in 1956 and is expected to continue throughout 1958.

Japan's Treasure

One of Japan's National Treasures is the "Sanjusangendo," or the "Hall of Thirty-Three Ken." It's so-called because of the 33 spaces between the pillars in the hall. Northwest Orient Airlines, booking its tourists to this showplace in Kyoto, reports that the hall was built in 1266. It's noted for its wooden image of the Thousand-handed Goddess Kannon, the principal object of worship. The Kannon is accompanied by 28 faithful followers and 1,001 smaller images of herself, all of rare artistic value.

Life on Dead Sea

The Dead Sea, Biblical setting for the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah and the rescue of Lot, is making a bid for 20th Century tourists. An air-cooled cafe is being built along the shore, and a luxury hotel is going up atop Mount Carmel.

Sightseers can now visit the restored fortress of Massada and cruise across the Dead Sea to the tropical gardens of Ein Gedi.

British Sea Sport

Sharking is the big sport along the southern coast of England, says Pan American. The waters near Cornwall teem with these great fish, and the Shark Angling Club of Great Britain has its headquarters in the nearby port of Looe. Visitors can hire sharking boats for $22.40 a day, and tackle rents for $3.50.

Taina Elg, Mitzi Gaynor and Kay Kendall (l. to r.) representing France, America and England, sing-dance a Cole Porter hit in musical comedy smash, "Les Girls."

HOLLYWOOD

Beautiful Girls Set to Music

BEAUTIFUL GIRLS set to music written by Cole Porter—those are the ingredients blended into a sophisticated music comedy smash, "Les Girls," produced in CinemaScope and Metrocolor by MGM. Heading the cast are Kay Kendall (see Southland cover), Mitzi Gaynor and Taina Elg, with Gene Kelly in the top male role. It's the story of a gay, tune-filled troupe in the music halls of Europe, and in it Miss Kendall makes her Hollywood debut. Cole Porter songs include "Les Girls," "Ladies in Waiting," "The Rope Song," "The Flower Song," "Ca C'est L'Amour" and "Why Am I So Gone About That Gal?"

jectors will show movies up to five feet wide. And 16mm projectors will "blow up" their images to 10 feet in width, or even larger.

But this is only the beginning of close-up possibilities! With a modest little item known as a portra lens slipped over your camera's standard lens, you can move in to about 10 inches and span a field about four inches wide. Transpose those inches into feet on your movie screen, and you've a real close-up in any league!

MOVIE CAMERAS with focusing lenses can usually be used as close as 12 inches from a subject, which again covers but a four-inch wide field. Add a portra lens to such cameras and you can whoop up a target only about two inches in width. In terms of the garden we were discussing, that's but one flower, the petals of which you can spread across the full proportions of your living room screen!

But more important than the mechanics—which is hardly the word—of making close-ups, is their value in filling out your movie diary with the most significant and most satisfying of all picture records. And let's take as our case in point a certain very young lady or very young man of whom you're especially fond. You'll want shots of him or her en toto, of course. But as part of your moving picture record you'll especially want those intimate d all-important little glimpses and all-important little glimpses and mannerisms that make youngsters so appealing . . . so downright adorable: The chubby and dimpled hand patting flat the contents of a sand bucket . . . the ecstatically wiggling toes . . . the button nose, all scrunched up in concentration. And you can film their play from their viewpoint, showing all the wonderful color and detail of their make-believe world. They needn't pose! They needn't pause! Because movies—especially close-up movies—are ideally designed to capture life exactly as it is lived.

(Next week: Composition and Camera Angles.)

'Drift Planting' for Spring Color

By Joe Littlefield

SOME GARDENERS like to plant a sunny area full of annuals and bulbs for loads of spring color. Others have limited garden space, yet would like to plant as many flowers as is practical. Best way to get the most effective color for spring, whether space is large or small, is to plant combinations of annuals and bulbs.

There is an easy way to accomplish this. First, take a stake or piece of wood and mark off the area you wish to plant. The marked-off area may be square, oblong, egg-shaped, triangular or otherwise.

The area may be five feet long and three feet wide, or three feet long by two feet or a foot and a half wide. It could be much larger, too. Actually, there's no set rule as to size, because yard space really determines the size, anyway.

WITHIN the allotted area, mark some straight lines parallel with the line of the flower bed, walks or driveway which the flower bed may adjoin. The straight lines indicate rows where plants are to be set out. Spacing of the lines depends upon types of plants to be set out. When the plants have been staggered in the rows and have grown together, no one will know that they were set in straight lines! This method of grouping together and planting is called "drift planting." It merely means plantings that are informal.

There are many interesting combinations of plants. As an example, ranunculus, Iceland poppies and blue violas form a delightful group. Iceland poppies, with saucer-shaped blooms and petals like crepe paper, in white, several shades of yellow and orange, rose and pink, bloom early along with the blue violas. Later in the winter, ranunculus with many double and some single flowers burst forth in bright colors ranging from scarlet and rose, orange and yellow, through pink

Tall, stately delphiniums rear their spikes of blue in background of this planting and against green hedge.

Tips on Gardening

GARDENING TIPS for the week . . . One of the most attractive ornamentals for the Long Beach area, and of fairly recent popularity, is the Hawaiian fern. The foliage is a shade of light green and the plant is unbeatable for use around swimming pools, patios and as a specimen plant. It is also widely used for foundation planting.

Many varieties of camellias are now coming into bloom. Purchasing them now will provide a wealth of bloom for many months. These shrubs require shallow planting and plenty of moisture. A mulch of peat will aid in conserving moisture, preventing soil cracking and keeping the roots cool.

The Croft lily, often called the true Easter lily will flower in May and June if planted now. The blooms are trumpet-shaped, pure white and wax-like in texture.

Winter-flowering sweet peas can be started in this area all through the winter months. The plants have the capacity for flowering when skies are grey and temperatures decline. Sweet peas are heavy feeders and drinkers.

Parrot tulips are distinct from the more familiar Darwins, as their petals are deeply cut and fringed. Fantasy, Discovery, Blue Parrot and Firebird are a few of the better varieties for this area.

Oleanders Have Their Place

Oleanders, recommended for the Long Beach area, are excellent background and screening shrubs.

By Walter Finch

FAMILIAR SIGHTS along California's highway system, oleanders are recommended strongly by the California Association of Nurserymen as lovely garden attractions in all warm regions of the state, particularly the Long Beach area. The more sunlight, including reflected sunlight, they receive, the more bounteous the crop of lovely blooms. They are excellent as background and screening shrubs.

There are two botanical species which are familiarly called "oleander"; the popular nerium oleander and the less known but very attractive Yellow Oleander (thevetia nereifolia). The round-headed Yellow Oleander thrives best in the coastal hot areas, while the nerium oleander proves highly successful in the hot interior valleys as well as on the southern coast.

The nerium oleander is a sturdy shrub which grows normally as a many-stemmed bush, one that can be pruned as a multiple-stemmed tree, similar to the multiple-trunked olive tree. The attractive foliage consists of long, feather-shaped, dark green leaves.

NERIUM OLEANDERS are available in many named varieties. Local nurseries each have their favorite named types in many colors, including single or double whites, pink, salmon, yellow and red. The flowers bloom in attractive clusters amidst attractive foliage.

The nerium oleanders bloom profusely from May or June through October while the yellow oleander blooms from June to November. Thevetia has varieties with apricot flowers as well as the yellow from which the name derives.

Fuchsia Society

Mrs. Dorothy Jonson, author of Southland Magazine's popular garden feature "Dorothy Digs in the Garden," will lecture on "Your Garden in the Fall" before the Lakewood Area Branch of the National Fuchsia Society at 8 p.m. Nov. 12 in Legion Hall, Post 496, Parkcrest Dr., Lakewood. H. G. Parker is program chairman.

Plants Add Color

There are many winter blooming plants that will bring color into drab winter gardens if planted right now. Among shrubs, the heater is one of the most attractive and it is available in many species with needle or scale-like foliage and soft purple or white blooms. Another is the pyracantha, whose species and varieties bear gaily colored berries throughout the long winter. See some of these shrubs at your nurseryman's now.

shades to creamy whites. Together, they form a combination that makes those garden spots shine with vibrant color!

SPACE the ranunculus and Iceland poppies five inches apart in the same row, alternating the two types of plants. This may seem like planting too closely. It isn't, because the Iceland poppies grow somewhat low and mounding, whereas renunculus grow tall, with foliage thin near the ground.

If you've had trouble from birds damaging the tender ranunculus foliage, or perhaps have lost plants due to soil being too damp, plant ranunculus already established from flats or pony packs.

Continue to plant additional rows the same way, excepting the front row. In it, plant blue violas spaced about six inches apart, but slightly staggered on either side of the marked row.

Delphiniums can form masses of bloom in various shades of blue. Use them at the back of the flower bed, in front of garden walls, or shrubbery plantings.

Many gardening folk still wonder what the secret is in growing four, five or six-foot-tall spiked flowers. Actually, there's no secret at all. It's just that they planted the delphiniums either too late in the spring, or else too early in the summer for next season.

IDEAL TIME to plant delphiniums for tallest spike growth is during fall and early winter. Plants must undergo a cool period to develop a sturdy root system.

If there's any secret to successful culture of Pacific hybrid delphiniums, then it's working in a half cup of bone meal at the time of planting, whether plant is flat size or larger. Then, too, they should be fed with a complete balanced fertilizer at least twice throughout the winter. Water plants as soil dries, and protect them from chewing worms and slugs.

Cold weather, including frost, seems to give the roots added vigor and toughness. Come late winter, notice flower spike growth will slowly move upwards. As the sun travels northward, its rays seem to have a magnet that draws the flower spikes upward.

Watch your pansy bed. These colorful little plants sometimes suffer from what is popularly known as "pansy wilt." Actually, on most occasions when you find one or two pansies dying every day and still can detect no signs of insect infestation or other cause, the trouble is underground.

Wireworms and other underground pests take their toll by injuring the tender roots of the pansy plants so that they gradually sicken and die. You can eliminate this evil without much difficulty. I use a copper-ether product to disinfect the soil in which the plants are growing. If the pansy plants are well watered a few hours before treating the soil, they will have absorbed all the moisture they want and will not absorb any of the ether content, but will go on blooming merrily, freed of their underground enemies. This treatment will be effective on other plants as well.

PET PARADE

Love, Honor and Obey

By Eleanor Avery Price

EXPECTED to be the outstanding event of its kind on the West Coast, the fourth annual convention of the Southern California Obedience Council is being held today at Lakewood Country Club. The public is invited.

The local Lakewood Dog Obedience Club is participating as well as Downey, San Pedro, Southeast, South Gate, Southwest Obedience Clubs, Santa Ana Valley Kennel Club, and many other organizations.

Tickets, which include a program covering all events and scoring sheets, for luncheon and/or dinner will be available at the door.

THE MORNING session got under way at 7:30 o'clock when the track was laid for demonstrations featuring specially selected dogs. Those who missed this early event, may still come out to see the novice, open, utility and police degree demonstrations on the country club grounds.

Special addresses emphasizing all sides of obedience training will be given by experts following luncheon which is set for 11:30 a.m. The afternoon program will include a judges' open forum with audience participation and a social intermission. Concluding event is dinner and a speaker at 6:30 p.m.

Dog owners are increasingly finding it wise to give obedience training a place in the lives of their pets. By virtue of his niche as a member of the family, the dog usually fits easily into his "school" curriculum.

HOWEVER, many persons interested in obedience training feel that because their dogs are mongrels they are not capable of learning even basic good behavior. While it is true that all dogs striving for points in obedience trials must be purebred registered AKC dogs, it is not true that a pedigree necessarily wags the dog. Many mixed breed dogs can be obedience trained with the same methods used with purebred dogs—getting across to the pets exactly what it is they are to learn by familiarization and by understanding, patience, attention, kindness and affection.

One of the most remarkable dog stories in the news this year concerns a mongrel who was at first not even considered very intelligent. The Christian Science Monitor carried this report:

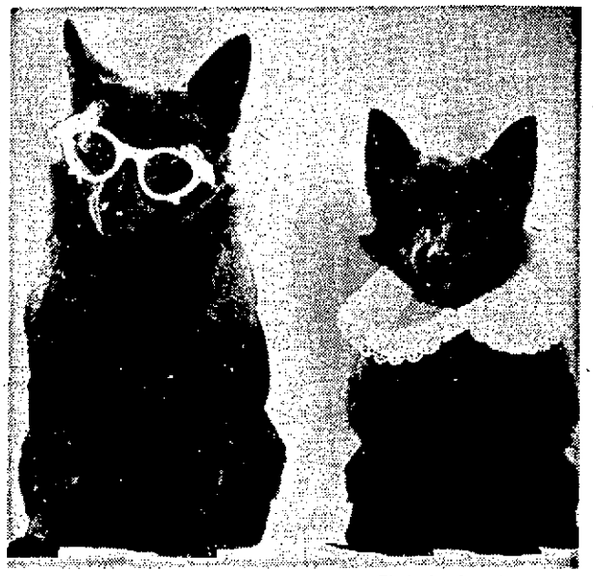

"Our little mongrel, Sparkie, was undeniably a nuisance, always getting underfoot, tripping people on the stairs, racing us to the front door when the bell rang, and refusing to be budged from the big lounge chair.

"THEN MY AUNT came to stay with us and, incredibly, Sparkie at once became a gentleman. He would wait decorously at the top of the stairs until our guest had descended. He kept out of her way when she walked through the house. The lounge chair was his only until he heard her approach, and then he would instantly jump down and lie quietly at her feet.

"We shall never know how Sparkie understood that my aunt was totally blind."

So give your dog a chance and remember that some of our finest purebreds were evolved from a mixture of breeds.

NOON, NOV. 11, is the deadline for entries of the Sequoia Kennel Club unbenched dog show and obedience trial to be held Nov. 24 at Tulare County Fairgrounds, Tulare. Motels accepting dogs are Motel Selma, Drake, El Rancho and Virginia Motor Lodge.

HOW TO Guard Against Rot and Mildew

1. WOOD PRESERVING solutions are a good protection against decay and termites. Use them wherever moisture is a problem, especially where wood meets the ground. Apply solution to new and old lumber, brushing it liberally into cracks and joints.

2. MILDEW IS A FUNGUS growth. You'll recognize it by dark, rashlike spots where there's little sunlight and high humidity. Wash the area with warm water and soap suds, or trisodium phosphate solution. Following mixing formula on the package.

3. IF MILDEW HAS penetrated into wood, remove paint in affected area with paint remover. Bleach stain with oxalic acid solution—handle it carefully. Mix three tablespoons of acid to a pint of water. Brush it into wood, rinse with water, and let it dry. Then paint the spot.

4. TREAT AREAS especially susceptible to fungus growth with mildew-retarding paint. These paints can be purchased with mildew retardant already added, or you can buy a mildew-retarding additive that you can mix in paint you've selected to match adjacent areas.

PAUL HOOVER

No Spices Inside, Please

PRIME RIBS au jus is one of the greatest boons known to man. A person who spends an hour concentrating happily on a prime rib dinner just naturally forgets about rising taxes, ICBM missiles, radioactive fallout and all the other cares of this hectic space age.

The prime rib dinner at Paul's of Lakewood restaurant, Carson St. at Bellflower Blvd., is definitely such a worry-eraser. Host and owner Paul Hoover buys the very finest beef obtainable and his chefs spend hours preparing the 17-to-25-pound roasts so they will have the exquisite flavor and tenderness characteristic of excellent prime rib.

After the short ribs are cut off, the roast is cooked for an hour and 45 minutes to 2½ hours, depending on its size. Salt is sprinkled on the roast's exterior, but no spices are added to the interior meat. "The fine flavor of prime rib is the flavor of the meat itself," explains Hoover. "It cannot be improved by spices."

HERBS AND SPICES are added, however, to the hot au jus (thin clear meat juice) with which the prime rib is served. The price of the 14-ounce serving of prime rib at Paul's is quite reasonable, $2.50 a la carte, including large chef's green salad, baked potato with cheese sauce, rolls and butter. It's $3.25 on the generous complete dinner, which includes appetizer or soup, salad, two vegetables, hot rolls, choice of beverage and choice of many interesting desserts.

The large menu at Paul's features numerous other fine complete dinners, such as delectable grilled halibut steak with tartar sauce, $2.20; chicken fried steak, $2.25, and a regular Sunday favorite, stewed chicken with fluffy dumplings, $2. Among the charcoal-broiled steak specialties is the giant 16-to-18-ounce choice T-bone for $3, a la carte.

Paul's, which has a coffee shop and cocktail lounge in addition to the large dining room, is open daily from 7 a.m. to 1 a.m.

AT HOME in Montreat, N. C., the author dictates a memo. He spends much time here between his "crusades."

I'll always remember . . .

A judge who knew me

by BILLY GRAHAM

It happened in Florida. I was speeding — breaking the limit — hurrying to a meeting in Miami. Suddenly I saw a traffic cop coming toward me, and he stopped me.

"How in the world could you stop me coming toward me?" I asked.

"Radar," he said. He took me to the judge — who was in a barber shop. The judge said, "Just a moment" — he was the barber. I waited until the judge got through giving a haircut. Then he came around the little desk. He pounded the gavel and said, "The court will now come to order. Guilty or not guilty?" Then he looked up and said, "Don't I know you?"

And I said, "I hope not."

He said, "Aren't you the preacher, Mr. Graham — Billy Graham?"

I said, "Sir, I am sorry to admit it. I am."

He said, "I listen to you every Sunday on the radio." And he went on to tell about what he thought about our work.

I put my wallet back in my pocket. I thought I had found a friend. We talked a little bit of this and that. Nothing was mentioned of the case.

I said, "Well, I have to be in a meeting in Miami. I am certainly delighted to have met you, Judge."

He said, "Well, I am certainly delighted to have seen you, Dr. Graham. That will be $10, please."

As I paid up, I had to acknowledge that he was right and I was wrong. I might be a Christian inspiration to him on Sundays, but at that moment I was just another law-breaker.

It was a lesson I've never forgotten. ■

On Parade

The recent article on this page about Dr. Albert Schweitzer (A man and an ant, by Marion Mill Preminger) evoked considerable mail.

For readers who asked for the address of this unselfish man who devotes his life to Africa's natives, here it is: Dr. Albert Schweitzer, Lambaréné, Gabon, French Equatorial Africa.

Another item — this one in the In the News page about dogs and the lives they lead (Sept. 22), brings additional news about the dog who went out to get aid for a sick man. Armour F. VanBriesen, Stillman Valley, Ill., writes: "We are owners of the dog now, as the man was my father-in-law. The dog has good and bad points — but he did his duty."

On the cover is an Italian model displaying a new idea in resort wear. It marks a trend you'll see echoed here in America. Meanwhile, you can read about it on pp. 30-31.

New times–new taste

for Light refreshment

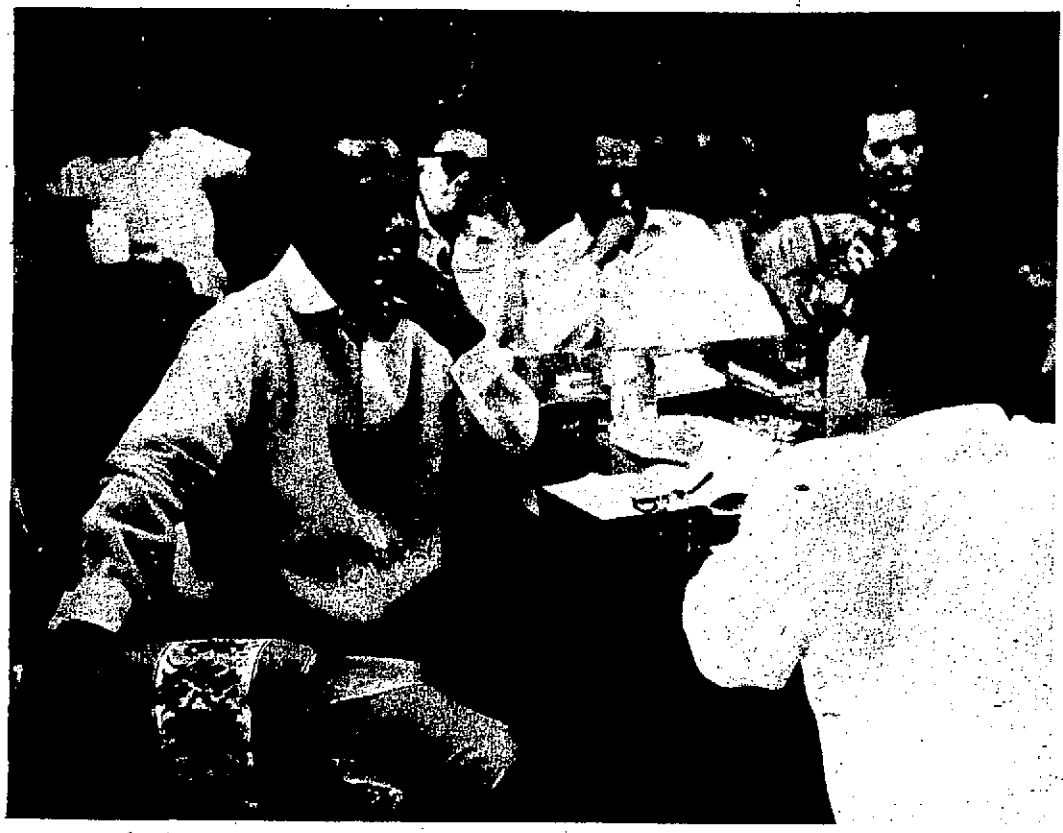

THE table's turned these days on many old ideas about entertaining. Figure-conscious moderns like the light, less-filling food and drink featured on the modern buffet.

Pepsi-Cola's there, of course, because it's followed right along with this sensible trend. Today's Pepsi, reduced in calories, is never heavy, never too sweet. Have a Pepsi—the modern, the light refreshment.

CANDIDATE GARCIA, the incumbent, follows the practice of his predecessor, President Magsaysay, in listening to everyone who comes to his office with a problem. García has been accused of "neutralism" on the Indian model, but says: "Our position is clear. We cannot be neutralists in the fight between Communism and democracy."

Filipinos vote—U. S. style

With 15 men running for president, 6,000,000 ballots will be cast on Tuesday. Best bet: A pro-American will be elected CANDIDATE YULO (above) is given an outside chance. A plantation owner, he has been charged with arranging a government loan to himself while serving in public office. To offset talk that he is a rich man's candidate, he has posted signs like this one. All Filipino candidates must campaign in English, Spanish, local dialects.

by FRED BLUMENTHAL

Parade Washington correspondent

MANILA, P. I.

With the U. S. and Russia locked in a power struggle, every election throughout the world takes on new importance to Americans. Next Tuesday's Philippines presidential balloting is no exception. U. S. government experts will look hard at 6,000,000 Filipino voters as they flock to the polls from this nation's 7,000 vine-tangled islands.

An on-the-spot check indicates that the candidate who convinces voters he is friendliest to America will win. For Filipinos have not forgotten who taught them democratic ways and granted them independence.

Even the campaigns here have a typically American ring. Candidates bombard the electorate with posters, kiss babies, use jeeps, helicopters and sound trucks to reach remote jungle villages. At the same time, police have been rounding up loose firearms to discourage bullets instead of ballots on election day. And 8,000 extra troops will keep order at the polls.

Of the 15 presidential candidates, these five are considered to have the best chance:

Carlos García. Successor to the late President Ramón Magsaysay, after Magsaysay's death last March in a plane crash, García is outspokenly pro-American. He led a guerrilla group during the Japanese occupation. Today, for diversion, he writes romantic poetry, which he has read during campaign speeches to delighted followers.

By Limousine and Jeep

José Yulo. A wealthy sugar-producer, Yulo travels in an air-conditioned limousine but jumps into a jeep outside each town to greet the voters. In the Jap occupation, Yulo held public office and so was jailed by the Filipinos when General MacArthur recaptured the islands. Though pro-American, he still smarts from this postwar treatment.

Claro Recto. Sharply anti-American in the past, Recto also was jailed as a Jap collaborationist. His biggest handicap: Word has leaked out that he dyes his hair, which many Filipinos resent. A campaign asset: His wife is a former beauty queen.

Manuel Manahan. Magsaysay fired him from a high post. A scandal was rumored which never became public. Today, ironically, Manahan capitalizes on his physical likeness to the late president — and like Magsaysay, he rides water buffaloes, leaps over fences and mingles with primitive tribesmen.

Antonio Quirino. Another outspoken pro-American, he is a brother of the late President Elpidio Quirino. His chief appeal is that his name is familiar to many voters.

All these candidates are experienced in government work. García and Quirino fought the Japs. Yulo and Recto served in the puppet government — a fact voters are not likely to forget.

Who will win? Confidential surveys made available here to PARADE indicate that García will get 45 per cent of the vote. In a five-way race, that's ample margin for victory. And a recent effort to sabotage García's candidacy was stopped cold: The election commission ruled that three other men named García could not get on the ballot! ■

On the Corps' birthday, here are . . .

Today, on the 182nd birthday of the U. S. Marine Corps, PARADE salutes the Leathernecks with some of their own photographs. They are typical scenes of Marine activity, showing how traditionally tough boot training paid off in tougher combat. These shots, some of which heartened our country during doubtful times, are the work of Marines who in civilian life were professional photographers or who became "pros" in line of duty. The pictures are from an exhibit of Marine Corps prints which have been on display for the past month in New York City. Now the exhibit goes on a nation-wide tour which begins in Washington, D. C.

Are show people overpaid?

A million dollars for one film is a lot. Here are the pros and cons

by LLOYD SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD.

How high can a star climb? Today, with salaries in the entertainment business at dizzying peaks, movie-makers and others here are facing up to that question. And no wonder: no occupation in the world pays more money, no other industry boasts so many persons earning $100,000 a year.

In recent years, in fact, the amounts demanded by and paid to show-business stars have become so huge as to be almost meaningless. Take a few samples at random: John Wayne now gets $666,666 a picture. Tyrone Power's share of the profits on Mississippi Gambler, a run-of-mine film, now have reached $950,000. Audrey Hepburn, a few years ago a poorly paid London chorus girl, currently is the world's highest-priced actress: she gets $350,000 plus $1,000 a week expenses, or 10 per cent of the film's gross earnings. Her husband, Mel Ferrer, although an actor of scant box-office pull, gets $100,000 a picture.

Five Times Ike's Salary

Nor are these monster pay checks limited to movie earnings. Tab Hunter's royalties for one recording, Young Love, have reached $78,000. Elvis Presley's take for a one-night stand is $25,000. Jerry Lewis' fee for a week in a Brooklyn night club was $40,000.

Some of these entertainers earn five times more in a year than President Eisenhower. Are names worth that much?

Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association, has said again and again, "Salaries are far too high in every field of film production." (Johnston's own salary, incidentally, is $125,000 a year plus expenses.) Veteran producer Sam Goldwyn has said the same thing, in different words.

Independent film producer Charles Schnee is more specific. "Something is very wrong," Schnee says, "when an actor like Cary Grant receives $1,000,000 for his part in The Pride and the Passion before the producer, Stanley Kramer, makes a single cent."

Other producers point out that many stars — Burt Lancaster, John Wayne, Gregory Peck, Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz among them — have set up their own companies. When they agree to work for someone else, they make extreme demands. Yet often enough their terms are met.

Marilyn Monroe demanded 75 per cent of the gross of The Prince and the Showgirl plus ownership rights after eight years. And she got it. And when Frank Sinatra agreed to a TV series if he had complete control, without interference from advertising or network executives, ABC went along with him. The network also agreed to pay him $8,000,000 over three years.

Once in a great while, for old time's sake, a star will consent to labor for a flat amount. Because he is an old friend of Darryl Zanuck, Tyrone Power appeared in The Sun Also Rises for $300,000 and $1,000 a week in expenses. But he hated to do it because of income taxes.

How can stars demand — and get — so much? Producers blame the star shortage and the resultant law of supply and demand. A few admit, privately, that some such demands are justified. "After all," they say, "Clark Gable worked for peanuts at MGM while the studio made a fortune on his pictures. Now he's entitled to what the traffic will bear."

What nettles producers most, however, are the demands of actors of less magni-

Introducing NEW SWEPT·WING 58

(So advanced it leaves the rest behind !)

Costumes by Bonnie Cashin for Philip Sills

A MOST UNUSUAL NEW CAR is now enjoying an enthusiastic reception all over America. It is very low, very daring, beautifully proportioned. Designated "Swept-Wing 58," the car is the successor to the 1957 Swept-Wing Dodge which launched a "buying revolution" against the high, boxy design carried over by other cars in the field. In Swept-Wing 58, owners will have the most advanced 1958 car on the road in style, ride and true greatness of handling. Significant advances include an Electronic Fuel Injection engine, a new Constant-Control power steering system, and a "Sure-Grip" differential for better traction on snow and ice. Torsion-Aire ride, which virtually eliminates road sway and brake dip, is standard equipment. Driver controls all speed ranges of the automatic transmission by push-button. Dodge spokesmen point out: "The Swept-Wing 58 has no counterpart. To own it is a new adventure."

Says one topflight manager: "Today, it's a seller's market . . ."

$10,000 A WEEK: Mamie Van Doren gets this for singing in clubs.

tude. Victor Mature is a case in point. He demands and gets $200,000 a picture, plus a percentage of the profits. So does Richard Widmark. Similarly inflated prices are demanded by Yvonne DeCarlo ($150,000), Anne Baxter ($100,000), Audie Murphy ($200,000), Jennifer Jones ($250,000), Alan Ladd ($200,000) and others.

Another executive declares that only three or four actors are worth their asking price; the others, he says, "are living on yesterday's reputations." And as for women stars, he continues, "the plain truth is that a studio can take pretty nearly any pleasant, well-built girl and blow her up to star proportions."

The reason for stars' high prices, as this executive sees it, is bankers. "They won't finance a no-name movie. The first thing they ask is, 'Who's in it?' So producers must hire names to get backing."

The worm may be turning. "Lately," he says, "we've begun to develop newcomers whom we've put under long-term contract. TV has proved the public will go for newcomers if they like the series. Look at Gunsmoke. Today the story is more important than the star."

What do the stars have to say? After interviewing dozens, I've yet to find one who admits he's overpaid. Clark Gable, when we were on location for The Tall Men in Mexico, told me:

$40 Million, but No Cut

"The public doesn't realize that an actor doesn't make much money when he first goes under contract. During the first few years, the studio uses you in as many pictures as possible. In many cases, the studio profits are gigantic. Take Gone With the Wind: So far, it's grossed $40 million — but all I got was my regular salary. After years of making profits for others, an actor decides to make some for himself. I can't see anything wrong with that."

Other stars point out that they give at least 80 per cent of their salaries to the Government in taxes. Of the rest, the bulk goes for clothes, personal staff and keeping up appearances. Terry Moore once itemized a list of expenses typical of the young actress making $65,000 a year, or $1,250 a week:

Income tax	$675
Agent's commission	125
Publicity	75
Fan mail, secretary, beauty care, etc.	125
Clothes	125
Total	$1125

Terry's figures leave about $125 a week for saving and investment. Practically any star can quote similar figures.

The actors' agents, of course, say the stars are worth every penny they get. "After all," says one, "actors bring in the public. How about the producers, the executives, the theater owners? They're the ones who're overpaid."

Louis (Doc) Schnurr, Bob Hope's agent, explains it simply: "Entertainers are in demand. If an entertainer's terms aren't met in Hollywood, he can set up his own company. He can make recordings. He can play Las Vegas, go into TV, make personal appearances. Today in show business we have a seller's market."

I asked Bob Hope what he thinks about performers' pay. Despite his flip tongue, Hope is a shrewd, thoughtful man. "It is never a question of an entertainer being overpaid," Hope declared. "It's simply a question of how much a laugh, a tear or a thrill is worth to the audience. Entertainers, after all, are people. Like all people, what they want most is a sense of security and peace of mind. Somehow, a fat bank account seems to help." ■

Parade

This is an unusual story. It deals with a young woman who, like 750,000 other Americans, must say...

'I am a mental patient'

by SID ROSS and ROBERT P. GOLDMAN

The woman pictured on the opposite page is one of a growing group of Americans — patients with schizophrenia in mental hospitals. Her name is Priscilla Masterman. Her life-in-sickness represents, to some degree, that of each of the nation's 15,000,000 sufferers from mental disease. PARADE presents her story in hopes of creating broader understanding of problems like hers. It was prepared with Priscilla Masterman's own cooperation. Thanks also are due to Mendocino State Hospital and the California Department of Mental Hygiene.—THE EDITORS.

TALMAGE, CALIF.

"My baby girl had brown eyes and brown hair. The baby we took home wasn't mine; it had blonde hair and blue eyes. I knew it wasn't mine because it would shrink in my arms and then grow bigger again. This baby's features would change as I looked at her. I think she had been born previously and this was a reincarnation from another life . . ."

This is Priscilla Masterman talking. She is patient #31931 at Mendocino State Hospital here. Her disease, schizophrenia, is what you have heard called "split personality."

Born in Seattle 37 years ago, Priscilla is articulate and soft-spoken, with something of a Mona Lisa air. Neat and prim, with pretty dark hair, Priscilla seems to glide in and out of the pleasant buildings that make up Mendocino. Because she is improving, Priscilla, unlike some of the other 2,300 patients here, has "privileges." She can move about freely from her brightly appointed room to the hospital library, recreation rooms and landscaped hospital grounds.

She even can walk right out of the hospital: there are no guards, no walls at Mendocino. But Priscilla knows that she is not yet completely well. She knows that within the hospital she can receive the treatment she needs so badly.

Actually, treatment for schizophrenia is to some extent guesswork. No one knows the cause of the disease. Doctors theorize that it results from brain or chemical defects, or perhaps the early influences of a broken home. So Priscilla gets drugs. She gets constructive work to do. Above all, she gets time, patience — and understanding.

That last may be the key. In schizophrenia, the mind loses touch with reality. There are tortured delusions, unpredictable mental wanderings. Fear, hatred, hostility, grandeur are common manifestations. Unable to control his feelings, the patient at the same time may distrust others and retreat to his own little emotional island.

"I Went to Pieces"

That is how it has been with Priscilla. Sometimes the terror, helplessness, confusion are real to her. More often, today, they are only remembered. So now she can discuss the voices, the "cold, blue level," the despair of feeling tortured.

"At the beginning," she says, "I began hearing voices of people I had known. Some of the voices ridiculed me. Other voices were kind of jealous. 'You're not you. You're not real,' they said.

"I went completely to pieces. I thought I was receiving mental telepathy from people who were killed in the atom bombing. I even went through the death of Christ on the Cross. I felt the nails and the pains through my feet and hands. I was suffering."

That was about five years ago, when Priscilla's illness started. Before that she had been — well, just Priscilla. She had grown up in Seattle, one of three girls. When she was 12, her parents were divorced. Then her mother became mentally ill and had to be hospitalized. In her teens, after graduating from high school, Priscilla went out on her own. She got a job and later married, then was divorced.

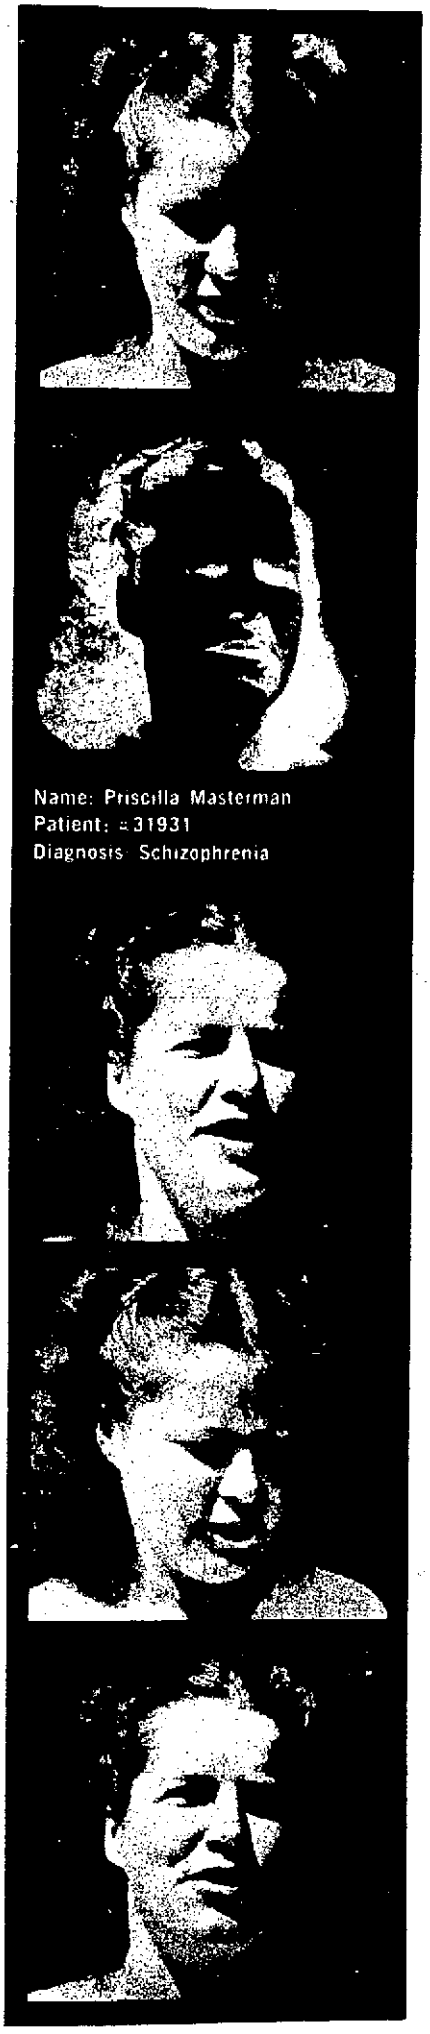

Shortly afterward she was remarried to what she simply calls "a Navy man." That was in 1946. Six years later she gave birth to a baby girl.

Just before that, the first sinister symptoms of schizophrenia appeared. Priscilla was returning to the U. S. from Guam with her husband. On the ship, she began to feel ill. She cannot recall having distorted thoughts before — although doctors say she must have had some symptoms. Suddenly she began to live on different "levels."

"There are three levels," she believes. "One is the real cold-blue level, high up. Then there's the extreme hot down below; and medium terra firma. Sometimes I've been on the real hot level, sometimes on the real cold level. The low level is like hell. People there don't count their blessings. On the high level, there is a tremendous battle always going on, a friction to control power."

This is what happens when delusion replaces reality for Priscilla. Similar things happen to sufferers from mental illnesses other than schizophrenia. All told, there now are 750,000 patients in public U. S. mental hospitals. The American public pays $1 billion per year to support them; these patients lose more than $2 billion in annual income through inability to work. In addition, authorities estimate that roughly one in 10 Americans, though not hospitalized, suffers from some form of mental disorder, neurosis or psychosis which can be incapacitating. To some extent Priscilla Masterman speaks for all of these.

"It always becomes hot and dry when I'm upset," she says. This is one conviction she has yet to shake.

Name: Priscilla Masterman
Patient: #31931
Diagnosis: Schizophrenia

"It's amazing the power that human minds have over the physical universe. Within a few moments, nature reflects one's emotions. I can tell that everyone is happy here this morning because the weather's so lovely outside . . . There is magnetism in the air. It can hurt you and confuse you if you don't read the Holy Bible and if you don't count your blessings."

Priscilla's Navy husband learned to expect such statements from his wife — or stronger ones, like this: "I began feeling that we were at war and that the Russians had captured us and were torturing us. I thought they wanted to kill me, but they really wanted to save me to die a slow horrible death. I guess I was really sick . . ."

The upshot was that the husband divorced her and won custody of their daughter. Alone, frightened, depressed, Priscilla continued her downhill slide. She sought work, but almost invariably was turned down: her mental distress was apparent even to the casual outsider. For a period of four years she went from mental hospital to mental hospital in Washington, Utah, finally California. A year ago, Priscilla was admitted to Mendocino.

Prior to her arrival here, she says, "Time seemed to stop and stand still. I couldn't make it move. It was all very strange. I had the feeling that people didn't want me in their world . . . I couldn't shake off the cold, high-level world where people really wanted to capture me."

Here at Mendocino, Priscilla was observed closely after she was admitted. Excerpts from hospital records say of her: "At times, she seems completely absorbed in meditation sitting in a chair, her eyes closed . . . Piano playing seems to have become an obsession with her . . . She seems to have an air of grandeur — acting a part . . . Today she is pleasant . . . seems to have reached a better level in regard to realism . . . not so haughty in action and speech . . . She stated in a very loud manner that she is not to be disturbed when reading her Bible . . ."

"The Voices Followed Me"

Priscilla herself describes her feelings about coming to Mendocino: "The voices followed me. I was really frightened, I was frightened of the doctors and nurses, too. They said they'd give me shock treatment if I didn't calm down. They didn't though, for which I am thankful.

"But still when I arrived, I couldn't shake off these people in the high-level dream world. Oh yes, it's real. It's a very real world. All these reincarnations are created up in that dream world . . ."

Thus, when Priscilla began her treatment at Mendocino, her dream world had become real. She had to struggle against it, because to her it meant constant mental agony, constant harassment. Once she became unmanageable. Last spring, she struck an attendant and had to be restrained by four hospital staff people. But since then she has not been violent.

On another occasion, she indicated to a nurse that she expected to die soon. As a precaution, the ward staff was alerted to watch her closely, lest she attempt suicide. To everyone's relief, she didn't.

Somewhere along the way Priscilla took a turn for the better. The date is uncertain; so are the exact reasons. Perhaps she began to respond to the psychiatric treatment and the medicines she was getting. At least some credit probably goes to what the hospital calls its "therapeutic community," which allows certain freedoms in which patients can help one another, partially set their own routine and thus even influence the hospital's programs.

In any case, Priscilla is climbing slowly out of the hazy world of schizophrenia. She can talk about the illness calmly and even with a degree of objectivity.

"Schizophrenia is a very fearful ailment. I feel it must be some sort of judgment passed on one, to see how one has lived previously. Places change. The scenery changes. Thickly wooded hills become barren and the trees just shimmer and disappear. I've seen it with my own eyes.

Her Chances for Discharge

"Yourself, you sort of shrink. You feel panic. Terrible panic. You shake. You tremble. You seem to get smaller and smaller. You want to get away, but you know you cannot. Only prayer helps.

"People become mean, cruel, sadistic. You feel a bitter resentment of your presence. You feel that they think everything is your fault. Sometimes, the whole place becomes magnetized and things deteriorate. I don't want to hurt anyone, just like I don't want to be hurt."

The voices, the fears, the resentments are coming less and less often to Priscilla. Two or three months ago, she believes, the frightening voices began to diminish. Yet there still are moments when she finds herself in the dream world. There still are moments when she talks about those "levels" and wanders off into her own little emotional vacuum.

What are Priscilla Masterman's chances for discharge? Thirty years ago, they would have been less than one in three. Most patients like Priscilla would have spent their lifetimes in a mental hospital. Today the picture has changed. On the average the chances now are better than 50-50.

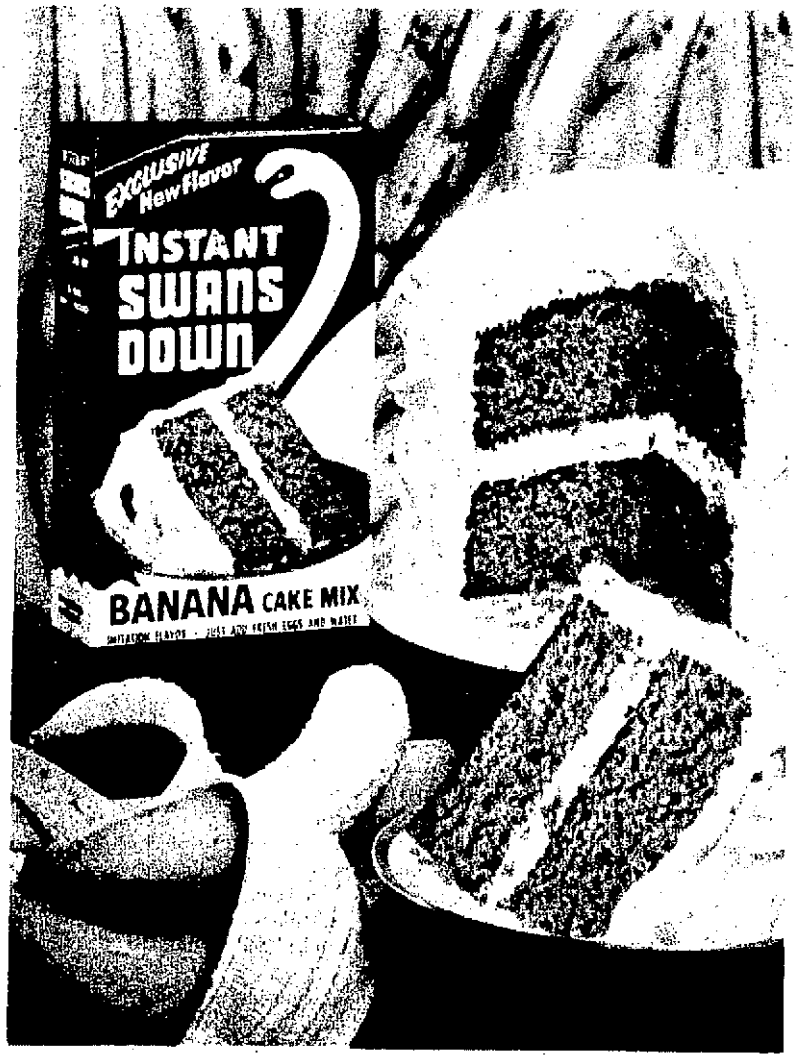

It may take a year for Priscilla's release. It may take more. Priscilla believes strongly that "I have touch with reality. I don't have delusions as long as I remember to count my blessings. I think I am a much better person than I was before. Here in the hospital, I have learned the true values of life. I've learned not to be self-centered. You must think more of others."

Step No. 1 in Priscilla's ultimate release will come when doctors feel she can live on the outside, manifesting few if any symptoms. She would be followed up closely by hospital social workers. Their purpose: to chart her progress which might lead to unconditional release.

But Priscilla is in no hurry. Every evening before going to sleep she offers a little prayer of thanks for the help she has received at Mendocino.

"It's a wonderful home here for those who need it," says Priscilla in a warm, calm manner that makes one forget, momentarily, that she is referring to a mental hospital. "You're always occupied. Your days are full and long."

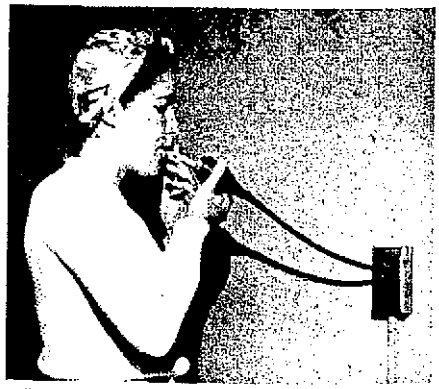

The photos on these pages bear that out. Priscilla's days include library work (six hours or so, starting at 8 a.m.), socializing, reading, taking medication, relaxing and dreaming of what it would be like to "live on the outside."

Says Mendocino's clinical director, Dr. Ernest W. Klatte: "At present, as you see Priscilla, she is much improved, but still definitely psychotic. Her judgment often is not good. She still has delusions. She still believes that her baby was changed . . ."

Priscilla herself agrees that there is "a bit of schizophrenia" left in her. She still remembers those frightening voices that once taunted her. But she feels that, inch by inch and with the help of Mendocino treatment, she is overcoming her sickness. Now, as she walks to her ward, a serene smile comes over her face and she whispers, almost to herself:

"Someday I'll be heading down the road, going away from here. Someday I will . . . I will . . ." ■

Jet planes were shattering these Illinoisans' nerves, but the Navy wouldn't budge. Here's how group action made little Glenview...

The village that

Lawyer Arthur R. Seder, Jr.: He headed the committee which kept at the Navy until Glenview won.

GLENVIEW, ILL.

If you had a multimillion-dollar jet-plane base in your front yard, constantly noisy, frequently a danger to you and your children, could you persuade the U.S. Navy to pick up and move its jets somewhere else?

The residents of this Chicago suburb have done it. Their secret is a simple one: working together in the good old American spirit of community action for a common goal.

What happened here doesn't really seem special, now that the goal has been won. But there was a time when it looked impossible. That was several years ago...

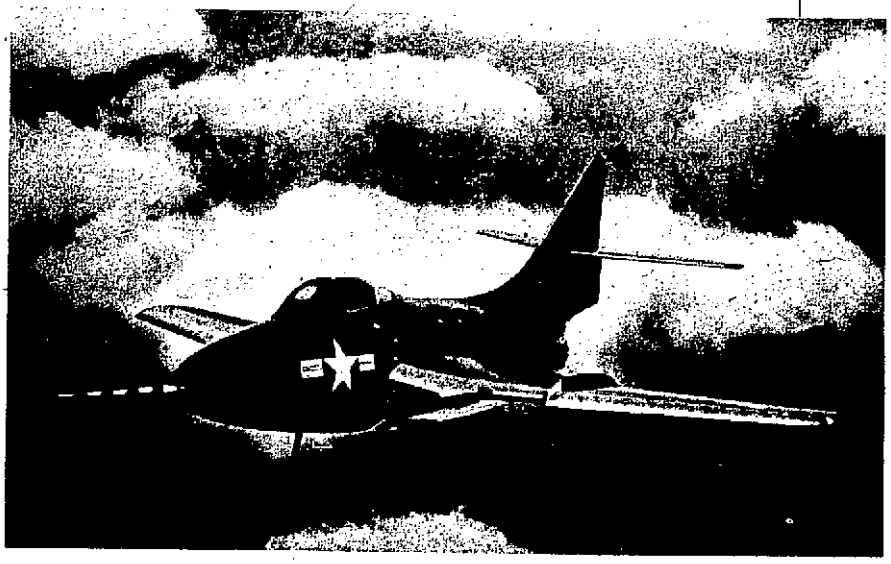

Glenview was a sleepy village then. It awoke only gradually, as so many suburbs did after World War II. New people began moving in. New homes were built by the hundreds. Today the village, no longer sleepy, has a population of 15,000, with at least as many more outside the village line.

Glenview also has, or had, a problem — the Navy's reserve flying base. Maybe your town has one too; there are 28 scattered across the country, plus 26 Air Force bases.

Mushroom Growth

The Navy had moved into Glenview back in 1937, taking over a small private airport. There was plenty of room then. But after the war the base mushroomed. Slow propeller fighters were replaced with high-powered Cougar jets. Runways were extended. Glenview became the Navy's largest inland field and national headquarters for the reserve training command. On week ends, some 500 reserve pilots would come to brush up their jet know-how. Glenview householders, trying to enjoy their days of rest, grew irritable, then anxious, then determined to take steps.

What touched off the first real action was a report that the Navy wanted to extend its main runway right into town. On the 89 acres it coveted were a church, a new park and some 60 houses valued at up to $60,000 each. Suggested date: 1958.

chased the jets away

Actually, the Navy had the power to condemn the site. But to the people of Glenview these "expendable houses" were home. They intended to stay.

Seeking further facts, the League of Women Voters set up a meeting of some 250 civic leaders — and a Navy representative. The civilians gave the Navy man a bad time; results were inconclusive.

Protest by Arrow

But feeling kept rising. One day a 13-year-old boy shot at low-flying jets with a bow and arrow. Alarmed pilots called police, who discovered the youngster was only seeking revenge for the top of his father's favorite oak tree, clipped off by a careless pilot. The incident was amusing — but symptomatic.

All in all, community tension was high when a public meeting was called. More than 800 persons appeared at the high-school auditorium. Main result: naming of a group with the formidable title of the Citizens Glenview Naval Air Station Action Committee.

After weeks of study and debate, the committee agreed on the course to follow. Says its chairman, 37-year-old lawyer Arthur R. Seder, Jr.: "We decided that if the Navy was determined to keep Glenview as an air station, we couldn't reasonably object. Our whole objective was to get the jets removed. We knew this couldn't be done overnight if the reserve program was to continue."

Following this line, the committee persuaded the Navy to reduce the amount of jet activity on Sunday mornings during church services. Meanwhile a volunteer force — mostly members of the League of Women Voters in Glenview and nearby suburbs — was mobilized to carry petitions door-to-door demanding an end to jet flying at the station.

The petition drive was well under way when a series of accidents at the station increased public alarm. The most serious was the collision of two Marine Cougar jets maneuvering to land. One exploded and scattered wreckage on lawns where children were playing.

After this crash, the committee reached into the Navy's higher echelons for a hearing. Rear Adm. B. E. Moore, then director of the aviation plans division for the Chief of Naval Operations, flew to Glenview for a conference. On his return to Washington, he wrote to the committee indicating jet flying ultimately would be moved and that a survey for another location would be started at once.

The committee, which had been campaigning and conferring for nearly a year, was delighted. Then came disheartening news. Charles S. Thomas, then Secretary of the Navy, rejected as "not realistic or practicable" a proposal that the air station be relocated.

Seder and the committee again talked things over. Despite this setback, they had some 7,000 signed petitions urging the base's removal. Thus armed, they flew to Washington. There they corralled Illinois' two Senators (Douglas and Dirksen) and their Congresswoman, Marguerite Stitt Church, for a meeting with an assortment of admirals.

Agreement At Last

This time they asked for straight information. The admirals listened, noted the thousands of petitions, pondered the opinions of the Illinois legislators. And then they laid down a plan of action — in writing:

- At Glenview, the Navy undertakes to replace the jet squadrons with anti-submarine squadrons, which use propeller-driven planes. This will be a gradual process, requiring about five years. But the Navy is committed to it.
- Elsewhere, the Navy plans to remove jet training to more remote locations, reserving the close-in stations for propeller aircraft.

"Our group and others like us made this problem acute and helped influence the Navy to revise its program," says Seder quietly. "I think we have accomplished something."

CALIFORNIA TRIES AN EXPERIMENT

Only 12—and

Learning to teach, eighth-grader Robin Ratcliffe studies first-grade art with grade's regular teacher, Mrs. Molsbergen.

Trying to look like a poised young schoolmarm, Robin gives her young students — they could be her brothers or sisters — an assignment in writing a composition.

a teacher

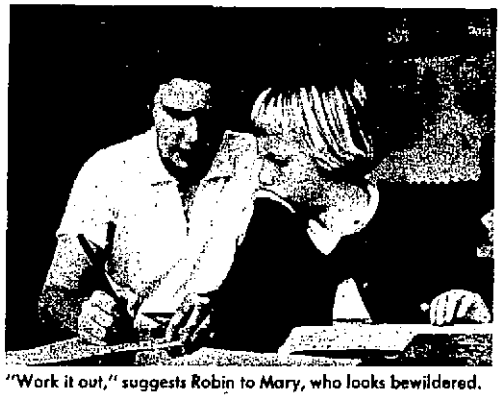

MENLO PARK, CALIF.

With the need for good teachers desperate, educators here have started tapping a vein that's close at hand and rich in talent: the American school system's brighter students. Robin Ratcliffe, the 12-year-old pictured on these pages, is a case in point.

Robin was selected from the cream of Menlo Park eighth-graders in a program developed by Dr. Melville Homfeld, superintendent of schools. She and other classmates spent two days learning the basics of teaching from top educators. Then, for a week, they put in the mornings working with first-graders and the afternoons studying in their own eighth-grade classrooms. It went so well that now Dr. Homfeld hopes Robin and the rest will want to turn the experiment into a lifetime career. ■

Robin and student, Mary McClaren, tackle a tough question.

"Work it out," suggests Robin to Mary, who looks bewildered.

"A-ha!" Mary, granddaughter of baseball's Ty Cobb, "sees."

When are you liable for damages?

A parked car is partway on the road while its owner changes a tire. Not seeing him, you hit and injure him. Is it your fault? — or his? Test your knowledge of negligence.

by SAMUEL G. KLING
Author of "The Popular Legal Encyclopedia for Home and Business"

Carelessness wastes time and energy. If it also involves legal negligence, it can cost the careless party real money. Could you be liable for damages through some possibly well-meant but careless act that brought trouble to someone else? Help protect yourself by learning something about negligence now. Test yourself on these questions. (Answer Yes or No to each.) Then check your answers on the opposite page.

QUESTIONS

1 You trip on a department-store stairway, injuring your back. Is the store liable?

2 You scald yourself in a hotel shower because a plumber got the "hot" and "cold" taps backwards. Is the hotel liable?

3 You tell a dentist to extract a certain tooth. While you are under anesthesia, he finds that one next to it is decayed, so he extracts that instead. Have you cause to sue?

4 As a guest arrives on your porch, a rotten board gives way, hurting his leg. You didn't know it was rotten. Are you liable?

5 Driving carefully on an ill-lighted street, you hit a bad bump and blow a tire. The car, out of control, goes into a ditch and you are injured. Have you a claim on the city?

6 A bus you have just boarded starts with a lunge, throwing you to the floor and breaking your arm. Is the transit company liable?

7 Playing as a guest on a golf course, you are hit and hurt by a ball driven by an unidentified player. If the player is found and identified, is he liable?

8 You buy property whose title, your lawyer says, is free and clear — but he has overlooked a $1,500 mortgage against it. Can you recover from him?

9 Trying to fix a flat tire at night, you carelessly leave your car partly on the highway. Another driver, approaching from the rear, knocks you down. Is he liable?

10 An errand boy, delivering a prescription, is bitten by your dog. Are you liable?

11 A policeman fires at a thief in a crowded street and wounds a bystander. Is the policeman liable?

12 As a steamer passenger, you slip in water that has splashed onto the deck and are injured. Is the steamship company liable?

13 You visit a Turkish bath and collapse in the steam room, injuring your skull. You sue, claiming the attendant should have warned you not to stay so long. Can you recover?

14 You agree by wire to buy some real estate. The telegram is not delivered and the parcel is sold to someone else. Is the telegraph company liable?

15 If you are in an accident and want to sue, how soon must you do so?

ANSWERS

1 No. The store or its employes must be negligent before liability can be established. Grease left on the stairs so customers could slip in it would be a case in point. But you simply tripped.

2 Yes. The hotel is liable whether it does the work itself or entrusts it to a plumber.

3 Yes. You told the dentist to extract one particular tooth — not the tooth which, in his opinion, was giving you trouble. If you had asked him to find the trouble and use his own judgment, you would have no claim. The same applies to surgical operations.

4 No. Your defense, if you are sued, is that you did not know about the defective board. Your guest must prove you did know, or lose his case.

5 Yes. And you also may recover the damage to your tire.

6 Yes. Though public carriers do not insure their passengers' safety, they owe them the highest practical degree of care. Such a sudden lunge as that described leaves the carrier liable for resultant injuries.

7 No. The person who drove the ball, provided he used reasonable care and gave audible, timely warning, was not the insurer of the safety of those in its path.

8 Yes. An attorney is under a duty to exercise such skill and knowledge as to preclude such negligent acts on his part.

9 Yes. Even though you placed your car carelessly, the other driver still should guide his car so as to avoid an accident.

10 Yes and no — depending on the dog's reputation. If you knew it to be vicious, you are liable. If it was recognized as gentle and harmless, you are not.

11 Yes. Even under stress, a policeman's duty is to do his job so as not to injure any innocent party.

12 No. Unlike the bus-driver in question 6, the captain of the steamer had no control over water splashing on his deck.

13 No. Any risk attendant on visiting a Turkish bath is assumed by the patron.

14 Yes. A telegraph company is responsible for any direct loss you can prove due to its negligence.

15 Generally, within three years. After that the statute of limitations runs out and you lose your chance.

SCORING

Give yourself 10 points for each question you answered correctly. (Give yourself 5 for getting either part of the right answer to question 10.) If your total score is 120 or better, you have an excellent overall grasp of the legal meaning of negligence. Between 65 and 115 ranks you as about average. If you scored 60 or less, it wouldn't hurt to read up in one of the many good laymen's law books — or even have a chat with your lawyer. ■

PROTECTOR of Buddhist temple, a "Prince" holding symbolic sword and gourd, prepares to battle "Devil" (right). Mask and headdress are made of cardboard.

'Devil dancers' of the Himalayas

In streamlined 1957, the fantastic figures pictured on these pages still caper through a strange rite in remote Nepal, a country sandwiched into the Himalaya Mountains between India and Tibet. Only recently opened to the outside world, Nepal already faces the conflicting pressures of neutralist India on one side and Red China on the other. But such figures as these still live on.

Actually, they are costumed Buddhist priests. PARADE's Richard Harrington found them in the village of Banepa, only 80 miles or so from towering Mount Everest. There he sought out the head lama and, through an interpreter, asked to view the ceremony. The lama gave him permission to enter the temple court, where he watched the grotesquely masked dancers perform the Devil Dance.

The dance depicts a combat between Princes and invading Devils — representing Good and Evil, respectively. The Devils finally are driven out. Says Harrington: "It may be only a dance — but it embodies the hope of all humanity." ■

Study tips from good students

JOHN KANE, Scranton Central High co-captain, takes time out from scrimmage to chat with cheerleader Margaret Mary Whalen, who is dressed in the school colors — navy and gold.

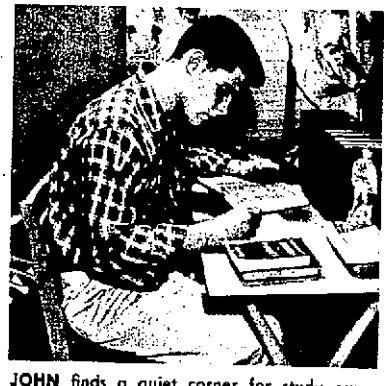

How can the boy or girl who isn't a genius — and who likes a good time — get better-than-average marks?

I recently talked with two "non-geniuses" from Central High in Scranton, Pa., who can tell you: Margaret Mary Whalen, 16, and John Kane, 17.

Margaret Mary is one of the prettiest and most popular juniors at Central. John is a senior, co-captain of the football team and president of student council.

Yet Margaret Mary has an A-minus average, and John, though he just misses the honor roll, keeps trying — and fully expects an academic scholarship for college.

How do they do it? Both tackle the hard subject first (it's Math for Margaret Mary, English for John); both think "you're just making an excuse" if you say you can't find a place to study; both keep a dictionary close by("That I'll look this word up later' attitude never pays," says Margaret Mary).

JOHN finds a quiet corner for study away from 14-year-old brother and younger sisters.

Black-haired, hazel-eyed "Maggie," as she sometimes is called, is 5'7", weighs 118. She doesn't date during the week, is a cheerleader, takes piano lessons, is on the student council and in dramatics.

Unlike her brothers and a sister, who have all chosen careers in medicine, Margaret Mary plans to major in music in college.

When we met for luncheon one day, she looked neat and attractive in a bright plaid suit, a button-down shirt, stockings and French heels. She wore the same suit that night when she took me on a tour of the teen-age hangouts.

John leads an even busier life than Margaret Mary. A wide-shouldered 6', 225-pounder, he cut out basketball and baseball a year ago because he "needed a chance to rest."

He's an outgoing and friendly young man, though he says that during his freshman and sophomore years he was "pretty shy." But then he was coaxed into playing Boris Karloff's role in Arsenic and Old Lace. "They didn't want a long hair for the part," he says. "After that I figured I could try anything."

Now John talks enthusiastically of college and his future career in business. He is an example of the fact that anyone can get better-than-average marks if he establishes good study habits early. ("My family always has encouraged me — to put it mildly," he says.)

John and Margaret Mary agree that it's never too late to start. Here are a few of their study tips:

1 Listen. Even if a teacher speaks in a monotone, don't let your mind wander.

2 Get the point. If the teacher is a fast talker, don't break your neck taking down every word. Follow closely; jot down a few notes later.

3 Write down assignments. If you don't, you may be on the phone for hours.

4 Make regular study hours a habit. The longer you put off homework, the harder it is to start.

5 Schedule work. Assign so much time to each subject. Tackle the hard subject first, so it won't be neglected.

6 Have all your study tools at hand. Keep your pen, sharp pencils, notebooks, paper, books and dictionary nearby.

7 Use the best lighting and sit up straight. Both affect your health, which in turn affects your homework.

8 Relax. Promise yourself a break after a certain assignment. Drink orange juice or take a brisk walk as a reward.

9 Review. At the end of the evening, back-track, think over what you've done. Take the attitude: I can't possibly know everything.

10 Plan ahead. If you still have time, start work on a long-term assignment. It's easier to do it piecemeal than have it all to do in one night.

Holiday confetti bread

BY BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

New Confetti Bread is a handy loaf to have around during the holidays. Spread it with butter or jam; toast it and serve golden-brown and hot; slice it thin for dainty sandwiches. It's easy, because you can make as many loaves as you like and put them in the freezer until needed. Defrosted, they will be as fresh as the day you made them. To do this, let the bread cool to room temperature then wrap securely in heavy-duty aluminum foil or transparent plastic film, seal, label and freeze. You'll be glad you did when the pressure of holiday entertaining is upon you!

Kitchen Hint: For dessert — snip stems from dried figs with kitchen shears, slit figs on one side and stuff with wedges of sharp cheddar cheese. Or leave stems on, dip figs halfway in melted semi-sweet or sweet chocolate; when chocolate hardens, fill the holiday candy dish.

HOLIDAY CONFETTI BREAD

2½	cups sifted all-purpose flour	⅓	cup raisins
4	teaspoons baking powder	½	cup shortening
¾	teaspoon salt	¾	cup sugar
¾	cup chopped Brazil nuts	3	eggs
1½	cups mixed diced candied fruits	½	cup mashed banana
		½	cup orange juice

Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Stir in chopped nuts, candied fruits and raisins. Cream shortening; add sugar; beat until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Combine mashed banana and orange juice; add to creamed mixture alternately with flour mixture, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Turn into waxed-paper-lined and greased 9"-x-5"-x-3" loaf pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 1 hour. Let bread cool in pan half an hour before turning out on cake rack.

Is pro football dirty?

Some people claim it is. Last year Detroit Lions' quarterback Bobby Layne was tackled from behind when he didn't have the ball; he suffered a brain concussion. The season before, Cleveland Browns' quarterback Otto Graham was kicked in the head and knocked unconscious.

Both Layne and Graham were the stars of their teams. Were they injured accidentally or on purpose, to put them out of the game?

I played 10 years of pro football, the final five with the Cleveland Browns, before retiring at the end of the 1956 season. And this I will say:

• In the National Football League today, players are punched, kicked and otherwise illegally manhandled by some opposing players.

• It is impossible to determine whether these acts are intentional, unintentional or half-and-half — i.e., a player sees an opening and a reflex action on his part does the damage without premeditation.

• Most "dirty play" is not maliciously designed to get a player out of the game. A player usually resorts to illegal tactics because he has become overly enthused or has lost his temper.

• Such players nevertheless should be put out of the game for all or part of its duration, as is done now in baseball and hockey. A hot temper is no excuse for smashing a man's face or breaking his arm or his leg.

• The blame for dirty football, in my opinion, rests 1) with the officials and 2) with you, the fan. If fans and officials insisted that this kind of football be stopped, it would be stopped.

Till then, it's going to continue because football is the game it is. Pro players are paid to give hard, bruising all-out football. It's inevitable that some players will let their enthusiasm or their tempers run away with them. Let me cite some examples.

Among the overly enthusiastic ones, there's Ed Meadows of the Chicago Bears. A defensive end, Meadows sometimes gets so worked up he knocks down an opposing quarterback even when the latter doesn't have the ball.

The habit got Meadows in trouble last fall. He tackled Detroit's Bobby Layne after Bobby had fed the ball to another player. Layne went down so hard he suffered a concussion. With Layne out of the game, Chicago went on to win, 38-21.

The Lions charged the Bears were out to "get" Layne. Meadows claimed he didn't know Bobby had let go of the ball. Whether he did or not, the fact remains that Meadows should have been penalized for making an illegal tackle by being put out of the game.

But officials are reluctant to put a damper on such players. Once, for instance, a player swung at one of my ex-teammates on the Browns, Chuck Noll. Chuck narrowly ducked the punch, then charged over to an official. "Did you see that?" he demanded.

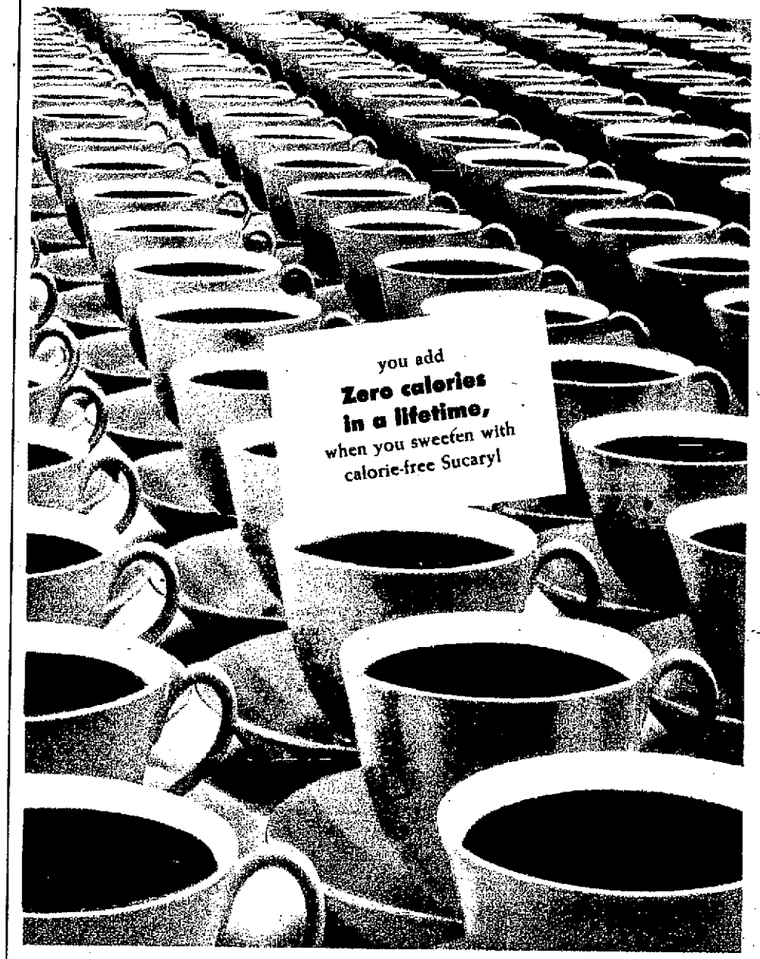

"Yes," said the official. "So what?"

"Aren't you going to throw him out of the game?"

VIOLENCE of pro football, as shown in this photo, causes some pros to lose their tempers, says Ratterman, and begin using illegal tactics. Though only natural, he says, it should be controlled.

'I saw the hulking Yonaker bearing down...'

"What for?" the official answered calmly. "He missed you, didn't he?"

Another time the Giant's Bill Svoboda threw several punches at me. I complained to the referee, who nodded. "Just let him keep that up," he told me. "We'll catch him before the afternoon's over."

Two other players who let enthusiasm get the better of them are Don Colo of the Browns and Chuck Drazenovich of the Redskins. Chuck is an expert at checking ends illegally at the line of scrimmage so they can't go downfield for passes. Colo's enthusiasm boomeranged on him and his team last year when he roughed a Redskin kicker. Washington got the ball and went on to score the touchdown that finally won the game.

To me, this would indicate that a coach should pull a player out of the game when he becomes too aggressive. Such tactics not only hurt the name of football, they can cost you a ball game in penalties.

Two of the most enthusiastic men in the game are Jim David and Jack Christiansen. Former college teammates at Colorado A & M, they now operate as defensive backs for the Lions. Although relatively small for pro football, they always seem to be looking for trouble. I long have felt they engage in some sort of contest to see who can get into the most mix-ups.

Beware Tempers, Too

The players with quick tempers are just as dangerous as the overly-enthusiastic ones. Several years ago, for instance, John Martinkovic of the Giants pounded Bobby Layne on several plays, drawing two consecutive penalties for unnecessary roughness. Later Martinkovic was asked why he was so angry with Layne.

"He's always yelling at his own teammates," was big John's explanation. "I can't stand quarterbacks who do that."

Another who is said to get hot-tempered easily is Paul "Tank" Younger, 230-lb. Los Angeles Ram fullback. When Tank is tackled, according to some players I've talked to, watch out. If you're at the bottom of the pile-up with him, he may take a nip at you with his bare teeth.

And then there is John Henry Johnson, now of the Detroit Lions. In the heat of one rough game during 1955, Johnson (then with San Francisco) somehow brought down his elbow on the face of Chicago Cardinal star Charley Trippi; Charley's face was so badly cut up he had to undergo plastic surgery.

Still another whose temper sometimes got the better of him — and this is why I'm not calling any of the men I've mentioned dirty players — was myself, George Ratterman. Once, when I was playing for Buffalo, John Yonaker of the Browns kept knocking me down. On one play I went back to pass, saw no one clear and the hulking Yonaker bearing down on me.

Pigskin Persuasion

I wasn't figuring on getting belted again. I took dead aim with the ball and fired it straight at Yonaker's head. This accomplished two desirable ends: it got rid of the ball without any loss of yardage, and it "persuaded" big Yonaker to stay off my back for the rest of the afternoon.

Yet I should have been tossed out of the game for an illegal play that could have injured Yonaker. If this were done, there'd soon be a lot fewer such acts, since in this football age of specialization no team can afford to lose any player for any length of time.

You — as a fan — share the blame with officials. They feel you want to see blood. As a result, they may leave players in the game whose tempers are likely to cause some blood-letting, and I don't think any right-thinking, normal fan wants to see that kind of football. If you let pro football officials know how you feel, by letters and lack of cheers for roughhouse playing, pro football will soon be cleaner — and better. ■

● PARENTS OF FAMOUS CHILDREN

TULSA, OKLA.

There's nothing like a big family.

So say Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin A. Fowler, parents of popular singer Patti Page —and they should know. The Fowlers are the parents of eight girls and three boys. All are living, and with the exception of one daughter, all are married and following their parents' example by busily raising families of their own.

Patti, who joined the married set last year, began life as Clara Ann Fowler. This year she chalked up the sale of her 35,000,000th record (one of the best known: The Tennessee Waltz) and began her weekly, hour-long TV show, The Big Record.

They Picked Cotton

Ben Fowler and his wife live in a pleasant, six-room, five-year-old ranch-style home here. While life is leisurely for them now, they say they wouldn't trade the years when the kids were young for all the oil in Oklahoma.

But they admit it wasn't all joy: "Feeding 11 youngsters, keeping them in clothes and shoes and a roof over their heads was a problem. Especially when the Depression came along. We had to work hard. Oh, it wasn't easy."

During the lean years, Mrs. Fowler and the children who were old enough often bolstered the budget by working long, hot hours in the cotton and corn fields. Mr. Fowler, now retired, worked on the Missouri Pacific Railroad, later on the Midland Valley line.

"We used to live in Claremore, Okla.," says Mrs. Fowler. "That's where Patti was born. Later we moved to other towns and to Tulsa 18 years ago. But wherever we lived, each youngster had his own duties and chores. Everybody had to cooperate to make the family a going concern.

"None of the children was spoiled as they are in many small families. We didn't have time for pampering. But the discipline and even the hardships paid off in character building and—yes, in happiness.

"I certainly recommend having a big family. An even dozen would be ideal, even though we settled for only 11."

Things are quiet around the Fowler home nowadays, since none of the children lives there. But the couple — he is 69, she 67 — keeps busy taking care of the place, working around the yard and tending, in season, their vegetable and flower gardens.

"We don't get lonely," Mrs. Fowler adds. "Five of our children live here in Tulsa. But to tell the truth, it seems good now to be alone. When we want to hear Patti's voice, we just put on one of her records. And each week we watch her TV show."

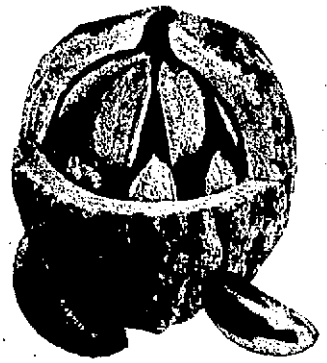

Patti takes time out from her busy schedule to visit her parents once or twice a year. Mrs. Fowler recalls that her famous daughter loved to sing even as a child. "But then, they all did," she says. "Instead of crying, they sang."

Right now Mrs. Fowler is looking forward to a happy reunion when the couple marks its Golden Wedding anniversary in two years.

"It will be quite a get-together," she says. "You see, there will be not only our 11 children, but our 25 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren as well. Patti has her Big Record show, but I think our anniversary celebration will make quite a big record, too." ■

ALL LINED UP: Patti (second from left) was a teenager when sisters posed for this picture.

WEAPONS he's lifted from stopped cars are proof of McGinty's acumen.

In Connecticut they marvel at...

The cop with the

by FRED BREWER

GREENWICH, CONN.

It was a raw, gray morning in March, 1954. Francis X. McGinty, a city patrol officer, was cruising on his motorcycle along the Post Road near here. A car with two youths in it passed him leisurely, headed west. Nothing unusual, you would think. But McGinty suddenly got a hunch.

He stopped the car, asked questions. The car had been stolen; the young men were armed. Later, after they had been locked up, the desk sergeant stared at McGinty. "We sent out an alarm on that car at 8:28," he said, "yet you stopped it 15 minutes before the alarm. How do you do it?"

McGinty shrugged. "I just play hunches."

A detective on the police force here with 22 years' service, McGinty at 43 is a pleasant, unassuming and modest man. You might take him for the friendly policeman who waves school children across the street at a busy intersection. Yet he's a crack officer with several dozen commendations for his uncanny knack of spotting wrongdoers, or would-be wrongdoers. Consider this incident:

Rewarding Hunch

Several years ago a car with two men and a woman in it passed McGinty. They waved. He waved back. But he felt his hunch twitching, and stopped the car. The registration and the driver's license were in order. "We've been on a little vacation," the driver remarked.

Said McGinty, "Then you won't mind if I look in that suitcase there." He pointed to a valise on the rear seat. "Just lady things," the woman said. McGinty looked anyway. The case contained seven new men's suits, with labels removed and valued at $400, all stolen from clothing stores in nearby towns.

Townsfolk and fellow police officers speculate about McGinty's hunches. Some attribute them to supernatural vision — though his blue eyes measure a normal 20/20. A local motorcycle officer, Robert Craemer, says: "He sees right into a car just as if he were sitting in it. But who knows how he does it? No one, not even him." Several years ago when the local Lions Club awarded him a plaque as "Policeman of the Year," a club member asked McGinty what the "X" in his name stood for. "Xavier," said McGinty. "Xavier, heck!" said the clubman. "That X means X ray!"

Thereafter the "X for X ray" idea caught on. And it's little wonder, when you look at a few high spots in McGinty's career:

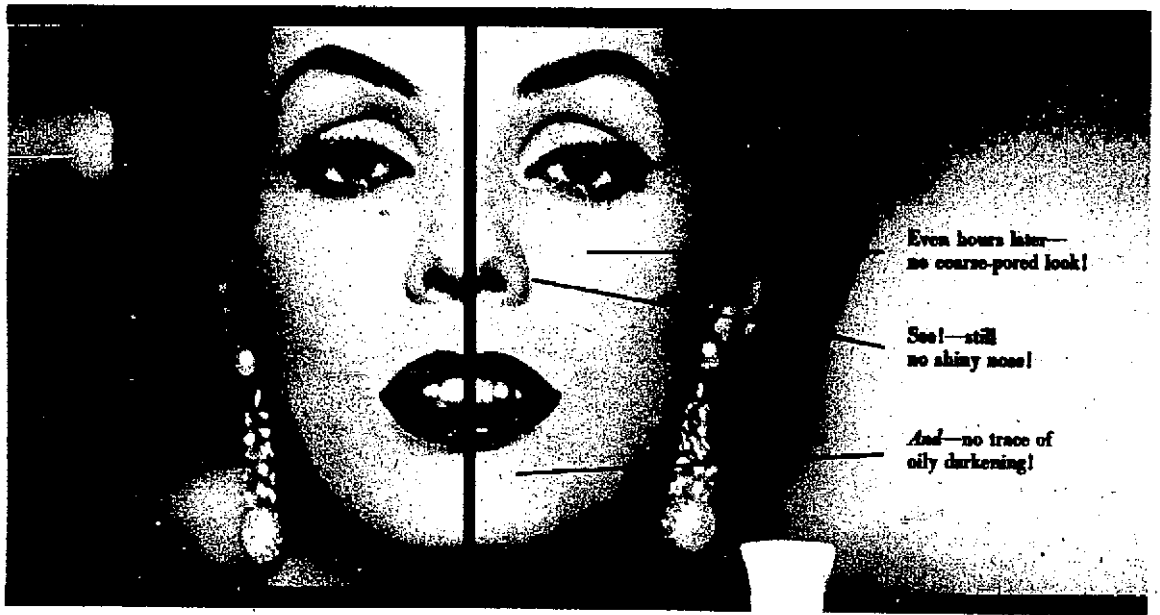

January 18, 1946. McGinty stops a car matching the description of one stolen in Bridgeport, Conn.

There really is no reason to; the license plates don't tally with those of the stolen car. But McGinty looks in the trunk and finds a second set of plates. "Switched 'em?" asks McGinty. "Yep," the driver glumly admits.

April 1, 1947. McGinty spots an auto containing two women. Playing his hunch, he stops the car. He finds $185 worth of merchandise stolen from a store in Port Chester, N. Y.

March 5, 1956. McGinty gets a hunch a passing car contains more than the four adults sitting in it. It does — $600 worth of stolen merchandise.

McGinty's hunches aren't always to someone's disadvantage, however. One December, for example, he came across a shivering youth standing outside a Greenwich truck stop, trying to thumb a ride. Traffic was thin. No one was stopping to pick up a hitchhiker. McGinty asked the youth where he was going. "Portsmouth, N. H.," said the young man.

SUSPECT waits as McGinty examines his credentials.

"Hungry?" asked McGinty. "I sure am — but I haven't any money." McGinty led the youth inside the truck stop, sat him down at the counter and departed. A half-hour later he returned. "Here," he said, shoving an envelope in the youth's hand, "this is a bus ticket home."

Several days later the Greenwich police chief received a letter from Portsmouth. The letter read: "May all officers reach the polite and helpful status that Officer McGinty has reached." With it were a few dollar bills in repayment of McGinty's hunch.

McGinty can't explain his X-ray vision. He doesn't believe he has a sixth sense, but only a talent in quickly noting small, seemingly innocent details.

"I look for signs," he says. "A criminal always gives himself away by some nervous motion — he tags himself." These motions, McGinty explains, are apparently normal ones: lighting a cigaret, placing a hand to the face, looking the other way, sometimes just acting friendly. But can you find any signs in the following incident?

A Prim Trio

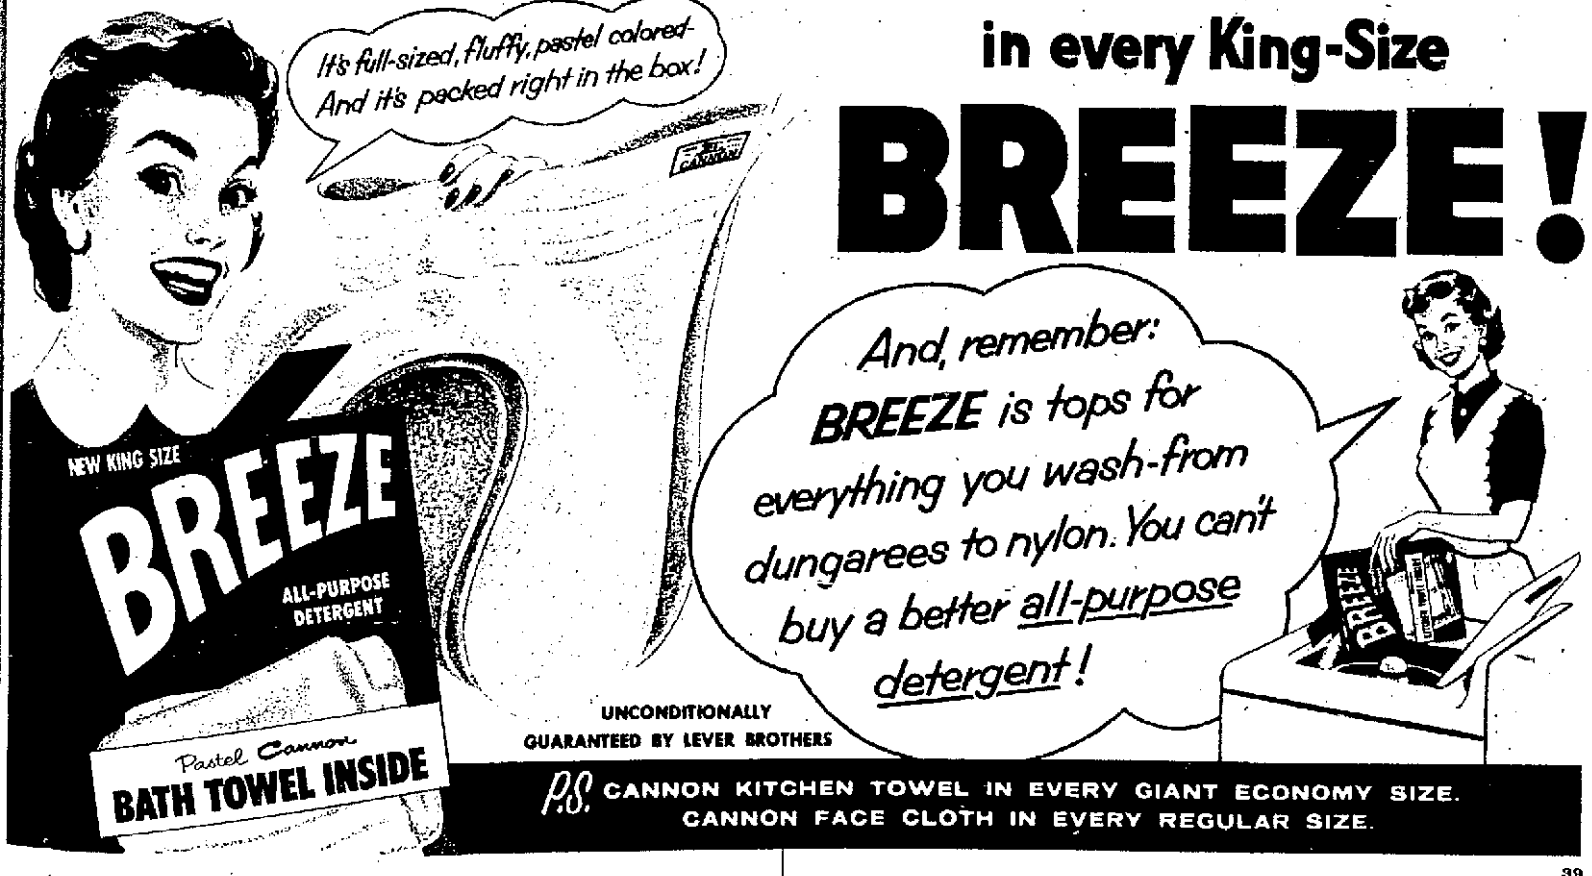

On a sunny afternoon, McGinty was in a squad car waiting for a stop light to change. Across the intersection, headed the other way, was a long limousine driven by a chauffeur. In the back sat two prim ladies, one reading a newspaper. McGinty got his famous hunch. He turned his squad car around and stopped the limousine. The occupants were prim, all right — but not dignified. They were a trio wanted for shoplifting in Connecticut.

And what nervous motion, or sign, revealed this trio to McGinty's all-seeing eyes?

"Well," he says, "I noted this lady reading her newspaper upside down, and —"

Upside down, across an intersection, inside a car . . . McGinty can't explain it, either. "I guess," he says, "a nosy cop is just a good cop." ■

Tomorrow's

This Christmas, boys and girls

Before too long, your child probably will hand you his Christmas list. Before you mail it to Santa Claus, peek — and expect something new. This year, the experts say, the big demand will be for toys that copy the grownups' miracle machines of atomic energy, electronics and rocketry.

On these pages PARADE brings you a preview of several such 1957 toys. Others to look for, come Christmas morning, include Sky Sweeper Truck, a miniature Nike rocket launcher with a rotating searchlight (Ideal Toy Corp., $7.98); Dancing Dan, a toy minstrel man who dances when a youngster sings into a microphone (Bell Products Co., $6.95); Satellite Launcher Truck, a toy that spins plastic space satellites a few feet into the air (Ideal Toy Corp., $4.98). All are battery operated.

Why do today's children want such scientific toys? The Toy Guidance Council has the answer: they learn about man's latest inventions in school, see them on television, hear their parents discuss them. So, like their parents, they demand the world of tomorrow — today. ■

Put me back on the track

If constipation due to lack of bulk is your problem, read how All-Bran helped Blanche Mellinthin, Salt Lake City, Utah. She writes: "We have 18 elderly ladies here in the convalescent home. And for lack of exercise, all suffered from irregularity till we tried All-Bran. It put me and all our ladies back on the track." Kellogg's All-Bran, eaten daily, provides all the natural laxative bulk you need to avoid irregularity. Kellogg's—the original ready-to-eat bran cereal. Tastes like old-time bran muffins. Try it.

Discover the SCENIC WONDERS... HISTORY... INDUSTRIES... and PLEASURES OF LIVING in the world's most exciting country—America

THIS SAVAGE DEVIL DANCE is still performed each year by the Apache Indians. Long ago, this fierce tribe gathered nuts and berries for food—and hunted small game with boomerangs. But when European horses were introduced to the Southwest, the Apache way of life changed overnight—and they became the most dangerous and bloodthirsty of all Indians! The Apaches had many strange customs; a warrior, for example, was forbidden to speak to his mother-in-law . . . or even to look at her face!

GIANT PADDLE WHEEL STEAMERS used to take 20 days for a Mississippi voyage—which a modern jet plane makes in two hours. But these shallow draft ships were perfectly suited to the perils of the River. Even huge floating logs were turned to splinters by their churning oaken paddles! The most famous of all Mississippi pilots was Samuel Clemens—whose pen name "Mark Twain" means "two fathoms (12 ft.) deep water" in the fascinating language of the river boat men.

WHERE IS THE OLDEST HOUSE IN AMERICA? You'll find it in St. Augustine, Florida. This colorful city was founded more than 40 years before Jamestown was settled by the English! Four different national flags have flown over this building. Tories hid here during the American Revolution.

BOBBY PINS AND BULLDOZERS are made from the same kind of steel ingot as this one, shown emerging white-hot from a huge furnace. Today, the United States produces about half of all the steel in the world—or more than 1000 pounds for each man, woman and child in America.

THE NEW "KNOW YOUR AMERICA" PROGRAM will take you to California's fabulous Tournament of Roses—then back to New York to watch the giant balloon parade at Thanksgiving time. Wherever you go, experts will describe every fascinating detail. What a wonderful way to prepare the family for touring "in person" some day!

THOUGH THE RED SQUIRREL'S DIET IS CHIEFLY NUTS AND SEEDS, HE IS ALSO VERY FOND OF MUSHROOMS...

AND DURING THE SUMMER MONTHS, HE BUSILY LAYS AWAY A SUPPLY OF THESE DELICACIES FOR THE LONG WINTER DAYS AHEAD

GATHERING THE CHOICEST OF THE CROP HE CAREFULLY HANGS THEM UP TO DRY IN THE SUN...

AND WHEN THE MUSHROOMS ARE CURED, THE INDUSTRIOUS SQUIRREL STORES THEM AWAY IN A DRY STUMP

THEN WHEN OTHER LESS PROVIDENT CREATURES MUST SUBSIST ON A MONOTONOUS DIET, OR FACE THE CRUEL COLD IN SEARCH OF FOOD...

THE SQUIRREL ADDS SPARKLE TO HIS DAILY FARE WITH AN OCCASIONAL MUSHROOM SALAD!

TRAIL WAYS

MANY MEMBERS OF THE RODENT FAMILY LAY IN A STORE OF SUPPLIES FOR USE IN WINTER WHEN FOOD IS SCARCE

NOT ONLY DOES THE RED SQUIRREL CACHE MUSHROOMS, BUT NUTS, SEEDS AND GREEN CONES OF CONIFERS ARE STORED IN GREAT NUMBERS
